Thomasburg — The comedy "Bolts and Nuts" was presented in the Oddfellows Hall here on Friday evening by the Thomasburg Oddfellows and Rebekah Lodges under the direction of Mrs. Stanley Webb, before a large audience. This being the second presentation here. It was much enjoyed and the entire audience were kept in gales of laughter from beginning to the end.

All three scenes took place in late spring at a health resort sanitarium in Missouri in the living room of the Bolt mansion which was to be the Sanatarium for mental hygiene.

This play has been presented many times and the cast still have several invitations for about to be filled.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Nine years, it had taken Lisa to catch up to Court Grenable. He had gone away to college and returned emotionally, a different boy with him each time. Yes, it had been nine years of stumbling out of childhood adoration through adolescent worship — up the night a year ago when Court first danced with her at the club.

It had been excruciatingly simple from then on. Gliding across dance floors all over Lakeside County in Court's arms, dining in softly lit roadside haunts and listening to the equally enchanting music of his deep voice, waiting for him at trains in the cold bite of winter winds on his frequent Chicago trips, hating and loving him all at the same time whenever she saw him with another woman, whether it was a chance meeting with a Hilton girl or a duty trip to town with his mother's glamorous secretary, Geraldine Palmer.

But always, in those 12 months, he was back by her side, loving her, smiling at her, capturing her all over again with his words. And now, in the spirit at least, she was even fighting her own father for him.

It shouldn't be this way, she thought suddenly. Turning to another man shouldn't mean turning away from her father. In all honesty she knew it wasn't her father who made trouble, again it was Lavinia Grenable.

But all she knew was, she loved Court.

At his daughter's statement, that she loved Court Grenable, Henry Farwell shook his head.

"I can't forbid you to, Lisa," he said stiffly. "You're a woman now, no longer a child. But you were old enough when Martin Grenable died to remember what Lavinia Grenable did to him."

Lisa recalled Court's father quite clearly. The Senator had been a tall, silver-haired, silent man; a kind of frightening person to watch, with a terrible emptiness in his eyes and a very great gentleness with his children.

Lisa remembered her yearning to comfort Court the morning his father died. And out of the past another thought came to her. She looked at her father pleadingly, "It wasn't true, what they said, was it?"

He said harshly, "Martin Grenable was my life-long friend. He was not a weakling. But 18 years of marriage with that woman were too much for any man. Certainly he knew how to draw a gun! That was no accident."

She had almost forgotten her shivering terror that morning when Senator Grenable was found in the old coach house. In the coach house! It was as if someone had slapped her. What had Court said last night about remodeling the coach house for a temporary home? She couldn't live there, she decided bleakly. Somehow she'd work explain it to him.

"And Elizabeth," her father was going on fiercely, "you've seen her frustrated and domineered at every opportunity, by her own sister. What do you think she would do to a daughter-in-law?"

Elizabeth Stratton, Lisa knew, had long been a favorite with her father, there had been times in the last few years when she had loved him and pleasantly let him know that any plans he had toward Elizabeth were all right with his daughter. But after a visit with Elizabeth he always appeared thoughtful, even worried, often very angry.

"Why haven't you married Elizabeth, Dad?" she asked now, suddenly.

"Because she has refused me," he said quietly. "She thinks it's too late for her to escape Lavinia." He was watching her carefully, "you think that's an exaggeration. It is not. Lavinia Grenable is an evil woman. She brings evil to everyone she touches."

"But Lavinia loves Court!" Lisa protested. "He's her own son."

"So is Andrew."

Lisa could not miss the ominous quality in his words.

All Hilton knew what Lavinia had done to her youngest son. Young and in love three years ago, he, had brought down his mother's disapproval.

Lavinia Grenable worked underground like some obnoxious, boring animal eating away at the roots of life until they were destroyed and the stem of fruition killed. In Andrew's instance she merely forced out the business owned by the girl's father.

Andrew, in a frantic effort to explain, drove Elizabeth out of town in his car. It was in the spring and it had been raining. Andrew had ignored the fog and there had been a collision. Andrew was injured, too. But the girl, Ellen, died at the hospital. He never saw her again.

Lisa shivered. "Court said his mother approves of me," she said faintly. "She's coming here for dinner tonight, that's more good than evil. She'll never give him up. Hate or love, she possesses everything and everyone around her, I'd give my life, Lisa, to keep you away from her and from Court."

Recalling the scene with her father, Lisa had not realized how long she had been sitting on the road in her car. Her slim fingers ached from their fierce grip on the steering wheel.

She made a nice picture in the low, green convertible, a slender, blue-eyed, yellow - haired girl dressed in a clinging grey sport dress with a bright scarf around her throat.

Before her, across the clearing, the wood road stretched dark in the sunset. She stared at the Grenable house. What did she expect to find answered here on this deserted road from that wildly incongruous heap of architecture, hunched like an evil watchdog over the woods and ravines?

Yugoslavs See Mao One Day Tito of Far East

By RONALD PRESTON

Belgrade, Feb. 9—(Reuters) Yugoslav communists believe that Mao Tse-Tung, leader of communist China, may one day become the Tito of the Far East.

Already, they believe, Soviet Russia and communist China do not always see eye to eye.

Foreign Minister Edward Kardelj, in a recent speech to the Yugoslav People's Assembly, spoke of a "series of controversy" having manifested itself "in the struggle between Russian and China for influence and hegemony in Asia."

The Yugoslav line of thought is manifest in an analysis of events in the Far East published in the semi-official Yugoslav review of international affairs.

The review stated that Russia deliberately set out to stir up trouble between China and the rest of the world and to channel her policy into the United Nations because she had become uneasy about her great neighbor.

For the same reason, she decided upon a moderate policy in the Far East to reassert her influence there.

Kardelj said Russia chose precisely the moment—at the end of 1949, when it appeared the new Peiping government might be generally recognized and admitted into the U.N. to put her spoke in the wheel.

The Russian U.N. delegate "put the question of the unconditional recognition of the new government in the form of an ultimatum," he wrote.

"This ultimatum and the boycott which followed its rejection could only have the effect of making it practically impossible for the united States government immediately to give recognition to the Peiping government."

20 Students Marooned Overnight in Farmhouse

Exeter, Ont., Feb. 9 — (CP) — Twenty Exeter and district high school students, marooned overnight in a farmhouse after their school bus bogged down in heavy snowdrifts, were resting and thawing out in residents' homes here late Thursday. There still was no indication when they would be able to get to their rural homes.

The pupils and two men drivers, Harold Schwegentruber, Exeter, and Carl Oesch, Dashwood, were stranded about three miles north of here Wednesday after drifts, which collected in the wild, cold snowstorm, stopped their bus and its regular run through north Usborne township.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 9 (CP) —Synopsis: The bitterly cold air which covers all Ontario gave early morning temperatures reading from zero in southwestern Ontario to 32 below at White River in the Northern Ontario. At Sudbury the temperature dipped to 47 below zero to establish a record low for the month of February. In the 36 years for which records are available for Sudbury there has only been one lower temperature recorded— 55 below on Dec. 29, 1933.

Sunny skies and light winds today and Saturday may help to alleviate the intense cold.

Ottawa, Feb. 9 (CP)—Trade Minister Howe today ordered new drastic curtailments in the use of steel.

He extended previous restrictions on amusement construction to virtually all other types of civilian building, excluding home and hospital construction and the oil industry.

Wide List

The new steel order which goes into effect March 1 bans the use of steel without government permission on such construction as: office, hotel and bank buildings, restaurants, garages, shoe repair shops, brokerage firms, credit institutions, trailer camps, motor courts, printing shops, laundries and dry cleaning plants and undertakers' parlors.

The use of steel, without government permit, also is banned on any buildings erected in store, distributive, display or sell customer goods.

These include retail stores, shopping centres, hotels in establishments, gasoline filling stations, drug stores, soda fountains, florist shops and photographers.

Excepted are wholesale supply facilities for fuel oil, gasoline or coal, gas distribution systems or pipe-lines.

Amusement Projects

The new order includes all of the restrictions on civilian construction covered in Mr. Howe's first steel order June 16.

Included in this first group are all types of amusement construction such as: bowling alleys, dance halls, race tracks and bowling alleys. It also includes manufacturing plants for tobacco, soda pop, confectionery and for the production and sale of liquor and wines.

The new order is expected to save slightly a third supplementation and to prevent defence production slowing down.

Under new regulations, no steel supplier will be able to sell, supply or deliver any steel materials to any person except under a permit system.

This order will have to bear the person's certification showing the use to which the materials will be applied. If the use is on the restricted list, then a government permit must be obtained.

VERBAL BATTLES OF THRONE SPEECH DEBATE ENDED

Provincial Election Predicted This Year

Toronto, Feb. 9 (CP) — The Ontario Legislature, its chief verbal battle of the Throne Speech debate ended, turns today to government legislation.

A motion of non-confidence in the government by the Liberal House leader, Farquhar Oliver, was added yesterday to a similar motion made Wednesday by CCF leader, F. R. Joliffe.

In his motion, which will not be voted on for some time, Mr. Oliver said the government's policy outlined in the Throne Speech failed to promise measures to overcome home-building problems and gave no indication that "obvious defects" in Ontario labor laws would be remedied.

The Liberal leader also charged the government with continuing the "prodigal practices" of seven years of Progressive Conservative administration in natural resources.

A. A. MacLeod, Labor-Progressive party spokesman, took part in the Throne Speech debate to predict a provincial election this year. And he pleaded Communist China's case for admission to the United Nations.

Mr. Oliver, criticizing the government for failure to call a provincial-municipal conference said that such a conference could deal with the thorny problem of taxation of industries as well as financial problems of local government.

Should Give Lead

Ontario did not have final authority in civil defence, he said but it should give a lead. One means would be through decentralization of industries.

Bald For 10 Years, Grows Head of Hair After Beer, Blackout

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 9 — (Reuters) — Fred Thomas, 51, bald for 10 years, has baffled doctors by growing a fine head of hair. Last year, while drinking a glass of beer, he had a blackout and awoke in hospital. After a fortnight's treatment his hair began to grow again. Doctors tried on other bald patients the treatment—a mixture of yeast and blackout, but nothing happened.

Fighting Marine Gives Impressions Of Korea in Letter to Bartender

By HAL BOYLE

New York, Feb. 9—(AP)—What is it like in Korea? How do the boys really feel about it all over there?

These are the questions most often put to one who has just come back.

But a fighting man is in better position to give the answer than a correspondent.

For example, let's take Whitey. He is a big, strapping American marine who made at least three amphibious landings in the last war. He thought he was through with military service forever soon after the Japanese surrendered.

But for one reason or another—including maybe a little domestic trouble—Whitey signed up last year for another hitch. And soon he was being shunted to Korea.

He's still there, too. Whitey's views on Korea are given in the following letter, written to his favorite bartender:

"I wouldn't say it was cold here, but if I didn't it sure would be a (censored) liar. To tell you the truth, this place would freeze the ears off a brass monkey. . .

"Right now we are expecting a good attack. They got the word through from the Gooks were going to try to take back Wonsan. I'm all for giving it back to them. I sure don't like to see so many of our men. I guess they are getting pretty (censored) chilly up in the hills.

"When we landed at Kimpo in Korea, we weren't there five minutes until somebody took a shot at us. . .

"I've been telling them all the time I'm too old for this life. This sanpshilious handings in the last war. He thought he was through with military service forever soon after the Japanese surrendered.

But for one reason or another—including maybe a little domestic trouble—Whitey signed up last year for another hitch. And soon he was being shunted to Korea.

He's still there, too. Whitey's views on Korea are given in the following letter, written to his favorite bartender:

"I wouldn't say it was cold here, but if I didn't it sure would be a (censored) liar. To tell you the truth, this place would freeze the ears off a brass monkey. . .

Moans Echo Through Coach As Injured Travel to Hospital

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 9 (CP) — Screams and moans echoed through the streamlined railway sleeping car which brought injured to hospital here after the train-bus crash today at nearby Coniston.

First-aid men and a doctor travelled on the train from Coniston where they gave emergency treatment to those who were injured when the Canadian Pacific Railway passenger train crashed into a loaded bus in 47-below-zero weather.

Dozens more of first-aid men, summoned from the International Nickel Company's main plant at Copper Cliff, swarmed aboard the car at Sudbury.

Doctors who had been called to the station administered oxygen to some of the injured.

"I'll never forget this, I'll never forget this," said one first-aid worker who travelled on the train which took three-quarters of an hour to make the trip from the scene, seven miles outside the city. It crept along at a slow pace to prevent jolts adding to the pain of the injured.

One of the injured looked at a nurse and pleaded: "I'm going to die. Please don't let me die."

When the train was almost at Sudbury, one man screamed for help. A doctor gave him a hypodermic and he fell silent.

Three of the dead were found on the train, one on the observation car and two in the baggage car.

Other dead and injured were taken direct to Sudbury by ambulance.

Ambulance drivers, railway men, doctors, first-aid men and nurses were lined up at the station when the train pulled in. The ambulance pulled up alongside the train. Train crews pried open double windows to get the injured out of the sleepers on to stretchers.

Sight of the injuries stunned the station onlookers. One man had a deep gash across his forehead. Blood trickled from the arm of a third victim. The face of another was badly smashed.

Many of the patients were bundled in blankets to protect them from the 30-below temperatures recorded at the station when the train arrived.

The open window was covered by a blanket between the removal of each patient to protect those inside from the severe cold.

The ambulances shuttled back and forth between hospitals and the station.

Doctor Gives View Death Not Due To Violence

Ottawa, Feb. 9—(CP)—A second crown witness testified in the manslaughter trial of Mrs. Marion Sullivan today that he did not believe that the Toronto woman's husband died by violence.

Dr. H. E. Bayland, Toronto neurologist told the Ontario Supreme Court that a brain tumor, from which Francis J. Sullivan suffered, quite likely ruptured with consequent hemorrhage about the time Mrs. Sullivan said her husband had complained of pains in the head, the afternoon before he died.

Mrs. Sullivan was originally charged with the murder of her husband, whose body was found in a Chateau Laurier Hotel bedroom early Nov. 18. The charge subsequently was reduced to manslaughter.

Previous Testimony

Yesterday Dr. William Robinson, retired professor of pathology at the University of Toronto, created a stir in the court when testifying for the crown he expressed the opinion Sullivan had died from natural causes and not by violence as the crown charges.

Previous medical testimony by Dr. Max Kloit, who performed an autopsy on Sullivan's body, was that the man had suffered the numerous bruises and abrasions, including a large injury at the back of the head before the car.

The crown claims Sullivan died of injuries suffered in a beating. One or ie exhibits had been the reconstructed parts of a shattered skull.

E. D. Wilkins of Sudbury, one of the crown prosecutors, asked Dr. Bayland directly whether he believed blows to the head had caused Sullivan's death.

Dr. Hyland replied there was no doubt the actual cause of death was a brain hemorrhage, but he would not express an opinion, if blows had been administered, whether they had either hastened or directly caused the hemorrhage.

Mr. Justice McRuer asked Dr. Hyland if the injuries found on Sullivan's body could have been caused "by the acts" after suffering a hemorrhage.

"I do not think they could," replied Dr. Hyland.

SWEEPING PRICE CONTROL PLANS MAY BE NEEDED

- - - Howe May Combat Inflation By More-flexible Means

Ottawa, Feb. 9. (CP)—The Federal government does not intend to clamp down rigid price-wage controls in Canada, but may combat growing inflation by more-flexible means.

As demands rose within and outside parliament for checks on living costs, Trade Minister Howe told the Commons yesterday that the government is studying control action described as "alternative" to the across-the-board restrictions imposed during the Second World War.

But he did not rule out the "possibility" that sweeping price control measures will be needed, "should the developing situation make action necessary."

Mr. Howe, who now has wide economic-control power and likely will receive more under pending government legislation, did not mention the nature of the "alternative" control authority under study.

However, there is speculation that it involves some system of flexible ceilings, allocations, permits and other measures designed to hit at inflation more indirectly than the wartime measures.

He made his policy statement to a House whose members have been needled in the last ten days by a Labor-Union lobby pressing for price—but not wage controls.

Members Urged

Hundreds of thousands of postcards have been urging members to support the present Canada-wide campaign of Central Labor bodies with a membership of more than 1,000,000 persons.

Motorist is Killed At RR Crossing

Dunnville, Ont., Feb. 9 (CP)—Verne Fawcett, 22, of Caufield, Ont., was killed yesterday when he drove his automobile over a level-crossing in the path of a Michigan Central Freight train. His widow and two children survive.

Constable Jack Knight of the Ontario Provincial Police said a witness told him the driver of the train to pass told him that Fawcett was looking away from the approaching train when he hit it and crossed the tracks.

Found Literally Frozen Stiff, Woman Battles for Life in Chicago

Chicago, Feb. 9 (AP)—A young woman, found frozen stiff with a body temperature about 34 degrees, was about conscious today.

Scores of physicians visited the room to observe the treatment.

"It's fantastic that she should still be alive," said Harold Laufman, staff surgeon and assistant professor of surgery at Northwestern University.

Physicians at the hospital described Mrs. Stevens' condition as "critical." If she survives, Dr. Laufman said, it is possible that both legs beside a right arm will to be amputated.

Dr. Laufman also said that today Mrs. Stevens acknowledged the return of some sensation in her arms and legs.

"They're awfully cold," she said.

Laufman said there were only two cases of hypothermic (reduction of bodily temperature) on record which have recovered. Both of those, also young women went to no lower than 75 degrees.

Police said they were unable to explain why Mrs. Stevens was overcome in the 11-below-zero weather.

Fog-Shrouded Level Crossing Scene of Crash

Victims on Way Home After Completing Shift at Mines

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 9 — (CP) — Seven men died today when a Canadian Pacific Railway flyer crashed into the rear end of a bus at a fog-shrouded level crossing seven miles east of Sudbury. Twenty-six persons were injured, three of them seriously. Five of the injured are women.

The crash came shortly after 8 a.m. in 47-below-zero weather with visibility cut by fog to about two automobile lengths.

Six men died at the scene and another died on the train carrying some of the injured to Sudbury, where they were removed to hospital.

All the dead and injured were passengers on the Nickel Belt Coach Lines bus. The men were on their way home from work on the midnight to 8 a.m. gruveyard shift at the nearby Coniston plant of the International Nickel Company.

Five Identified

By 11:30 five of the dead had been identified but the names of the others were unknown. Four of the identified dead were from Coniston, where the crash occurred. The other was from Sudbury. The unidentified six also lived here, from this district.

Officials listed the following as identified dead: Lucien Landriault, Alex Beauparlant, H. Conlin, Eugene Leclair, all of Coniston, and Paul Sharko of Sudbury.

An earlier report included Fred Gagnon in the list of dead but officials said it was another who was in error and that Gagnon is alive.

The bus was thrown 25 feet by the impact and then rolled over.

Adrien Trepanere, 49-year-old Coniston worker, who was among injured taken to Sudbury on the train said:

"All at once there was a big crash. I can just remember bodies flying past me. A girl sitting in the front seat—I don't know her name—flew directly over my head and landed at the rear of the bus.

"I was sitting just behind the rear door of the bus. I think it stopped at the crossing but I am not sure. The bus was crowded and people were standing in the aisle.

Scarcely able to speak, Trepanere's main recollection was of the confusion which followed the crash.

The bodies just piled up at rear of the bus. Two men pulled me out through the side."

He was taken through a great gash ripped in the side of the bus, along with other injured and dead.

A first-aid crew of seven men headed by the nickel company's chief surgeon, E. Crispin, rushed to the scene after the resounding crash which echoed for miles over a flat area. They were joined by a dozen first-aid men from Coniston.

Seven of the injured and three dead were loaded into the train and brought to Sudbury for transfer by ambulance to hospital. All suffered from the bitter cold as the train were unconscious or semi-conscious. They were treated on the train by the first-aid men and Dr. F. M. Hall of Sudbury.

Parents, Children Huddle in Shed As House Burns

New Liskeard, Feb. 9 (CP) — Mr. and Mrs. Edward Alberts and their eight children, in their small children huddled in their night clothes in an outhouse on their isolated farm for almost an hour in 30-below zero weather last night while fire razed their home and all their possessions.

All but the father were dressed in their night clothes, Mr. Alberts, 43, entered the blazing house twice while the remainder of the family stood in their scorched shoes, they dashed through a wall of flame into the piercing cold while a strong northwest wind fanned the blaze.

The six acre farm is located 28 miles west of New Liskeard on the Elk Lake Highway, almost a mile from the nearest neighbor.

For more than an hour the children, aged one to 16 years, and their parents, huddled in the small outhouse while their home clothing and all personal possessions burned.

Neighbors who saw the glare arrived and took the chilled family to their homes.

Kinsmen Provide 65 Children With Glasses

The Kinsmen Club of Belleville is the friend of the city school children with impaired eyesight whose parents are ill-affected to cost of providing glasses to correct their vision.

Last year the local service club through its eye clinic department provided glasses for 65 school children, who otherwise would undoubtedly have suffered physically and in their school work.

In making his report of the eye clinic to the service club, Kinsman Doug Ellis noted that few of the club members or the general public realize the extent of splendid work which the clinic is providing. The heaviest share of the work is done by the school nurse and the Victorian Order of Nurses who have been given full co-operation by the members of the Board of Education.

Last year over 1,100 children were tested for eye defects on the eye testing equipment supplied some years ago by the Kinsmen. In addition the school nurse re-checked over 300 other children whose eyes had been checked one or two years previously.

Mercury Hits 17 Below Zero During Night

City shivers were more pronounced today as a frost-stricken Belleville awoke to a temperature that flirted with the near-18 below mark.

The official thermometer at the Purification Plant registered something below the 17-degree line and downtown temperatures were said to be hovering around the 20-below mark.

"Twas no night for man or beast." Late yesterday afternoon Ole Man Winter sent his frost legions scurrying over the country-side, and by midnight the mercury was slowly but surely on the decline.

But cheer up. There's warmer times coming. Tonight, the weather man says the mercury will rise approximately two degrees or 15 below zero. Tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday spring weather with the temperature predicted to five degrees above zero.

Board Delays Action on Raise For Teachers

Bancroft— Faraday Township School Area Board delayed action on the staff request for a $200 raise, retroactive to Jan. 1, 1951, at its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday night.

Like other staff requests, also to be considered later, were military service claims. One was to guarantee members, who left the employment of the board to go on active military service the same position with full rights and advancements when he or she was discharged from the country's service. The other was to have the board pay the superannuation for staff members on active service.

Teachers who were responsible for military service claims stated that they were asking for this on the emergency arose it would not be necessary for any person to ask for any concession or to have his or her case considered separately.

After reading the brief submitted by a committee consisting of Morton T. Graham, chairman; Frances Sylvester, Theda Anderson and J. W. C. Hutton it was decided that the board would deal with the matter at a special meeting in the near future.

Present salaries in the village and the township of Faraday are from a minimum of $1,700 to a maximum of $2,700 for staff members.

CANNOT BUY GOODS

London, Feb. 9 — (Reuters) — British women are being "forced into shabbiness" because they cannot afford to buy quality goods subject to heavy purchase tax, complains the National Council of Women. The council's quality goods committee has been asked why women have to pay 120-percent purchase tax on their leather purses for example, when the same leather in gloves cares can be bought free of purchase tax.

Accused Given Day in Jail On Fraud Charge

Nicholas McCormick, Ottawa, was sentenced one day in jail when he was convicted by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in magistrate's court this morning of a fraud charge in connection with leaving the Quinte Hotel without paying his room rent.

Last Saturday McCormick with another man had registered at the hotel using an assumed name. A short time later the pair left the hotel and registered at the Queen's Hotel, where because they had no luggage were requested to pay in advance for their room.

The fraud charge was laid after McCormick had been picked up by police for questioning in connection with the theft of a sum of money from the room of a guest at the Quinte.

Police officers stated that no previous convictions had been registered against McCormick but they said he is currently charged in connection with auto theft at Ottawa. He was stated to be out on $5,000 bail. He had been in custody here since Saturday.

TRENTON

Town Blacked Out Nearly Three Hours by Power Failure

Trenton (Special) — Trenton was completely without power for less and a half hours last night. Due to a power failure at number two power station just north of the town limits, the whole town was blacked out from 11 p.m. to 1.30 a.m., until Hydro crews could remedy the trouble.

Theatre patrons were forced to leave and grope their way home in the dark, police and fire departments were alerted and people living in houses heated by oil burners were about ready to move out for the night.

Approximately 300 men on shift at the Trent Cotton Mills and Hinds and Dauch factories were forced to lay off for the blackout period. Candles, lamps and flashlights were in demand throughout the town. Beverage room patrons were forced to give up their status for the night.

Despite the darkness, no accidents were reported by town police, and firemen said that no explosions or trouble was reported with any of the town's 500 oil burners. Temperature during most of the blackout ranged in the vicinity of ten degrees below zero.

Hydro officials would make no statement this morning as to the cause of the blackout, but said that temporary repairs had been made last night by by-passing the trouble spot. They indicated that permanent repairs would be made some time today.

Actually, the town was ringed with lights, because the power supplied to Murray township, Middleton Park and RCAF Station is moved on different lines, and was not affected.

Margin of Profit Remains Same Says Spokesman

More on the coal situation. Local dealers said this morning that, contrary to any impression the public might have received in the past few days, they aren't making any more money per ton than they were prior to the increase in freight.

"Our margin of profit has remained the same", one spokesman said. To point up the situation, he said that the same anthracite which sells here for $26 now is currently selling for $27 in Kingston, and $27.75 in Cornwall.

Other places, too, have taken a bigger proportionate hike.

In other words, the dealers in communities like Kingston and Cornwall are buying their coal from the mines at the same prices as the Belleville retailers, but have moved the price higher proportionately. Their margin of profit has increased with the price hikes in Thursday.

The spokesman said that in all probability the Cornwall retailers are buying their coal for even less than Belleville dealers, because their shipping costs are lower. Yet the coal sells for $1.75 more per ton than does Belleville anthracite.

Hence, the price spread of $2.25 between the Toronto price and Belleville prices is not an increase in profit for local dealers. "Quite frankly", the spokesman said, "I think the dealers are doing well by the public in Belleville by not increasing their profit margin."

CAMPBELLFORD

Christ Church Vestry Meeting Well Attended

Campbellford—The annual vestry meeting of Christ Church was held in the parish hall recently. The rector, Rev. John McKibbin, presided and opened the meeting with prayer, Mr. J. P. Archer was appointed vestry clerk. In making his report the rector paid tribute to those who had passed away during the year, mentioning especially S.L. Eric Bythell, Thos. Dutton, Sr., Mrs. Nellie Southern, Mrs. Harriet Route and former members John Hamilton and Ernest Casaan. He also expressed sympathy to other church families who were bereaved since last year. The report spoke appreciatively of much faithful work done by officers and members of the parish and all organizations, and special mention was made of the fact that the three year quota for Diocesan Church Extension had been oversubscribed in this one year.

Mr. H. Beatty, People's Church warden, presented the financial statement which indicated an encouraging increase in offerings made for all departments.

Increased Giving

Mr. J. P. Archer reported for the envelope, system, showing an increase of $203 in envelope givings since last year. Reports of organizations were made as follows. The Parish Guild, by Miss Lillian Benor, who said that in addition to a steady year's work on the part of the members, which had resulted in a substantial balance, the Guild had presented fifty new hymn and prayer books to the church, had supplied engraved brass plates for various gifts and memorials and had given the sum of $500 to the Church wardens. The Chi-Rho report was presented by the treasurer, Mr. D. Schiltt, who said that one of the finest projects of the past year has been the providing, in co-operation with other organizations, of an up-to-date parish duplicating machine, much used in the production of Sunday service bulletins, etc. Mr. Rueben Eason showed that Sunday School affairs were in a healthy and growing condition, with an enrollment of 70, a teaching staff of 9 and a good working balance.

Mrs. J. J. Linton presented the Woman's Auxiliary report which provided an excellent picture of work done on both missionary and parish projects.

Following this Mrs. John McKibbin spoke appreciatively of long and faithful services of the retiring President, Mrs. J. P. Archer, and on behalf of the Christ Church branch presented her with a Life Membership in the Dominion W.A. In receiving the scroll and gold membership pin, Mrs. Archer spoke of her more than 40 years' connection with the W.A., mostly in capacity of president, and paid tribute to all those who in past and present time had so faithfully shared the work with her.

Mr. J. P. Archer reported for the Cemetery trustees, showing a fund of $881.12.

Pagette had been to Marmora and was walking home to where he was staying with Mr. and Mrs. William Wright, 4 miles east of Marmora. Close to several buildings owned by the Ackerman Mine he apparently collapsed and froze to death in the subzero weather. His body was found at eight o'clock this morning by one of the mine workers.

Corporal Jack Hatch of Madoc investigated and called Coroner Dr. M. G. Delos of Tweed. Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan stated there would be no inquest.

RUGGED WINTER

Winter has laid its icy hand on a great part of the Continent of North America and its icy breath is felt by millions. This turn in the weather has come rather timely precisely for not long ago in the January thaws most of the snow had disappeared in one of the mild spells traditionally associated with the season.

Thursday night's dip of the mercury must have disturbed anyone who was trusting to hopes that winters had definitely turned back on their tracks and records be begun to grow more warm. Some scientists too backed up these predictions or forecast.

But now the winter of 1950-51 has definitely set on the season the seal marking it as a time with much of the rugged characteristics of old-time winters.

Weather forecasting on the basis of accurate records compiled over a great area by the Weather Man is the only guide as to what the coming hours will bring forth. It is in just such severe weather as these latter days that the proof of scientific study of the weather is given. In mild weather it makes not so much difference to the individual if it is fine and moderately warm, but in cold weather when snowstorms accompany, it means a great deal to have the accurate guidance of the Weather Man regarding the outlook for the hours and days ahead. He can tell one within degrees what the temperature will be.

HEADLINES

Writing newspaper headlines is an art, as everyone who has sat at a copy desk will admit. The writer is required to be concise, informative and sometimes witty, and to keep respecting the trick of counting the letters until the paper is put to bed. Sometimes he can be fanciful, if the story is not too important, but as a general rule he has to stick to giving the reader the essence of the story in a minimum of words, according to the Printed Word.

Compared with the titling of a book, play or essay, the headline-writer's art is far more difficult. Almost any label will do for the less-ephemeral productions. The producers of moving pictures restrict their titles to a few words, the title of Edgar Wallace's Murder at Elstinore, recognizing that the play hadn't done badly in spite of Shakespeare's non-informative title. No modern author needs to grope long for a title if he has a book of quotations handy. Any phrase from Milton, Shakespeare or more obscure writers seems sufficient to start a book on its way to bestsellerdom or oblivion.

Sometimes, the headline-writer seems to be so fascinated by his art that he loses sight of its primary purpose, which is to give an accurate summary of the story. Every investigation is a probe; a man summoned for breach of a by-law is fined when he is found guilty, though he has not been in custody; the word, gas, when it is used in a headline, usually means the motor fuel, gasoline, sometimes coal-gas, less frequently the gas used for cooking, and occasionally hydrogen, oxygen, chlorine or other reminders of high school chemistry.

BOYS AND ORCHARDS

The Ontario Government is going to amend the School Sites Act to allow schools to be built within 100 yards of a cemetery, garden, pleasure-ground or dwelling house," in townships, says Sudbury Star.

The original law was apparently drafted in the knowledge that small boys found it difficult to put up a five-day residence in a tidy, red apple, or a crisp, crunchy carrot.

Where a school was located within the 100-yard limit, a judge was entitled to award compensation to the owner of the orchard, garden, pleasure-ground or dwelling house. Somebody in the early legislation had little regard for the morality of city dwellers, judging by the next section of the Act which states: "This section shall not apply to that part of a township which lies within five miles from the limits of a city having a population of 100,000."

In his presentation of the amendment to the Legislature, Attorney-General Porter said the law was outmoded and that it had been honored in the breach on countless occasions.

The law, of course, was not for the mere purpose of safeguarding orchards and gardens from the depredations of small boys, but was largely a matter of preserving the public peace.

A group of children at play in a schoolyard, within a 100-yard range, can be very disturbing to the occupants of a dwelling house — also named in the Act — particularly if there is illness in the house and quietness is part of the prescribed treatment for recovery.

It is necessary to hope though hope be often deluded, for hope itself is happiness and the frustrations however frequent, are yet less dreadful than its extinction.—Johnson.

I can promise to be candid though I may not be impartial.—Goethe.

HERMIT

They found him dead the other day,
To grieve he'd said a last good-bye.
From all his friends he'd turned away,
Alone to live; alone to die.
He'd dwelt with filth and grim decay.
But told to none the reason why.

He welcomed none within his gate,
He chose to close his door to all.
He never asked a caller back
And never went to pay a call.
By day he walked the railroad track
And hid as soon as night would fall.

Now, this is all of him that's known,
Since dead men questioned can't speak;
He'd made his choice to live alone
And must have wished alone to die.
With none to love and naught to own,
But while I live I'll wonder why.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The chief difference between English movies and American might be that the English have a genius for making fun of themselves. The comic characters are consumed by a passion of self-admiration; any of the only Englishmen in a film is sure to be a Hollywood movie, apart from the Englishmen in the Hollywood films, are comic types labelled as such from the start of the picture.

The English are the only English picture in which the hero is not subjected to some degree of humorous treatment, as if to prove he is human. And as for the lighter pictures, their greatest charm lies in the humorous handling of certain characters, none of whom are labelled as comic, but are definitely representing families and esthetic types. The Hollywood humorous types are introduced into the picture with everything but that familiar advance flash to the effect — "the comic character in this picture bear no likeness to any American living or dead."

The English have had the gift of kidding themselves from time immemorial. Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," written around 1385, is filled with fun—poking at all and sundry. Shakespeare and the other Elizabethans allowed themselves no holier than thou attitude in making fun of their own race, high and low. Jane Austen, Charlotte Bronte spared neither hero nor heroine their ironic humor. The Dickens characters, Sheridans—Irish, some of them, But English their victims and most appreciative audiences. The playwrights, poets and prosers of English scenes do themselves have hit their highest mark with wit and humor aimed at themselves and their own.

In their movies, therefore, the English are in the tradition. But Hollywood finds it hard not to strut and swagger. For one "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town", or one "Harvey" Hollywood gushes forth a hundred comic hundred heavy - breathing humorless dramas dedicated on an ideal as laughable and half as witty as dummy in a department store.

The truth is, we all look comic to somebody; and the art of humor is keeping that fact alive and well.

OUR TOWN

LITTLE THINGS

(This is the third in a series of columns on how people are coping with today's cost of living. Ed.)

To properly assess the effect of today's prices on the so-called Average Canadian you must ignore the statistics (although they are deeply disturbing in their own right). Concentrate on the warner story of people.

Listen to the reflections, for example, of a Peterborough electrician. He makes $45 a week and finds it is not enough to keep his family decently. What does the cost of living mean to a worried electrician in Peterborough? Here's what he says:

"It means buying that pet project dreamed about for years because it's cheaper now than it's much . . .

"It means watching the want ads for a cheaper house to rent. "It means seeing your wife's clothes getting shabby and feeling sick inside because you can't buy new ones.

"It means living at home when you'd give your eye teeth to go to the local pub with your friends for one cold glass of beer.

"It means watching the cars roll by and knowing that you can't because you can't afford a battered jalopy.

"It means sitting and watching your small infant son at play and swearing to yourself that he'll have more than his father's ambition to cope with a rough old world. Above all, it means that each night you thank God to have a wife who doesn't complain and who has a reassuring word for every turn of the road."

When you read that kind of thing in letter after letter you begin to grasp what life is like on the average income in the nation's greatest untold story.

Frayed Nerves

Another typical case: A New Westminster couple, each supporting children by a former marriage, have a combined income of $190 a month. He writes:

"Our meals are wholesome and abundant but very monotonous. One meal consists of pot roasts, hamburger, stew, sausage and occasionally we splurge on liver. Our meal is very versatile person: She is an expert at fixing leftovers.

"Clothes for the future . . . I don't know. We need a new washing machine, but have finally skipped the furniture in the house. My son, 13, is starting to talk university, but where to get the money is the question.

"One thing it sure. We are missing a lot that we should be having. Tempers get a little frayed and nerves on edge and the kids can't always understand why things have to be as they are."

Here's another one, another, undramatic facts in a letter from Mrs. V. F. of Vancouver, who has three children and a husband whose take-home income is $166 monthly plus $16 family allowance. (Almost every letter mentions the family allowance as if it were some sort of unexpected prize.)

Here are some excerpts from Mrs. F's letter:

"We dress in rags and hand-me-downs. The boys both need winter coats, but they will have to wait. We get our shoes mended so many times I'm ashamed to take them to the cobbler. My husband owns one three-year-old suit and I've still using his army shirts and socks. . .

"Entertainment? Don't make me laugh. If we want to go to a show we have to figure $3.50 at least, counting baby sitter and carfare. We do most of our "going out" separately. . .

"Incidentally, cheese-paring measures with regard to food are what's killing us. Most of my children are growing up without knowing the taste of a thick, juicy steak. Pot roast is the best they ever taste and that not often. . .

"Under this regime we can't even think about saving. We have only just enough in the bank to pay our checks. We've always broke before payday. . ."

Young Couples

Today's high costs affect well-established households and they affect the homes of younger marrieds.

A Mrs. F. W. of Vancouver tells that a couple who were married a marriage was born of the high cost of living.—Her husband is a school teacher. He got $2,000 a year. Now he had intended to wait a year to save money for a home, but instead was finds paying so much for board and room separately that he thought it cheaper to go right ahead."

Mrs. W. describes a period of quandary that many couples face when a baby came along they found themselves involved in that milk or no milk question. Here is a list of debt. "We are not exceptions", she writes. "Most of the young couples we know are having an equally tough time."

Another familiar struggle is described by Mrs. R. H.W.

They are a young married couple with two children. Her husband is in "an electrical firm. Makes $45 a week. Says he would be glad to get able to keep our heads above water," she writes. "We have a big vegetable patch and any unexpected item such as new glasses, and for holidays, if any."

She described some of the concessions they've made:

"Things like never being able to buy an interesting new novel when it appears—or a favorite record album. Never having a night out every slice of a roast, when we infrequently have one; never having the money to go to a first-run theatre downtown because the admission and carfare are so high that we can really spare, what with payday still five days off. Not that I've really felt that I've needed to do without in need—but golly, life could be so awful full of little more just weren't a continual gnawing complex that there's no money to be even thinking about anything.

"The net result is that, whether we like it or not, I'm going to have another baby in another indefinite period. Our hopes of raising a family will just have to be postponed a while longer."

Mackenzie's Column:

Modified Brand Of Redism Has Moscow Worried

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

Signs of disobedience in the leadership of the Russian satellites in satellite states continue to multiply and have aroused purges in other sharp action by Moscow.

The difficulty revolves about the action of the satellites to follow the lead of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia, who has declared for nationalism. That is, he has refused to place the sovereignty of his country in the hands of Moscow.

This modified brand of communism has come to be known as "Titoism." It has the Soviet Union very much furious apparently badly worried.

As a result Moscow for a long time has been summoning a procession of red leaders from the satellite states to the Russian capital for "medical treatment." Some of these seem to be mighty ill, judging from their protracted stay.

Astonishing Reversal

An astonishing reversal of this program now is reported from Rome. Non-communist newspapers say that leaders of Italy's communist party — claiming a membership of 2,500,000 — have urgently requested the return from Moscow of their ailing chief, Palmiro Togliatti, to stem the tide of Titoism.

It is worthy of note that, along with Togliatti, another top-flight red leader is receiving medical attention in Moscow hospitals, the French leader. Thus we find that two of the most powerful European communist parties outside the red bloc incapacitated together in Moscow.

Coincident with all this, the mouthpiece of the foreign ministry of Czechoslovakia, Vlado Clementis, is reported (without confirmation) to have been driven re fugue in Yugoslavia. An Austrian dispatch said communist leader Klement Gottwald of Czechoslovakia had been placed under police surveillance. Reports about Clementis of impending arrest but Prague denied this.

One would expect to see the procession of Moscow bound "invalids" increase. Some of the more important satellite states such as Czechoslovakia in Moscow's effort to counter the tendency to Titoism.

Substantive purges are expected to increase in major communist parties.

STRICKEN HELPING NEIGHBOR

New Hamburg, Ont., Feb. 8 — (CP) — Albert V. Schmidt tumbled from his tractor and died instantly while preparing to help free a neighbor stuck in a snow drift in front of his home at Pine Hill.

He was dead on arrival of Dr. T. C. Kirkpatrick of New Hamburg. Death was attributed to a heart seizure.

HAIR SINGED ESCAPING FIRE

Callander, Feb. 8 (CP)—A fire early today destroyed the small, frame home of Ernest Canilz causing several thousand dollars damage.

Canilz and his wife escaped with singed hair.

Bill Introduced To Authorize Seaway Project

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP) —Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., (Dem. Lib.-N.Y.) Thursday introduced a bill to authorize construction of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

The bill, fifth such measure to be introduced this session in the House of Representatives, is identical to that sponsored in the Senate by 22 Senators.

"In time of crisis it is mandatory that we utilize our limited resources wisely," Roosevelt said in a statement.

"The St. Lawrence seaway and power project will provide the least expensive means of providing necessary transportation of iron ore and other critical materials and the less"costly way of providing additional power — badly needed in New York, New England and Eastern Canada.

Hearings on St. Lawrence legislation will start Feb. 20 before the House Public Works Committee.

PLAIN AND FANCY SOUR MILK

Elie Metchnikoff, the famous Bulgarian sour milk exponent, published a book when he was 58, titled The Nature of Man. Referring to old age Metchnikoff said- in this book that with advancing age the human frame actually becomes lighter and the mineral substances become (contrary to the physiology books when gram and gramp were in school and century) in the same. non notion of people and even some doctors today) less. "This," wrote Metchnikoff, "brings about a liability to fracture of the bones in old people."

When Metchnikoff had reached the hoary age of 65 an English translation of his book The Prolongation of Life was published in this country (G. P. Putman's Sons, 1910). In the book he endorsed sour milk, kephir, sauerkraut and salad - vegetables which have undergone lactic fermentation and put a premium on fermented a lactic ferment isolated from yahourth (also called yoghurt or yahourt or yaourt) which you pays your money and takes your choice—and he knew that everybody mystified it is sometimes called yaghourt, but just between ourselves we'll stick to exotic it sounds it's just sour milk, my opinion.)

Far be it from me to question the theories of teachings of Prof. Metchnikoff.

Next to mashed potato I can think of nothing that so many someone people really like cucumbers but it does seem a shame to have to pay for the hypothetical advantage of implanting a few billion bugs in the gut to keep swarming with them.

Actual observation by unsubsidized investigators has shown that if a reasonable amount of milk is included in the diet — fresh sweet milk, whole raw milk, pasteurized milk, clabber, skim milk; buttermilk, sour milk, evaporated milk, dry powder milk, or fat reduced milk — the ordinary fresh sweet milk or skim milk in the diet seems to be the milk or whole milk favors a preponderance of lactic fermentation (conversion of sugar to lactic acid) in the intestine. This is a desirable state. There is no convincing evidence that one or another fancy sour milk preparation is more effective for this purpose than sweet milk, skim milk or plain sour milk.

If you prefer the taste of some fancy kind of sour milk it is just as good for you as plain buttermilk.

But let's take our lactic acid bacilli with a dash of common sense.

Metchnikoff himself used plain milk, first boiled five minutes or longer, then cooled to about body temperature (98.6) and then sowed with a pure culture of lactic acid bacilli and allowed to stand several hours, warm, to ferment.

BOOKS AS INVESTMENTS

For some thirty years or more I have been a modest collector of books. Occasionally I have appealed to me because of their literary qualities, not their money value. Mine is not a scholar's library but a library of books that I have read and found worth while. Never have I bought or collected them fore their mere money worth.

I have invested in books because of what they have added to my inside—enriching me in knowledge. To me every worthwhile book is an investment. Whether it is as though, when in my library, I sat before a gathering of hundreds of teachers, instead of alone as pupil That is the way I feel when reading my books.

If a book that you read doesn't teach you anything, it's time wasted in reading it. Even though a book may merely entertain you it is worth while, if it is beautifully written. There have been characters, so finely portrayed in books of fiction that they have become our friends! You would almost recognize them if you met them on the street!

The newspapers do a great service to their readers by giving up valuable space to the reviews and from articles about good books. There is no excuse for anyone not to be well informed. "First sales" as such, interest me little, but the sale of the best books. Many of us have in a scholar's library but a library of books that I have read and found worth while. Never have I bought or collected them fore their mere money worth.

A Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, was a great student of books and wrote a book (1907) which he called "Through the Magic Door" and this door was the one that led to his prized books that he loved to read. Sir Walter Scott, Stevenson, Hawthornes, his Darwins and his Emerson followed. He loved entering a sanctuary whah you enter, a library—but not a bank!

RELIGION FOR EXPORT

A pastor holding a communicants' class for boys and girls who wished to join church gave them a test on the material covered. One question was, "What are the duties of church membership"

The proper answer was that one should confess Christ, read the Bible and pray every day, attempt to put the teachings of Jesus into operation all the time, attend church and Sunday school, and make an effort to extend the influence of the church.

One of the little girls got the first three points right but when she came to the fourth, she said, "and we should attend church regularly and make an effort to export its influence." The pastor felt that in view of world needs, that was not the time for that history. She has sent goods all over the world in missionary work, brought light to multitudes of human beings who sat in darkness and poverty, established schools, education, medical aid, and gospel of Christ to countries where only ignorance and cruelty reigned before.

Let us never forget that the greatest export America or any country has to offer is the religion of Christ, the moral character of its people, and the benefits which arise from these great realities.

Canadian House Builder Made Progress in 1950

Ottawa, Feb. 9 (CP)—Increasing pressure of rising costs and a lot of other things combined to harass the Canadian house builder in 1950, but he went ahead at a record rate anyway.

Materials became scarce and cost 15 percent more. Carpenters, bricklayers and other builders—more than 371,000 of them—got more jobs than they could handle and their wages went up four percent. Construction costs generally took a jump.

Despite this, Canadians started 67,900 new dwellings in the first nine months of last year, four percent more than in the previous year. But as things got tough, many houses were left temporarily unroofed.

Total completions for the period were 58,500 compared with 63,000 for the first nine months of 1949, down seven percent. Indications are things aren't going to get better.

That was the picture presented in the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation's publication "Housing in Canada" covered the 1950 period from January to October and showed most of the house building was concentrated in metropolitan and urban areas of 5,000 population and over.

King Has Reached Bottom of Pocket

London, Feb. 9 (Reuters) — There's a bottom to every pocket even a royal one, and the King has reached the bottom of his. It's empty.

This news was soberly conveyed to the House of Commons Thursday night by Prime Minister Attlee.

The King, he added, has even used up his personal war savings.

So the Labor government has offered to pay £40,000 (about $130,000) of the Royal household expenses, Attlee announced.

And the family of three at Buckingham Palace—the King, the Queen and Princess Margaret—are going to tighten their belts. The King is to cut his personal expenditures by £30,000.

Attlee told the Commons that despite rising costs the King's annual "salary" from the national treasury has remained unchanged at $410,000 since 1937.

Of this sum the King gets $110,000 pocket money. The rest goes to pay household expenses.

Financial Backer Of Hitler's Rise To Power Dies

Buenos Aires, Feb. 9—(AP)—Fritz Thyssen, once one of Germany's richest tycoons and the financial backer of Adolf Hitler's rise to power, died here yesterday, a man without a country.

The man whose money helped sweep Hitler into office and whom Hitler later consigned to a concentration camp, came to Argentina a year ago to visit his daughter, Countess Zichy. He had planned to stay only briefly, then go on to Belgium, but illness and an operation forced him to remain.

Thyssen will be buried in this country—where once he had vast industrialist holdings—after funeral services this afternoon in the German cemetery at a Buenos Aires suburb. On his arrival here last year he called himself a man without a country, since Hitler had taken away his German citizenship after the two broke.

Born to riches and power, Thyssen as a financial genius in his early days in Germany reportedly augmented the family fortune until he became one of the richest men in Germany.

A strong nationalist, he saw in Adolf Hitler a means of restoring Germany to her former greatness. He raised $1,200,000 for the Nazis in the 1933 election which swept Hitler into power. As a reward, he was named a state counsellor and given a seat on the government's economic board. Later he became supreme economic authority for Western Germany.

Relations Cooled

Not long afterward relations between Thyssen and Hitler cooled. By 1940 the tycoon was living in exile in Switzerland. German sources said he bought his way out of the former Reich by turning most of his fortune over to the Nazis.

Later Thyssen moved to the French Riviera. When the Nazis swept across France, Thyssen and his wife were picked up by French secret police and turned over to the Gestapo.

For the next four years the couple was moved from one concentration camp to another, but received relatively — mild treatment.

American troops found Thyssen early in 1945 at a detention camp in the Italian Tyrol.

Since he had been closely associated with Hitler's rise to power, he was arrested by the Allies. The evidence against him was not considered strong, however, and a United States court in Germany released him in October, 1947.

He then was turned over to German authorities, was given a denazification trial a year later and was found guilty as a minor offender. He was ordered to surrender 20 per cent of his property as a penalty.

One-Cent Tax Payment Made

Chicago, Feb. 9 (AP) — An unidentified woman mailed her income tax payment of one cent to the collector of internal revenue yesterday.

The penny was fastened to her tax return with plastic tape.

Collector John T. Jarecki said the woman, a machine operator, explained her employer had withheld $329.99 of her wages for tax payments. But her tax bill was $400.

Religion and Bread

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

BY ROY L. SMITH

At the outset of Jesus' ministry he declared, in the face of temptation, that "man cannot live by bread alone." But he did not mean that man can live without bread. In his famous prayer, intended to serve as a guide for all praying men, he prayed, "Give us this day our daily bread." At no time was he indifferent to the question of hunger. And if he could not be indifferent, neither does the Christian Church have the right to be indifferent.

Too Many Hungry in This World

One of the saddest facts about our world is that there are altogether too many hungry people in it. The failure of the crops in Yugoslavia, the famine in India, and the millions of hungry in Europe and China constitute a terrible indictment of our management of this world.

Scientific agriculture, technological developments, and the known resources of the planet have but one meaning. The only reason for hundreds of millions being hungry is man's mismanagement of the earth.

The Hungry Moved Jesus

This week's Sunday school lesson is a vivid illustration of the way the hunger of the people moved Jesus. He was himself extremely weary. The experiences of the day had completely exhausted Him, and He had absolutely earned the right to rest. But the needs of the people were so compelling that it was easier to serve them than to indulge Himself.

The Sunday School lesson for February 11: "Jesus Meets Human Need," Mark 6.7—7:23.

A Roman Catholic priest said some years ago, "God have mercy on the Church when the poor cease knocking at its doors." Any church that can live in the midst of hungry people without being moved by their hunger is not a Christian Church.

Let's Be Fair With the Church

It is easy to criticize the Church, and a very great many people keep busy at the task. The truth is, of course, that the Christian Church, as indeed all good religious institutions like the synagogue, has made a contribution that is seldom recognized.

There is not a Community Chest anywhere in the world that does not recognize the fact that the preaching of man's relationship to God involves another, and equally solemn, relationship to his fellowmen. There is no city on the North American continent of which it cannot be said that the overwhelming percentage of the support for the Community Chest agencies does not come from people who have been inspired to generosity by the Church or the synagogue.

Humans More Than Feeding

The problem of relief, and the responsibility of the Church, however, is something more than merely providing charity.

There are millions of poor in the world who do not need to be poor. Someone has said there are three kinds of poor in the world —the Lord's poor, the devil's poor, and the poor devils. A very great many people are hungry because they have never been able to discipline themselves so that there are tens of millions of others who have worked hard, lived frugally, and saved diligently only to have their savings wiped out by forces beyond their control.

In our American city a terrible industrial war broke out between the management of the mill upon which the town depended, and the labor union in which the workers were organized. The policy of the mill was dictated by directors in a city five hundred miles away. The union policy was dictated by its international headquarters. In the meantime the wives and children of the workers went hungry. The cure for that kind of hunger lies outside of that town, and the Church must recognize that fact and take an interest in problems that are larger than merely local concern.

If the Church of Christ is to serve as a redemptive agent in this world it must understand the forces that are debauching the lives of plain people.

$4 Million Loss In Michigan State Capitol Building

Lansing, Mich. Feb. 9—(AP)—Wrecking firemen fought a devastating blaze in Michigan's capital city today which caused an estimated $4,000,000 damage and crippled part of the state government.

Aflame was the 28-year-old state office building.

At 5 a.m., after an earlier report said the fire was apparently under control, the blaze was still being fought. The battle at that time had reached its 20th hour.

Four firemen and a policeman had been overcome. Much of the state government's operations were paralyzed.

The office building, built at a cost of $2,000,000 in 1923, suffered "at least" $4,000,000 damages, including equipment, according to state fire marshal Arnold Benner.

Nerve centre of half of state government, the building was left a roofless mass of ice, leaking water at every crevice.

Dense, acrid fumes of burning chemicals came from the highway department blue printing and microfilming division where the fire apparently started.

SUBSTITUTES HERE TO STAY

Regina, Feb. 9 — (CP) President Gordon Loveridge of Grenfell, Sask., said yesterday in an address to the Saskatchewan Dairy Association that butter substitutes are "here to stay." Mr. Loveridge said that "while my views may be in the minority among dairymen, I believe we should concentrate on selling dairy products instead of trying to have margarine banned."

Theatre Opens On West Coast

Vancouver, (CP)—A 99-seat legitimate theatre opened in Vancouver's east end last month.

It represents the life-long ambition of Sydney Risk of Vancouver.

In 1946, Risk formed the "Everyman Theatre" but it was only last month that the group moved into its first playhouse.

He hopes that in three years the company will be established as a full-time professional group.

Risk has an M.A. in drama from Cornell University and for six summers directed the Banff School of Fine Arts.

Of Scottish parentage, Risk acted in various companies in Britain before the war. After war broke out he taught at the University of Alberta and later came to the University of British Columbia to teach dramatics.

His group won the Regional Drama Festival last year.

Women's Styles Return to Fashions of 1900

By MURIEL NARAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London,—(CP)—In 1951, with a half-century of immense fashion changes behind her, the style conscious woman of the mid-20th century wears the line her grandmother favored in the early 1900s.

In vogue once more are the hobble skirt of 1912—hugging the calf this time instead of the ankle —and jackets with a voluptuous "S" line reminiscent of the Victorian era.

The 1951 bustline is "eager," shoulders slender and the waist small. The hip-curve is exaggerated, often by stiffening, and the "S" line continues in a skintight skirt hugging the figure to the knees and ending in a bobble or a flare of godets.

How the fashion pendulum has swung right back is shown in a new book, "Half a Century of Fashion" (Doubleday Yates Publications). In it Margaret Rothervell Kane reviews fashions of the last 50 years and relates current designs to the styles of the 1900s.

"The floating panel of the draped shoulder line and the deeply cuffed sleeve all appeared in 1912 and were features of the 1949 Paris autumn shows," writes Miss Kane.

First War Influence

She adds that today's popular three-quarter-length and seven-eighth-length coats, belted at the waist with skirt fullness, can be traced to the tunic styles of the First World War.

"One development of recent vintage, however, is the two-piece bustline. At the beginning of the century, "bosoms were worn low and the bust was a one-piece opulent curve, heavy and mature above an 18-inch waist."

Since the relaxation "S" of the 1900s, the female figure has undergone many changes—the glass-shaped Edwardian era, the barrow-shaped 20's the cigarette-shaped 30s and the pillow-upright, a-waist look of the 40s. Now the basic shape is a tube or a drainpipe.

"In some periods," the author writes, "the development of the line is smooth and unhurried, as was the development of the bustle from the crinoline, but in others it is quick, jerky and undecided, as it has been since the end of the Second World War."

A similar "jerky" trend was evident after the First World War. In the mid-20s, Miss Lane contends, women returned to the primitive.

"Flattening her figure to imitate a boy's, she wore on her dresses pictures of ancient fertility symbols and painted her face in a savage, heavy way."

SUSCEPTIBLE AGE

The age group between 8 and 17 is the most susceptible to poliomyelitis, but the disease may attack any age.

Valentine's Day Brings Variety Of Bad Verses

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 9—(CP)—Come St. Valentine's Day and the sentimentalist will pepper his sugar with such verses as:

"Among the dearest treasures
Recorded in my heart
The happiness you've brought me
Stands precious and apart."

Whereas the prankster will be dishing out such peppery items as this one:

"I'm carrying a torch for you—
Yeah—a blowtorch."

And these, says a greeting card company spokesman, will set the spirit of Feb. 14, 1951:

While the old-fashioned Valentine has been slipped into modern dress, this year there is a repetitive appearance of lace and flowers that is likely to attract attention on a heart of puffed silk.

Direct from Victorian

Then there's the sender who believes in the direct approach method. He'll send a lemon with this verse:

"If you should want a Valentine and haven't one selected
I thought I'd sorta mention this along and make it perfect."

And for sheer corn you can't beat stuff like this, which will be flooding the mails:

"Wish we were on a tropic isle
Because the whole day long
We two could be by ourselves."

Now would that be sarong?

Valentine's Day will be fun for both grown-ups and youngsters. Several of the stores this year will have materials and envelops on hand for the kiddies to create their own cards. Directions are easy to follow and in no time at all attractive juvenile Valentines are ready for mailing.

Valentine Foods

What's a Valentine party? There are all kinds of place-cards and tallies you can buy for the all-important luncheon table.

Strawberry jelly and whipped cream, served with small heart-shaped cookies, is an ideal Valentine dessert.

And the other hand frozen salad served with rolls or bread and butter, and coffee, should be ideal for an afternoon bridge or late evening snack.

Frozen Fruit Salad

Ingredients: one cup stiff mayonnaise; three cups stiffly whipped cream; one teaspoon gene-line (dissolved in two tablespoons boiling water); three cups diced pineapple or bananas.

Combine the whipped cream and mayonnaise, add gelentine and fruit. Place in mold and put in the freezing compartment of your refrigerator. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves with mayonnaise or fruit dressing.

Ingredients for fruit dressing: one-quarter cup pineapple; one-quarter cup lemon juice; two eggs; one cup whipped cream; one-quarter cup sugar.

Beat two eggs, add sugar, pineapple and lemon juice. Cook in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened, then set aside to cool. While the cream and fold into mixture just before serving.

Women's Activities

HOLLOWAY STREET W.M.S. AUXILIARY

The February meeting of the Holloway Street W.M.S. Auxiliary was held in the church parlors on Tuesday last. The president, Mrs. Coulter, presided at the meeting.

The business meeting followed. The roll call was answered by 56 members, eight of whom are new members, and one visitor, Mrs. S. Westover and Mrs. Van Orten were appointed as collectors to the Presbyterial meeting in March.

Reports were heard from each department. Mrs. Johns, temperance secretary, gave a reading, "Why I Am a Total Abstainer". Mrs. Weese, community friendship secretary, reported that 98 calls had been made in January.

Mrs. Cordes then took charge of the meeting and with Mrs. S. Westover presented the Worship Service with the theme, "His Silent Presence". Mrs. Steers gave the chapter from the study book, "The United Church Renews Japan Through Education". She was assisted by Mrs. Allen, Mrs. Hagerman, Mrs. Bedell, Mrs. Kilbank, Mrs. Andrews and Mrs. Burrowes.

After the meeting closed Mrs. Cordes' group served tea during a social half hour.

ST. MARY MAGDALENE'S W.A.

Picton.—The Evening Branch of the W.A. of St. Mary-Magdalene's church met in the Parish Hall on Tuesday night, with 24 members present.

Following the presentation of the reports, letters were read from clergymen and lay workers in England to whom boxes had been sent at Christmas. These had been much appreciated and, in at least one instance, had been shared with others. The presentation of the treasurer was regretfully accepted as Mrs. Burich and her husband are being posted to British Columbia this month. Miss Nancy Cook was appointed to fill the vacancy.

Devotional

The rector, Rev. Hope Swayne, conducted the devotional and introduced the study book. A sum of $60 was voted to the Dorcas secretaries and their committee to purchase articles for the bale. The apportionment of $44 per pledges for the year was accepted. At the social hour, refreshments were served with Mrs. Edgar Kew as hostess, assisted by Mrs. Gay Welsh; Mrs. Mabel Todd, Mrs. George Andrews and Mrs. Prior.

BRIDGE STREET W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church was held recently with a good attendance.

The meeting was opened by Mrs. F. E. Houston, the president. This was followed by a reading given by Mrs. Finkle and Mrs. Howard on the successful concert, by the artist, Portia White.

Announcement was made of the conference of the Bay of Quinte Branch of the W.M.S. to be held at Bridge Street United Church in April.

Mrs. E. Denyes and Mrs. Rollins were then in charge of the meeting. The theme was "His Silent Presence", Mrs. Rollins read from the Scriptures. The poem "Silence" by Dr. Kagawa was given by Mrs. Sargent. All the ladies repeated the 23rd

Miss Constance Hayward, liaison officer of the Department of Citizenship and Immigration, who will speak to the University Women's Club of Belleville and District February 14, is attached to the Canadian Citizenship Branch of the Department, at Ottawa. Miss Hayward will speak on "Citizenship and Immigration" at the home of Miss R. Silvester, Patterson Street.

Psalm after which Mrs. Burgoyne sang beautifully, the solo, "The Holy Hour".

Study Book Reviewed

Mrs. Denyes then conducted a review of the Study Book, the theme of which was to show how the United Church is re-entering Japan through education and gives a survey of all the schools in Japan which are supported by the W.M.S.

The ladies then presented a skit showing the work being done by the missionary, Miss Chappell, presented by Mrs. J. M. Woods. The visitors from Canada, were Mrs. Dewsberry and Mrs. Rollins. Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Francis represented Miss Hamilton and Miss Thomas, who told of their work in the schools.

Mrs. Denyes then made a plea for greater study to help in this work in 1951, and presented a quiz on Japanese proverbs and their English counterparts.

Mrs. MacTavish, Mrs. Lea and Mrs. Houston offered short prayers of intercession for the teaching of missionaries, Japanese teachers and the Japanese youth of the W.M.S. schools.

The most enjoyable and worthwhile program offered by Mrs. Denyes, Mrs. Rollins and their group was followed by a social half-hour.

REDNERSVILLE W.A.

Redneersville W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Roy Weseen on Wednesday last with 22 present.

The Scripture reading was taken from Psalm 91 and read by Mrs. Leon Ward, Mrs. Hicks gave an interesting reading, taken from the new book entitled "For the Land's Sake", which dealt with the pioneer days. This was enjoyed by all.

The treasurer's report and the report from the supper which was held in the church hall in January were read, showing the receipts to be $19.50.

An contest was given by Mrs. Harry Adams, and won by Mrs. Carl Williams. Mrs. L. McCutcheon tendered a vote of thanks to Mrs. Wanamaker for preparing her home for the meeting.

Open-Chested, Bare-Backed Gowns Shown

Paris, Feb. 8. (AP)—Schiaparelli yesterday took the wraps off her new creations in clothes and showed the eager onlookers an exotic fresh batch of open-chested bare-backed beauty.

Her clothes must be beautiful, for you find yourself looking at them almost as much as you look at her models. That, friends, is the acid test.

After nearly two hours of solid staring one is able to report a subtle but startling development in the clothes line we destined this spring and summer to adorn some of the finest female forms in the world.

The development—which perhaps Schiaparelli herself may be unaware of—is the effect of the Korean war on the new frocks and frills and the lush hats and gadgets that go with them.

They are, for instance:

Quilted—like Chinese uniforms —coats, quilted jackets and even quilted skirts.

Coolie hats and hats that look like pagodas.

One piece of cloth resembling a rice paddy in design.

While this wasn't necessarily Schiaparelli's fault, one of the gorgeous models had a hair-do that looked like nothing so much as congealed bird nest soup.

Other startling aspects of the show were: glassless sun glasses. Dinner glasses that have four-inch-long lashes, for what reason only Schiaparelli must know.

A gown whose front consists of simply a bow.

Persimmon-colored pieces of ribbon that tie on milady's legs just below the knees and dangle like the misplaced pieces of parlor lampshades.

Club Activites

SUNBEAM MISSION BAND

Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Sunbeam Mission Band convened at the church after the Sunday School period on Sunday morning.

The leader, Mrs. Herbert Smith, presided and there were 14 members in attendance and several Baby Band members.

The 1951 officers are: president, Doreen Bailey; vice president, Lola McConnell; secretary, Eleanor Smith; treasurer, Shirley Mc-Keown; pianist, Ruth Sharp, assistant, Ina Scott; Sick Committee, Marilyn McConnell, Ruth Linn, and Betty McConnell.

The service opened with "Jesus Loves the Little Children", and Ruth Sharp played the piano accompaniment. Shirley McKeown gave the Bible story entitled, "The Boy with the Lunch". A Bible quiz was interesting and educative.

Marilyn McConnell gathered the offering of over 80 cents.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The February meeting of the Avondale Neighbors' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. J. Chambers with a good attendance. The vice-president, Mrs. Neal, presided.

The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. H. Wright and a short meditation given by Mrs. Anger, which was followed by a reading given by Mrs. Reid.

Business was resumed and 'thank you' letters read. It was decided to donate $10 to the "March of Dimes". The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. C. Holmes.

Mrs. P. While and Mrs. H. Wright directed the program, which consisted of a fine address given by Mrs. C. Holmes, on "Why I am proud to be a Canadian". Mrs. G. Ackerson favored with a solo, "Mother Machree". Several ladies won prizes in contests: Mrs. Holmes; Mrs. Ackerman; Mrs. Windover, and Mrs. Walker. The lucky draw was won by Mrs. S. Lough.

Following the close of the meeting, dainty refreshments were served.

FRIENDSHIP CIRCLE

The Friendship Circle of Bexhill United Church, Ivanhoe, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Goldie McInroy, on Tuesday evening.

The president, Doris V. Twiddy, conducted the Worship Service, the theme was "Self Denial for Sake of Others". Mrs. Keith Bray played quiet music and presided at the piano throughout the service.

Lunch was read as a call to worship. The scripture lesson Matthew 20: 20-28 was read by Barbara Benson. A short meditation was given and prayer offered by the president.

During the business period, an invitation was accepted by the group, to hold their next meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Reid.

The program was conducted by Mrs. Clifford Mitz, who chose for her topic "Literature". A poem was read and a talk on Canadian writers was given by Miss Margaret Wright, who told of the life of Henry Drummond, Mrs. Keith Bray of Edna Jaques, Mrs. B. Becket told some very interesting things on the life of Pauline Johnston and read one of her lovely poems, "The Song My Paddle Sings".

Recreation was in charge of Mrs. Keith Bray, who conducted a hat contest after which delicious refreshments were served. Owing to weather conditions the attendance was not as large as usual but a fine Christian fellowship was enjoyed by all.

A hearty vote of thanks was moved by Mr. Clifford Mitz, on behalf of the group to Mr. and Mrs. McInroy for opening their home.

If you keep your water cool in frosty weather, keep a hot water bottle in it. Simply launder bottle and keep the clothes from freezing while you are "hanging out". It is also a handy hand warmer.

After all is said and done, how does it taste in the cup? That is what counts!

Women's Institute

UNIONDALE W.I.

Uniondale. — The February meeting of Uniondale Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. V. Bush, 4th of Sidney, with 18 members present.

Correspondence was read, and a pamphlet on Rural Co-operative Insurance was passed along to each member for inquiries as to rates and difference. A letter from the district president with cards and contributions enclosed. Word had been received that the new 1951 song books were now available and that hand brochures were to be ordered for all members.

After the reading of the treasurer's report, further discussion took place and it was decided to send $10 to the "March of Dimes".

Mrs. George Burkitt, convener of the program, gave a paper entitled "I Am a Troubled Canadian". Readings were given by Mrs. Bert Bush. "Am I a Good Neighbor", and by Jean Herrington, "Tomorrow", which pointed out the wisdom of "Never have to put until tomorrow what you can do today." Mrs. Bird followed with another paper entitled, "How to cook a husband," which was humorous and much enjoyed.

A pamphlet passed by Mrs. Morris, containing hints on different countries, and was also enjoyed. This closed the new 1951 president who had taken Mrs. Futcher's place.

Mrs. F. Loney put on a contest which was won by Mrs. Harry Brecken.

Following the vote of thanks tendered to Mrs. Bush, refreshments were served by the lunch committee.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Howard Richard, 4th of Sidney, and will be a men's meeting.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECHMAN

Courteous habit . . . reply to all invitations, even without R.S.V.P.'s.

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

(1) Is this correct for the professional: two sisters inviting together; matron of honor and maid of honor (dressed alike), wishing together; last, the bride and her father? (3) And for the recessional: bride and groom; matron of honor, alone; maid of honor with best man; last, the two ushers, together?

L. A.

(1) I suggest that, as there are to be no bridesmaids, it would be more effective to have the maid of honor and the matron of honor walk alone . . . even though they are to be dressed alike. This would give a far better balance to the procession. And in this case the honor attendant who is closer to the bride in relationship, who would be the one to be the actual witness, should walk directly in front of the bride and her father. For example, if the bride's sister is to be maid of honor, and her best friend the matron of honor, the sister would walk directly in front of the bride and her father.

(3) It would be best procedure here for you to have the honor attendants walk alone (the best man not to take part in the recessional).

replying to an invitation even though not prodded to do so. The hostess may be much a courteous person herself that she takes for granted that her guests will be polite enough to reply to her generous offer-of-hospitality!

BEAUTY

Promotional collar bones.

The skinny girl should not choose a bare-topped dress.

Bare-topped dresses are not a happy choice for the skinny girl who has little shelves on her chest. If defects cannot be corrected, they should at least be hidden. Of course, the strapless models are a temptation, and one would like to be in the mode. But all fashions are not suitable for all figures, and nobody whose brains ticks ought to know.

As a rule, prominent collar bones are the direct result of incorrect posture. The frontal bone is found in the nose of the spinal column. The extended one gives support; the other curves at the upper portion of the back, sending shoulders and head forward causes collar bones to pop out for all to see. It is lamentable that so few young women have the slightest interest in carriage. It is necessary for the creation of an attractive silhouette and it adds to style.

Correct posture imparts a sense of well-being. It is suggestive of courage, and vitality. Slouchy attitudes suggest lack of spirit, though that is not always the case. They also often an evidence of laziness and lack of spirit.

If you are a collar bone victim, make a test. Throw your shoulder forward; let the head droop. Bones are out in full force. Take the soldier's position. Place your fingertips on your shoulders, lift the chest, send your elbows back. Though you may be the lightest of feather-weights, you'll pass on collar bones then. They have tucked themselves away where they belong.

Should it happen that there is only a light padding of flesh on throat and chest, local treatment will prove beneficial. With head balanced and an easy pose of the shoulders, massage with cocoabutter or a heavy massage emollient. Go rather generously with flattened fingers, always with upward, outward pressure. Up and down strokes on the neck. Finish with a brisk slapping, after which you should frick an ice cube over the flesh to spur circulation.

This is the way that area should appear; the neck should be slightly thicker from front to back than from side to side. The lower portion be a gradual fluting of the chest down to the breasts. No evidence of collar bones!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Mrs aren't interested in moping girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17, and last year I met a boy of whom I grew very fond. We never had regular dates, but off and on we met, and walked and talked for hours at a time. One night he tried to kiss me, but I refused to let him, but this didn't interfere with our friendship.

Now he is in service and I haven't seen him for almost a year, yet he is home on weekends. I have had other dates, and fellows have asked me to go steady, but I have refused because I can't get this other fellow off my mind.

Please tell me what to do. My parents and sisters are of no help to me as they say I am foolish to keep thinking of him.

Dicky

Dear Dicky:

I think you are foolish, too. I think any girl is foolish to make herself indispensable over a boy who is so uninterested in her that he hasn't come to see her for nearly a year, although he was perfectly able to do so if he wished.

If this boy is ever going to be interested in you again, or if any other boy is going to get really interested in you, you'll have to wake up and adopt a different attitude. No girl is attractive when she mopes around as you're evidently doing, and she certainly doesn't have any fun. Snap out of it and show your parents and sisters that you've got good sense and a healthy outlook on life.

Why keep friends of this kind?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

We are two girls who are invited to many parties. Lately our friends have been indulging in heavy necking, which we would rather not have any part of. They say we are unsociable and that we think we are too good for them. We don't mean to be unsociable, but we think there are other ways of having fun. What should we do? We don't want to lose our friends.

M. M. and L.O.

Dear Girls:

I don't see why you want to hang on to friends who can't think of anything better to do than "heavy necking". You're much better off without them. If they want to think you're unsociable because you're sensible enough to believe there are better kinds of fun than cheap flirting, let them think so.

If, when you go to parties, you are constantly put in a position of this sort, pass up those parties and give some parties of your own with people who think the way you do. There are so many interesting activities that girls your age these days, that you shouldn't have any trouble finding ways to spend your time. If you go in for health things like sports and hobbies, you're certain to enlarge your circle of friends and meet plenty of boys and girls who have the same standards of conduct that you do, and in the end you'll have lots more fun, too.

She's 16, he's 20 and in love with her

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young man of 20, and very much in love with a girl of 16. We go out occasionally, but she refuses to marry me when I tell her. She says every man has a different line, and when I tell her I love her, she says, 'I only wish I could believe you." Can you help?

J. J. B.

Dear J.J.B.:

Actually, I think this girl is rather smart for her 16 years. She is, however, undoubtedly applying to a young man of 20 the feelings of a boy of her own age, who's likely to fall in and out of love many times before he reaches adulthood.

Personally, I think a 16-year-old is a little too young for you, and I'd think you'd do much better to look for friends nearer your own age. While a difference of four years between a man and a girl is quite usual when both are of marrying age, when the girl is only in her mid-teens and the man has started his twenties, those four years make a greater psychological difference than you might think.

If you are really interested in this girl, then your best plan is not to keep pressing for her love, but simply take her out now and then and find by until is older. If the friendship means anything, it will develop naturally; if it doesn't, you will gradually drift apart without anyone getting hurt.

Dutch Emigrants Plan New Lives In Canada

The Hague, (CP)—In hundreds of homes throughout Holland there was a stir of activity and excitement as more than 1,200 approved emigrants prepared to sell for a new life of adventure in Canada. The first major contingent to leave Holland under the Dominion's latest drive for new settlers, they are due to sail for Halifax on the Volendam, Feb. 13. In all approximately 12,000 are expected to emigrate to Canada during the year.

Among the first to complete his packing was 46-year-old Albert Jonkman, a prodigal returning to Canada after a few months of romance caught up with him and he married Wilhelmina, a nurse from his native town. They now have two children, Jan, 13, and Rika, 16.

When a few months ago a friend farming at Waterdown, Ont., invited Albert to join him as a mechanic, he promptly cabled back: "Coming. Keep the spare house for me."

Wants Own Workshop

Fired by the prospect of getting set in his own house, with washing-machine and refrigerator, Wilhelmina became as eager as her husband. So they sold their Amsterdam garage and started packing. Albert will work on the farm for some months, but ultimately hopes to establish his own smithy and workshop.

"We are going to Canada", he said, "because we feel there are far greater opportunities there for us and our children.

"I'm quite happy to be going to Canada," chimed in Wilhelmina. "I want to see for myself whether all the grand stories Albert has been telling me for 20 years about Canada are true after all. "And," she added with a smile, "I'm pretty certain I won't be disappointed."

On the same ship with the Jonkmans will be a 41-year-old Dutch Kampen, his wife and five children.

Henk, a textile traveller, said he was leaving Holland "because I doubt whether my children will be able to earn a reasonable living in this over-populated land."

He has a job awaiting him in a sugar-beet factory at Shaughnessy, in Southern Alberta.

Big Wheat Farmer Likes Machinery, Harvests Quickly

By LOUIS L. LECK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia—(CP)—Eric Smart, 38-year-old west Australian wheat farmer, was almost broke 15 years ago. Now he may be the biggest individual wheat farmer in the world; at least that's the claim of his fellow farmers.

Now a battery of harvesters is finishing cropping more than 350,000 bushels of wheat on his farm 300 miles from Perth. Income from this and wool will probably bring Smart's income to $945,000. That's not the biggest income in Australia by a long way—there are wool men making considerably more—but its good progress in 15 years.

Smart's family had been farming for six generations in south Australia when Eric Smart went to west Australia in 1925. Determination and energy and impatience brought him quick rewards. Sometimes he had to sell his plows to buy harvesters but within three years he was producing 70,000 bushels of wheat.

Speeds Farming

Smart concentrates all the machinery he can on his farms. By this he has seeded 2,000 acres in four days and has harvested 9,000 bushels in one day from one paddock. Smart doesn't take any chances. He'll keep 18 harvesters going at once with repair gangs standing by ready to fix any breakdowns immediately.

His methods have revolutionized western Australian ways of farming. His main property, Ecurgulla Springs, is like a small township. Married workers have cottages, and each day a special bus takes 50 of their children to a nearby school. There's a private swimming pool and sports grounds. If Smart wants a game of golf he sometimes drives 400 miles to the seaside resort of Bunbury.

Referee Catches Fire in Hockey Game at Wingham

Wingham, Ont., Feb. 8 — (CP) —When Cord Bisset caught fire in a hockey game here he did it literally.

Late in the second period the other night the referee stopped the game after smelling smoke. A check through the crowd failed to turn up any sign of fire.

Then one of the players noticed that something inside Bisset's sweater was smouldering. The sweater was ripped off and it was found that a towel he had been wearing around his neck was afire, apparently from a cigaret butt tossed by someone in the arena.

Uninjured, the right winger went on to score three goals for Goderich in the game with Lucknow.

Medical Advances of 50 Years Exceed Steps of 19 Centuries

Progress in the medical and public health fields in the first half of the 20th century probably surpassed the achievements in those spheres in the other 19 centuries combined.

As a result, in nations where modern medical and public health standards pertain, expectancy of life at birth has greatly increased. For instance, in Canada in 1901, the life expectancy of the average male at birth was 46 years, female 51 years. Today male babies can expect to live exactly 17 years longer, to 63, while girls can hope to reach the age of 69, an increase of 18 years.

This is spectacular, in view of the fact that historians estimate that the prehistoric inhabitants averaged lives of only 18 years—citizens of the Roman Empire, 2,000 years ago, could hope for an average life of only 23 years—and people in the middle ages had to be content with a 35-year life span.

Among factors in this 50-year march of progress have been improved knowledge of personal and public sanitation, advances in improved methods of storing and handling foodstuffs, and a greater understanding of health and medical matters by the general public. Health education methods have improved and become more intense.

Then there are the achievements of medical science—the discovery of insulin for diabetes, toxoid for diphtheria prevention, vaccine for whooping cough prevention, and the antibiotics which have made germ life hazardous. Practically all virus research has been done since 1900.

Improved Methods

Methods of diagnosis and treatment in many diseases have improved tremendously. For instance, the incidence of tuberculosis dipped, and will drop more with the help of streptomycin and BCG, the latter a preventive.

And, with medical science continuing its good work, it may not be too much to hope that in the next five, 10 or 25 years equally spectacular preventives and cures will be produced for cancer, arthritis and the various virus and other problem diseases. Discovery and development of cortisone and ACTH should prove helpful in more than one field. A highlight among achievements of medical science in the first half of the century was the progress made in industrial medicine in the last 25 years, states Dr. Fred Cruickshank of Toronto, a member of the Industrial Health Committee of the Health League of Canada.

Dr. Cruickshank says that advancement in this field was largely the result of two world wars with their home-front stress on industrial production. When it was realized that an unhealthy worker was not a productive worker, industrial medicine really began to come into its own.

Today, through the combined efforts of organized medicine, labor and management, the average worker in Canada is able to enjoy a measure of health and well-being that was not always the lot of his father.

The forces of industrial hygiene at present are going all out in an effort to keep pace with the nation's advance in industrial strength—in an effort to provide industry with healthy workers. Management, has entered wholeheartedly into the program which seeks to provide medical services for all workers.

This appreciation by industrial leaders of the value of health conservation and healthful environment in their factories has done much to improve Canada's industrial efficiency.

In what was termed the worst disaster in history of the Okeechobee Valley, Fla., thousands of heads of cattle died following exposure to driving rain combined with freezing weather. Expect 200,000 Migrants To Go to Australia in 1951

By LOUIS LECK
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia—(CP)—Immigration is almost the only question in which the official policies of both the government and the Australian Labor party are in complete agreement.

Immigration Minister Harold E. Holt has publically praised the policy and administration of his Labor predecessor, Arthur A. Calwell. In turn Calwell has defended Holt's policy in parliament against attacks by a Labor colleague.

The policy broadly is the introduction of as many immigrants of European stock as can be obtained and transported to Australia. It has shown great results.

It came into operation in 1947 under a Labor government with full support of the Liberal-Country party opposition, and continues under the present government with opposition Labor support.

By the end of 1950, 400,000 people had arrived here to settle, of these some 200,000 had been given assisted or free passages. About 225,000 have been British migrants. About 100,000 have been displaced persons brought to Australia under the auspices of the International Refugee Association.

Last year between 180,000 and 190,000 migrants arrived, 75,000 of whom were British.

This year 200,000 are expected —30,000 free and assisted-passage migrants from Britain, 30,000 fullfare British migrants, 10,000 D. P.'s, 30,000 landing permit holders and 80,000 Europeans.

Agreements Made

Agreements have been made with Italy and Holland.

That with Italy will be for five years. Each government will contribute to the cost of passages for selected migrants. At first the immigration rate will be at the rate of 15,000 a year.

That with Holland will also be for five years and each government will contribute toward passage costs. This year 23,000 Netherlanders will be brought to Australia and because of the shipping shortage about 5,000 of them will be flown here.

Australia is also negotiating with West German autorities for an assisted-migrant agreement under which 25,000 West Germans will arrive in Australia each year.

But there are difficulties and problems in the way of the 200,000 target for 1951.

There is a growing belief that Australia has outrun its capabilities in aiming at the admission of 200,000 migrants in five years. Homes are scarce, the supply of some food items is dwindling, many essential items are hard to buy and prices are rising.

Some economists believe the nation cannot carry the strain of immigration, defence and national development simultaneously without creaks and groans and mounting inflation.

So far there has been no difficulty in securing British migrants. The trouble has been to provide shipping. More than a third of the British people who have come to Australia have paid their own fares rather than wait for transport under the assisted passage scheme.

Find Difficulties

But although individual British people are anxious to come here, the British government is raising objections to Australia selecting skilled workmen — engineers, building tradesmen, farmers. Britain wants these experts as much as Australia does.

Officially, however, the view is that Australia will reach its 1951 target for British migrants.

So far as European migrants are concerned—Australia's difficulty is not to secure candidates but to screen them for security, health and phisique. European migrants who receive assistance are under bond to work where directed for two years.

They receive full wages in their jobs and given accommodation at little more than a nominal rate. However, objection to essential work frequently invbives the separation of families and some hardship is involved.

After the two-year period the migrant is free to accept whatever work he wishes and is eligible for citizenship.

No such restrictions are placed on British migrants, even those who receive free passages.

Garden Experts From Niagara Cover Dominion

Niagara Falls, Ont., (CP) — While Jack Frost paints winter scenes at Niagara Falls, spring is on the way at a unique gardening school here.

Young men from many parts of Canada are preparing for springtime at the school of gardening by the Niagara Parks Commission. The handiwork of this school's graduates is admired at many different spots across the continent.

The school's graduates have gone to the western provinces and down into the United States to plan and tend famous gardens, created from experience in the beautiful Niagara Parks System which extends for 35 miles along the frontier.

A visitor admiring a perfect full-blown rose at the Empress Hotel Gardens in Victoria, B.C., is seeing the handiwork of a Niagara graduate, James Marlowhead gardener there. Another graduate, William Browne, is assistant superintendent at another British Columbia showplace, the Butchart Gardens on Vancouver Island.

Trainees Go Everywhere

Leonard Riley, who was trained at the school here, is forestry superintendent for the Ontario Department of Highways and John Byrne is with the Veterans Land Act administration in the Maritimes, along with three other former students now horticultural supervisors.

The attractions of the ice-tinted falls just below are in strong contrast to the profusion of hothouse flowers and plants in the Parks Commission greenhouses. The botanical flower shows and spring crowds are part-time work of Alfred Payne, greenhouse foreman and a gardening school graduate.

At the school the 24 students live an outdoor life. They came from all over the Dominion. Maurice Chapman came from Peace River, Alta., William McLean from New Brunswick, Alfred Savage from Sarnia, Ont., and Harvey Wightman from Auburn, Ont.

Winter is just as busy a time as summer for the school trainees. The students are continuously busy preparing for the summer displays by collecting seed, pruning and thinning, attending to hardwood and softwood cuttings, sowing seeds for the spring and summer flower shows.

CONDITION PROVES FATAL

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—James C. Ross, 70, died in hospital today of a heart condition aggravated by smoke from a mattress fire in his downtown apartment home.

Napoleon's Mask Goes To Museum

London—(CP)—An original cast of Emperor Napoleon's death mask is to be sold with a collection of antiques from Englemere, the Ascot home of Sir Archibald Weigall, former governor of South Australia.

The mask was taken by Dr. Antommarchi, the emperor's physician, who was minister in Florence at the time. In return the doctor gave the original mask to Burghersh.

Sir Archibald, giving up Englemere because of the high cost of its operation, expects to dispose of the mask as a museum exhibit. Made from some delicate composition, the mask has been kept on a padded base, under glass since it first came into the family's possession. It's value has never been disclosed.

MADOC

Special Services Bring Blessing to Hearers

Madoc—The two weeks of special services held in Trinity United Church, Madoc, under the auspices of the Sunday School Association, made up of seven denominations, proved a great success.

The Rev. Malcolm N. McDonald of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, Kemptville, the special speaker, won all who heard him with his personality and his message.

As he, simply, unfolded the plan of salvation as given in the Bible from Genesis to Revelation, this tall, slim Highlander illustrated his sermons with stories of his own experiences on the farm; in the lumber camps of Quebec; as a homesteader in Alberta; as a student in Montreal, and as a minister to the Gaelic-speaking Scots of Cape Breton.

When a boy, he had loved to play the violin, but his mother called him "One tune Malcolm". Now, as a minister, he still has only one tune, "Jesus Saves"

God's Promises

In his closing sermon on Sunday night, when the auditorium was crowded with close to 800 listeners, he spoke on "The Promises of God." "We cannot bank on these promises," he said "unless our name is on God's roll." "Christ has gone to Heaven to prepare a place for us. There is a plate on the table for us in our Father's house."

Everyone worked faithfully and harmoniously to make these special services a rich blessing to all. The music was particularly helpful. The choirs of all the churches, the special solos, the organists and the pianists, the Salvation Army Bands of Belleville and Tweed, all contributed in presenting the gospel to eager listeners.

Madoc and the surrounding community will long receive blessing from these services.

TAKE REVENGE ON PROPRIETOR

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—Police said five young women, ordered recently to stay out of a restaurant on east-central Church Street, took revenge on the proprietor early today.

They went into the restaurant and smashed catsup bottles, sugar bowls, glasses and other articles, police said.

Arrested on a charge of causing a disturbance were Dolores Cannon, 20; Lorraine Dick, 20; Theresa Currie 15.

BLOW TORCH STARTS FIRE

Sarnia, Feb. 8 (CP)—Fire gutted three rooms in the eight-room house of Sam Pollard during a 30-minute blaze today. Pollard, his wife and three children fled the building after a blow torch used to thaw frozen water pipes set fire to a wall.

Bull Enters House, Climbs Staircase, Then Slides Down

Namur, Belgium, Feb. 8 — (Reuters) — August Bechet sat down to supper with his wife and children in their tiny cottage at Focant, near here, last night — then the door burst open and in strode a bull.

The supper was sent flying when Bechet overturned the table to barricade the door.

The bull took one look at the massive oak table and turned into the kitchen, sending crockery flying with his lashing tail.

From the kitchen the beast mounted the staircase. Finding the bedrooms closed he sought vengeance on the furniture standing in the upstairs hall, pounding everything within sight with his forehoofs.

Disaster came when the bull decided to return to the ground floor. He slid down the staircase and became wedged in the kitchen door where he was retrieved by his owner, a local farmer.

The Bechet family finished their supper in a neighbor's house.

Army's Threat to Fire Striking Switchmen Regarded as Main Factor in Breaking Up Strike

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Cost of the longest and costliest country-wide railroad strikes in the United States in many years appeared virtually ended today.

The army's threat to fire striking switchmen was regarded as the main factor in breaking up the 16-day "sick" walkout.

The work stoppage continued to a few spots across the United States. But generally there was a full-scale return to work—officially in Chicago, the No. 1 rail center.

Indications were that all strikers will be back on the job before the 4 p.m. EST Saturday deadline set by the army in its "work or be fired" ultimatum.

Thousands didn't wait for the deadline to return to work. The switchmen—who also were promised a pay raise—flocked back to their jobs in large numbers, joining the thousands who had returned to work earlier this week.

The army's demand to switchmen to get back on the job or lose their job and seniority came after President Truman's instructions to the army to take "appropriate action immediately" to get the roads in full operation.

The army has been in technical control of the carriers since the government seized them last Aug. 27 to halt a threatened strike.

The reaction in Chicago, one of the major hold-out areas, was swift. Nearly 100 per cent of the striking switchmen reported for work last night, compared to about 30 per cent on the early morning shift Thursday.

Similar Reports

There were similar reports from many other cities where the work stoppage had continued during the week. Only a few scattered points reported switchmen planned to remain away from work today.

The switchmen returned to work faced with the gigantic task of helping to unscramble the jammed freight yards. An estimated 700,000 of the 2,000,000 freight cars in the United States had been tied up during the walkout, which started in Chicago and Detroit Jan. 30.

Industry also joined in getting back. 46 full production. Thousands of workers made idle by the stoppage awaited back-to-work calls.

The pay raise granted rail workers by the army was 12½ cents an hour for yardmen and yardmasters' and five cents an hour for employees in road service. The hike was only about half the amount reaching in an agreement negotiated in December but later rejected by the rail unions.

The raise was granted as the National (Railway) Mediation Bard in Washington attempted to effect a settlement in the long wage-hour dispute between the carriers and four rail unions. Included was the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the union affiliate of the some 13,000 switchmen who staged the two "sick" walkouts.

Frigid Weather With Heavy Snow Covers Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Canadians from the Atlantic coast westward to Saskatchewan today donned their heaviest clothing to ward off one of winter's coldest onslaughts.

Temperatures fell well below the zero mark in most provinces, with only British Columbia and Alberta basking under warm Pacific winds.

Adding to the weather woes of the Maritimes and central provinces were driving snowstorms that last night blocked roads and forced closure of some rural Ontario schools because buses could not get through.

Hardest hit were the Maritime provinces, where snow and rain storms, driven by gale-force winds, stalled traffic, disrupted power and communication lines, and endangered sea-going vessels.

Temperatures plummeted from 50 above to 20 below overnight in New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island as blustery cold air moved Eastward from Ontario and Quebec.

For most of Quebec and many parts of Ontario the weather was merely snowstorms and cold. It was cold, too, in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Only in the two far western provinces did winter fail to hold full sway.

Mild temperatures were common to all but the most northerly sections of British Columbia, while balmy Chinook winds sent the mercury soaring in southern Alberta.

81 Below at Dawson

A frigid 81 below made Dawson in the Yukon the coldest spot in the Dominion, while 30-below readings were common in Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Northern Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

At Ottawa, Wilf Lepine froze his cheeks while driving his dog team in 30-below weather in defence of the International Dog Derby championship he won last year.

A heavy snowstorm, driven by 60-mile-an-hour winds, forced traffic to a standstill in Quebec City.

Another storm, whirling in off Lake Huron, blocked roads in western Ontario. Rural schools in London and Stratford areas were closed. Sixty high school students in the London district were marooned overnight in farm houses.

In the Maritimes, communication lines were cut and traffic stalled by falling trees. A big smokestack fell across telegraph and telephone lines at Truckdle, N.S., yesterday and disrupted service for more than an hour.

Conservatives Again Fail To Oust Govt.

London, Feb. 9 — (CP) — By an eight-vote margin, the Labor government last night defeated still another Conservative attempt to turn Prime Minister Attlee's cabinet out of office.

The House of Commons voted 306 to 298, rejecting a Conservative motion to censure the Labor government for its administration of Britain's scanty meat supply. Passage of the motion would have forced Attlee and his ministers to resign in preparation for a new general election.

The small Liberal bloc again joined with Winston Churchill's Conservatives in the unsuccessful attempt on the government.

The opposition gave notice that it will continue to hammer away in the hope of ousting the socialists. R. A. Butler, a leading Conservative, reminded the House that defence and rearmament are due for debate next week.

The Conservatives hit hard on the meat issue — a sore point with every British housewife. The weekly ration of fresh meat was cut recently to less than half a pound.

Cries of "muddle" and "mismanagement" came from the opposition, who charged that the government's bulk - buying policy was to blame for the shortage. The government has been unable to reach a price agreement with Argentina, normally Britain's major supplier.

In reply, Food Minister Maurice Webb said Britain wants beef from Argentina but refuses to pay "excessive prices." The government would continue "fighting the housewives' battle" to keep food prices low.

Mayor of N.Y. Urges Congress To Reject Project

New York, Feb. 9 — (AP) — Mayor Vincent R. Impellitteri of New York City urged yesterday that the United States Congress reject the $1,300,000,000 St. Lawrence seaway project.

The mayor wired two New York city Congressmen, both Democrats, stating his opposition.

Impellitteri cited the huge cost of the project, and added:

"Congress should not commit the United States to this project under the guise of national defence, when actually it subsidizes a few small steel companies to obtain iron ore from an undeveloped field in Labrador.

"Such action would deal a terrible blow to our taxpayers, our U. S. commerce and to our need for conserving iron and materials on defence necessities."

For several years, many measures have been introduced in the Senate and House for the St. Lawrence River project to carry ocean going ships from the Atlantic to midwest ports. An agreement between the United States and Canada is proposed.

Some proponents of the seaway advocate that a proposed huge power project be tied in with it.

Two more seaway measures were introduced yesterday — by Representative F. D. Roosevelt (Dem. Lib. N. Y.) and Representative Charles Potter (Rep. Mich.).

Impellitteri received a memorandum from New York City's acting Commissioner of Commerce, Edward C. Maguire, outlining objections to the seaway project.

Fear Diversion

The memorandum said rail-roads and other transportation facilities handling commerce to and from United States ports, and providing employment in the United States, fear large diversion of business if the seaway is constructed.

Potter, introducing a measure to authorize construction of the seaway, said it is "urgently needed" to assure ore for defence.

Potter said in a floor speech that newly - discovered deposits in Labrador are "the only major continental source of highgrade ore to supplement our dwindling domestic supplies."

He considered that the seaway "is urgently needed to make it possible to bring Labrador iron ore in over a protected inland route rather than over exposed ocean routes, subject to enemy submarine attack."

25 to 40 P.C. Slash in Use Of Steel Coming

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP) — A slash of 25 to 40 percent in use of steel, copper and aluminum in automobiles, stoves and home appliances in the United States is planned April 1.

Disclosing this Thursday, officials of the National Production Authority said the resulting cut in actual numbers of these items may be somewhat less, depending on the manufacturers' ability to save materials and use substitutes.

A separate order, due in a few days, is expected to open the way to price increases on a number of important consumer goods.

I. will cover men's and women's clothes cosmetics, furniture, rugs lamps, pots and pans.

This office of price stabilization regulation will eliminate the price freeze and substitute "margin" type orders promised when the general price freeze was imposed Jan 25.

The new order will restrict the percentage of markup between what a retailer pays for goods and what he charges the customer.

N.P.A. is not planning to prevent an automobile model change for 1952, officials reported. Machine tools and fixtures needed for an order and will be delivered before defence demands on tool producers arrive in volume.

But thereafter, there will be no model changes for a time because the conversion of plants to munitions output will keep the tool makers occupied.

Fighter Squadron Will Be Located Mainly in Eastern Canada and on Pacific Coast

Ottawa, Feb. 9 (CP) —Everybody wants a fighter squadron in their backyard—and says so —but the RCAF is going ahead with plans to locate them mainly in Eastern Canada and on the Pacific coast.

The pattern for the geographical location of the 40-squadron force the RCAF will build in the next three years has been drawn by a group of experts who have appraised the temptations Canada offers to Russia.

The result, broadly, is that Canada will be roughly divided into two areas for the joint job ahead—the east and the Pacific coast for operational purposes, the prairies for training.

The fighter squadrons —about three-quarters of the 40 will be regular and reserve fighter squadrons will be grouped around the target the experts consider Canada's choicest.

That means, authorities say, that communities which don't have fighter squadrons near them should be thankful—they're not considered No. 1 targets.

So far however, people haven't been thinking that way. In various ways, by letter, by political or other approaches, the RCAF gets bombarded with requests for fighter protection.

Virtually every sizeable community in the country feels it needs protection. Their pride is hurt, and they feel neglected, officials say, if they don't get it.

The simple answer is there can never be enough fighter squadrons to defend all Canada — 11 best use must be made of what are going to Europe—and the is available.

RIPE FOR DEVELOPMENT

Toronto, Feb. 8 — (CP) Northern Ontario is ripe for new agricultural development, an official of the Federal Agriculture Department said today.

Dr. G. S. Barton, special assistant to the agriculture minister, told the Ontario Association of Agriculture Societies that many of the more settled northern areas could support much more productive farming than they do now.

Bossy is Brought Into House to be Milked by Sick Wife

Cadem, Tenn., Feb. 9 (AP)—Necessity, too, can find a way.

Farmer Reuben Barker can't milk a cow. During the recent blizzard Mrs. Barker, who takes care of the chore, became ill and was unable to leave the house.

But Barker managed to squeeze by. He ushered bossy into the living room twice daily and Mrs. Barker carried on.

Bavarian City Revives Famous Music Festival

Bayreuth, Germany—(Reuters)—The Bayreuth music festival is going to be revived this summer by Richard Wagner's grandsons with two United States singers in leading roles.

Astrid Varnay and George London of the New York Metropolitan Opera have been engaged to give an American touch to the festival.

The Wagner grandsons—Wieland, 33, and Wolfgang, 31—are talking of casting a third American, Robert Charlebois, 280-pound tenor from Minneapolis in the leading role of Seigfried for the 1953 festival.

Bayreuth's 1951 festival, due to last from July 7 until Aug. 19, will offer the full traditional program of Wagnerian operas, including "The Ring of Nibelungen," "Tristan and Isolde," and "Die Meistersinger."

Hans Knappertsbusch, German conductor, and Herbert Von Karajan, conductor of the Vienna symphony, will do the conducting. Wilhelm Furtwengler may appear also.

The festival will mark the 75th anniversary of the great grey stone opera house which Wagner built to perpetuate his works on teutonic folklore.

The festival is being resurrected against a background of dreary family-wrangling and huge financial obstacles.

Friend of Hitler

Fifty-three-year-old Winifred Wagner, mother of Wieland and Wolfgang, took over the festival from her husband, Siegfried, after his death in 1930. A member of the nazi party in 1920 and a close friend of Hitler, she was divested of any connection with the festival by a German denazification court in 1946.

The mother became estranged from her children. A daughter, Friedlind, emigrated to the United States and wrote a book, "Heritage of Fire," excoriating her mother. In the United States, she organized the Friedlind Wagner Opera Company.

Confronted with an empty cash-box, Wieland and Wolfgang attempted to finance the Bayreuth revival in part through the sale of some of Richard Wagner's manuscripts. Their plans were foiled by Friedlind who refused her consent. Eventually the Wagners raised most of the money needed through grants from public funds and contributions from wealthy industrialists. About a million marks (roughly $232,000) will be spent on the revival.

The Wagner grandsons are generally conceded to have removed all nazi taint from the festival, which is being backed by all classes of Germans as well by the occupational powers.

Apart from the two New York Metropolitan singers, the Wagners will rely mainly on young German and Austrian talent, dearth of which is hardly less acute than the shortage of money to finance the spectacle.

Expert Shows How Anger Harmful to Mental Health

Toronto—(CP)—Hostility can bounce right back to harm a person who is hostile, says Dr. J.D.M. Griffin, medical director of the Canadian Mental Health Association.

He gave a gathering of University of Toronto students recently an idea of what happens to anyone who harbors feelings of hostility and suddenly realizes that he has a headache and a pain in the stomach.

He said the mucous membranes lining the throat and stomach and some other organs are affected. Glands elsewhere and the blood undergoes bio-chemical changes. Altogether, he said, hostility is a harmful thing that apparently is flourishing these days.

Dr. Griffin said that during recent United Nations debates on the far eastern situation, Canada's representatives displayed more maturity and less psychiatric hostility than those of "some other countries we could mention." Canadian should be reasonably proud" of the actions of their delegates.

Dr. Griffin also discussed a motion picture, "The Feeling of Hostility," which apparently sweeps over hostility itself when shown to home and school association groups.

Disturbing Film

"It had to be withdrawn from general release," said Dr. Griffin. "A lot of people thought it was disturbing. It hasn't the sort of ending that sends everyone home happy, so they can put it out of their minds."

The film showed how hostility took root in the mind of a little girl named Clare, whose father was killed in the Canadian mining country and whose widowed mother made Clare too dependent upon her.

It showed then how Clare took on aspects of rejection and resentment after an unappreciative stepfather appeared on the scene and how she finally turned into a friendless, shy girl who was going to show everyone that even if she was lovable, she was smart.

In the end she became a successful assistant in a publishing house but she spent her evenings alone. There was so much hostility in her make-up that there was no room for love.

Large Great Lakes Ship Concern Grew From One Vessel in 1916

Toronto, —(CP)—Capt. R. Scott Misener, 71, president and general manager of the largest individually-owned fleet of Canadian freighters on the Great Lakes, can count his success from the day he and his chief engineer, John O. McKellar, bought a small and not very staunch freighter.

Buying the vessel took every cent the two men possessed — or could borrow. Their venture depended on their skill in getting her from port to port and in keeping her hold crammed with good-paying cargo.

That was in 1916, when Canada was busy meeting the strains and demands of the first World War. The two lake sailors made the operation of their little freighter pay and in two years they sold her and bought a bigger and better ship that was the foundation of a new shipping concern named Sarnia Steamships Ltd.

As the company prospered/they bought other ships until they had a fairly big fleet of their own. Then Capt. Misener and Mr. McKellar took over the venerable Mathews Line, renaming it Colonial Steamships Ltd., and their fleets continued to grow and prosper.

Boyhood at Sea

John O. McKellar is retired now. Scott Misener owns a big combined fleet and a growing business. He still has the love for the lakes that led him to strike out of his birthplace on Manitoulin Island before he was 17 and ship out as boy-before-the-mast on a three-and-a-half lumber hooker at $15-a month, a wage later advanced to $25 when he gained the status of a regular hand.

From the lumber hooker, he went on to a wheelsman's berth in a steam barge. During the navigation season he still gave way to steam on the lakes and the wooden ships were replaced by steel, he climbed through the certificate ratings of second mate and first mate to a mastery ticket.

After that, to become a ship owner was for him but a single step.

U.S. Tanks Shell Ruins of Seoul

Tokyo, Feb. 8 —(AP) — U.S. tanks shelled Seoul's blackened ruins today and flowed over, wheeling into easy range, plastered Chinese positions north of the frozen Han River tonight.

Puerto Rican infantrymen seized a commanding height only 4½ miles south of the former Korean republic capital. The entire allied line advanced another mile or more toward Seoul. The Eighth Army said.

"Destruction of communist forces in the pocket south of the Han in the western sector, the objective of the current phase of the limited offensive, is proceeding and may sum up as a sizeable victory in terms of enemy losses.

"No further implications should be attached to the present situation."

There was a cool military appraisal of a two-week series of armored punches and bayonet charges that have rid the snow-crusted ridges and valleys of thousands of Chinese on Seoul's approaches.

The Eighth Army has estimated many than 57,000 red casualties, most of them in the western sector. Now the Chinese had their quilted backs to the Han.

Red resistance was crumbling. In some sectors there was no opposition.

Manitoba Will Control Rents After April 30

(By The Canadian Press)

Manitoba has become the fifth Canadian province to decide on legislative action to control rents when the federal government abandons the field April 30.

Provincial Secretary Charles E. Greenlay said in the legislature yesterday that rent control legislation will be brought down before the end of the present session. He gave no details.

He spoke just before the House was to deal with a resolution by Donovan Swailes (CCF-Winnipeg Centre) asking the government to consider imposition of provincial controls.

Previously Quebec, Alberta, Saskatchewan and Ontario had either passed or promised legislation.

A sixth province—Newfoundland—is an exception since it has had its own rental controls in effect since before it united with Canada in 1949.

Ontario was told of provincial government plans for rent controls at the opening of the legislature last week; Saskatchewan has had its own controls since last April; Alberta has passed legislation providing for modified restrictions if and when the federal government vacates the field, and a bill was introduced in the Quebec Legislature last week to extend current ceilings to August 1 and provide for negotiations of rents after that.

Approve Principle

Along with Manitoba, three other legislatures were sitting yesterday—Ontario, Quebec and Saskatchewan.

In Toronto, J. G. White (PC-Kenora) moved adoption of the Throne Speech and urged the government to establish a new department for Northern Ontario affairs. The House approved the principle of a bill to enlarge and simplify the activities of the Ontario Racing Commission after Premier Frost said the government was hampered in its control of horse racing because it lacked jurisdiction over gambling. He said the core to the problem of bookmaking lay with the federal government which had control over communications.

In Regina, Liberal leader Walter Tucker moved a want-of-confidence motion in the CCF government. He contended government proposals to aid municipalities were inadequate because they did not include taxing of commercial Crown corporations or abolition of the two-mill public revenue tax.

A vote will be held later on Mr. Tucker's motion which came at the close of a 140-minute address in the Throne Speech debate.

Will Not Settle in Area

In Quebec, colonization minister Beglo said the provincial government is having difficulty interesting people in settlement of farmland in newly-developed territories.

He said his department has available for settlement 12,000 to 15,000 colonization lots which have been classed as suitable for farming. But despite such inducements as $3,200 premiums to each settler and construction of houses and clearance of land there was apparently a reluctance to become pioneers of new territory, probably because of the attractions of high wages in established parts of the province. Mr. Begin spoke during debate on a bill to extend for two years a $16,000 government settlement program.

Britons Leave To Make Room For Visitors

London—(CP)—While plans are being made to greet thousands of visitors to the Festival of Britain which officially opens next May, Britons are staging the biggest rush on record to get out of the country.

Travel agencies report their advance bookings for the continent are double last year's figures at this time. Most popular choices are Austria, Italy, Switzerland and Scandinavia.

One of the larger shipping companies has stepped up its drive for a share of the tourist trade with this slogan: "Best idea for the festival year—a trip to South Africa."

A company official was asked if the slogan was intended as public derision of the festival.

"Not at all" he replied. "We are following the advice given to Britons to go abroad during the festival to make room for as many visitors as possible."

The reduced cost of holiday tours has been made possible by new plans granted by British and continental railways and bus lines. The cut in fares ranges from 20 to 40 per cent.

VALUABLE EXPORT

Bailey bridges, a British invention of the Second World War, now are a valuable item of Britain's exports.

Juveniles, Bantams, Midgets Clean Sweep Triple Hockey Bill

Rob-zero weather failed to cool the hockey blood of Belleville's minor hockey clubs in Memorial Arena last night and the teams came through with flying colors to clean-sweep the triple-header against teams from Napanee and Deseronto.

Jim Ethier's juveniles, playing their first game against outside opposition had little trouble in defeating the Deseronto juveniles by a 12-2 score while "Bobby" Lloyd's bantams turned back the Napanee youngsters by an 8-0 count. "Toots" Holway's midgets also came through handsomely with a 6-0 shutout over the Napanee midgets.

The bantam and midget squads journey to Wellington tomorrow where they take on the village squads. They will embus at the arena at 12.45 p.m.

Belleville 12, Deseronto 2

Paced by Doug Hull, the Rockist-sweetened juveniles carried the attack to the hard-fighting Deseronto squad, practically all through the session although Don Barclay in the Belleville nets came through with periodic fine saves.

Hull scored four of his team's goals and was credited with an assist. Davy Jones came through with two goals and two helpers with Cook also scoring a brace, as did Barrett. Philp got one goal and one assist while McBrien scored the other city tally.

Edwards and Sexsmith were credited with the Deseronto goals with the latter drawing an assist on the other goal.

Belleville slammed home four goals in the first period and added a like amount in the second with the visitors getting a lone marker. Play tightened in the third but the city team banged in four more goals with but a single return from the Deseronto club.

Midgets 6, Napanee Midgets 0

Coach "Toots" Holway had his midgets roaring in high gear and as a result the kids took their second straight game from the Napanee youngsters.

The game was fast and cleanly played with the homesters having a decided edge throughout, although they visited youngsters came close on not a few occasions.

Casey and Lynch paced the Holway crew's attack each scoring twice, Casey's goals came through with a single and Brooks helped the cause with the sixth goal of the game.

Bantams 8, Napanee 0

The pint-sized crew of the city minor representatives avenged a 7-1 defeat handed them last week by the Napanee kids coming through with a neat 8-0 victory. At the time of going to press the goalgetters and line-ups were not available, but probably will appear later.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PETES TONIGHT!

These flaming Peterborough Petes who have as yet to glimpse the tail-lights of any of the other squads in this senior hockey group, hit into town tonight for their engagement with the Redmen. The Swartsmen are sitting right pretty at the top of the group heap and from here it looks as if it will take some extraordinary spurts to knock them off their lofty perch. One of the more consistent teams in the hockey hutch, the Petes have produced a highclass brand of hockey throughout the schedule, a fact that even their bitter intra-city rivals the Eagles must admit. However, they are not invincible and if the Redmen come up with the same fighting spirit they showed when they reared from behind to knock off the rampaging Kingston Nylons Wednesday night, the game should be one of the best senior brawls seen here this season.

The Redskins had the Indian sign on the Petes in their last meeting here mid-way through the third period. The Benimen had outplayed and outskated the Men o'Swarts for fifty minutes of hockey and were leading 4-3 when the Petes' storm struck. They flashed set of rushers and before the faithful could get a second breath, had rammed home three goals in less time than it takes to write it. Tonight, the redskins say, will be a different story. They are fully confident they can take the measure of the fast-skating Littlockers for their first home victory over the Swartmen this season. Should be well worth glimpsing. Game at 8.30.

MERCHANTS AT FULL STEAM!

It is not known if Coach Timmy Williams of the Belleville Merchants Trent Valley League has been injecting his troops with some of the famous Ranger virus, but the fact remains the squad has shown somewhat remarkable form since the estimable Timothy took over the coaching reins. His crew has won three of the last four games and Wednesday night handed a rather startling upset when they smothered the fancied Frankford - Bata Combines under an 18 - 3 score. The Frankford crew is leading the southern division of the league and some starters were of the opinion, and possibly still are, that they'll be the squad to reckon with for the loop title.

Ernie Cousins, fast-skating centre of the Merchants has been fattening his points total in huge gobs. In the last three games he has banged out the twine nine times and been credited with six assists; not a bad scoring feat in any man's league.

IN STITCHES — NOT FUNNY!

Bruins' opponents will probably never think well of Bad Bill Ezinicki, but one of his bosses placed the little right wing at the top of his list for courage after his epic battle with Ted Lindsay of Detroit last month, says a Hockey News story.

The executive was Art Ross, general manager of the Bruins, and one of the most rugged characters of any era as a player.

"I've seen some courageous guys in this game," declared Ross, "but this Ezinicki beats them all."

Ezinicki came out of the Detroit fracas wearing 19 stitches, 11 of them in his forehead, four in his lip, four more on the back of his head. He also acquired two black eyes and lost a tooth.

Four days after the fight X-rays revealed that he also had h broken nose — a nasal bone fracture with an obstruction on one side.

"He's really tough," said Dr. Tom Kelly, the Bruins' physician. "It was a bad break, but he would not think of not playing."

Neither Ezinicki nor Lindsay could play in the return engagement between the Bruins and Red Wings here, two nights after the fight because of their suspensions by President Clarence Campbell, but Bad Bill was on hand for his regular hockey a night later and performed. He played regularly and received two penalties. He hasn't missed any playing or practice timps since.

"Til say he's tough," echoed Coach Lynn Patrick. "Know the only thing about which he complained? His knee! He said it hurt him a little."

Bruins Ezinicki - Lindsay fight resulted in the year's biggest crowd for the game two nights after it occurred. A crowd of 12,837 people turned out, the second-largest of the winter season at the Garden.

MINORS TAKE THREE!

Belleville minor hockey c lubs had a field day in Memorial Arena last night, winning all three games of a triple header with Napanee and Deseronto. The bantams started the clean-sweep parade with an 8-0 victory over the Napanee youngsters while Toots Holway's midgets followed with a 6-0 shutout over a midget team from Gibbardville. Most impressive performance was the fine 12-2 victory Jim Ethier's juveniles scored over the Deseronto juves. Ethier appears to have a well-balanced squad, plenty fast and potent around the nets. Doug Hull was the sniping ace last night scoring four goals and getting an assist. A couple or so extra games and Ethier should have the team rounded into playdown shape.

"BILLS IN!"

Pappas Bills, coming up with a sparkling court performance eliminated the classy Brockville "Rees" here last night and enter the second round playdowns of the Intermediate "B" Basketball series. Down 13 points by virtue of a 44-31 defeat in Brockville last week, the Bills found their home court more to their liking and fashioned a neat 45-37 victory to win the points-to-count round by 13. It was fast hooping with the Bills standing out with some smart passing plays.

OFF TO WELLINGTON!

The Belleville bantam and midget hockey teams go to Wellington tomorrow for games with the village squads. The city teams will leave the Arena here by bus at 12.45 p.m.

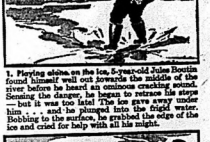
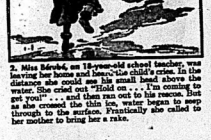
GIRL TEACHER BRAVES THIN ICE TO RESCUE SMALL BOY

Miss Jeanne-Marie Bérubé, of Vassan, Abitibi, Que.; crawls over treacherous Lacorne River.



1. Playing alone on the ice, 6-year-old Jules Bostin found himself well out towards the middle of the river before he heard an ominous cracking sound. Sensing the danger, he began to retrace his steps — but it was too late! The ice gave away under him . . . and he plunged into the frigid water.



2. Miss Bérubé, an 18-year-old school teacher, was leaving her home and heard the child's cries. In the distance she could see his small head above the water. She cried out "Hold on . . . I'm coming to get you!" . . . and then ran out to his rescue. But as she crossed the thin ice, water began to seep through to the surface. Frantically she called to her mother to bring her a rake.

3. After her mother had done this, the gallant young teacher got down on her hands and knees and crawled the rest of the way across the water-covered, treacherous surface. Finally she managed to reach the boy, who grasped the other end of the rake. Soon both were safe on shore. We proudly pay tribute to this brave Canadian girl through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Basketball "Bills" Return to Form, Win Round From Brockville 94-81

(By D. ROSE)

Last night at the Belleville Collegiate Pappas Billiards upset the leading Brockville Generals' applecart by dominating the second game of a home-and-home points-to-count series by a well-earned 51-37 score.

The Generals had a weight edge over the locals based as they had a thirteen point lead in the series as the result of Monday night's game in Brockville. Before a nice sized crowd of basketball enthusiasts the Bills, sparked by Lloyd Faulkner, who hit for 26 points, outplayed, outscored the leading Brockville squad. Other outstanding scorers for the Bellevillians were Bill Spafford with 14 points, Kip Summers, Bob Ketcheson and Bill Muirhead with seven each. Bert Hall, the Generals' biggest part of his team's weight with a total of 19 points, Art Curtis and Bob Coe of Kingston handled the game as officials from the K.O.A.A.

The Pappas Billiard team now hold the Eastern Ontario Intermediate "B" Basketball title which they well deserved for their giant come-back, winning the home-and-home series by a score of 94-81.

Court Trouble.

The Generals had the same trouble as did the Billiards in Brockville for they couldn't get used to the Belleville floor. Pappas Billiards who had worked out very hard in an effort to give a repeat performance, however, appointed for they played professional-like ball in the opening quarter. The crowd was filled with thrills as the ball found its way up and down the floor in an exhibition of fine and accurate scoring. Faulkner had a hot night and hit home 8 points in the first while Paul sparked his team with seven. At the end of the first the score was Pappas 21, Brockville 12.

The Belleville squad showed high spirits and lots of chatter and looked like a new team. The Generals were no slouches either and all the way through the game were in a position to set the Bills out of the Ontario Playdowns. After an action-packed, hard-fought second quarter the score marked the definite results of the calibre of ball the locals displayed. Game score Pappas 32, Brocks 16.

Anything could happen for the score to go either way, but the locals applied the pressure at the right time. Both teams suffered player losses in the third as the Billiards lost Muirhead and Lockyer, out for five fouls, and Paul (5) of the Generals was also retired from the game with the five-foul limit. The pressure of the game increased and although the game score was decidedly one way the series score was a very exciting point. Faulkner (10) and Paul (5) headed the scoring and the score of the quarter and game was 45-27 for the locals but the series score varied by only five points 45-40.

Fast Scoring

The final 10 minutes were none less exciting and tight as the previous quarters. The scoring changed very quickly and the breaks came first for the locals, then for the Brockvillians and the cheering reached its peak as the crowd gave out with wonderful support to both teams. Some good baskets were netted, some scored even while the player was on his way falling to the floor.

Faulkner, Spafford, Summers and Ketcheson were the marksmen for Belleville while Murray Leonard were accurate for Brockville. Thus the Pappas Billiards won the right to be called E. O. A. B. A. champs and the chance to play Peterborough Intermediate "B's" in Belleville on Ross, Dangy.

Marmora Loses To Campbellford By 7-3 Score

CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford, Feb. 9—A crowd of about 600 fans saw a thrilling and "crowd pleasing" type of hockey game in the arena here on Wednesday evening, when the Marmora Millionaires bowed to defeat before the Campbellford pucklets by a 7 to 3 score.

It was'anybody's game up until the halway mark of the third period when the locals stormed rubber at Borland in the Marmora nets and beat him four times in a row to clinch the outcome. Marmora had only ten men on their lineup, and the Campbellford boys tired them out, although they stood up remarkably well and were still strong at the final bell.

Pace of Campbellford got his second goal of the season. Cole of the locals was out with a foot injury. The local lads were sweaters of black and gold for the game, loaned by the Lloyd's Sport Shop team of the town league. These were needed to contrast with the Marmora sweaters, as the usual dress of both squads is green and white, and would lead to much confusion on the ice.

Both teams had many close calls around their nets, and goals were questioned and not allowed on three occasions.

The following is the summary and lineups.

Marmora: Goal, Borland; defence, Maynes, Doyle; centre, Stewart; wings, Trumble, Goodchild; Alternates, Brooks, Manile, Jones, Smith.

Campbellford: Goal, Laverne; defence, Trumble, Tanner; centre, Robinson; wings, Mason, Doober; Alternates, Blake, Herrington, Pace, MacMillan, Jeffs, Dunk, Smith, Peake, Sparg goal, Nelson. Referee: D. Barrett and M. Carson of Belleville.

BANCROFT

Playoff Plans Completed For H. and A. League

The playoffs in the Hartings and Addington Hockey League commence on Monday, February 12th, in Bancroft and one other spot that is not yet definite at the time of writing.

Unless a serious upset comes along Bancroft will wind up in first place and play a two out of three series with the third team. It looks as if this team will be Tweed, but the league race is so close that it might be either Madoc or Tamworth. The second team starts a series with the fourth team, also on Monday night.

There is an outside chance that Bancroft might be second and if this happens they will play the fourth team on their home rink on Monday night.

Heavy Schedule

Whatever happens the Bancroft Dominics have a schedule that would be strenuous for the Toronto Maple Leafs or any other professional outfit. Counting playoffs and exhibition games at home and abroad they play seven games in the next ten days.

Coach Don Simpson today said that the chances of Ted Maxwell playing in any more games this season were doubtful. Ted, one of the star forwards and main point getter for the Pontiacs this season, received an eye injury during the game with Tweed on Monday night. The local physician, ordered him to visit a Belleville specialist on Wednesday.

Owls in Flight At Lakehead

Port Arthur, Ont.—(CP)—Snowy owls, which appear in large numbers at the lakehead at four-year intervals, are making a flight this winter.

Few snowy owls have been recorded in the eastern part of the continent, but they have been observed here in large numbers.

Unusual numbers of great grey owls have also been recorded at the lakehead this winter. This owl is normally an inhabitant of the Arctic tundras and forest regions of northern Canada from Hudson Bay to Alaska. It invades more southern latitudes when its food supply, small mammals and birds, runs short.

Large Bird

The great grey owl stands 28 inches tall and has a wingspan of five feet. It sits hawklike, at a slant, and puffs its plumage out to increase its bulk.

This owl lives in dense forest and wooded mountains and rarely hunts in the open. Great grey owls have not visited the lakehead in numbers for 40 years.

The bird is dark grey. Its round head bears no eartufts. Its eyes are amber yellow, its tail long, and it has vertical grey stripes on the breast and throat. Its flight seems heavy and labored, and its booming hoot is more powerful than the call of the screech owl.

Their flights from the Arctic are usually east and south. They occasionally remain at the, farthest point of the flight the nest for the season. Eggs are laid from April to July, with April the most favored month.

This winter, great grey owls have been reported on Sibley Peninsula, Silver Islet, at Nanbing and in Port Arthur and Fort William. Several dead specimens were collected during the annual bird census last month. Other specimens have been reported at various points on the Nipigon highway, northeast of the lakehead.

My partner was a silly goose who went to any length to fling his bridge bids fast and loose without the proper strength. He never told me what he had or warned me he was lying. I never knew when it was bad to stop or keep on trying.

Some of you fellows make an immediate responding bid with too weak a hand. You fear partner may want a chance to go game. Or that you will disclose your weakness to opponents.

But why not look at it this way: If your hand is so weak, partner will not have enough to make a game. How do you know? If he had game with your weakness he could have opened with a forcing bid.

And look at it this way: You are unable to fool your opponents without also fooling your partner. It is much more important not to fool your partner than it is to fool your opponents.

For the first response you should have some high card strength. Lacking this, what could you have to incite a bidding desire? Only a suit of some length that might make part score for your side.

With such, wait for the second round. If it does not get around to you again your pair is not in trouble. If you get a second chance to bid you can show your suit without fooling partner.

Your back-in warns partner to pass. Having failed to make a bid when first you had a chance, you say you lack some true value. Thus does know your backing is based on a weak long suit and nothing else.

There are, of course, rare exceptions. Why gamble with this at all? Even if successful it makes partner doubt you in the future. It is better is it to retain partnership confidence on billions of others.

Partner opens with a diamond and you have this hand:

♠J 3
♡None
♢7 6 4
♣J 9 5 7 6 5 4 3

Pass. Later, if advisable, you can back in with a club bid of some kind. Even a bid of five clubs. That you can.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 9 (AP) —You can have the handsome Harrys, says starlet Joyce Holden. She'll take the plain Sams.

A comely blonde with better-than-average intelligence, she has been dated by a number of the Hollywood glamor boys and has come to this conclusion:

"I've discovered, though there may be a few exceptions, that the pretty boys never have character and the unattractive ones on the other side are really handsome on the inside." And it's character that counts with Joyce.

She argues that the handsome boys are "spoiled brats" who have been convinced by "a few dumb dames" that all they have to do is "look sexy" and the girls will deluge them.

"Women of today are not looking for Frankenstein's monsters, but they consider good looks definitely second string to good sense."

Capsule Reviews

"Call Me Mister" is another of those Betty Grable-Dan Dailey musicals which will delight audiences and baffle critics. Like its predecessors, it is weak on plot and heavy on production numbers. The two principals are as glittering as ever, playing army entertainers in occupied Japan.

"Vengeance Valley" is several cuts above the usual western fare. It is no "Red River" or "Stagecoach," but it offers a strong plot and some excellent scenery and action.

TWEED

Hockey Seniors Dump Tamworth By 11-4 Score

By M. MOFFAT

Tweed — In a game of wide-open end-to-end style of hockey, the Tweed seniors defeated Tamworth seven to four. The win pulled Tweed to within two points of Tamworth.

Spike Meraw, Joe Courtney and Lorne Gehan were the scoring stars. Among them they amassed fourteen points. Meraw picked up as many goals as Tamworth, 4. Courtney scored one and got five assists, while Gehan smashed one past Storring and assisted on three others. Reynolds picked up two unassisted goals in a losing cause.

Seven Penalties

There were seven minor penalties in the game three in the first stanza and the rest in the second. Tweed picked up five minutes and Tamworth players sat out two. Gehan was the only player to sin twice.

In the first period it took Meraw only fifty seconds to score from Courtney on a high shot. At five minutes Joe Courtney slipped the puck through Storring's legs after a beautiful play by Gehan. Reynolds got that one back for Tamworth forty seconds later and then near the end Curry set McGee up and McGee hit just inside the post.

Score Three In Second

Tweed had three penalties in the first six minutes but Tamworth couldn't score until Rombough scored to pull within one goal. Then Tweed broke loose for three goals in four minutes. Meraw picked up his second, Rivers scored from Courtney and Sherry scored on a pass from Cotton. The period ended with Tweed four up 6-2.

Reynolds scored after thirty seconds, but Gehan picked up a Courtney pass half a minute later to put Tweed well ahead. Marshall scored to pull Tamworth within three at the five minute mark. After ten minutes Tweed took over and Curry scored by tipping in Gehan's shot.

Meraw made his third goal on a pass from Courtney to make it 9-4. Curry got his second from Courtney at 17:00 and Meraw blasted in a pass from Gehan for his fourth and ended the rout.

Tweed's standouts were Courneyes, Courtney, Meraw and Gehan. Tweed defence was steady and goalie Courrges had a good night. Earl Curry was also very good, picking up two goals and an assist. Reynolds starred for Tamworth as did Marshall and Rombough.

The teams:

Tweed: Goal, Courneyes; defence, Gehan, Cotton; centre, Curry; wings, Rivers, Meraw; subs, Moore, Hunt, McGee, Reid, Sherry, Courtney, Storring.

Tamworth: Goal, Storring; defence, Powley, Conway; centre, Marshall; wings, Rombough, Cox; subs, Kilpatrick, Jones, Fisher, Reynolds.

Detroit Wings Defeat Hawks By 4-3 Count

Coach Ebbie Goodfellow and hi, hapless Hawks have good reason to feel friendless and woebegone today.

Dormats of the National Hockey League all season, Chicago's game but outclassed Black Hawks met nothing but trouble — in large doses—last night.

The fans—or more correctly the lack of fans—made up the most painful blow. Chicagoans stayed away in droves as the rampaging Detroit Red Wings whipped the Hawks for the second time in as many nights.

Only 2,300 die-hard followers—the second smallest crowd in Chicago history—turned out to watch Wings register a 4-3 victory over the cellar-dwelling Hawks, Hawks now have won only one of their last 26 games. All other teams in the league were idle.

League president Clarence Campbell aided the finishing touch by slapping a $200 fine on Goodfellow for his part in a fracas at Detroit last weekend.

Campbell announced the fine last night following a hearing in Chicago into the brawl between up that saw Goodfellow waved from the Hawk bench for using abusive language toward referee Hugh McLean. McLean had handed Wings' winger Roy Conacher a game misconduct penalty.

At that, last night's 4-3 loss almost represented a moral victory for the Hawks, still groggy from a 11-3 thrashing they'd given the same Red Wings the night before.

Bright spot in the game for the Chicago faithful was the work of rookie goalie Marcel Pelletier replacing Harry Lumley in the Hawk nets. Pelletier kicked out 38 shots many of them from close range, against 18 for Terry Sawchuk at the other end of the rink.

Lumley entered hospital yesterday for observation for a stomach ailment that first struck him a week ago. Doctors are trying to determine if he needs an appendectomy.

AT THE BELLE — Little do Charlton Heston, Lisabeth Scott and Don DeFore realize the explosive violence this card game will cause in Paramount's sensational suspense thriller "Dark City," now showing for the last times today at the Belle Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — Errol Flynn, who appears in Warner's great outdoor hit, "Rocky Mountain," showing today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre for its first showing. On the same program Laurel and Hardy in their funniest comedy, "The Bullfighters."

AT THE CAPITOL — Laurel and Hardy in "The Bullfighters," their most hilarious comedy, starts today and Saturday at the Capitol Theatre. The added first run action, outdoor attraction, "Rocky Mountain," stars Errol Flynn and Patrice Wymore. Starting day continuous from 1.00. Doors open at 12.30.

AT THE McCARTHY — Lovely Marguerite Chapman is the lone feminine cast member in Universal-International's thriller "Kansas Raiders," now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. A colorful action drama starring with Quantrill's raiders in Civil War days. Also on the new film are Brian Donlevy and Scott Brady.

SIX FISHERMEN RESCUED

Fort Erie, Feb. 8. (CP)—Six fishermen were rescued yesterday after they were trapped on a drifting ice floe in Lake Erie.

The U.S. coastguard had also been called and a rescue plane arrived just as the men returned to shore.

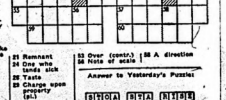
Answer to Yesterday's Puzzle



AVOIDS TIDES

Enclosed docks at the port of London, keeping out the tidal rise and fall, have a total of 235 acres of water.

VERBAL BATTLES

Some cities were too large now for efficient local government, he said. Dispersal of industries was "doubly important" in times of war. Industries in small towns and rural areas, including northern Ontario, would bring new community life and provide close markets for farmers in their districts.

Mr. Oliver criticized the government for not altering present laws governing marketing and milk price control.

"The time has come for a thorough overhauling of the farm products marketing AVT," he said. The government had also erred in replacing direct milk price controls with a system of negotiation and arbitration between farmers and processors.

Heard Sheriff Have Right

"For the protection of consumers, the milk control board should have the right to set milk prices" he said.

The Liberal spokesman also urged the province to start paying universal pensions at 70, as provided in a Federal-provincial plan, without waiting for Ottawa to put the scheme into effect.

New government legislation was introduced affecting homes for the aged, schools and fire departments.

Welfare Minister Goodfellow proposed provincial payments of $1,000 a bed for construction of homes for the aged built by private organizations such as the Salvation Army, Jewish people and other religious and secular groups. He said government grants would be halted on construction of farm buildings and farm operations at municipal homes for the aged.

Bills Introduced

Education Minister Porter introduced a bill to settle county representation on Municipal School Boards and provide that joint school boards for both public and high schools can be set up only when districts have both schools coincide.

Another bill introduced by Mr. Porter would reduce the maximum work week for full-time firemen from 72 to 56 hours.

Compulsory X-ray examinations at the order of medical health officers for persons suspected of having tuberculosis is provided in another bill introduced by Health Minister Phillips.

'Thing' Identified

Liberal house leader Oliver told the legislature that "The Thing" at last has been identified. He said the mysterious flotsam featured in a recent song hit was the hope commission's report on education.

Mr. Oliver's claim followed Premier Leslie Frost's statement that his Progressive-Conservative administration would not be found by the report's provisions.

"So the premier doesn't want it," commented Mr. Oliver. "We don't want it. It's a half-million dollar baby nobody wants. Tell (band leader) Phil Harris we've found the thing for him. It's the hope report.

Mr. Oliver urged the province to pay cost of snow-plowing on country roads, and to take over a certain percentage of these roads each year.

"The time has come for a thorough overhauling of the farm Products Marketing Act," he added. The act no longer served the farmers.

The government was apparently withdrawing its support of the agricultural co-operative movement. Co-operatives were not a threat to legitimate business, but were a deterrent to monopolistic interests, Mr. Oliver said.

Dealing with the report of the select committee on conservation, Mr. Oliver said nothing before had aroused such public interest in conservation. Yet there was no indication the government intended to implement the basic principles of the committee's report. Ontario should seek all possible co-operation with the federal government on conservation.

'Need Not Wait' Claim

There was no indication when the new federal-provincial agreement on pensions would come into effect, Mr. Oliver said. Ontario "need not wait" on the federal government but should "lead the way."

Mr. Oliver said he was quite happy that Walter Thomson had assumed the leadership of the provincial Liberal party. He would take a seat in the legislature as soon as Premier Frost called an election, (Mr. Thomson now represents Ontario riding in the federal house).

Mr. Oliver took issue with Premier Frost's statement Wednesday that resources of northern Ontario should not pay returns to the province.

He asked for a vote of non-confidence in the government and charged it had:

Failed to indicate it will aid home building.

Failed to reserve the wasteful policies of "preceding Conservative administration."

And had shown no intention of correcting defects in the Labor Relations Act.

Protection for home-owners unable to pay mortgage instalments. Cause of illness or unemployment is sought in a bill introduced by Gordon Ellis (CCF—Essex North).

Mr. Ellis said the bill is designed "to prevent wholesale confiscation of homes and private property such as occured during the 30's". It would provide for a stay of court hearings for mortgage foreclosure in such cases of illness or unemployment.

SWEEPING PRICE

Most of the speakers in yesterday's debate urged one form of control or another to check inflation, some of them departing from the union idea and calling for wage as well as price controls.

Mr. Howe said that the government's announced intention of introducing a stand-by legislation does not mean a present intention on the government's part to bring in over-all price and wage controls.

Circumstances were different now from 1941, when price control first went into effect.

"This time," Mr. Howe said, "many people expect the reimposition of the same kind of control and are governing themselves accordingly."

While this statement was not developed, it appeared the minister was suggesting that some prices may have been boosted in anticipation of a ceiling at some future date. Another possibility suggested was that there might be some hoarding in expectation of price rises.

May Be Cut Further

As the man controlling the allocation of steel in Canada, Mr. Howe also indicated to the house that supplies of this and other non-essential work materials will be cut down further, if a plan that has been banned for the construction of building for amusement and that type of undertaking.

Restrictive orders going beyond that may be issued, the minister said, to ensure supplies of structural steel for defence projects.

For business, Mr. Howe also announced that the government may provide capital assistance for a few types of industrial expansion, presumably to those industries directly concerned in defence production.

Another concession he announced—undoubtedly to be defined later in the federal budget—is for "accelerated depreciation" on expansion of private industry to meet defence needs. This is a device to give industry a break on taxation when it has laid out capital to step up production for defence.

Kind of Poverty

J. M. MacDonnell (PC — Toronto Greenwood), Progressive Conservative financial critic, said the government's policies have induced inflation and given Canadians "a kind of poverty in the midst of plenty."

The government had done nothing to stop inflation since last September. In fact, it had added $200,000,000 to the money pool, increasing credit facilities by freeing the Canadian dollar. The people to blame were those at the source of credit — the Finance Department and the Bank of Canada.

True, the government had instituted instalment - buying controls but they had been "about as much good as a bucket of water on a three-alarm fire."

He was not telling the government what it should do, though he believed controls in fiscal and credit controls. He was merely pointing out that the people of Canada were faced with what they believed to be "runaway inflation."

George Hees (PC — Toronto Broadview) urged over-all price, wage and rent control. Federal rent controls are scheduled to expire April 30, but some of the provinces will take these over.

Mr. Hees also called for an integrated program to combat inflation, which would include fiscal and monetary measures and the distribution and allocation of materials. He suggested that, unless checks were put in operation, the big defence preparedness program would step up the cost of living intolerably.

Others Join Debate

Gibers joining the lengthening Throne-Speech debate included J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton West), D. A. Riley (L—Saint John-Albert), Victor Quelch (SC—Assiniboia) and Ross Thatcher (CCF—Moose Jaw).

Mr. Murphy urged the government to remove controls which would roll prices back "to the point where the dollar was worth more than 50 cents." Price-pegging would not be enough; there would have to be a roll-back of prices.

Mr. Quelch, charging that government policy invites industry to raise prices, suggested Mr. Howe's statement made a good case for over-all controls since the new defence program has created conditions which make them necessary.

Mr. Riley urged the government to use its mammoth defence program to encourage the development of light industry in the maritimes.

Mr. Thatcher said that if the government did not form a special committee to study defence expenditures the C.C.F. group would move that those expenditures be referred to the public accounts committee.

Touching briefly on the control bill to be introduced at this session, Mr. Howe recalled that parliament adopted a modified control measure last September.

"Obviously," he added, "a more comprehensive price control bill is needed for any effective control of the Canadian economy and it is such a bill that you will be asked to consider."

Projects Turned Over

He reported that defence contracts totalled $629,000,000 during 1950 and disclosed that all defence construction projects have been turned over to a new crown company known as Defence Construction Limited. Later, the new defence production department to be created at this session will take over all functions relating to war production.

The greatest hindicap under which defence production was laboring involved shortages of raw materials.

Certain expansions in this field already were under way. The steel industry had a big expansion program in progress. Production of copper, zinc, lead, nickel, tungsten and aluminum was being expanded. An aggressive search was on for cobalt, antimony, molybdenum and chrome. All of these metals were running in short supply.

Stock-piling of materials already was under way by the government and it was planning a $7,000,000 expansion of the government-owned Polymer Corporation at Sarnia, Ont., to boost the output of synthetic rubber, Eldorado Mining and Refining Limited was expanding facilities for the production of uranium in the gold fields area of norther Saskatchewan.

The National Research Council was building a new and larger atomic pile for the production of commercial quantities of plutonium.

By Mutual arrangement, Canada was buying "substantial" quantities of war equipment in the United States and the U.S. was placing substantial war contracts in this country.

Other programs in the field of mutual defence were being studied with U.S. authorities.

Radio Station Features Programs On Atom Bombs

Fort Frances—(CP)—After a year's planning, radio station CKFI at Fort Frances, Ont., this month started a five-minute daily series of programs under the title "How to Survive an Atomic Bomb Attack."

The series is designed as a complete, easy-to-understand guide for homes, offices and factories in the border area between northwestern Ontario and the United States. Heard Mondays through Fridays, it tells in serial form how to survive an atomic blast.

If atomic warfare should ever come, these broadcasts may save lives, say the CKFI officials. All information is official, having been obtained from consultants of the United States Civil Defence office.

"Facts are what listeners will find in these broadcasts," the station declared. "Not scare talk; not guesses; not rumors. They'll get straight, step-by-listen-to facts about how to protect self and family in case of atomic attack.

"Nobody knows more than we do that our listeners will never have to use the information they will find in these programs, but nobody believes more than we do that every citizen ought to be prepared, ought to know the facts.

"If our audience will listen to these programs every day they will be less frightened, because they will know that it's not true that they have no defence against the atomic bomb. They will know what to do and they will be able to do it."

Among the series are special programs for people who live in Fort Frances and International Falls, across the border, and for people in small towns and in the country, in apartments and private homes.

WHY WE SAY By Bob Harper, Tom Hollister
CARL JOHNNY FISHER

For many centuries—even up until the first World War—Africa was referred to as the "Dark Continent." All the mysteries of the mortal secrets were attributed to that continent. Presently most of Africa has been explored and it is seldom referred to as being dark.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Then behind her, the high-walled wall of Fort Sheridan suddenly seemed that another prisoner had escaped. Nervously, Lisa glanced at the soldier half-frightened, for escaped prisoners more than once in this same road to the high-way farther west.

Her eyes turned again to the Grenable house, where Court lived with his mother.

The sprawling land lay splashed in sunlight, with terraces rolling serenely enough toward the north and west ravines; the tall elms and elms tipping protectively toward the house walls as though nature itself protested the grimness.

Because Grenable in the original building, had created his house properly enough for the times with a splendid, spindling Victorian tower and he had laid a veranda like a neat, starched skirt across the front and sides of the house. But his wife Patricia, characteristically, the very first year of their marriage ripped a colonnade added across the face of the house, great gleaming pillars of white running beyond the second floor that almost completely obliterated the once graceful tower of the Senior's choice.

It was like a too bold, flourishing signature written by Lavinia's own hand.

A chill touched the air as the night shrouded out of the ravines. The last of the afternoon sun flared in the tall, narrow windows of the old house and painted them like evil, red eyes staring at her. The rising and falling wail of the Fort Sheridan guardhouse siren echoed weirdly through the trees.

Lisa Farwell started the car across the clearing. The road wound right about a hundred yards beyond and led to her own house.

She was halfway down the open stretch when she caught the movement in the shrubbery fringing the driveway to the Grenable house.

The siren had stopped now. Half crossly she wished her father had been at his office when she went to pick him up. It wasn't like Henry Farwell to break an appointment or evade an issue. But she wished he was with her, whatever the cause for his absence might be.

She stepped up the car slightly and was almost to the turn when the man stepped out in the middle of the road.

"Oh!" It wasn't much of a scream, but it betrayed her fright She stopped the car and the man laughed.

"I'm sorry" he offered. "I didn't plan to scare you. I forgot you couldn't see me, too. I'm lost! Can you tell me the way to Elsworths place. They live around here, don't they? I'm Angus Kent."

He walked over to the car and put out his hand, smiling a slow, reassuring smile. She accepted both his hand and his smile and offered her own shakily. And the tremor within her was not entirely due to fright.

"Yes" she said, "I know the place. They live down the road from us. I'm Lisa Farwell."

"That fits you," he nodded, and he looked at her frankly, not offensively, just with candor. He had brown hair, light, with an interesting premature silver around the hairline and his eyes were a most amazing green in the late sunlight. He was close to six feet tall, she guessed, a little taller than Court. Her cheek burned as his words came to his shoulder, she decided, and she felt her cheeks growing warm for the thought.

Angus Kent was watching her. She laughed with some embarrassment, and to cover her confusion she said, "I had a stuffed lamb when I was a little girl. I called him Angus"

He threw back his head in a spontaneous gesture of laughter. Then he sobered, looking down at her, "I hope," he said cryptically, "I don't turn out to be a sheep in wolves' clothing."

Lisa thought, what in the world was the matter with me? She could feel her hands trembling on the wheel and suddenly her knees felt weak. I'm acting like a high school freshman the first time a boy looks at her, Lisa told herself furiously. Even Court never made her feel this way!

Court!

"Heavens" she said, half to herself, "I'm late home."

He still stood by the car. "No need to drive me, you know. Just tell me where the place is. There was no resentment, just his quiet assurance.

"Oh, I didn't mean you would d.lay me," she said quickly. "I just meant I'd forgotten how late it's getting. My father left his car for repairs this morning and I was to drive him home. But he left the office unexpectedly, so I came on alone—and I got to day dreaming!"

She was a trifle breathless.

"I saw you," he said. "Were you enjoying the view?"

He swung into the car beside her with no apparent effort, s st ong, fluid motion. She glanced at him toward the Grenable house and then reached for the ignition key to hide her face.

"No," she said awkwardly. "Just thinking about it." She felt that somehow he knew why she was embarrassed.

There was a quietness about Angus Kent a thoughtfulness that didn't ask for subterfuge. He motioned back at the monstrosity on the hill, the Grenable house.

"I turned in there by mistake, thinking it was Elsworth's. I walked over from the railroad station. The agent there wasn't too clear about directions."

Lisa Farwell started the car, feeling like a traitor to Court Grenable for her sudden awareness of this Angus Kent. Whoever was he? He must be a friend of Tim Elsworth's from Chicago. There was a familiarity about Angus that Lisa couldn't place. It was as though she had seen or met him before at some time or other.

Angus glanced at the house and chuckled.

"It's quite a house, say way look at it," he went on. "Anybody live there? I thought I heard voices when I started up the driveway. When I saw your car I turned back. Somehow I didn't think Tim belonged in that kind of architecture."

"The Grenable house is quite a house," she agreed emphatically. "And Mrs. Grenable, the one who owns it, is quite a person!"

"Court Grenable's mother?" he inquired; turning to look at her.

"You know him?" she tried to keep her tone even.

"I've met him," he said briefly. "I've heard a little about the family from Tim."

She didnt know why she felt she had to say it so quickly, so defensively, almost afraid he would go on before she did. "Court's the only normal Grenable there is," she told him. "That's why I'm going to marry Lisa."

"Oh." He studied her for a moment. Then he looked ahead at the road. "He's a very lucky man," he said gravely.

The Fort Sheridan guardhouse siren had fallen away and only the soft, sighing sound of the wind through the ravine disturbed the quiet. As she made the turn in the clearing she glanced back at the Grenable house, it was a moment she was never to forget.

Sunlight washed the ugliness of the old mansion and softened the harsh, bleak lines in a kind of suffused light. Suddenly the house seemed to stand there alone, separated from the rest of the world, defiant, its broad lawns and dipping terraces like a painted landscape in the amber light.

And there in the centre of the painting was Lavinia Grenable herself, sitting like a stone statue in the wheel chair that was her sole means of mobility.

She rolled the chair down the upper terrace. . . no—she—

"Angus!"

Lisa screamed and jammed on the brake of her car,

"My God!" Angus exclaimed.

They watched helplessly, paralyzed, while the wheel chair with its frantic occupant swept down the first terrace, then rocked and picked up speed, twisting and turned and pitched unbelievably down, the second terrace and then, striking a rock on the very edge of the lawn it hurtled its shrieking passenger headlong into the steep ravine.

Lavinia Grenable's scream tore the stillness into little quivering shreds. It came back, echoing and re-echoing from the depths and then there was nothing.

Afterward there were two incidents, two fleetingly separate moments, that returned to torture Lisa and each time the thoughts shadowed her mind she put off thinking about them, until at last they came to haunt her a final time in a terrifying way.

The first of them happened in that shattered interval after Lavinia Grenable's final scream.

Somehow Angus propelled Lisa out of the car and they ran the full length of the tortuous driveway that curled from the road toward the back of the house and then to the west terrace and ravine.

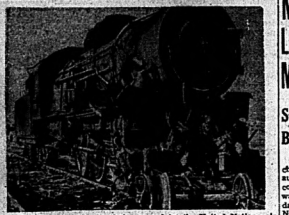
EVIDENCE OF U.N. AIR FORCE'S ACTIVITY IN KOREA



Evidence of total war being waged by the United Nations air force in Korea is this smashed locomotive, whose front is strewn with the burned bodies of Chinese communist soldiers following attacks by bombers and jet planes. MUNICIPALITIES LOSE AUTONOMY-MEMBER CHARGES

Statement Denied By Hon. G. Dunbar

Toronto, Feb. 10—(CP) A charge that municipalities had lost autonomy because of provincial controls over local financial affairs was made in the legislature yesterday by Gordon Ellis (CCF—Essex North).

The statement was hotly denied by Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar during debate on a government bill affecting sale of industrial property by municipalities.

The bill, designed to assure that money from such sales should be used to reduce pay debts on the land, was approved in principle.

The legislation was "ridiculous," Mr. Ellis said. The government was "trying to keep our municipalities from having a windfall."

"Municipalities should not be required to pay every nickel for debt reduction," he added. Controls by the municipal affairs department had taken away self-government in many communities.

Municipalities were as free as they ever were, Mr. Dunbar replied. The bill only attempted to ensure that communities would use money from the sale of industrial sites to repay debentures of the Eighth Army's new hurriedly-and-kill offensive with aggressive tank forces opening the way. After killing as many of the enemy as they could, the tank teams pulled back to the main body of their own lines at nightfall.

Had the 2nd Division failed to stand at Wonju, retreat of the entire Eighth Army would have been almost a certainty, for if the reds had gained control of the central highway they would have cut Wonju the surging communists threatened to trap all United Nations in the western side of the peninsula.

The 2nd division also was officially credited with saving the Eighth Army's right flank when the Chinese Reds struck suddenly in north Korea in November. It held the line while other divisions escaped south from exposed positions beyond the Chongchon River.

Single Division Turned Tide In January Battle of Wonju, Restored Morale of U.N. Army

(Editor's Note: Censorship obscured the dramatic story of how the U.S. 2nd Division and its attached French and Dutch battalions broke the communist attack at Wonju in central Korea last month. AP correspondent William C. Barnard who covered the division from the first day of resistance to the last now is permitted to tell more of the story of the Wonju bulge.

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

Central Front, Korea, Feb. 10.—(AP) — One brilliant and bloody stand by a single Allied division turned the tide of defeat in Korea and restored the morale of the retreating United Nations army.

Probably no American, French or Dutch soldier who fought the long, bitter-cold January battle of the Wonju corridor will ever stop helping to change the face of the war. But he won't.

In eight days of sub-zero cold, the greatly outnumbered United States 2nd Division doggedly met attacks with counter-attacks and killed an estimated 15,000 North Korean troops, an average of 1,500 each day.

It broke the back of the communist drive through Korea's central corridor.

Sets Pattern of Offensive

The division meanwhile established the pattern for the Eighth Army's new hurry-and-kill offensive with aggressive tank forces opening the way. After killing as many of the enemy as they could, the tank teams pulled back to the main body of their own lines at nightfall.

Had the 2nd Division failed to stand at Wonju, retreat of the entire Eighth Army would have been almost a certainty, for if the reds had gained control of the central highway they would have cut Wonju the surging communists threatened to trap all United Nations in the western side of the peninsula.

The 2nd division also was officially credited with saving the Eighth Army's right flank when the Chinese Reds struck suddenly in north Korea in November. It held the line while other divisions escaped south from exposed positions beyond the Chongchon River.

One military observer said: "It took the Wonju bulge to prove the red drive was not invincible."

The 2nd division had dropped back to Wonju to make a stand against advancing north Korean forces.

January 2, without any real pressure from the enemy, the line retreated a few miles southward to better defense positions.

Then, with reinforcements of eager French and Dutch units, the division moved up Jan. 8 and formed a perimeter about four miles south of Wonju.

Elements of 10 communist Korean divisions—possibly 90,000 men—then identified the Wonju area.

January 10 the north Koreans hurled six battalions at the perimeter in a furious effort to break it. Riflemen and artillerymen beat off the reds and left 1,800 communists dead on the field when the attack ended.

While this was in progress, tanks and guns of the U.S. 9th Regiment—the 3rd regimental component of the 2nd division—moved toward Wonju from the southeast.

Enemy Routed

They ran into a firefight, routed the reds, and actually reached Wonju before pulling out. This type of knocking on the door was repeated again and again before January was over.

January 13 the north Koreans came back again in suicidal charges before dawn. Communist dead piled up in front of the perimeter's smoking gun positions. The line stood fast.

The temperature that day was 25 degrees below zero. Snow was a foot deep. Next day there was continued fighting. But, the line held. Since then it grew more strength for another real effort.

By the end of January, Jan. 14, the enemy had been stopped cold. Then under a protective umbrella of artillery barrage, the 2nd division straightened its lines and prepared for new attacks in the Chipyong-ni area.

Under censorship, that is as much as can be said even now, but the 2nd Division had earned the something of value—and the money had been forced to pay for the tuition.

COMMONS HEARS CALL TO HALT RISING COSTS

Agriculture Minister Makes Statement

Ottawa, Feb. 10 (CP) — The Commons ended its second week of Throne-Speech debating yesterday and heard a report call from opposition members for action to halting the rising cost of living.

The only reaction on the government side came from Agriculture Minister Gardiner, who told the Chamber the country could not have prosperity without high prices and high wages. A drop in prices and wages would mean only that a depression was on the way.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC-Hamilton West), the Chamber's only woman member and her party's chief labor specialist, said the government already has contributed to high prices and inflation by its recent action in curtailing the size for loans for individual home-builders.

This step, coupled with the approaching abandonment of federal rent ceilings, would increase rentals.

Other speakers included H. O. White (PC-Middlesex East), Hector Dupuis (Ind. L.-Montreal St. Mary) and Julian Ferguson (PC-Simcoe North).

In the opening stages, Labor Minister Gregg said the government will soi revise a recent restriction on the payment of unemployment insurance to married women.

Immigration Minister Harris promised to table French documents dealing with a re-trial in the case of Gerard Jasmin and Bernonville, French nobleman who has been arrested in Canada at this country and faces a death sentence in his homeland.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said loans for individual home building, recently reduced will be "considerably under review" on the principle that housing is to be given highest priority next to defence construction.

In the throne-speech debate, Mrs. Fairclough said those who suggested the farmer did not get his fair share of the prices the consumer paid for foodstuffs.

That might be so, he said, but the farmer today was getting "a very much larger basic share than he ever got before." It also was true, of course, that he had to pay higher prices for the things he himself had to buy.

"The only way to get greater spending power," he said, "is by having higher prices and higher wages."

Takes Issue

Mr. Gardiner also disclosed that the government "probably" would impose controls on the import of cotton into Canada if it should be needed in future years.

He also thought suggested the government's move to reduce loans for individual home-building proposals for increased defence production since defence workers would have to have homes.

Missouri's Guns Protect Task Force In Dash On Inchon

Airfield, Other Points Taken Without Firing a Shot

Tokyo, Feb. 10 — (AP) — Allied troops captured Kimpo airfield, Inchon port and the industrial city of Yongdungpo on the outskirts of Seoul today without firing a shot.

A South Korean patrol probed into Seoul, the old Korean capital that was given up to Chinese communists troops Jan. 4. All the conquests were the blackened ruins of previous give-and-take fighting.

Troops of the United States 25th Division led the drive into Seoul's industrial suburb and 15 miles northwest to the big Kimpo airfield.

There, with American and British tanks supporting the footsloggers, they pushed northwest along the Seoul-Inchon corridor.

Troops of the 25th Division made the conquests with light tanks entered destroyed Inchon harbor on the Yellow Sea shore after a 25-mile dash from the southeast.

The column rumbled into the port city shortly after 5 p.m. (3 a.m. EST).

Big guns of the battleship Missouri protected the task force in the dash into Inchon.

Perimeter Collapses

The communists' entire western defence perimeter had collapsed with the day-after-day pounding of Allied tank-infantry smashes, air blitzes and naval bombardment.

Allied planes roared back into the fight in clearing weather after a day on the ground Friday. The communists lost 1,000 reds in a bend of the Han river southeast of Seoul and raked them with machine-gun bullets and fire-bombs.

The reds were trying to flee across the frozen Han.

With the battleship Missouri, the U.S. cruiser St. Paul, and the British cruiser Belfast in the Yellow Sea bombardment force.

AP correspondent Jim Becker said a small arms fight looked to the southern outskirts of Seoul as South Korean patrols attached to the 25th Division entered the southern gate of the old capital today.

Becker said the communists had pledged through suggested government's move to reduce loans for individual home-building proposals for increased defence production since defence workers would have to have homes.

Gen. Dempsey Has Become Canadian Convert

London, Feb. 10 — (Reuters)— Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey, wartime chief of staff to the Canadian Corps, told Canadian veterans at a reunion dinner here last night that the year he had spent with them had made him "a Canadian convert."

"It is a remarkable thing that they could take a simple Englishman, keep him for a year, and then hand him back a Canadian for life," he said. He was with the Canadia forces in 1940-41.

Lord Tweedsmuir, Chairman of the Canadian Veterans' Association, confirmed what other speakers had said about Canadian hospitality.

He has just returned from a tour of Canada, and said he found that "you have to know a man terribly well to know his surname."

The dinner was attended by 250 veterans.

Wildcat Strike Threatens To Cripple Britain's Ports

London, Feb. 10 (Reuters) — A country-wide wildcat strike threatened to cripple Britain's ports today when 30,000 dock workers stayed off the job.

More than 152 ships were idle in London, Liverpool, Birkenhead and Manchester docks, most with vital cargoes waiting to be unloaded.

Ten thousand were on strike in London after seven strike leaders were taken to court yesterday and charged with incitement.

The strike, which started in northwestern ports last weekend, drew only 450 supporters in London at first. They had decided to go back to work when the seven leaders were arrested.

The original strike demand—for an extra four shillings (60 cents) a day—was pushed into the background. The Daily Worker, official newspaper of the communist party, told dockers today the arrests were "a conspiracy of the government, the Tories and the capitalist press against the workers."

Strike leaders were holding meetings in an effort to bring the 30,000 out. Some

What Modern Living Owes To Edison 'Wizard of Electricity'

By A. HENDERSON

"I know no genius who ever worked harder or more wisely than he, to whom much of today's ease of living can be attributed. Every time the receiver is lifted from its hook, every time the phonograph is played; every time one looks at moving pictures, hears the 'talkies' or speaks into a microphone, or floods darkened rooms with light, or taps a typewriter, the extraordinary inventive genius of Thomas Alva Edison is recognized."

Edison, who was born on Sunday, February 11, 1847, in Milan, Ohio, was one of eleven children, whose schooling consisted of but three months at the little red school house in Port Huron. He was seven years of age he became a newsboy, and at 13 years, a train boy on the Port Huron-Detroit line of the Grand Trunk Railway, where in his spare moments, he learned printing, and in the baggage car produced the "Grand Trunk Herald," which had a circulation of 400, among the railway employees.

Many Inventions

Later, he learned telegraphy, a course which was given him free of charge for having saved the life of the station agent's child. Then he became expert in telegraphy in which capacity he was employed by the Western Telegraph Company. It was during his time here that he perfected his first experiments, the outcome of which, modern society is now enjoying. A few of which include the forerunner of the Remington typewriter; duplex and quadruplex telegraph; duplex repeaters, for simultaneous dispatch of messages; harmonic or a single wire; the original of the perspiration".

limeograph; the dynamo; starting system for automobiles; reversible galvanic batteries; the first incandescent light, and the receiving apparatus for radio sets. In all, Edison had over 2,300 patents, and for one of these he received $40,000, which afforded him the opportunity to set up the Newark, N.J. laboratory.

During his last years, this "wizard of electricity" was engaged in the use of golden rod weeds to manufacture synthetic rubber; he also used the flow of electricity in the investigation of the electro-e tube, sound pictures, television and the like.

Several Honor Awards

In 1928, the United States awarded him the Gold Medal, valuing his many inventions at $15,599,000,000, for their benefits to humanity. In 1928 France he received the title, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and from England in 1931, the Albert medal from the Society of Arts.

Edison possessed a tremendous personality, a phenomenal mind; a tremendous energy, and a boyish enthusiasm for the successful solution of the problem in hand" being typical of his every experiment till he had brought it to a pictured—conclusion, he kept his coachman waiting for from two to three hours. It is said that he even forgot his own wedding dinner. But he seemed to have made up for this oversight, in being twice married; first to Mis Mary G. Stillwell and later in 1886 to Miss Mina Miller. There were six children, three by the first marriage and three by the latter.

Edison's secret lay in what he termed genius as being "two per cent inspiration, and 98 per cent perspiration".

Hungerford Twp. Ratepayers Favor Medical Service

Tweed — Ratepayers of Hungerford Township favored the recommending of the Township Federation of Agriculture decision regarding a medical service Thursday night. After hearing an address by Dr. Ross Fitzsimmons, president of the Quinte Co-operative Medical Services, the group favored the adoption of such a plan, either by the Women's Institute or through some of the business factories.

Reports to the federation meeting were given by James Lajoie, on a short course in agriculture, taken at Queen's University, and by Bernard Hunt and Harold Varty on the annual convention in Toronto. Wilbur Bateman, Thos. Lynn and Pat Meraw were nominated to interview the Hungerford Council with regard to the proposed increase in the mill rate for federation grants.

Several of the 35 or 40 members attending decided to take out automobile insurance following an address on this advantages from Bernard Hollinger.

Early History of the Moira Valley

From Moira Valley Conservation Report

(24th Article)

CHANGES IN FARM PRACTICES

The methods of farming introduced in the 'fifties' had become the rule by 1870, but within a few years it was growing evident that further improvement would be needed if the Ontario farmer was to overcome the difficulties arising from declining fertility, growing competition and changing markets. The introduction of cheese factories increased the tendency to keep more stock on the farms and some good farmers were already using rotations and growing more root crops and legumes. Better methods of cultivation were being used and loss of fertility was being met by greater and more intelligent use of manures. These practices were becoming well known but they were far from being generally accepted in 1880.

The acreage of heavy grains was still large, but within a few more variety of crops and experience had led to some adjustment to soil conditions. By the average farmer was still largely guided by ploughing standards that made little attempt at a rotation and in choosing between possible crops he was not likely to be influenced by prices than by requirements of the land. In fact farming of a sort became steadily more common after 1860 and was the usual practice by the report of the royal commission on agriculture of 1880, "the average Ontario farmer is described as "The man who carries on a system of farming, each working probably from one hundred to two hundred acres of land, raising just such crops as his soil seems best adapted to and to convenience demands, keeping his fifteen to twenty head of stock, and a few sheep, and feeding using the milk of his cows for the cheese factories of certain dairy and fattening two or three beasts for the market. Such men form by far the largest class of the farmers of Ontario."

In the Trent region, where dairying had already made great progress, it was natural that there should be a continuation of specialization in this type of farming, and this in turn should lead to a change in the methods of cropping. The acreage of hay and of pasture steadily increased after 1880 and there was greater production of fodder crops.

The change of practices was also reflected in the increased yields of grain. These had risen sharply between 1890 and 1900 and the improvement continued in the new century. As the century drew nearer its end, however, the rate of increase fell off as other adjustments became pressing. Farmers had to increase their efficiency or quit their farms. Some preferred to do so, following the old custom of moving to new areas when conditions became unsatisfactory in the old. Others met the situation by concentrating their efforts on the two main lines of activity, reducing the others to side-lines or giving them up altogether. The concentration of effort allowed a considerable increase of efficiency and by the early years of the twentieth century farm practices were benefiting to immense degree in use between the two world wars.

Improvements in Stock

All types of stock were much improved by 1880 and the razor-backed hog and the hardy little scrub cow were fast disappearing. Horses had always been of better quality than other stock in Upper Canada, but they had been of a light and wiry type, intended chiefly for road work, while cattle did the heavy work on the farms and in the bush. During the latter 'fifties' and 'sixties' studs of the heavy shire and Percheron types were imported and soon had an effect on the local breed. Heavy draught horses began to appear on the farms, though the process was hardly complete even in the 1890's. At complete even in the 1890's. the same time the numbers of well bred road-horses became a familiar sight on the roads, while horse-racing was a favorite recreation. Well after 1870 roomy types of vehicles were in favor, since there was a limit to the possible compression of women's skirts.

After the disappearance of the crinoline, the buggy and surrey gained ground and their bodies were greatly lengthened to facilitate turning, until they assumed the present proportions of the twentieth century. However, the prevailing large buggy made it desirable to keep at least a light team, for, if the whole family was to go on an outing at once, something of the nature of a wagonette, democrat or sporting wagon was needed.

The growth of the dairy industry naturally stimulated the improvement of milch cows and there were wide interests in stock-breeding in the 'seventies.' The earlier efforts of public-spirited individuals, and of the agricultural societies had begun to bear fruit. Many farms were now stocked with pure-bred cattle and even the grade cows began to show the influence of some pre-dominate strain. Durhams were the favorite breed in Ontario from 1830 until after 1880, with Devons next in favor until after 1880, when Ayrshires began to be popular in dairy districts.

It was not till the end of the century that the two specialized types of milk or beef cattle gained ground, for most dairy farmers were still interested in fattening a few steers for the market and a few cattle were kept solely for beef. Farmers were beginning to take especial pride in their herds and to call by their occupation as "farmer and stock breeder," "breeder of thoroughbred stock" or "farmer and stock raiser," instead of simply "Farmer."

In the lower part of the Moira Watershed dairy herds were well established before 1880 and had cut down the numbers of beef cattle to a considerable extent. There were already several cheese factories in Hastings and Hungerford Townships in 1877, the great development of dairying in that area being yet to come. The presence of fifty "farmers clubs" was a result in Madoc township in 1877 with a fair number of drovers, etc., seems to indicate that this part of the Watershed was producing a good many beef cattle at that time and there are indications that this continued to be the case for some years.

There was a period when Canadian cattle had an advantage over cattle from the United States in the British market (owing to quarantine regulations) and fall in prices due to the loss of this advantage, which may have helped to turn more farmers in the northern part of the Watershed to the production of milk for cheese.

The number of sheep in Hastings County grew rapidly after 1870 and then steadily declined for about twenty years. Since the woollen mills on the rivers continued to operate and even increased slightly in numbers at first, there was some considerable export of sheep to Britain just at that time, the abolition of the flocks in Hastings County was probably due to passing of spinning and weaving from the homes to the mills and the need for more pasture for cattle rather than to external causes. The breed of sheep had been much improved in the 'sixties,' producing a marked increase in the weight of wool per head. This improvement had gone on until after 1900, when the trade of wool per sheep becomes somewhat less.

There was a revival of interest in sheep during the 1890's, which again abandoned with the rapid development of dairying in the first decade of the twentieth century. The First World War brought a rapid increase in numbers and by 1920 there were nearly 35,000 sheep in Hastings County and there was not much change in numbers in the 'twenties.' The ratio of wool sheep to the number of sheep was lower, however, than before 1890. Sheep cannot be said to have played an important part in farm economy in the Moira Watershed since the 'eighties' and since 1930 the numbers in Hastings County have dwindled to about 11,000. On the other hand there is evidently more emphasis on wool than formerly for the production of wool per head was higher in 1940 than ever before.

The number of hogs in Hastings County continued to grow less after 1860, although it was the custom to raise hogs at the cheese factories, for the use of the whey. Hogs-raising is a usual sideline in dairy farming, but in Hastings County the curve of hog production does not conform to that of farming as closely as might be expected. It seems probable that it was affected by the fluctuations of mining and lumbering in the area, which would affect the local market for pork and if nearby figures were available this influence might be more evident.

Farm Machinery

Improved farm implements, shifting some labor from man to horsepower, began to be available in the 1840's. Their adoption in Upper Canada was naturally slow and gradual. Horse-drawn implements except the cheap plow and triangular harrow, were unknown in fields still covered with stumps or boulders. They were also expensive, since they had to be imported, whether the iron parts of the old plows and harrows could be bought from the blacksmith and assembled at home.

The first process to be mechanized was the handling of the grain after harvesting. Threshing machines and fanning mills began to appear in the 'fifties.' The first threshing outfits were powered by horses, either working a treadmill or hitched to the "sweeps" of a large horizontal drive-wheel, turned by driving the horses round and round in a circle. They were a great advance over the old method, but the process must have been slow and cumbersome. (Threshing was occasionally done by water-power when this was handy to the barn.) These outfits were too expensive for the individual farmer and one had to be made to serve a group of farms, though the early outfits look as though they would not be easy to move from place to place.

Steam traction soon replaced horsepower, bringing a great increase of speed and portability. Steam power was also applied to seasonal calling. The owners of outfits each served their own group of farms and the custom of threshing for much of their acreage by hand, but other activities for the off-season.

A number of improvements in field machinery had been made in the 'fifties' but by far the most useful "growing demand for labor" and the reapers developed from it. Economy of labor in preparing the soil and planting was not urgent, while a number of hands were still needed to harvest, but speed in getting the crops housed was often of vital importance. Mowers were coming into use in Canada before 1857 and there were "growing demand for labor." This caused the establishment of a number of implement factories in the province.

The first mowers worked on the modern principle, but had a single large drive-wheel, set in a heavy wooden carriage. The smaller wheels were soon substituted, the frame was lightened and the working parts improved until eventually the mower assumed its modern form. The reaper was similar to the mower but the two were often combined in one machine. A table was added to the mower for the grain to fall upon and this was raked by hand until the self-raking reaper came into the most popular type for the next twenty years, although it required several men to bind the sheaves. The Marsh Reaper, introduced in 1856, had a spindle and a large drive-wheel, over which the grain was elevated by rotating canvases in very much the modern way. The sheaves, however, were still bound by hand by two men riding on a platform on the off side. This type was not very popular, even when mechanical binders had been added to it, for at first wire was used to tie the sheaves and caused trouble with threshing machines.

After binder twine came into use in the 'seventies' it was quickly replaced the reaper as standard equipment, for the latter was by no manpower now becoming scarce. One man with three horses and a cross-cut saw could now cut and stook a field of grain, where six cradlers, rakers, binders and stookers, numbering perhaps from eight to twelve hands, had been needed thirty years earlier. There were many other important changes in the machinery until the introduction of the combine and the tractor.

Mechanical seed broadcasters were in demand in the 'fifties' but seed drills were scarce in coming into general use. The broadcaster was cheaper and more immediately popular and was in common use by 1880. One or two plows of an improved pattern, improved harrows, possibly a cultivator, a seed drill, combined reaper and mower and probably a hayrake were included in the essential equipment to be found on most farms about 1885. But there were also a fair list of other implements which might be added according to individual preferences.

Most of the various devices used on the farms in the latter part of the present century were already available in 1880 and could afford them. New methods called for new types of implements, shortage of labor increased the need for mechanization and all this added to the cost of equipping and stocking a new farm, or of bringing an old one up to date.

Other new devices helped to lighten the labor on the farm. Among the most important was the cream separator, introduced about 1894. (The first cream separator in Ontario was installed in a cheese factory in Prince Edward County in 1884.) and in general use ten years later. Windmills for pumping water to the barn (not so often to the house as well) began to be used more common. Hoists for hay and grain, litter carriers, feed carriers, water bowls in the cow stalls, and machines for chopping or grinding feed, were to be found in many farms in the first quarter of the present century, but until the extension of electricity in the rural areas, power for this type of machinery was a more difficult problem. Tractors began to be used after the First World War and were coming into common use, where conditions permitted, by the end of the 'twenties. In the last few years, they have become more numerous, and where a farmer needs a heavy tractor as an expensive piece of machinery, he can now often hire it from someone who makes this a part-time occupation, in the same way as the owner of a threshing outfits.

The greatly increased cost of buying, equipping and stocking a farm after 1870, made farm financing more complicated at the end of the century. Many farms that had always suffered from some lack of capital, but cheap land and inexpensive equipment had made it easy for the strong and hardworking to establish themselves without assuming too heavy a burden of debt. Conditions changed and could only be found in remote or backward areas and the farmer who wished to use up-to-date methods had to have command of a substantial amount of money or credit. The moderate size of the average holding assisted the use of over-capitalization for buildings and equipment, involving additional risk, but rising operating costs and rising land prices had more to do with the mortgaging of farms than the effort of obtaining a high standard of living. The leasing of farmland was becoming more and more unsatisfactory from the landowner's standpoint, but in good times, farm mortgages were a popular and profitable investment. It was easy for landowners to borrow on a mortgage up to the market value of their farms or to buy farms on a mortgage for payment. When bad times came, and land values dropped, the owner might find himself much in the position of a tenant, but with no landlord to share his responsibilities. This state of affairs was not uncommon in Ontario in certain periods and it first continued for any length of time, the land often suffered since it had to be "mined" to meet interest payments. This applied most often to recently-purchased farms, by inefficient farmers of long standing seldom continued for more heavily. All this played a part in the changes which took place at the end of the nineteenth century and in the movement of farm population to the western provinces and towns.

In the Moira region, as a whole, the changes and adjustments of the last quarter of the nineteenth century caused less dislocation of farm economy than in some other areas. The parts of the Watershed which were opened up by 1836 are still the most productive and are well settled. Settlement has receded from much of the land which was opened during the Crimean and Civil War periods. These farms had been cleared under circumstances combined to make certain types of farming especially profitable in Ontario. While these factors continued to operate, these types of land could be worked to advantage but it did not prove so adaptable to new methods and different conditions. As often the case, the most recently established farms were among the first to be abandoned.

This story of agricultural development in the Moira Valley sheds on the whole, one of gradual acceptance of the land in the area. Some adjustment and improvement of practice is desirable to increase efficiency and to protect fertility and prevent erosion, but for an intelligent program of land conservation, no drastic changes would be necessary in the methods now present established in the region.

A SLOGAN WORTH REMEMBERING

"When it's safe for the blind it's safe for all," is the slogan of the White Cane Week poster for our school children. This is a slogan that we might all take to heart. Statistics tell us that the number of accidents in the home far outnumber those in industry or those caused by careless driving. The pail of hot water left where a child is likely to trip over it, rakes left lying with their prongs up-may knock it over; rakes left lying with their blind may fall over them, all add up the toll of accidents that have more or less serious results.

The Canadian Council of the Blind and The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, annually do the public a favor as they sponsor White Cane Week. Its appeal is based on sound principle. We are all more likely to do something to safeguard the safety of another than we are to put up with the same trouble to safeguard ourselves. Most of us are so sublimely certain that no accident can befall us. But accidents do happen. Our children and our handicapped friends are frequently the victims of our carelessness. So we suggest that grownups and children alike, listen to the slogan of the White Cane Week poster and set out to make the way safe for the blind and safe for everybody.

FOUNDATION OF PARIS

Two thousand years — that is the age of one of the greatest cities of the world, Paris.

In the French Information Service Claude Esli tells the story of the foundation of the city first known by the history as Lutetia, back in 53 B.C. the site of the region where Caesar found "where for thousands of years man has found favorable conditions of life." Specimens of "chipped flint" like those of polished flint, gathered in the valleys of watercourses are proof of this fact. He calls Paris the "perfect example of a powerful river is joined by one of its tributaries and twists and winds between the limestone plateau on its left bank and the arc drawn by the western heights on its right bank. The river is studded with islands, the largest of which is exactly on the line between two passes in the hills permitting communication between the north and south of the country.

Here had been built a small stockaded town, known to the Romans as an oppidum. The world owes to the Commentaries of Julius Caesar the first memoranda relating to the birth of the French capital in the year 53 B.C. It was then only a collection of huts. Caesar said that the tangled mass of beams, stones and earth which formed the entrenchments was difficult to carry. "It was impossible for the besiegers to overturn or pierce that compact mass." Those were his words.

There Caesar found the Parisii, a tribe which had chosen this favorable site, the centre of a great river valley. This was girt by dreadful forests in the days of which Caesar found sanctuaries, menhir (standing stones) where an earthen road crosses the island.

The great Gallic leader Vercingetorix gave the Roman leader plenty of anxiety. Next Year Caesar was elsewhere but left Labienus, his lieutenant, under orders to conquer the Parisii. Camulogen, leading the Gauls, burned Lutetia as Paris was called. Caesar's records of the Gallic wars tell of the destruction of the Parisii army. Later the Gauls returned to the town which was in ruins. That was the dawning of the Paris which was to become one of the great cities of the world.

In the middle of the nineteenth century, so many centuries afterwards, workmen discovered a dug-out canoe, hollowed from a tree trunk. This was found at the place which was formerly the tip of the Ile de Cygnes, the sliding bank or sandbank, boat, thirteenth century. Also from the earliest days, this bank is a precious relic of the primitive Parisians. Similarly the altar which was dedicated to Jupiter by the mariners a few years after the conquest of Gaul by Caesar and which was discovered in 1711 on the site of the time of repairs to the foundations to Notre Dame Cathedral, is a relic of the original Paris.

There is a precious record, a parchment written by a monk on climate in the thirteenth century, now in the National Library in Paris. It is a copy of a work executed in the first years of the Christian era and tells the names of "all" the roads in the Roman Empire.

Paris, one of the oldest cities in the world, can proudly look back on her history through the ages as she prepares to celebrate the 2,000th anniversary of her foundation.

All's well that ends well, the finis is the crown. —Shakespeare.

Correction does much but encouragement does more. —Goethe.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In talking to an Indian back in the bush, an Indian who is not accustomed to our white way of conversation, you have to allow plenty of long, empty pauses.

We white folk hate empty pauses. We are taught, just as precious words with meaning as the spoken passages. Up in James Bay I was asking a Cree what the curious tripods were that we came upon during the lonely days. Were tripods of sticks four or five feet high, and set a hundred yards or so from the willow-clad shore line. Owl traps, said the Cree. There is a small muskrat trap set on each tripod and the big snowy, of sometimes, very great owl, drops seeing a handy perch, down and is caught.

"What for" I checked.

"To eat," said the Cree.

"Are they good?" I asked hoarsely.

"Very good," said the Cree.

"A white man down by Moose," I submitted, "that they taste of mice."

"Yes, they do," agreed the Cree.

And here is one of the places where I would have to be careful with an Indian. I left the pause. The Cree stood reflecting. He was searching for some other way of explaining to a white man about owls.

After a good long pause in which I had time to think of a great many things, he began slowly darting this way and that erratically, in the white fashion, the Cree said:

"Mice are too small to catch. They are too little. You would need a lot of them. So the owl catches the mice and eats them. Then we catch the owls and eat them. That is how it works."

Perfect economics, or course. It glosses over the little matter of flavour in economical flavor does not count. In the study of economics, Indian or white, it pays to leave some pauses for an answer.

surprised at how much new information there can gain from a 45-minute broadcast.

"These pupils," she says, "are especially interested in hearing sounds of bird-calls, waves beating against a fishing boat, trees crashing down in a forest, and so forth. They feel that these take them out of their city classroom directly to the spot where the story is being described."

The teacher notes that students are beginning to develop a critical sense about radio out of school "which helps them to recognize good programs they hear at home."

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

A DAY IN THE LIFE OF A SWISS HOUSEWIFE

(Article 9)

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — If the housewives of the world could get together and elect a representative, I am sure that a Swiss would be well up in the running. The average housewife here works diligently to keep her home in order and seems to have organized everything into a very efficient system.

Like most housewives in Canada she is the first one up, and quite often the last. Swiss men are habitually early risers. The children have to be at school by eight o'clock so that breakfast must be ready early. If she is burdened by a husband and students she must be up even earlier since classes for them start at seven in the morning. She does not have too much to prepare since European breakfasts in general are notoriously light (from my point of view) consisting of coffee and rolls or bread with jam.

Milk, Mail Delivery

After the house had quieted down her day begins the house-cleaning, but not before the doorbell has announced the first delivery. It is probably the mailman whose first delivery is at 6:30 a.m. Switzerland is proud that the mail is received promptly. The second delivery is probably the milkman, wanting to know how much milk she wants. He has brought the milk from out the milk bottles, since there are none here. She has it boiled and stored in the house in a large can. Each house has a standard size can to which she takes the milk is poured. She need not be worried about the measuring, that is done for her.

Bakeries are as common here as grocery stores are in America, so that when she needs bread she just has to go a little ways and buy it. The bakeries are all open early so even if she is busy she can run out and get what she is able to buy it.

Housework is quite routine, but is completed with an amazing thoroughness. Beds are made, household furniture are dusted and windows cleaned in short order. All shoes that need cleaning are set out beside the door and later taken downstairs and cleaned.

The remaining time is spent in many ways according to her station or working in the garden. The latter is quite important since the Swiss try to grow as much food as possible.

Main Meal at Noon

The next big assignment is the preparation of the noon meal which is the main one here and is quite large by our standards. She must make a new soup and must vary it considerably from day to day. The main course consists of generous helpings of meat and vegetables followed by coffee. She may or may not have dessert for dinner; generally this is left until supper. Most of the people have about two hours for dinner as there is no place for them to go and they have time to eat leisurely.

Paper at Noon

When the dishes have been cleared away she may relax a little while the noon edition is delivered promptly at noon. This will be followed by a short rest and a small edition. Afterwards she may go shopping or prepare the afternoon lunch. In the Swiss version of afternoon tea, Since much of the people are fond of wine, ernoon, "Zvieri" has become a custom which is observed in restaurants, hospitals and some factories.

Dinner supper or lunch is served rather late the housewife is able to make a brief visit to her friends. She does not have to worry much about what to prepare since the food is quite varied. It may or may not begin with soup, but afterwards there is only a small presentation of an opera or drama or perhaps a concert, since she probably prefers these to a film. If not, things are put in order for the next day, the whole family follows her example and goes to bed rather early.

Fur Trapping on Increase Expect Better Year in North

Fort Frances, Ont.—(CP)—The average fur trapper in Rainy River district probably makes about $1,200 during the six-month season from Nov. 1 to April 30.

But a good one can make $2,500. But a poor one, with conditions better than average, some may do better.

Working under strict regulations and supervision of the game department, the trappers in this northwestern Ontario region have been established much the same as Ontario.

They are interested in maintaining their areas. They are responsible for conservation, for keeping records and for protecting and protecting the beaver.

This is different from the old days of the gold rush when trapper might cover hundreds of miles, cross the line into Manitoba and keep the game of "catch as catch can."

Among the best fur trappers in the district are many of the 62 treaty Indians who operate trapplines.

It is a lonely, hard life. Snowshoeing and dog teams are the only way between the line camps on his grounds. The trapper generally works alone, since profits are too limited to be divided with a partner.

He does not even have dogs for company. Dog teams are too costly, more trouble and more troublesome than helpful. A man must travel light and depend upon reaching his next line shack for provisions.

Skis and Snowshoes

Some use snowshoes for making their rounds frozen lakes. Two trappers from Sapawe, Ont., 100 miles east of Fort Frances, Ted Maki brothers, use a power toboggan. But the plodding snowshoe is still the trapper most reliable mode of travel.

With wild fur prices set at $25, the trapper carries his rifle or lighter firearm. But many wolves were shot last year. A total of 162 timber and brush wolves were destroyed in Fort Frances post, the official government offices for bounty payment in the last nine months of 1950.

Beaver, however, remain the most profitable source of revenue. Last year, district trappers caught 1,765 for a total income of about $23,000. The price this year averages $20 a blanket, and the beaver is reported plentiful.

The 983 mink caught last season brought in $25,000 and the 1,000 odd light muskrat catch yielded $10,000.

Only 21 otter were trapped last winter. But with one fur bringing $20, this animal is not overlooked in the fur harvest.

Fox skins are still a glut on the market, a poor one generally bringing $1.50. The tiny weasel this season is priced about $1.25.

Fur farming has proved very different widely in comparison to its total catch, since the fur buyer pays less for damaged or inferior pelts. Many Indian trappers call their wives to help skin and cure fur pelts for the best prices. A few trappines also keep an entire family engaged in trapping.

The fur trapper contributes indirectly to revenue for the Ontario government. For instance, trappers are required to secure licences for hunting, marking in live beaver houses, the number of beaver families and only beaver pelts may be taken each season. They also report on big game in the district.

Methodist Head Says His Sect Not 'Narrow'

London, —(CP)—People more at home in a public house than at a prayer meeting, imagine that Methodists are a narrow sect, concerned only with opposition to gambling, a man's glass of beer and Sunday games, Rev. William Sargent, president of the Methodist Conference.

Mr. Sargent said that Methodists are without fun, is a lie," he said in a statement commemorating the 200th anniversary of Methodist Britain.

"It is a pity that these critics have not investigated some of the church's toll to keep young people off the streets, the contribution to the life of local communities, and the social life in the average congregation in New York. To his amazement he recognized a friend back in the church and there was a welcome for everyone that the "corner has finally been turned."

IMMUNITY MEANS SOMETHING, BUT "RESISTANCE" IS SHEER HOKUM

Doctor Osler must have been two-headed. In the 1906 edition of his Practice of Medicine he mentions several reasons why pneumonia should be treated as if infectious (that is, germ-caused) disease and says that the Pneumococcus is probably the sole cause of genuine acute lobar pneumonia. But almost in the same breath he says there can be no question as to the close association of pneumonia with exposure. "We see the disease occur either promptly after a wetting or a chilling . . . or come on after an ordinary catarrah of two or three days' duration."

I regret that this column was only a glint in father's eye when the sixth edition of the book was published. I might have protested that there can be and is a question about that. I might have pointed out that the people where it would be so unlikely to be "brought to a chill" are those of the big shots in the profession, that there could be no question as to the difference in the ordinary catarrh of one or two days' duration and the incubation period of the disease.

When he so thoroughly confused the entire problem of pneumonia—and "chronic rheumatism" as well—Dr. Osler endeared himself to all the old fuddy-duddies in the medical profession. He was the champion of crystallized what was the acceptable view of the medical fraternity of his day: "Cold is now regarded simply as a factor in lowering the resistance of the bronchial and pulmonary tissues."

Since Osler's time a great many investigators have tried to find scientific evidence that colds and cold (such as everyone experiences almost daily in the ordinary routine) reduce resistance in any way impairs any immunity the individual may have against any particular disease. Of course there is no foundation for "the vague notion that a cold in the head may make one more susceptible to infection" from "resistance." Just to keep the record straight I challenge any scientific investigator or physician or other expert to define "resistance" clearly enough to distinguish it from immunity. Immunity is specific—it refers to

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

RESENTMENTS

One reason why so many people are unhappy, not knowing why, is because they have suppressed their minds with resentments. These evil thoughts lie in the mind and breed generous ones and smother them so that good feelings cannot grow.

Resentments are a form of hate. There are those who resent the good fortune of others or the success. They think they should have the same, not realizing that what other one has gained has been through much sacrifice and hard work.

Nations have these resentments, as we all know, and we get a taste of them in our newspapers. And they too often have led to war. What a shame that all this could be avoided. Often there are among human beings and nations that if we all would be if we all worked together, and as a popular diplomat recently expressed it, "played together!"

Resentments in the mind are like poison, and they work fast when they get into the blood. Keep them out of your mind and that mind will see the good in people and events as it was meant to be, a personal asset. When we are tolerant and think well of others we think well of ourselves, isn't it? And so easy.

We all have these resentments at times but we ought to keep them in a dark corner where they belong and not let the sun know our inability to get into the light. It's in the light where they thrive and cause damage to ourselves. It's best, however, never to allow them to get into our minds in the first place. They are liable to squeeze out when you are least aware. Like the man around the corner.

President Lincoln didn't hold resentment toward Grant in his presidency who snubbed him by making him wait outside his tent in the morning reminded that he would gladly hold the General's horse if he would but come inside and get started. Keep these resentments out of your mind and conversation, because when the storm comes there may be little time for anything but the thing-you-resent and the fiendish power of your resentful petition in a moment of great danger. Fair minded men and women when the wise Christian prepares himself spiritually for the day when realization comes and the flesh come and the winds blow and beat upon his house.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ROCK OR SAND

On board a vessel many years ago was a sailor who was notorious for his profane language and his utter disregard for the holy forms of profanity. One night in a terrific storm he was found on deck, and the captain after searching found him in the forecastle earnestly saying his prayers. The captain took him by the arm, "Sailor, you must not do that," he spoke, and growled: "Say your prayers in fair weather."

Several years later the captain went to hear the preaching of a sailor minister who was creating a sensation in New York. To his amazement he recognized the man whom he had seen praying and who needed a severe shaking in an hour when duty called. After the service the minister told that it was the shaking and his capacity to meet it in the emergency in fair weather," which started him on the road to a better life and a useful career in religious conversion.

There are too many people everywhere who get down on their knees only when in great mental distress. It is realize that the time to say one's prayers is when one is secure, because when the storm comes there may be little time for anything but the distress-call and the fiendish petition in a moment of great danger. Fair minded men and women when the wise Christian prepares himself spiritually for the day when realization comes and the flesh come and the winds blow and beat upon his house.

Kinmen Entertained

The meeting of the Kinmen Club at the home of Miss Ida Mountain on Wednesday was enlivened by the presence of Rotarian George Scadding, who gave a most helpful and genial manner of conducting sing-songs and the hearty singing that followed. No more popular guest than Rotarian George ever visited with this assembly. Also present was the guest of Kinsman Forest Dennis on this occasion.

Two young Trent House waitresses, Misses Eva Smith and June Davies, by name, were present, rendered as a duet, the vocal rendition of the Pennsylvania "Polka".

Hospital Greatest Need

Mr. A. J. Meyers, chairman of the Building Committee of the Campbellford Memorial District Hospital, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club on Monday.

He outlined in brief the details of the organization of the hospital, plans for which were started in 1945. The location is ideal, having a frontage of 15 miles which is which to draw, and a population in this area of about 25,000. He quoted Hon. W. J. Goodfellow, Minister of Welfare, who said that there is a great need at the present time for a modern, moderate-sized hospital here.

"The earlier generations of pioneers gave us churches and schools, at a great cost in effort and sacrifice," said Mr. Meyers. "This is our heritage freely given to us, and which are one of the greatest of all humanitarian institutions. Our task is now well under way. Let us therefore make our contribution to posterity worthy of our generation."

Outlining the cost for a 30-bed hospital was $150,000. The debenture liability divided by the bed hospital, which at the same rate ($5,000 per bed) would cost $150,000, the cost of finishing the building is now estimated at $240,000.

Amounts realized on various grants, etc. are:

Provincial grant $43,666.00; Dominion grant, $43,666.00; Town debenture $40,000.00; Seymour debenture ..... 20,000.00; County grants $13,002.00; Subscriptions

When the flux carrier blue-print was prepared for possible use of soldiers. The container, when manufactured, would be self-propelled by a small gasoline motor. Inquiries from Ottawa and Toronto indicate the ideas were most practical. At the present time there is quite a file of letters of suggestions but promised to be forthcoming. First reports said the Ocean Limited ran into the rear coaches of the Scotian. Both trains are the main C.N.R. line passenger trains from Montreal to the Maritimes.

The main rail artery along the St. Lawrence south shore was reported blocked by the crash. It was not expected the line could be cleared inside the next eight hours.

Mont Joli residents said visibility in the area was "less than two feet" due to the driving blizzard.

Apparently the Scotian was stopped in the yards when the Ocean Limited rammed it from Mathematics at B.C.I.V.S.

(This is the ninth in a series of articles prepared by the staff of BCI & VS. The purpose of the articles is to let you know more about the staff, aims, equipment, methods and accomplishments of your Secondary School.)

Every student who enters the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School studies mathematics, and most students continue the study of this subject until they graduate or complete their formal education.

With the introduction of technical and commercial courses activities the mathematical courses offered increased considerably, and the percentage of elementary school graduates attending secondary school increased, the content of the established courses changed.

The traditional courses in arithmetic, algebra and trigonometry are still provided for those who wish to compete certain requirements for entrance to Normal School, university, or other institutions. Those who wish to study mathematics because of its practical value in their courses, however, have had a change in emphasis. For example, problems involving mathematical gymnastics have been replaced by problems of a more useful nature, in which the application of mathematical principle to a practical problem is studied.

In the technical classes, the mathematical courses are even more utilitarian in nature. That is, the students study the requirements of the shops and the drafting room. They include practical geometry, the use of logarithms in making calculations, mensuration, algebra and the use of formulae.

The girls who choose to take the home economics course are taught some elementary science which will be useful in their study of science, and they also get a great deal of practice in doing the arithmetical problems that arise in sewing and cooking classes.

In the Commercial Department the mathematics is related more particularly to such things as bank interest, discount, payrolls, profit and loss, taxes and insurance. In these classes rapid calculation is stressed.

The boys who take the agricultural course study the same mathematics as do the technical students in grades 9 and 10, and in addition, the instruction in some phases of mathematics peculiar to agricultural pursuits.

In all classes an attempt is made to encourage in the student a willingness to tackle, and a desire to overcome difficulties, and to aid the student to experience the feeling of satisfaction and accomplishment that comes when a problem is successfully solved.

Neatness and accuracy are stressed, and students are expected to learn to judge the reasonableness of an answer. Students are encouraged to make sure that they understand the principle to a practical problem is studied.

In the technical classes, the mathematical courses are even more utilitarian in nature. That is, the students study the requirements of the shops and the draft-

Company Not Named

The minister also said that the Wilson Construction Co. of which Mr. Ellis is a member, had sought his department's approval for sale of contracted lots at 31 each to a construction company. He did not name the company.

The legislation also gave approval in principle to 10 other pieces of government legislation.

The bills would: amend a law restricting location of township roads, give the province a say on civil service contributory pension, clarify the law about rights of married husbands and fathers, allow barristers to become justices of the peace, restrict transfers of land under subdivision control, provide for medical examinations for province employees, allow older children in day nurseries, increase by one the probation period for adoption; revamp the voting procedures of planning boards, and control commercial quarrying of sand and gravel deposits.

Vote on one bill, to do away with a law permitting establishment of local municipalities, was postponed to Monday. Objection of Cameron Calder (L—London) Mr. Calder took issue with Mr. Ellis' statement that the law was obsolete and had never been used.

"The very day of this act may now be approaching," Mr. Calder said. "It could well be used in such cases of suburban and rural expansion.

Mr. Porter told the London member that the bill was part of a continuing program to drop useless and obsolete legislation from Ontario's statute books.

32,911 Convictions

Convictions for drunkenness were registered against 32,911 persons in Ontario in 1950. Premier Frost reported to the legislature Friday in a reply to a query by C. H. Millard (CCF—York West).

There were 32,701 convictions for intoxication the previous year.

Home seizures and thefts in 1950 totalled 33,965,173 gallons at a cost of $60,888,684, the premier reported. The amount was 655,950 gallons less than the previous year but total value was greater due to a price increase.

Other home consumption sales totalled $17,130,819 for liquor and $9,906,826 for wine. Sales to Indians on reserves totalled $47,530,419 for beer, $273,824 for wine and $5,629,389 for liquor.

BANCROFT

300 Attend Carnival Staged By Lions Club

Bancroft—A little bit of everything was the bill of fare when Bancroft Lions Club staged their annual ice carnival in the local arena on Thursday night. With the temperature hovering around twenty below the crowd was not up to par for this type of attraction but close to three hundred were in attendance.

The affair was one of the outstanding successful type. It began with a period of ice skating to the music of the public address system and ended with another skating period.

Flips and Flack, and friend, an acrobatic clown act was one of the hits of the evening. Between their flips and flacks they showed the crowd a few fancy jumps and slides, over and under a variety of obstacles. In private life the pair are known as Herb Nieman. Joe Lloyd Wilson and Jack Maxwell, three well known hockey players in North Hastings.

Bobby Hill and Boy Bell Avenue played a scoreless tie in a hectic broomball game. Away back when, in Bancroft's early days, broomball these names to denote the areas of the town from which they played. Bobby Hill and his team mates were pitched geographically as Lions while Boy Bell Avenue Lions were boys or public school age. During the second period Bobby Hill, big in show biz these days, and the referees and managers had a hard time to keep the contest under the slightest of control. The game ended with the two referees, Kevin Everett from Bancroft and Ken Hall, two managers, Flick and Flack, in a scoreless tie.

Sandwiched between these performances came judging of costumes and races. Very few adults were participants in these two activities but the kids were there in full force, with many beautiful costumes and also displayed plenty of ability on the ice.

The affair was under the direction of Lion Mike Burns, with Lion Jack Follis as master of ceremonies.

A bill to remove the ceiling on Workmen's Compensation for Ontario civil servants was approved in principle by the legislature despite a protest from Hamilton (L—Brant).

The Ontario government disturbed by the provincial auditor's report that the fund was not actually in existence, Mr. Welsh said the bill at present will affect only 1,000 persons now retired, but will apply to all others.

Bill Clarifies Clause

Deserted wives should not have to take responsibility for finding employment, Attorney-General Porter (CCF—Toronto St. David) told the legislature during debate on a government bill to clarify maintenance of deserted wives and children.

The bill, a clarification of present laws on the subject, involved Mrs. Agnes Macphail (CCF—Toronto East) Porter said. It was approved in principle.

C.C.F. Leader E. B. Jolliffe recalled some childhood memories in the legislature during debate on a bill dealing with township school sites.

The bill would drop a provision barring township schools from being built within 100 yards of schools, municipal buildings or churches.

The close proximity of a school to his apple orchard was why he kept my grandfather a poor man for many years," Mr. Jolliffe said. "He thought I was going to become a gangster."

The bill was approved in principle after Education Minister Porter said the restriction should be kept in force to help public-building in growing suburban areas.

Three One-Alarm Fires Answered By Department

Trenton (Special)—Three one-alarm fires had the local firemen on the run in zero temperatures yesterday.

Most serious and a blaze that could have destroyed Scott Annex at 3:15 drive shed on Mercier Street had the new pumper "Johnny on the spot" and in operation. It was necessary to use the pressure hose to extinguish flames licking up the side of the shed.

Flying sparks from a home made incinerator burning garbage beside the building caught in the tinder dry siding and got out of control before noticed.

Quick action of the department is credited with saving Mr. Ament the loss of his drive shed. Damage, however, was negligible.

No sooner had the firemen returned to the hall than another call took them racing to E. Lowe's residence at 14 Baptist Street, where overheated chimney was attended to without incident.

Similar circumstances existed at Jim White's place at 39 Kerr Crescent when the department arrived on the scene and handled the situation without loss.

Trenton Defeats Brighton

In a scheduled Trent Valley League affair in the natural ice surface last night Trenton Interchants trounced Brighton representatives 8 to 1. It was a repeat performance over the night previous when the Trenton Flyers defeated the locals 7 to 4 at Seabaz.

Queensway Tep Cribbage League

With only six more tournament plays left to complete the Queensway cribbage team leads the Trenton League by a five point margin. Standings after eight three points in front of the Lions Head is one of the winners of the league trophy last year. Queensways would have to be awfully unlucky and playing out of regular form to be ousted from the top rung in the remaining competitions.

In this week's competition the only change in standing took place when the Treasure lost fifth position to the climbing Legionnaires.

Outstanding players of the evening the Charles Baker, Ray Cornwall combination of Belleviews made a clean sweep winning all eight games played.

Officers of the Trenton Cribbage League include: President Peter Murtaugh, vice president, Andy Davidson, secretary, Chas. McDonald and treasurer Denny Cummiter.

Board Discusses Traffic Patrol

The regular meeting of the Trenton Board of Education decided against using public school boys on traffic patrol duty. Town clerk O. W. Larry suggested hiring four men at an annual salary of $1,000 each. It was felt children should not be given the responsibility of protecting other children and the matter was referred to the hands of council committee. Also to be referred is a motion by two trustees made a clean sweep winning all eight games played.

Teachers Salary Raises Discussed

A request for salary boost affecting 14 high school teachers was passed along to the management committee at the monthly meeting of the Trenton Board of Education.

The raise if granted would amount to a 25 percent increase over present salary scales. The Ontario Secondary School Teachers' Federation suggested such increases in new schedule sets out that where there are 11 to 14 teachers on the staff (Trenton High School has 14) the minimum salary should be $3,500 and the maximum $5,000 for a non-specialist, $5,250 yearly.

Guest speaker of the evening, introduced by W. J. Cottrell, was Donald Ian Mackinnon, probation officer for the County of Hastings and the city of Belleville. Before coming to Belleville he was engaged in the same type of work with the Ottawa Family Court, and reminded the director on the board which holds an annual camp for the underprivileged children of Ontario.

His talk on juvenile and family courts backed by his five year's experience was enlightening to his hearers. He reminded them that the first juvenile court opened in Toronto several years ago, is still functioning under the same judge and that 38 juvenile or family courts in the province.

Mr. Mackinnon outlined the duties of probation officers. Causes of juvenile delinquency, he stated are: lack of parental control or interest, broken homes, lack of suitable interest or the necessary necessary to engage in outside interests, poor reading habits, poor health and mental disturbance. The family court dealing with marital troubles, finds the causes of such to be: drink, money difficulties, liquor, in-law trouble, sex and mental trouble, other women, incompatibility, mixed marriages, mental incompetency, lack of respect and confidence, one for the other, foolish spending on part of either party, and desertion with one party whole shopping for the family. He was tendered a vote of thanks by Doug Sanderson.

Woman Carrier Serves 25 Years

Port Author—(CP)—The cry, "here comes the paper girl," has been true for 25 years in Port Arthur.

That record is owned by Doris Fenn, Port Arthur News-Chronicle carrier who started the work usually reserved for boys when she was a high school student in 1919. Actually, she tried to get the route for her brother but instead it herself and had his help in the job.

Illness cut short her start but in 1926, she came back permanently. She was graduated from business school in the depression years and kept the paper route as a "hobby."

Miss Fenn says she has never missed a delivery since 1926 and plans to go on for 25 more. Most of her customers are "wonderful" but there's the occasional one who thinks she's come on a visit and tries to detain her for small-talk.

Nikolai, Joanna Graudan Give Fine Performance at Recital

BY EUGENE LANG

Very few seats were untenanted in the Collegiate Auditorium last evening as the fourth concert of the 1950-51 Community Concerts Association was presented in a large audience. The soloists were the outstanding 'cello and piano team of Nikolai and Joanna Graudan. Both coming from the same Russian town, they did not meet until many years of studying and solo recital work on the part of each. After appearing together for two years they married and then began a two-year tour of Europe as a 'cello-piano duo. Each is a soloist of note in his own right and both have appeared with major continental orchestras.

In 1938 they came to America and have been giving recital and joint recital concert goers ever since. Each year's concerts average of 60 performances before the most concert-conscious audiences in the United States and each has been a soloist with leading orchestras. Both are also heard frequently on radio and have cut many discs for Vox and Columbia recordings, a comparatively small number of the numbers heard on last evening's program.

Musical Personalities

Some music lovers might shy away from sitting through a recital of 'cello solo and piano music, figuring that it would be of the most dry and unimaginative musical value, since it is a combination not too often heard and witnessed, outside of a conservatory centre. For those who hold that view, and anyone who missed last evening's concert we offer our sincere pity, as they were definitely the losers and to a large degree, as were those who attended, they went away saturated with music of the highest quality and with a delightful personality impression of the artists in their respective fields.

The program was divided into two parts, the first being devoted by the Graudans in ensemble playing, secondly Mrs. Graham at the piano alone, and thirdly Mr. Graudan as 'cello soloist with his wife at the accompanying piano. It will be hard to place any one portion of the recital in a higher category than any other, as each was as each of the three groups was admirably performed by these two outstanding artists.

Beethoven 'Cello Sonata Featured

The opening number was the Sonata in G Minor, Op. 5, No. 2 of Beethoven was a a connoisseur's delight in the art of 'cello playing. Some listeners voiced the opinion that it seemed like a battle between the instruments for supremacy. If this was battle then it was a battle of the finest kind of war between 'cello and piano. It was just the exact opposite—perfection in ensemble playing in which each member of the team seemed to be a Siamese twin to each other in that the two soloists seemed to be melting their talents into one bodily in perfect unison of approach, co-ordination of style and tempo, and finished artistry.

In the introduction and Polonaise, Op. 3 of Chopin, the early work, but one prophesying the future potentialities of the composer, the same blending was apparent, even though the piano part was particularly exacting in its writing. This is not to say that the 'cellist had a simple part, as the composer has given a full display also, and Mr. Graudan glinted from the 'cello the warmth and wholesome qualities that it possesses, plus exhibiting the qualities of the stringed instrument.

Capable Performance

In her solo group Mrs. Graudan played her personality impression into her Mendelssohn and Chopin numbers. Particularly was the Impromptu in F Sharp Major, Op. 36. An unknown Rondo of J. N. Hummel was a delightful encore.

Mr. Graudan's solo numbers, Sonata by Corelli and a Chopin Nocturne from an over subjective treatment of un-Chopinesque feeling.

Husband and wife joined forces in the last group of numbers in complete accord in the lovely Boccherini's Rondo (one of hundreds)—written by him, a very facile 'cello writer, unfortunately for posterity—, that were superbly contrasted and "Witty Thursday at Midnight" of Turina, a five-minute journey of descriptive melody that again exploited the 'cello as to its range, possibilities, and the pianist's reproduction of harmonics in the upper registers. The "Dragon Fly" of Debussy was another apus showing the technical proficiency of the pianist in its rendition.

Three encores were given, each of the highest calibre in Arensky's very brilliant "Allegro Spiritoso" of Senaillet balanced the performance of Bach Adagio and Schubert's familiar "Ave Maria", these latter two played by Mrs. Graudan with a flexible vibrato and sustenance of tone by Mr. Graudan. In these numbers requiring piano accompaniments the female partner showed undearment in her musical commitments to the male soloist. This was a most enjoyable musical feast in which the seasoning was an exquisite delicacy requiring very little criticism.

Power of Love to Improve Human Understanding Theme of Service

Despite the bitter cold of yesterday afternoon, the women of the various churches of the city met for the World Day of Prayer, on the first Friday of Lent, in Holloway Street United Church, morning with their sisters of other lands, "from Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strand", one unbroken chain of adoration, supplication, penitence and thanksgiving to God for a world. "Perfect love casteth out fear", the message for prayer for the changing of strife and hate into words and deeds of love, and for strength and courage through faith in God.

Soul-winning music, rendered by Mr. William Connor; the glow of hanging lights and the stately Christian symbols of the altar, the stained glass windows, each added their harmonious tone to the sanctity of the afternoon, as the black-robed choir and speaker, are quietly took their places.

Prayer for Peace

In the hallowed hush which followed, Mrs. G. Coulter, of Holloway Church, led in the prayer of peace which was followed by the hymn of adoration, "Now Thank We All Our God", and the responsive reading of Psalm 96 "Sing unto the Lord a New Song". The responsive readings, led by the representatives of the various churches, Mrs. E. Reid, of the Salvation Army, "Feelings", Mrs. A. Hornaby, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, "Assurance"; Mrs. L. Price, of Grace Church, the portion of "Dedication of Self", Mrs. Atwell, of St. Margaret's, on-the-Hill, taking the second portion. This was followed by the prayerful "Spirit of the old, poignant hymn "Just as I am Without One Plea".

The intercessory prayers were led by Mrs. H. Crowe, of Bridge Street Church, and taken by Mrs. D. Steward, of Christ Church, by Mrs. Metcalfe, King Street, by Queen Elizabeth, and for all in authority; by Mrs. G. Ashley, of Tabernacle, "Missions", Mrs. Canaga, the responsibility of her citizens; by Mrs. Arthur Hicks, of Trinity Anglican Church for the world family of nations; for refugees and all displaced persons; Mrs. G. Ewald, of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, for the strengthening of the home and for all children and young people, for those whose lives have been scarred by hunger and homelessness and fear; by Mrs. McTavish, of Bridge Street United Church for all missionaries and for a deepening of responsibility by those at home for the increasing advancement of Christ's kingdom; by Mrs. Spearman of the Wesleyan Methodist Church for the United Church; for the churches of the West, and the younger churches of the East, and for those churches that are weak and struggling, passing through difficult times.

Previous to the address by Mrs. Honeychurch, of the Salvation Army, Mrs. Winston, of Bridge Street Church, rendered a lovely solo, "My Redeemer Lives" (Dudley Buck) which was a most appropriate background for the searching message which followed.

Love-Image of God

Mrs. Honeychurch based her talk on (1 Cor.. 13:) "Love suffereth long and is kind." "Love", said the speaker, "is the image of God in the soul: the more we love, the more we can love. Love is long-suffering; it endures all things, is gentle and always ready to benefit another. In order to illustrate her theme she described her hearers, Mrs. Honeychurch told the fable of the king who desired a beautiful plant to complete his wonderful garden. They came bringing different kinds; an old man brought the plant he had himself but this lived but from 50 to 60 years, and the plants in the garden must live forever; another brought the "political plant" which grew in newspaper, but it soon decayed at the roots. None of the plants would do.

Then the king noticed a little, old lady with a beautiful plant in her arms, who was going away

Onions have two lives.

They not only grow in the ground, but also grow in bottles, paper bags and other odd environments when they begin sprouting during storage.

When an onion sprouts, it loses its taming, moisture, and eventually rots.

Now a method has been discovered of eliminating the onion's second life—its sprouting stage.

Two scientists, S. H. Wittwer and R. C. Sharma of Michigan State College, have announced success with a chemical called maleic hydrazide. It is sprayed on the onion tops while they are still in the ground. Onions, thus treated, have been kept for five months without sprouting. The new spray changed in no way the color or flavor of the onions.

People who cannot tolerate fried onions in their diet often are able to eat Chinese casserole dishes even though there is a generous amounts of onions. The reason seems to be that the Chinese only cook the vegetable until it is semi-tender, still somewhat crisp, but tender enough to be tasty.

Chinese Shrimps and Peas. Serves 4.

1 lb shrimps
3 tablespoons vegetable fat
2-3 cup onions
1-2 cup celery
1 bouillon cube
1-2 cup package of frozen peas, cooked
2 tablespoons cornstarch
1 teaspoon soy sauce
1-4 cup cold water
1-2 teaspoon celery salt
Pepper—salt

Wash shrimps. Plunge into boiling water to which 1 teaspoon salt has been added. When shrimps come to a second boil, cook for 8 minutes.

Remove shrimps. Save cooking liquid. Remove shells from shrimps and vein running through back. Return shells to cooking liquid. Boil again until liquid has been reduced to half.

Melt the fat in a large frying pan or saucepan. Add the onions and celery. Stirring frequently until vegetables are semi-tender.

Add the shrimps. Add 1 cup strained cooking liquid. When liquid boils, add bouillon cube and cooked peas.

Mix cornstarch with soy sauce and cold water. Mix smooth, add to pan. Stir well. Cook 2 or 3 minutes. Season to taste. Add celery salt, celery salt and pepper to taste.

Serve with prepared fried noodles and rice.

Western Wife Operates Home For Sick Birds

Langham, Sask.—(CP)—A kind - hearted nature lover, Mrs. Olive Thue, took in 15 sickly hatchery pheasants last summer and expects to be caring for a flock of healthy young birds this year.

Mrs. Thue got the ring-necked pheasants from the Beaver Creek Provincial Game Farm, where birds were to be destroyed as unlikely to survive against predators when turned loose.

In her "infirmary," she nursed the birds to maturity and their chance of reproducing healthy offspring is assured. All were born of sound strain but developed gimpy legs, wings and other physical deformities.

Mrs. Thue grew up hunting and becoming chief assistant in the infirmary for sick creatures that's provided warmth all winter for the birds. He bought 25 ring-necked pheasants from the hatchery last spring at 50 cents apiece and kept after them until they were old enough to fend for themselves.

Neighbors in the area about 30 miles northwest of Saskatoon keep him posted on their whereabouts. None were shot last year despite the open season.

The fences for the last three years have fed 30 or 40 prairie chickens there. One as well as a Hungarian partridge. There's a pigeon called "Chippy" living with the prairie chickens. (Or does) has been there ever since Mrs. Thue chopped him out of the side of a tree a short day two years ago and thawed him out behind the kitchen stove.

D. MacKinnon Gives History of Family Juvenile Courts.

The regular meeting of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association was held on Tuesday evening last. The president, Mrs. J. Clark, opened the meeting and a short business section followed after which, Miss Clark turned the meeting over to Mr. J. Sproule, who introduced the visiting president of the Foxboro Home and School Association, Mr. C. Lane. All were then favored with a piano selection, "Last Movement of a Beethoven Sonata", by Mrs. Phyllis Swan.

Mr. Sproule introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mr. D. MacKinnon, Probation Officer of the Juvenile Courts. He gave a comprehensive outline of the history of Family and Juvenile Courts in the Province of Ontario. Mr. MacKinnon said that there are now thirty-eight such courts in Ontario. In the course of his talk, Mr. MacKinnon pointed out a good many of the causes which bring about the Juvenile delinquency and domestic problems with which people are being faced today.

Mrs. Clark voiced the thanks of the association to Mr. MacKinnon for his interesting and informative address.

Mrs. Swan rendered another piano selection "Petite Waltz" which was greatly applauded. Refreshments were then served convened by Mrs. Gray and her committee.

Founders', Fathers' Night is Observed

The regular meeting of the Queen Mary and Prince Charles Home and School Association took place recently in Prince Charles School, with a goodly number in attendance. The "Founders' Night and Fathers' night combined.

The attendance of the parents was then taken, fathers being counted twice and the banner prizes were as follows: Queen Mary—Junior, Miss Hillis; Senior—Col. Cousins; Prince Charles—Junior, Mrs. Clarke and Senior, Miss Peck.

The program was taken by Mr. F. Symons and under his chairmanship conducted a panel discussion on the value of the modern curriculum. Those taking part were, Miss Tickell, Mr. Seldon, Mr. E. David, Mr. S. Robb, Mr. Musgrove, Mr. A. Campbell, Mr. L. Kells, Mr. E. Bateman, Mr. Frederick and Mr. H. Townsend.

A lunch had been provided at the door, for any questions that the members would like answered by the panel, and they were done adequately, proving educational evening.

Appreciation was expressed by the president, Mrs. R. Poste, after which a social half hour was enjoyed, this was also in charge of the fathers.

SISTERS ALL

By Jean-Love Galloway

Some time ago we managed to put up a tooth brush and tumbler holder in the bathroom, only to find that all sizes of toothbrushes slipped easily through the holder's notches down onto the floor. Last week we bought a wire shoe rack to tidy up the clothes closet. It holds exactly five shoes . . . It's a wonder these manufacturers wouldn't try to use some of the things they turn out, or at least get some reaction from their own wives before blundering on. Now who has two pairs of shoes and a single one? Or who has five feet? What a laugh. It would have been, oh so easy to lengthen the rack by about three inches and make room for the third pair.

While we're in the Why Don't They? department, let's mention the baby's swing, which is a fine contraption both to amuse the little one and to leave mama free. But when you go to hang the swing, you find that the manufacturer has thought of just everything except the string or hook from which to suspend it from the top of the doorway . . . Oh, oh you say, there's an extra trip to the hardware shop for a piece of picture wire which could have been included with the article. It's like these pictures they sell with no wire attached. By the time you get round to getting the necessary accessories, you have no place to hang the things.

In a current article on the Duchess of Kent, you get a bit of a shock to read that the entire education of a navy widow of an air commodore with three children is "left entirely to her" . . . We are concerned about how the Duchess of Kent manages, but we are quite sure that many other less-likely-to-be-helped air commodore's wives are HAP and getting along with their families. And what are the sergeants' and seamen's widows?

Of course when you come right down to it, a Canadian business man in any firm which has no pension plan would have to be considered "navy" in order to bring his widow an annual income of $1,200 at 3 per cent. No wonder everybody is more and more concerned about security.

Teenagers are always after some sort of jalopy to submit to the family car. It doesn't matter much whether it has fenders, or a roof — just anything on four wheels will do. Imagine the start a friend of ours got when her young son came home with a bearse he had purchased for $150.

Women's hats attract men more than they will let on to you. For hats, but more especially feather hats take men's fancy. You wouldn't believe the number of men who were interested in the pheasant that a girl wore to a recent party here. It seems any number of men take part in the annual pheasant shoot, and appreciate the beautiful iridescent colors of the pheasant feathers . . . Other admirers of this particular hat were all the fisherwomen. You wouldn't believe that a pheasant fly to catch a salmon, they maintain. Could they have one hat when she was through with it? So there are other ways than through the stomach to catch a man.

Extent of Humanitarian Work of Canadian Red Cross Outlined at Annual Meeting

On Thursday evening, the annual meeting of the Red Cross Society was combined with the homemakers meeting at a dinner held in St. Andrew's Church. The tables were prettily decorated by Mrs. Gelsthorpe and her group of the Women's Guild.

Mrs. W. C. Mikel was elected president for the local branch from the slate of officers brought in by Archdeacon Arthur Smith for the nominating committee, succeeding Mr. M. P. Duff.

Mrs. Nairn, director of Publicity for the Ontario division of Red Cross was present from Toronto to give information and encouragement to the local branch. She expressed the pleasure she felt in meeting the brisk, keen people who are working, giving and helping others and who provide a genuine inspiration and pride at being part of such a great cause.

She then briefly reviewed the history of National and international Red Cross and their place in offering help and mercy to all mankind.

Always Mindful of Needs

"The Canadian Red Cross has in mind all of the needs of the less fortunate wherever it was needed. Food, clothing and medical supplies costing $46 million have been sent to the United States and Asia.

"Canada had the first team of social and welfare workers in the Korean area," she stated. "Their specific job will be to control this problem of refugees.

"There are eighty-six outpost hospitals in Ontario to take care of isolated communities, bringing care to families when accidents and sickness occur.

"Remedial swimming for paraplegics and spastics in Maryfield is valuable aid in their program of recovery.

Three Major Disasters

"In Canada three major disasters struck in 1950. The Fort Manitoba flood, the Rimouski fire and the Cabano fire. The Red Cross gave $50,000 a day to provide food, clothing, medical care and transportation in Manitoba. All transportation was under Red Cross control.

"The national blood transfusion service has been in operation for three years and 400,000 bottles of blood as well as 15,000 bottles of plasma have been used for patients.

"It is the dollars and cents of millions of individuals which go to make up the amount on which future work depends. Whether you give time, talent or money the stronghold of mercy is in your keeping and there is need for eternal diligence in fostering the cause of mercy.

"There are over 60 million refugees in the world today. It is important that the Red Cross should be strong and remain strong to meet your obligations in the mitigation of suffering. All men regardless of race, creed or color, pay tribute to the Red Cross on a while background, that emblem whose humanitarian warmth covers the whole world."

Judge Expresses Thanks

Judge J. C. Anderson expressed the thanks of the listeners to the speaker and then proceeded to outline plans for the coming campaign to raise the objective of $18,000 in this district.

Mr. J. E. Shortt paid a tribute to the retiring president, Mrs. Morley Duff, for eight splendid years of service to the Red Cross.

A presentation was made to Miss Jane Smyth and Miss Olive Kiesh by Mrs. Nairn for fifteen years' continuous service in Junior Red Cross work in the Public Schools. A Red Cross pin was awarded to each.

Barbara Chappell and Tom Lally attended the camp school at Sundridge and Miss Chappell gave a report on the work at the camp and at St. Michael's School Junior Red Cross.

A vote of thanks was given to Mrs. J. A. Buchanan for her services with the homemakers and to Mrs. Bulger for the work she had accomplished on the women's work committee.

The treasurer's report was given by Mr. W. Crowther, the women's work report was read by Mrs. Hall and the Homemakers' report was presented by Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson. Mrs. R. Hall read the high school report for the Junior Red Cross and Miss M. Dwyer for the collegiate branch.

Rev. J. G. Hornsby closed the meeting with prayer.

Following are the several reports as submitted by the conveners.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson presented the Red Cross Homemaker Service report as follows:

In the past year, the Red Cross Homemakers have taken their service into 116 homes. They have worked 856 days and during this period, 26 children were cared for.

Forty-six of these cases were maternity, 13 were cases where the mothers were recovering from operations, 41 were cases of illness of mothers and children, 12 caring for elderly people were in homes where there had been a death in family and one case, then, where the mother was called away due to serious illness of a near relative.

The fees were as follows, full amount of $4.00 per day, 74 cases, $3.00 to $2.00 17 cases, $2.00 to $1.00, 14 cases. No fee 11 cases. It is interesting to note, that there is an increase in those able to pay full fee, and a decided increase in those able to pay no fee at all.

Layettes, used clothing and cod liver oil were distributed to 18 families.

The supervisor made 430 calls.

The Homemakers attended 11 regular monthly meetings, 2 conducted tonffs, one picture and one picnic. At the meetings an educational program was followed. This included, food demonstrations, talks on food values, food preparation, canning and storing of same. Good food for every child was stressed.

Round table discussions took place on child behavior, fear, tantrums, temper, bed wetting and feeding.

Health topics were discussed. First aid, artificial respiration. Films were shown, the titles as follows: From Seed to Seed, to Good Table, Fitness is a Family Affair, Modern Guide to Health, Overdependency, Why Won't Tommy Eat? and Know Your Baby.

The tours were through the kitchens and housekeeping departments of the Belleville General Hospital and the bake shop of the Empire Grocerteria. The lecture was a Home and School Club lecture on the "Parental Development of the Child".

In September the Homemakers and their families attended a picnic at which several new salads were introduced.

In advertising the service 1,000 printed dodgers and 350 slim cards were distributed. All beginners at public and separate schools were given those dodgers explaining the service, to take home to their parents.

Once again we wish to thank radio station CJBQ for all the advertising they have so generously donated on their service broadcasts.

Mrs. C. C. Clarke and Mrs. Laura Hagerman of the Welcome Wagon for distributing our Aim cards, and to Mrs. Grant Sparling, Mrs. J. MacCluskie and Miss Marion Boyce for their very valuable help at our demonstrations, lectures and tours.

Report of Red Cross Women's Work committee as presented by Mrs. M. E. Bulger.

The Women's Work committee is the largest voluntary group operating in the Red Cross organization. While the local, provincial and national executive councils form the administrative end of our society the Women's Work committee are the production line. As our individual projects may sometimes seem of little importance, the satisfaction gained from the knowledge that each article of clothing or hospital equipment completed by a group brings pleasure and comfort to some person at home or abroad is ample reward for our efforts.

While the demands upon our National headquarters seem to be growing larger and more diversified each year, our local branch has been very short of volunteer workers and, as a result, we have had to curtail our activities to the acceptance of quotas for children's clothing. These articles of children's clothing are for distribution by the British Red Cross where they are most urgently required.

Our work has consisted of boys' dressing gowns, shirts and pyjamas, and girls' dresses, night gowns and dressing gowns. Knitted goods completed included sweaters, caps, mitts and knee-length stockings, as well as various items of babies' clothing. A total in excess of five hundred items was completed and sent to Toronto for shipment to Britain during the year.

In response to local appeals here in Belleville, we have supplied eight complete layettes, children's clothing, stockings, sweaters, etc.

We have also had a few calls for help from new Canadians during the year and we were able to look after these specific requests as we had a supply of wool and materials available for this purpose.

A "Disaster Relief Service" for the whole of Canada is being set up by our National Red Cross. When the organization of this new field is completed the Women's Work committee of each branch will be required to supply clothing and bedding at a moment's notice to meet any emergency which may arise in their immediate district.

All branches have been asked to export quotas of supplies for hospitals and blood transfusion services. Because of the lack of workers, we have not been able to co-operate in these items.

Anything that we have done during the year is due entirely to the splendid support we have received from church groups, women's institutes and individuals who have given so generously of their time and skill and I wish to here express my personal thanks to them. I am particularly grateful to Mrs. Argue and Mrs. Kinnear who looked after the wool section and to Mrs. George Clifford for her assistance at the work-room. Unfortunately, Mrs. Kinnear has resigned from our executive and Mrs. Clifford has moved away from Belleville. Both will be sorely missed by our committee.

Our efforts have been necessarily restricted because of the scarcity of volunteer workers, but we feel that the world situation today will make our women more conscious of their welfare obligations and we look forward to a more active year in 1951.

Report of Junior Red Cross Club of the B.C.I. & V.S., Miss M. Dwyer, convener.

For the past two years the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School Junior Red Cross Club has been collecting the names of former students who served in World War II and happily survived the conflict. This Honor Roll is now complete and before long will be hung in the school corridor—near the plaque which honors our Glorious Dead.

Parcels of clothing have been sent to Bancroft Outpost Hospital and to our friend, Dr. Vente of Zwolle, Holland.

At the request of headquarters in Toronto, the school collected and sent very generous gifts at Christmas time to the T.B. Sanatorium in Kingston. The work was under the guidance of the Junior Red Cross who packed five cartons of gifts, Christmas decorations and candies for the thirteen teenagers in the wards.

Two candy sales supplied the necessary funds for posting these various parcels.

The Red Cross financial report for 1951 was presented to the annual meeting by Mr. C. S. Lowther.

Peonies

A Flower of Growing Popularity

For one who has never grown peonies there awaits a grand experience. The cathedral spires of larkspur have a beauty all their own, an unfolding rose has loveliness unrivalled, but equally wonderful is the fragrant peony fluttering its silken petals on a June morning.

Peonies have been cultivated in China and Japan for more than ten centuries. The old fashioned red "Piney" has been grown in Europe since the days of the Crusades. All types are perfectly hardy and thrive in first class soil. The perennials of the peony are various in form and color, large yet not coarse, grand but not gaudy, fragrant without being pungent. The foliage is rich in summer and fall. Average height is two to four feet, with a similar spread. Colors range from purest white through all shades of pink to the darkest reds and purple.

From out of this array or beauty what should a beginner select for his first peonies? The following are ten grand varieties:

Festiva Maxima	(9.2)	pure white flecked with red
Lady Alexandra Duff	(9.1)	ivory white
Kelways Glorious	(9.8)	creamy white with purple edging
Mons Jules Elie	(9.2)	silvery pink
Le Cygne	(9.9)	fragrant white. Highest award of all
Albert Crousse	(8.8)	salmon pink
Philippe Rivoire	(9.3)	rich crimson, late blooming
President Roosevelt	(8.8)	striking red early
Solange	(9.7)	large compact, rose type
Therese	(9.3)	veined rose, mid season

Ratings given in brackets are by American Peony Society of Canada and United States. Ten is the highest possible score.

Peonies require rich garden soil and a sunny location. They resent disturbance and should be moved only when plainly show signs of deterioration in growth and bloom. Prepare soil with care. Dig deep and use well rotted cow manure. Bone meal is helpful, acid line if soil is known to be acid.

In planting, set the roots so that the eyes are two inches below the surface. They planting will cause lack of flowers. September and October are the best months for setting out peonies. Fungus diseases are few. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture is helpful. Many peonies have several buds on a stem. Removing extra buds and flowers when small will result in larger flowers. Nurseries furnish 3-5 eye divisions which are best for general planting.

English Girls Refuse Dictates Of Fashion Men

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London—(CP)—North country buyers visiting London spring fashion shows took one look at the new tight skirt-line in woollen suits and predicted it would not go down well back home.

The women in the north of England and Scotland like ease in clothes. They demand pleats in both suits and dresses and the most popular designs are plain, classic styles.

The slim favor designs that will not date easily.

"London girls like to look smart and provincial girls prefer to look pretty," one fashion writer summed it up.

Lionel Appleby, sales manager of a London firm selling tailors' "dummies," thinks there is a reason for the provincial sales resistance to slim skirts. He blames it on a larger hipline.

Birmingham tailors, for instance, aim for a 34½-inch hipline on a dummy with a 34-inch bust. In London, Brighton and the south of England girls are closer to the North American figure—a 34½-inch hip and a 34 inch bust.

Wider and Wider

"I don't want to insult the ladies," says Appleby, "but the dummies we sell to firms manufacturing for the provinces have to be made wider for hips and bust than those sold to the London trade. There's a bigger trade in outsizes, also."

Manufacturers find considerable resistance outside London to the new trumpet skirt line. They blame buyers for playing safe and sticking to "bread-and-butter" lines.

In reply, one north country buyer said: "fashion changes in clothes must come gradually. Today's clothes prices are too expensive for any violent fashion revolution. The trumpet line can be difficult to wear unless the flare is placed in exactly the right spot."

Buyers realize, however, that sooner or later, as long as wool prices remain high, the slim slight cross-over or those with skirts must also reach the pro- ons inverted or a deep vents vinces. They predict that, when pleat will get far warmer recep- this happens, the most popular tion than the knee-hugging hob- choice will be the tube look. ble or the godet flare.

Ray Robinson Heavy Favorite To Take Lamotta

Chicago, Feb. 10 (AP) — For a guy who has beaten Jake LaMotta four out of five times, Sugar Ray Robinson is being surprisingly dense about his sixth chance at the Bronx Bull.

Welterweight champion Robinson, hailed by many as one of the grimmest fighters in ring history, will try to beg LaMotta's 160 pound title in a 15-rounder at Chicago Stadium Wednesday.

"So I'm a 4-1 or 3-1 favorite?" asks Robinson—I've never heard of a welterweight challenging for a middleweight title as such a favorite. My only hope is that at the end of 15 rounds my arm will be raised as the winner."

Robinson is convinced there will be no knockout—maybe not even a knockdown—and it will take the full route to determine the issue.

Robinson has scored 78 knockouts in winning 90 bouts. How he is talking about a decision. This can be construed as about the best tribute ever paid to LaMotta's ruggedness.

"I'll go against LaMotta to win but I don't think I can chill him unless I happen to get lucky," he admits. "I'll be very happy to settle for a decision.

LaMotta seeks a good measure of revenge in his fight meeting with Sugar. He believes he should have won at least two more decisions in his previous bouts, all of which were close.

"The difference between Robinson now and when I last fought him (Sept. 23, 1943 in Chicago) is his speed," analyzes Jake. "He's slower, his speed is off, maybe only by a hair, but enough to give me a good advantage. He never did beat me to the punch."

Barrie Flyers Cling To Lead In Junior Race

(By The Canadian Press)

A Hamilton Tigers team as cold on the ice as the temperature was outside dropped a 6-3 Ontario Hockey Association major series match at Toronto Maritimes before fewer than 1,000 fans Friday night.

Jack McKenzie and Frank Davis with a pair each, Ed Stankiewicz and Don Rope accounted for the Marlies, while Harvey Fraser kept his mates awake with a pair of tallies.

Elsewhere, Barrie Flyers clung to the lead of the O.H.A. Jr. A series by taking Toronto's St. Michael's Majors 5-2. Doug Towers with a pair of goals, and Jerry Toppazzini, Real Chevrefils and Don Emms with singles kept the Flyers on top against the Irishmen's Jack Weldrake and Willie Marshall.

In Windsor, Spitfires clinched second place in the big ten by thumping Toronto Mariboros 5-2, but it wasn't enough to overcome Barrie Flyers' one-point lead. Earl Joss with two goals, and Willie Hunt, Earl Johnson and Elmer Skov connected for Flyers, Eric Nesterenko and Dan Windler for Mariboros.

Guelh Biltmores shellacked Galt Black Hawks 7-2, thereby moving within two points of third place in the O.H.A. Jr. A bracket. Ron Murphy with two and Andy Bathgate, Eddy Kulik, Dean Prentice, Ken Lamfers and Chuck Henderson registered for the fast-stepping Hatters. Pete Conacher and Don Hogan for the Hawks.

In Stratford, Kroehlers clubbed up their third straight Friday win by defeating Waterloo Hurricanes 5-2 in another listless event.

Guy Henri, Ray Ross, George Aitken, Bob Armstrong and Roy Lechin scrambled for Kroehlers' counts, while Bud Evans and Warren Godfrey scored for Hurricanes.

In the O.H.A. Majors, Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen taught with St. Michael's in Toronto Saturday afternoon. The Jr. "A's" Stratford Kroehlers meet Waterloo Hurricanes and Oshawa Generals face Windsor Spitfires.

Three Members Of Maple Leafs Returning Ho

(By The Canadian Press)

Three members of the Lethbridge Maple Leafs, Canada's representatives in the world Hockey championships in Paris next month will return home Feb. 14.

This was learned here Friday in a letter from the club's playing coach, Dick Gray who said the move was being made to make room for two replacements for the world tournament.

Doug Grimston, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association said recently that two Montreal players will be flown to Paris to bolster the Leafs in their bid to retain the title won for Canada last year by Edmonton Waterloo Mercurys.

The three players who are returning here were identified as Bob McGregor, Ken Branch and Jack Summer.

Leafs, currently on a pre-tournament exhibition tour of Europe have won 18 games, lost six and tied one.

Lee Savold, the British-recognized heavyweight champion from Englewood, N.J., will embark on an exhibition tour late this month while his manager dickers for a shot at Ezzard Charles.

Bill Daly, Savold's manager, said Friday still hoped to get Savold a title shot at Charles in New York this June.

Governor Frank J. Lausche of Ohio appeared to be emerging Friday as one of the top candidates for commission of baseball.

Ellis Arnall, president of the Cleveland Indians and member of the four-man screening committee charged with finding a successor to A. B. (Happy) Chandler, said Thursday night that Ohio's three-time governor was definitely one of the candidates.

Lausche, asked about the whole affair, said he had "no comment."

Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League finally recalled Dave Creighton, 20-year-old left winger, from their Hershey farm club in the American Hockey League.

A rink skipped by Gordon Campbell of the Toronto Granite Club Friday won the right to compete at Kingston Feb. 23 in a competition to decide southern Ontario's representative in the Dominion curling championships.

At Kingston Campbell's curlers will meet the winners of seven other divisions. Whoever emerges from that will represent the area in competition with other provinces at Halifax March 5.

Eleven sophomore queens of the turf will compete in the $50,000 Santa Susana Stakes at Santa Anita today and the race shapes up as a two-horse battle between Sickle's Image and Ruth Lily.

The two look like the pick of the lot in the Santa Susana, a seven-furlong feature restricted to three-year-old fillies. Sickle's Image will be the favorite.

At New York, chunky Rex Layne, mauling farm boy from Utah, bulled past Argentina's Cesar Brion Friday night on a split decision at Madison Square Garden in a 10-round bout marred by frequent wrestling tactics. Layne weighted 196 1-4, Brion 194.

Demaret estimated it required a minimum of $250 a week just to go on the trip. Hotel, food, clothing, caddie fees, travel and other expenses are up at least a third over a few years ago, he said.

"The Hogans and the Snoads 'make' the tournaments and bring the big galleries, which, incidentally, are increasing all the time" Demaret said. "So why shouldn't they be paid for it?"

CURLING RINK BURNED

Huntsville, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP)— A $50,000 fire Thursday destroyed the Huntsville Curling Club rink. Six trophies and 12 pairs of rocks were saved but 80 rocks were lost.

Volunteer firemen and townfolk fought the blaze for four hours in 20-below-zero weather.

Cash Guarantees Needed to Get Stars to Attend

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 10 — (AP)—Jimmie Demaret, the golfing Texan, says tournaments are going to have to make cash guarantees to the stars if they expect to have the top-notchers play in all of them.

Demaret, who lives at Houston but registers out of Ojai, Calif., is one of eight linksters now on the winter tour who will skip the Rio Grande Valley Open at Harlingen next week.

"WANNA BE A DUCK?"

So you want to go south for the winter? So do we, but we know three birds, literally speaking, who spent the cold snows of the northland to the balmy breezes and golden sunshine of the southern climes.

They are three black ducks, according to Lincoln Elliott, farmer residing three miles west of Tweed, which have wintered comfortably near a spring, flushed creek on his property. The birds, says Mr. Elliott, appear to be plump, happy and satisfied with their winter quarters. Somewhat of a mystery, however, is where do they eat? There is no visible source of duck groceries, yet the birds apparently enjoy their three or however many meals a day a duck gets.

They frolic in the water of the creek near where the spring empties, and which does not freeze over. They have no rental worries, nor food problems. The vagaries of the weather man do not bother them apparently and they're happy in their winter wonderland. Must be something wrong down around the Gulf of Mexico, Louisiana and the Carolinas where the duck colony usually gathers to while away the winter months.

Veteran hunters here say it is a distinct rarity for black ducks to remain in this section for a winter. Usually they leave at the earliest approach of cold weather and make sure the dew worms have poked inquisitive snouts above Mother Earth before venturing to return.

Incidentally, Mr. Elliott says that large jack rabbits are numerous in his district. The chalice backs, which are now about fifteen feet, have increased at an alarming rate over the past few years. Likewise a substantial number of brush wolves have met their fate in the neighborhood of Mr. Elliott farm.

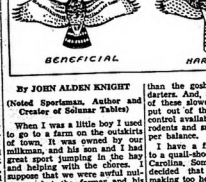
OFF TO PETERBOROUGH

Pappas Bills who eliminated the Brockville Bees in the first round playdowns of the Intermediate "B" basketball series, face what might be a stiff test tonight in their quest for second round honors. They trek to Peterborough where they meet the Peter "B" representatives in the first game of a points-to-count series. The second game is scheduled for Belleville next Saturday night. The "Bills" who showed a fine scoring punch in their game with the Bees are cocky and rarin' to go and hope to come through with a win in the Liftlock City this evening.

Did You Ever See a Chicken Hawk?



By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

(Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables)

When I was a little boy I used to go to a farm on the outskirts of town. It was owned by our milkman, and his son and I had great sport jumping in the hay and helping with the chores. I suppose that we were awful nuisances, but the farmer and his helpers put up with us.

One day the chickens in the barn yard set up a great squawking for safe cover as though their lives depended on speedy retreat — as, in fact, indeed was true.

My friend shouted the alarm, "chicken hawk!" and his father came running out of the barn with a shotgun. I stood there in the barn yard and watched the big bird float safely away out of range.

That was my first experience with "chicken hawks." Since then I have heard the term used a great many times, mostly by farmers. All too many of them wage relentless war on "chicken hawks," not realizing that by so doing they are actually destroying valuable guardians of their crops.

No Such Bird

There is, of course, no such bird as a "chicken hawk." The name is used loosely to describe any large hawk which may happen to venture too close to the chicken yard.

Among all the too many hunters the rule seems to be that only a dead hawk is a good hawk. Thus, they knock down the soaring hawks, the floaters, as these are less wary and much easier to hit than the goshawk or the blue darters. And, as I say, each one of these slow hawks which is put out of the way is one less control available to keep insects, rodents and snakes in their proper balance.

I have a friend who belongs to a quail-shooting club in South Dakota. Some years ago they decided that "varmints" were making too heavy inroads on the quail supply, so they decided to eliminate all foxes, possum, owls and hawks from their acreage.

The season after this vendetta was instituted the quail prospered mightily and the club members had wonderful shooting. Meanwhile, the cotton rats, having no natural enemies present to keep down their numbers, multiplied enormously.

Nests Ravaged

With the coming of spring and the nesting season the cotton rats were over. Nests were ravaged, baby quail were eaten and even the adults were killed now and then. Rat drives, traps and poison availed but little.

When this state of affairs became crucial, orders were given to allow the "varmints" to return to their former hunting grounds. Patrols by game keepers were reduced so that the area would not be disturbed by hunters.

It wasn't long before the foxes, the owls, and the hawks returned to this land of plenty and they waxed fat on cotton rats. Within a matter of months the natural balance was restored and the next year the shooting improved somewhat.

Hawks have been divided into two classes — harmful hawks and beneficial hawks. Actually all hawks are beneficial to some extent. However, the goshawk, the Cooper's hawk, and the sharp-shinned hawk are destructive enough to wildlife to warrant shooting in most states.

The other more common soaring hawks — the rough-legged hawk, the red-shouldered hawk, the broad-winged hawk, and the marsh-hawk — do a great deal more good than they do harm.

Rodents Main Food

Examination of the stomach contents of 1,185 hawks — the research done by the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture — shows that the beneficial hawks destroy game birds, song birds, and rabbits only from 1.8 per cent to 8.5 per cent of their diets. The balance is composed of rats, mice, snakes, insects, etc.

These birds are comparatively slow in flight and easy to hit, with the result that thoughtless or uninformed hunters kill far too many of them. Each time they kill one of these birds they are adding about twenty dollars to the annual damage bill suffered by farmers from the depredations of rats, mice and insects.

When you are considering the reports of the biologists concerning their finding in stomach examinations, it must be remembered that a goodly percentage of the game birds, game animals, and songbirds that are picked up and examined by hawks is made up of creatures that are handicapped in some way. Gunshot wounds, old age, highway accidents and so on are responsible for many of these being caught, so make due allowance.

The Destructive Hawks

Of course we do have the bad boys to reckon with — the goshawk and the blue darters. The little sharp-shin lives almost entirely on song birds. He is a fast flyer and can catch what he wants without difficulty. His cousin, the big blue darter or Cooper's hawk is just about as bad. He can handle a grown ringneck without much trouble.

Now and then an individual bird — usually a Cooper's hawk or a red-tailed hawk — will develop a taste for poultry and turn chicken thief, just as some humans do. These birds, which generally get themselves shot are responsible for the term "chicken hawk" and they give the entire clan a bad name with those who carry guns.

If you feel that you must shoot hawks, practise on the fast flyers — the blue darters — but be sure that you can identify the species with certainty before you pull that trigger. You will do more harm by killing a beneficial bird than you will by allowing one of the blue darters to live.

Belleville Redmen Defeat Peterborough Petes First Time This Season by 8-5

By GEO. E. CARVER
(Sport Editor)

The Belleville Redmen racked on to another S-2 defeat on the loop leading Peterborough Petes here last night. And they were just that much better.

The Redmen a bit despised in the group from their standing have proved they are "upset" artists in their last two games. They defeated the Kingston Nylons the other night by a 5-4 score and last night finally proved to the vaunted Peterborough Petes that they could beat them.

And as again the Reds did it the way it should be done. The Petes took the ice with a good margin at the head of the loop but before the night was done The Reds did the Nylons the night they reckoned with the Reds.

Had It All the Way

The Redmen team had it all the way. The vaunted league-leading Petes who should have been beaten on their last appearance here, were completely trounced by a red-shirted squad who proved on the ice that they were that much better than the opposition.

Maybe the tide of luck that has been the travelling of the Maple Reds turned. They flipped back an aspiring Nylons team the other night by 5-4 count and then last night turned back a loop-leading Petes team that has been suffering from the results of their all-season drive. The Reds were playing top-notch hockey and the Petes were too.

It was a fast clean senior hockey game all the way. The Petes, a driving opportunists gang met a Redmen squad that was fighting and defeated anything they had. The team with the Reds named on the margin of play made it two-all in the first period. The Reds men roaring in from a concerted drive put the high-flying Petes back on the bumpkins by a fury of their attack in the second heat and rammed home four goals against three for the Petes.

The Reds after Bastedo had given them a 3-2 lead early in the second period were awarded by two quick goals by Fryia and Garvey of the Petes. Then it was the Reds turn to strike. Playing the type of hockey that swept aside the Nylons the other night, the Reds led by Wardhaugh, MacDonald and Goyer raced through to three swift goals that put a definite stamp on their drive for title of victory. They scored two goals in the second period rammed home the third four minutes later.

In the third heat, the Petes roared to life and back in a rushing Red team raced back to score two goals from MacDonald and Mulvihill to settle the issue.

Driving hard the Petes scored their first goal when Fryia and took Dougan's pass to end the game.

The first line of Wardhaugh, Mulvihill and Green paid off again, Wardhaugh the deadly centre of the new line rammed home a counter in the first period. It was the Nylon game got in for two goals and two assists. Then MacDonald banged home a couple getting an assist.

Garvey and Fryia were tops for the Petes in a lost cause after Tomkins was lost after being hurt.

Idea of Reducing N.H.L. Schedule Goes Into Discard

The suggestion that the National Hockey League 70-game schedule might be shortened next year appears to have been a short-lived one.

There's considerable doubt, in fact, about whether the idea ever had any official foundation.

W.H.L. president Clarence Campbell said in Chicago last night that the league is not immediately considering reduction of its schedule.

He added that the suggestion he had said in an interview that the reduction was being considered by the league's board of governors was not accurate.

"Some words were put in my mouth," said Campbell. "I had said that the schedule had been mentioned by some critics as being 10 games too long. A reduction has not been proposed by the board. It's a thought that may be brought up when all phases of the playing attendance problem are considered at any annual meeting in May."

Campbell said that he personally doesn't believe a 60-game schedule would be the solution to anything. It wouldn't, for instance, help meet players' salaries and other costs which are up and will stay that way.

Even before Campbell clarified his remarks there appeared to be little chance that the idea of reducing the number of games would be approved by the league.

Smythe Against Cut

Conn Smythe, Toronto' Maple Leafs general manager, left no doubt where he stood on the matter much. Montreal Canadiens another team that is enjoying sellout attendance, would also object to it, and there's no reason why league-leading Detroit Red Wings would want to lose the extra money the lengthened season produces.

That leaves the three teams which are slumping at the box office—Chicago Black Hawks, Boston Bruins and New York Rangers. The Norris interests which own Detroit and Chicago would have a difficult choice with teams on both sides of the attendance ledger.

As far as the present season is concerned, a team such as Chicago might even feel there aren't enough games. Not because of the attendance but because, with only 17 games left in the regular schedule, it will be a tough job to catch one of the four playoff berths. The team is nine points behind fifth-place New York and 14 behind fourth-place Boston.

The Hawks, who have won only one game in their last 13 starts, will be idle tonight but will attempt to get back in the running against Toronto.

In other Sunday night games Detroit will visit Boston and Montreal will be in New York.

Saturday night, Detroit plays Toronto in a game which will have considerable bearing on first place, while Montreal is at Boston.

Tonight's five games find the Red Wings, will be looking for a win in the hopes of solidifying their considerable advantage in the leaders.

B.C.I. Takes Two From Picton In COSSA Race

By DON DOUGLAS

At Picton Collegiate last night the B.C.I. junior and senior basketball teams clinched the Picton teams is a Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A.A.'s basketball double header. The score in the junior game was 26-20, while in the nightcap, B.C.I. edged the home story 65-62.

Senior Game

In an action-packed thriller the B.C.I. seniors had to come from behind a 28-26 half-time deficit to eke out their victory.

B.C.I. started out playing a three-man defensive zone with Jim Sager starting back court and still another under their opponents basket. However the Picton crew seemed to have worked on a defence for this type of play. Usually the B.C.I. team uses a quick breaking style of play but in last evening's encounter, B.C.I. players were turned as it was the Picton team which used this type of play.

A big redheaded forward named Anderson scored 17 points in the first half to lead his team to a half-time margin of 28-26.

Trevenen's B.C.I. cagers, in the final half of play, Anderson threw in 15 additional points to bring his total for the evening to 32 points.

Kept Pace

Mike Anderson was dumping in these points for Picton the B.C.I. team was right behind scoring punch of their own. During the second half in which Picton scored (10) the second spearheaded B.C.I.'s uphill drive. Ed McCoy hit for nine while Jim Dowsett had nine while Doug Mills tallied eight.

The game as a whole was quite rough but referee Lloyd Faulkner kept things on the level and played on the small Picton floor.

Anderson who scored 32 points was by far the star of the Picton quintet. Laundry and Kitchen turned in good efforts for the losers with nine and seven points respectively.

Summary:

B. C. I. — 65 — Cameron 2, McCoy 12, Davis 1, Kane 4, Soule 8, Dolan 1, Muirhead 17, Mc-Brien, Barclay, Dowsett 12, McGuire 8.

Picton — 62 — Cornellus 6, Laundry 9, Hunt 3, Elgetl, Collitver 2, Webster, Kitchen 7, Gannon.

Last night's win for B.C.I. evened the series complicated the Bay of Quinte league race. B.C.I. and Campbellford have now suffered two defeats and if both of these teams can salvage their remaining contests a play off game will be necessary.

The B.C.I. team started off as favorites but were quickly unspearheaded by the return of David Dill managed to rack up a convincing 25-19 half-time lead. In this half Dill was really hot as he hit for 17 points. In the second half the visitors from B.C.I. outscored the homesters 12-10 and thus earned their 40-29 victory.

Dill is first line of drill. He's back and Trig succumbed for 23 of their team's points. Dill was complimented by teammates while scoring 23 points. His line-mates, Richards and Trig gave him plenty of help. By the tall centre, controlled the backboards during the entire game and set up many plays while scoring 23 points. Richards, Thomas, the other forward (who gives a better performance as the season be-comes older) played his usual reliable game and made some scoring plays.

Glen Reynolds with 12 points led Picton in a scoring way. Lou Bolsgrinis helped to add nine points before fouling out of the contest.

Line-ups:

B.C.I. — 40 — Pugs 8, Hackey 4, Dill 23, Philp, Parsons, Hagerman 2, Morden 1, Houston 2, Bovay, Farmer, Mathews, Goyer.

Picton — 29 — Lightfall 1, Binkelman 9, Hubbs, Kitchen 2, Reynolds D., Ryan, Moore 2, Reynolds G. 12, Armstrong, Euler.

RUSS MEYER SIGNS

Philadelphia, Feb. 10 — (AP) — Toronto baseball pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies, sent in his signed contract yesterday.

The "screwball" artist, who has had trouble controlling his temper, limited himself to four for the Phils in 1949, winning 17 games and losing eight. But in spring training last year he suffered an elbow injury, and was unable in the summer to put his ball where he wanted it.

Movie Column

BY BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 10—(AP)—You think you've got troubles? Listen to James Kern's.

After a full year of assorted difficulties, Kern has just finished directing "Two Tickets to Broadway." At least he thinks he has finished it. With this picture, you can't be sure.

So much has been printed about the travails of the movie, that I went to the director for the first-hand report. He said the problems may be due to a couple of factors: bad luck and television.

"It started with the original story about a year ago," Kern related. "The idea came from the success of Kay Thompson and the Williams brothers. Reversing it, writer Sammy Cahn thought it would be the basis of a good story if a man were teamed in the act with four girls. Howard Hughes liked the story and bought it."

No Soap

Kern was hired as director and went to work trying to find a top male comedian for the film.

Meanwhile, Janet Leigh was signed for the leading female role. The budget was ticking off, and still no prospect of a leading man.

Sid Silvers, who was writing on the picture, came up with the solution: split the leading role into two parts, a singer and a comedian. After much finagling, Tony Martin and Eddie Bracken were signed for the roles.

"But although Tony sings like an angel, he is a non-line-reading actor," explained Kern. "So the talking had to be done by somebody else. Because we didn't have a top-star name, we had to double the cast with names, and added Ann Miller, Gloria D Haven and Barbara Lawrence."

Also, Jimmy Durante, who had been written into the picture, was rescinded away by television. Two different producers had come and gone and Wald-Krasna had taken the chore.

The budget was hitting the ceiling and so was Hughes. The script? "Every morning, Sid Silvers and I would sit down at eight and go into a corner of the stage and write the day's work," said Kern.

"This," he sighed, "is how to make a picture the hard way!"

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

BY SAM GORDON

The Klibitzer

The cards in bridge have a way of surprising you. The best may turn out to be finnies. The ones that look like duds may suddenly become your biggest assets. Usually when you least expect it.

The bidding was on the exciting side. The air seemed to be full of doubles and redoubles. It finally settled down to a bid of six in clubs with south as declarer, doubled by west.

West could have defeated the contract by first leading a spade. Then, when he got in with the trump ace his side would get a trick in spades. But there was nothing to tell him to start with such a lead.

What west did lead at the start was his heart king. South ruffed this opening trick and led trump that west ducked with the ace. A look at the dummy diamonds told him a disappointing story.

Suddenly realizing the possible need for it, west led one of his two spades. It was a desperate hope of finding east with spade tricks and south with less than three diamonds.

But he was doomed by this time. Dummy spade ace took the first spade trick. The top dummy trump took a trump round that used up all the opponent trumps. Then dummy led a heart that south ruffed.

A diamond was led from south toward the dummy tenace combination. West played the diamond nine. Declarer realized that he could not win unless a double finesse in diamonds was successful.

So, he had dummy finesse deep with the diamond ten. It worked. South got into his own hand again by leading a dummy heart which was ruffed. Another diamond was successfully finessed.

Dummy ace of diamonds then killed the west king. On the fourth dummy diamond was shuffled the two remaining spade. With a sigh of relief, south spread the rest. It could happen to you.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Sunday, February 11

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Religious devotions first, naturally, charity functions to gain funds for needed institutions, children's welfare, etc. under their rays. In all action avoid irritation, impatience.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Favorable influences from your planet Venus. Home, family, close personal interests honored. Start day right by attending your church, offer prayers for our armed forces, world peace.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Some surprising aspects. Be mindful of your spiritual needs, don't make promises thoughtlessly or sign anything without full knowledge of what you are doing. Recreate reasonably.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Mild rays in your sector but some planets are very favorable for business, interests, gatherings to aid charities, other good causes. Extra care stressed spending for pleasure.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Neither stimulating nor unfriendly for purely personal desires, seeking favors. A favorable day for wholesome activities, useful devices, needed rest and healthy recreation. Pray.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Caution stressed now in writing, matters with important documents or papers, also in secretive work. Day particularly favors the interest of group projects, home, family, good fun.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra) — Today and tomorrow very favorable for especial interests, personal achievements or advancement of a previous plan. Do attend your church and pray for God's guidance and for world peace.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Good day to show your generous talents, initiative and know-how, in running feats to entertain children, the ill, etc. Not all favorable for personal desires; but you should be happy.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Fine makings for a fruitful, if not all care-free, day. Be alert to responsibilities; how can you help community's or country's efforts for betterment of humanity? Pray sincerely.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Can be active, stimulating Sunday or a quiet, less interesting one, mostly depending upon how you feel and what your social program calls for. Get rest, some fun; go to church, too.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) — Heed Sagittarius. You, too, have encouraging aspects. Fine day to include religious devotions, family interests, healthy relaxation, but also new essentials for our country's needs.

February 21 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Friendly rays on whole, especially if you respect laws and do not fret or be irritated. Good time for church deeds, thoughts, charities, hobbies and prayer, so needed now.

YOU BORN TODAY: A happy, often complacent somebody, helpful in times of need, fond of learning and artistic things, perhaps interested in science, engineering, or a literary field. If true to your inherent gifts and if you have cultivated your better qualities, you can attain a substantial and respected position in your chosen field. Always remember, God and honorable principles are the true standards by which to be successfully guided. Refuse to be swayed by people who flatter; conquer failings.

Birthdate; Thomas A. Edison, American inventor; Rear Admiral H. K. Hewitt.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

BY WINIFRED E. WILSON

WOODPECKERS

In Birdland, ability to live on Canadian products that are as plentiful and as easily obtained in winter as in summer is a very great advantage; it eliminates the necessity of migration. For that reason, most of our woodpeckers remain here all year round. Sapsuckers, dependent on running sap, leave when frost becomes hard. Flickers, whose special taste turns to ants found on the ground, stay until snow interferes, and a few seem able to pick up enough insects of one kind or another to allow them more time in Canada. If the nut crop is good, some of Ontario's red-headed woodpeckers postpone migration a bit. Though seldom appearing in public, Arctic three-toed and spectacular pileated woodpeckers are permanent Canadian residents. But the hairy and its little replica, the downy woodpecker, are ever with us. Their food consists of wood-boring grubs and hibernating insects which they are able to get at just as well now as in summer.

As their name implies, most woodpeckers peck the bark of trees. This is done for two purposes: to procure insect food, and to chisel out homes for themselves in trunks of trees. Nature has made them to suit their way of living, therefore neck muscles, bills, tongues, legs, feet, and tails are all especially designed.

Because neck muscles supply the driving power without which bills would be useless, they are made extraordinarily strong. Watch a woodpecker at work, and notice how rapidly its head moves backwards and forwards. The bills are stout, with chisel-shaped ends for cutting into wood. Examine one of their holes and see how neatly it is made. Woodpeckers' tongues are very long and cylindrical, tips hard and pointed, with barbs upon the sides. The other end is curled around the back of the head and enclosed in a muscular sheath. So actually some tongues are twice the length of the head, and can be shot out of the beak to stab an insect deep in the wood of a tree, and then pulled in with the skiped prey.

The legs of woodpeckers are short and stout, as the birds' work is done in a vertical position, bodies close to the tree trunk. The toes are furnished with sharp claws for clinging; and aid in balancing is supplied by the tail, which ends in sharp points to be stuck into the bark that it may act as a prop.

It is well for us that many of these birds can winter here, because their love for insects that destroy trees makes them highly beneficial.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

A low ridge ran along the ravine, on the other side. Through it ran a narrow trail left over from childhood; she and the Ellsworths and Andy Grenable had called it their secret path. And up there outlined on the ridge stood so unmistakably clerk, was a man. The man paused, hesitated a long moment, and then went on into the woods. The man Lisa recognized was her father.

She saw him in that instant that she had stopped to catch her breath. Then, aware of Angus, following her startled gaze, she turned and began to run again.

"I had to catch my breath!" she panted and prayed a little prayer that Angus had not seen the other man. She ran ahead toward the terrace, ignoring his puzzled glance.

And then the second incident occurred.

While voices clamored from the house, and footsteps hurried somewhere near, a lone, motionless figure stood silently in the doorway opening from Lavinia Grenable's den onto the terrace and forever afterward Lisa knew well thought of that particular spot as the doorway to death.

The man moved then, and Lisa saw with another sense of shock that the man was Henry Farwell.

"Court, what happened?" she gasped.

"...don't know," Court came out of the shadows, walking like a wooden man, stiffly, almost in a trance.

He didn't appear to recognize her or hear if he did it was unimportant at that moment. He walked slowly past her and Angus Kent, down the terrace and toward the darkening ravine where his mother had disappeared.

He stood there staring down in the pit of silence. There was something in his behavior that was more than strange, it was nearly sinister.

Lisa felt as if she were being drawn back from another world when she felt Angus put his hand on her arm. He turned to face him.

"Lisa, you must know this house. Could you get to a telephone?" His steady, reassuring voice and the calmness in his chin, strong face helped her to the only touch of reality in the whole weird experience.

"Yes," she said a little less afraid because of him. "Yes, I could."

"Telephone for a doctor," he told her, "and then call the police."

"Police!"

"Certainly. Old ladies in wheel chairs just don't go riding around ravines like these. Hurry!"

She ran toward the house and as she went in the back door which was closest she thought she saw a movement in the shrubbery outside the back porch but she couldn't be sure and people were rushing through the door toward her in search of the mystery. She took time only to motion them toward Angus standing beside Court on the ravine edge and then she went in to telephone.

The day had settled into half darkness when Lisa climbed wearily out of the car at her home and waited for Angus to lock the garage.

He handed her the key and they went up together. Lights burned cheerfully through the picture windows and Martha's grey head was bobbing around the dining room table as she set the plates for dinner.

Lisa began to laugh hysterically. Court had planned to come over for dinner tonight and then they were going back to his place to see Mrs. Grenable. Lisa hadn't talked to her for years. And she wouldn't now, after all.

Court was at home, still talking to the police, and Mrs. Grenable's body, lifeless and broken at last, was being brought out of the ravine.

Lisa could see yet the lights of the searching party, the chief of police from Hilton and Dr. Hansen and Lavinia's son-in-law, Phillip Carson, as they came out through the underpass and probed the slimy floor of the ravine for the old woman.

Angus shook Lisa a little, not roughly, but urgently.

"Stop that," he warned. He pushed open the door and led her into the house. Her father came through the study door.

"Come in," he said quietly. "Elizabeth phoned."

Henry Farwell shook hands with Angus, searching his face silently. What he found apparently satisfied him, for he turned and looked at her then and if his face had not been so strained with tension she would have thought he smiled.

It was Angus's strength, she thought suddenly, she had felt it and now her father sensed, too, a kind of inner solidity that could never fail the young man.

"I'll hear that scream if I live to be a hundred," she murmured to herself. "It was awful. If I'd been alone ..."

Angus's hand came over hers, for an instant she permitted it to stay there, and then remembering Court, she took her own away carefully.

With all the terrible happenings of the last hour, there was still the undercurrent of the awareness of this Angus Kent. It was an awareness that gave her both elation and confusion.

She should be thinking only of Court now, she should be back there helping him, giving him the courage of her love. But she couldn't seem to reach him, couldn't get through the barrier she had felt between them in the old house where the shadows of night and death crept through the rooms, where police questions and hard instructions touched each member of the Grenable family.

Even in those first minutes of horror she had sensed the antipathy between the children of Lavinia Grenable.

Right now, in the peace and familiarity of her own home, Lisa Farwell couldn't pin her thoughts solely on Court Grenable, to whom she was engaged. Half angrily, Lisa dropped into a chair near her father and what she said was because of that self-anger.

"I guess we won't need to worry about Mrs. Grenable any longer, will we? She can't hurt me now."

She saw Angus Kent take in the closed expression that took possession of her father's normally placid, round face. Henry Farwell took off his glasses and polished them before he answered.

He shook his head. "I would not like to be too sure, Lisa," was what he said, "that Lavinia Grenable will not make herself heard, even in death."

Without knowing why, she felt suddenly that she had said something very dangerous. She understood better the next morning.

But that night before events began to take on a terrible, double meaning, while the false peace protected her and she was given time to straighten her thoughts, she thought mostly of Angus.

Angus and her father sealed a comfortable of each other when they were alike he decided, and the decision startled her. In that flash of realization she knew why it was that she had felt a strange, compelling acquaintance with this man when she first met him on the road that afternoon.

Though they looked nothing alike for her father was shorter and broader and balding and Angus was tall, almost angular and his hair was thick and wheat-colored, nevertheless they were alike. They were of the same mold of man. The knowledge shook her considerably.

She was in her room preparing for bed. Angus had not stayed for dinner because the Ellsworths were expecting him. And Lisa, after a late dinner, had pleaded a headache and had gone upstairs to her room.

She undressed, showered and went through the routine of face cream and astringent and then in the middle of long vicious thrusts at her yellow hair she laid down the brush and stared at herself in the mirror.

"You're a fool," she said. "You mooned around all through adolescence for a man you hardly knew one that you idolized from a distance, and when you're rewarded with his proposal—you promptly fall in love with the next man you meet!"

The brush clattered to the floor with the abrupt motion of self-condemnation. Courtney Grenable was not the next man, she knew. Perhaps that was it.

Court the colorful, the romantic, the dashing. Angus, quiet, calm, self possessed, completely wonderful and exciting in his own way. She knew almost before he spoke what he wanted to say and it was like stirring the depths of imagination within herself to match his mood exactly, to feel his thoughts as a blind person would sense beauty—and she had known him exactly five hours!

Lisa put her head down on her folded arms and cried as she had not cried since she was a child, "...e felt as she had years ago in her first long party dress when she came down the stairs and her father looked over his newspaper and exclaimed, while her knees went all tremory, "Lisa, you've grown up!"

She lifted her head and looked at herself again in the mirror and suddenly she understood that only tonight had she really grown up.

She dug through the medicine cabinet in the bathroom until she found the sleeping pills left over from an old prescription of Martha's, took one, and went to bed.

When Lisa opened her eyes to the first tinge of daylight the following morning she was amazed because she had slept all night and hadn't expected to sleep soundly at all. This morning there was a peculiar peace within her, though actually she had settled nothing beyond the necessity of honesty with herself.

The truth changed nothing, of course. Angus would go back to the city and she and Court would be married. She would forget Angus in time.

She hurried into her clothes to escape the darkness of the night and went downstairs quietly.

She was on the landing when she heard the unmistakable sound of her father's voice coming from the den. She glanced sharply at the grandfather clock beside her.

Henry Farwell was a methodical man. He could afford to be. He'd built up a reputation as an architect around Hilton and the fact enabled him now to turn over the routine work to his assistant.

He liked to read late at night and sleep until 8 in the morning. For Henry Farwell to be up and around at 6:30 was as unreasonable as the sun to shine at midnight.

Without the least intention of eavesdropping, Lisa Farwell stood there on the landing. She heard her father's voice, sharp with anxiety.

"Elizabeth, you've got to keep control of yourself, listen to me and do exactly as I tell you," Henry Farwell was saying. "Don't talk to anyone about what happened yesterday afternoon until I tell my story. And remember Elizabeth, I left you in the house. You were not outside, you were not near the coach house. You in no way touched Lavinia."

There was a moment of silence and then: "Did the police find her diary?—Does anyone else know? If you can, get hold of that diary and burn it—I'll do over that!"

There was the sharp click of a telephone being replaced in its cradle and then silence.

Lisa stood motionless on the stairway landing with the steady tick-tock of the mahogany clock beside her as the only sound in the house. She was frozen there with a memory.

The shock of yesterday's events had numbed Lisa and, with the exception of meeting Angus Kent she had forgotten many things. These things now began coming back to her, like little black clouds piling up on a spring day.

REDS DRIVE 7-MILE WEDGE IN ALLIED LINES

Should Refrain From Crossing 38th Parallel -- Attlee

Advises Full Consultation First With United Nations

London, Feb. 12—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee told parliament today General MacArthur should refrain from crossing troops across Korea's 38th Parallel until there has been "full consultation with the United Nations."

Such consultation should be held particularly "with those member states who are contributing forces to Korea," the Prime Minister said in a foreign affairs debate in the House of Commons.

"We must remember the 38th Parallel is in no sense a military line" the Prime Minister said. "There is no greater mistake than in thinking that a political line or even, sometimes, a physical line is a military line.

"We are hoping that we may get negotiations leading up to a settlement in the Far East," Attlee said.

Following Attlee's policy, formulated by a foreign secretary, who advocated a western declaration of aims on the defence of Yugoslavia, Attlee said the main question facing the world today is whether the communist bloc would reduce its armed forces to reasonable proportions and abandon "imperialistic policies."

He dealt at considerable length with the question of rearming Germany — a subject on which some of his followers are lined against him.

"If we could get a real and lasting settlement with Soviet Russia, the matter of German rearmament would fall into its proper perspective," Attlee said.

Defence of Germany

If not, the defence of Germany had to be considered as part of the defence of the west, he said. If the Germans were not allowed to defend themselves, the occupying powers must defend them.

Eden said the western powers should announce what their stand would be if Yugoslavia were invaded.

He charged that Russia and her satellites are building up powerful forces that constituted a threat to the Yugoslavs.

Touch-And-Go Vote

Another touch-and-go vote for the continued life of the labor government is scheduled in parliament later this week on the foreign issue.

Attlee ridiculed Russia's "sham peace" campaign, saying the fact was that "the Soviet Union has never disarmed after the last war and they have been increasing their armaments and arming their satellites."

Then, turning to Korea, he said Britain's full support and backing down on its policy of supporting the U. N. police action in Korea "is not known." Britain has had "great experience in Asiatic affairs."

Neck Artery Severed, Youth Bleeds to Death

A splinter of broken glass which lodged in his neck artery, his car went out of control and overturned in the ditch cost the life of Roy M. Morgan, 18, of West Hillington, early Sunday morning.

Following the accident Morgan pulled the splinter of glass from his own neck then collapsed and bled to death from a severed artery while his companion stood helpless to aid him.

Morgan with Harold Reid, of Holloway, was driving on No. 14 highway three miles west of Stirling when the front wheel of the car struck an obstruction at the side of the highway, went out of control and turned on its left side in the ditch. Reid was uninjured and assisted Morgan from the car.

A splinter of glass from a broken window was stuck in Morgan's neck. He pulled the splinter out and was just able to murmur asking for help when he collapsed from loss of blood. He was dead before the ambulance arrived to take him to hospital. There was a possibility he would have lived if he had allowed the splinter to remain in the neck until he got medical attention.

Coroner Dr. A. K. Carleton, of Stirling, was called, but it is not expected there will be an inquest. Provincial Constable Ivan Tinkess investigated. The only damage to the car was a dent in the front fender and the broken side window glass.

R. C. Stanley Dies, President Of Int. Nickel

Toronto, Feb. 12. (CP)—Robert C. Stanley, chairman of the Board and President of International Nickel Company died today in New York, a spokesman for the company announced.

He was 75.

Mr. Stanley was born at Little Falls, N.J., and educated at Columbia University, New York. He joined International Nickel in 1901, becoming general superintendent in 1914, first vice-president in 1916 and president in 1922.

Mr. Stanley succumbed suddenly early today at his home at Dongan Hills near New York City.

Cause of his death was not know immediately.

His company now provides the greatest single output of copper in the British Empire and the world's largest supply of the platinum metals. Under his guidance metallurgical research of separated nickel and copper contents from company ores which previously defied treatment. Monel, a white alloy of nickel and copper, was discovered in 1905 by Mr. Stanley. He conceived and developed the process for producing the alloy direct from ore.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP)—Synopsis: Warm foggy air which covers southern Ontario is causing drizzle in the area, while in the region south of Muskoka and Georgian Bay it is much lower. Immediately behind the leading edge of the colder air, general occasional freezing rain are falling, but in the extreme north it is clear and cold. The colder air is pushing slowly southward and will cover all Ontario tonight, but a new disturbance over Kansas developing rain and snow to southern Ontario Tuesday, will prevent temperatures falling too sharply in the southern portion. Cold clear weather will continue in northern Ontario.

B.C., FLOODS TAKE THREE LIVES, SITUATION BETTER

State of Emergency In West Washington

Vancouver, Feb. 12—(CP)—Floods the dikes couldn't contain when crests from above—protected at least a dozen dikes in a front today after taking three lives.

Generally, the situation was improved in saturated southern British Columbia—a switch from crisis to a gigantic clean-up job —but danger was described as great in Sumas municipality near the United States border.

There, volunteer sandbag crews toiled in the cold and rain on a key dike protecting 10,000 acres of prosperous farm land. The threat was along the Sumas diversion canal.

Across the border, a state of emergency was in effect in western Washington and five national guard units were called out as rampaging rivers crashed through dikes and spilled out over lowlands.

Governor Langlie proclaimed a state of emergency after about 4,600 persons had been driven from their homes in northwest Washington.

Three-Day Downpour

A three-day downpour, virtually unprecedented, inundated an estimated 60 per cent of the Fraser Valley ,which extends east from Vancouver for 100 miles.

The rain ended yesterday and, in some parts of the valley, it was followed by snowfall of six inches. The weather office said the outlook is for dry weather.

The Fraser went on a rampage in the middle of the valley, 50 miles age, but this time the mighty river's tributaries were the villains.

Councillor of Garrow Has System To Lick Floods at Any Place

BY JAMES BASTABLE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, B.C., (CP)—Call him Big Henry Gossen who has a "system," says he and his men can lick the highest flood any time.

Grateful residents of this community 50 miles east of Vancouver agree with him.

"I'm not fighting waters with a slow but sure system," he said today, but like we did in the big floods of 1948.

Gossen's "system" is tough, methodical planning and plenty of daring.

Gossen, a member of Yarrow's five-man council, went to work Saturday with a hand-picked crew of 30 men, a big jet pump mounted on the Vedder Canal spilling into the town and neighboring farmland.

George P. Berksen, whose home was threatened by the rush of flood waters, said the water poured down on the town "before we knew it."

He and his wife fled in their night clothes and, within 30 minutes, water had reached the four-foot-high windows of their home.

Gossen and his men started by directing the evacuation—about 100 of the community's 1,200 residents were evacuated by truck before roads were made impassable. Then Gossen Kiesner was taken from her home by rowboat.

Gossen and his men worked 28 straight hours in driving rain. They blasted the jam and even the interurban railway tracks to make a safe path for the flood waters. They tipped out clogged trees, cleared out culverts.

For a long time it was a losing fight. The water reached depths of eight feet. Fifty homes were inundated, bridges destroyed and farms washed away, but finally the water began following the paths Gossen's men had blazed.

Gossen was still strong last night. A water main broke and thousands of gallons of water poured out. A volunteer was swept into the torrent.

Although heavily clad Gossen plunged into the water and pulled the man to safety.

Brain Expert Says Sullivan May Have Injured Self In Convulsions Before Death

Ottawa, Feb. 12 (CP)—Dr. J. E. Pritchard, Montreal brain expert, today added a new theory to explain the blunt force trauma which J. Sullivan died of a brain hemorrhage which probably occurred spontaneously and not by the application of blunt force.

The pathology director at Montreal General Hospital gave evidence for the defence in the Ontario Supreme Court trial of Mrs. Marion Sullivan on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of her husband.

The trial is in its ninth day.

Several-times Chief Justice J. C. McRuer cautioned the witness to base his opinion on evidence already before the court not what he was given to understand in discussions with counsel or with other persons.

Dr., Pritchard said his experience with brain tumors indicated that Mr. Sullivan's 29-year-old Toronto lawyer, might have been injured in fainting spells in convulsions before he died.

That, he said, would account for the 50 injuries found on Mr. Sullivan's body when it was discovered in a Chateau Laurier bedroom in November.

Three Blows

Previously evidence by two other medical experts, testifying for the defence, was to the effect that Mr. Sullivan had died of natural causes.

The Crown alleges that the forgiht chief solicitor for the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests had received a severe beating before he died either late Nov. 17 or early Nov. 18.

Dr. Pritchard said the brain disease Mr. Sullivan suffered might have caused him to lose sense of balance.

He could have fallen to the bathroom floor "after pitching forward."

Body Found Nude

Dr. Pritchard said his experience was that persons suffering an angioma tumor sometimes went through convulsions.

But having lost their sense of balance, they sometimes were able to get up again and even remove clothes.

Mr. Sullivan's body, nude and injured, was found lying near the foot of the bed.

The chief justice asked whether Dr. Pritchard believed the injuries were consistent with the spontaneous rupture, "forgetting that there was a tiled bathroom in the area."

Dr. Pritchard believed they were. However, the injuries also could be consistent with those suffered, say, had a series of heavy blows been struck.

Examined by Assistant Defence Counsel Reuben Ashkiey, Dr. Pritchard said he did not believe the injuries were consistent with those caused by a soda bottle.

The Crown holds that a broken soda bottle may have been used in the alleged beating of Mr. Sullivan.

Woman 'Frozen Stiff' Reported Holding Her Own

Chicago, Feb. 12 (AP) — The young Negro woman who was found "frozen stiff" last week and amazed the medical profession by surviving the thawing out "was holding her own today."

Physicians described her condition as still critical.

The woman, Mrs. Dorothy Mae Stevens, 23, left a body temperature of only 64 degrees—34.5 degrees below normal—when she was taken to the hospital last Tuesday morning. When she was found lying in an alley in subzero weather, her body was rigid and physicians said her blood had chilled to a sludge.

Here is the first known case of survival from such exposure. The American Medical Association said it has no record of a human surviving a body temperature lower than 70 degrees.

A rubber tube has been inserted in her neck for feeding purposes.

Warns Motorists Dangerous Patient Has Escaped

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP) —Provincial Police today warned motorists not to pick up hitch-hikers following the escape of what they described as a dangerous patient from the Ontario Hospital at nearby Whitby. Police said the man 45-year-old Adam Simpson, a Jamaican, may be headed for Toronto or Hamilton. . .

16 Careless Whales Run Into Iceberg

Wakkanai, Japan, Feb. 12. (AP) —Sixteen careless whales were cruising along today, not paying much attention to the hazards of sea travel.

They bumped into a cluster of small icebergs off the northern tip of Hokkaido Island. Every one of the whales was knocked cold.

Along came some Japanese fishermen and bagged all 16. The whales, 30 to 30 feet long, were valued at $10,000.

YUGOSLAVIA STILL WALKING DOWN MIDDLE OF ROAD

Bitter With Russia Independent of West

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 12. (AP)—Yugoslavia still is walking down the middle of the world political road at a bitter odds with Russia and cockily independent toward the free west.

Yugoslavs are stating the first instalment of American food aid setting other western aid today—and more is promised—but Yugoslavia's policy of no-surrender to either camp hasn't changed.

In one testing-place, the United Nations Security Council, recently have voted either with the free west or against them. Often they have not voted for either side.

The Yugoslavs still speak out for independence—but against Russia's brand.

No longer in their slavish "me-too" position for the Russian stand as there was' before the Cominform expelled Premier Tito nearly three years ago.

The Yugoslavs now even take oral and written abuse and blue pressure in attacks, that bring Russian cries of "slander"—just as if Yugoslavia were a western country.

Yugoslavia didn't go along with the west on Nanning China guilty of aggression in Korea. It was adopted 44-7, the Russian Bloc its opponents. The Yugoslavs abstained.

Baby Aroused By Fire, Crying Saves Five Lives

Sudbury, Feb. 12—(CP)—The frightened crying of an 18-month old baby aroused the lives of her parents, her two-month-old sister and her grandfather early Sunday when their nearby four-room farmhouse burned to the ground.

The baby's crying awakened Mrs. Emanuel Perriard at 1 a.m. Mrs. Perriard, awakening her husband, found the house filled with smoke and flames were roaring up the wall dividing the kitchen from the bedroom.

The Perriards fled the house in their night clothes with the children bundled in blankets.

"In another 10 minutes we would all have been dead," Mrs. Perriard said today.

Neither she nor her husband had seen the fire. The fire originated. Her husband could save only a sewing machine and a basket of groceries.

Loss was estimated at $2,500 the home owned by Edward Leroux, who lives next door.

CHINESE OPERATING

San Francisco, Feb. 12 (AP)— The Standard Vacuum Oil Company, formerly American-owned, is operating under Chinese communist army control, the Peiping radio said yesterday. A propaganda broadcast, heard by The Associated Press in San Francisco said workers in the firm have "welcomed military control and expressed their determination to carry a new spirit of efficiency into all departments."

Cretan Romeo Goes on Trial, Vows His Love

Canea, Crete, Feb. 12—(AP)— The Romeo of Crete's stormy Romeo-and-Juliet mountain romance went on trial here today, vowing love for his kidnapped bride even if he pays with his life.

Tears streaming down his face —the Romeo — Costo Kephalogiannis — rose in court to answer routine questions as his trial began.

He is charged with forming an armed band to kidnap the lady of his heart, daughter of a rival family.

The Juliet in the case, dark-haired Vassoula Petrocgeorgi, now is expecting Costa's baby.

The court read a statement attributed to her saying she would stay away from the trial.

The outraged father of the bride, George Patrocgeorgie, vowed he will never relent, no matter what the court decides with the fate of his son-in-law. He told reporters he would never let Vassoula live with the son of the family with which the Petrocgeorgis are feuding.

The charges against Costa can bring the death penalty.

Woman Found With Temperature Of 76, Succumbs

Albany, N.Y., Feb. 12 (AP)— Mrs. Anna Fadole, 85, who was found semi-conscious two days ago with a body temperature of 76 degrees, died today in hospital.

Welfare investigators found the woman in her unheated room Saturday during a routine check. She was suffering from frostbite, over-exposure and malnutrition.

60,000 Troops Attack in Force On 10-Mile Front

Americans Deny Reports 38th Parallel Was Crossed

Tokyo, Feb. 13 — (Tuesday) — (AP) — Combining 60,000-man power with fake surrenders, white flags and handshakes, Chinese and North Korean communists thrust a wedge seven dangerous miles deep into the Allied central Korean front Monday, isolating some American and South Korean units.

On the east coast, latest American reports said a patrol of the South Korean Capital Division, advancing northward, ran into a red company almost on the 38th Parallel and was forced back south after a fight less than a mile below the old political boundary.

Earlier South Korean officials' reports had credited the South Korean patrol with a five-mile penetration into North Korea. The American advisers' report early Tuesday to Eighth Army headquarters said they never crossed the line at all.

Launched Sunday

The savage red counter-drive in the mountainous central sector was launched Sunday midnight with bugles and estimated 60,000 troops throughout Monday on a 10-mile-wide front.

The precise location of undisclosed size were reported off eight miles west of Koengsong. They were fighting to widen the road blocks that extended two miles along the main supply road. Unofficial American relief force was battling up from the south. A South Korean division also was reported cut off northeast of Hoengsong.

That town is 55 air miles east of Seoul, red-held former Korean capital.

United Nations troops were massed south of Seoul, just across the Han river from the capital. But a South Korean patrol that had made another probe into Seoul was forced out again last Monday by sharp enemy fire.

Shortly before midnight Monday, reds charged south across the ice-clogged Han River and attacked U. S. 25th Division elements in Seoul's industrial suburb, Pongnim, AP correspondent William C. Barnard reported from town that the attack was beaten back with about 15 minutes.

Heavy Artillery Fire

At the same time red artillery subjected the Allied lines west of Han to heavy fire from 120-mm guns, presumably Russian-made.

The critical position, however, was on the central front.

At one point, in the central front, an American patrol reportedly Negro who spoke English came up with white flag and empty hands as if offering to surrender, then cut loose with hand grenades.

American officers were striving to establish a solid defensive line tonight. Monday, February 12th, 8.00 p.m. Belleville Collegiate Institute Auditorium. Tickets are required for the Deaf will visit us and demonstrate their skill. Free to the public. F12

Canned Water Seems Best Solution In Atomic Warfare Says Chemist

Boston, Feb. 12—(AP)—Better stock up on canned water just in case an atomic bomb bursts in the city's mains.

Yes, canned water is here. And it's held in high regard in civil defence circles. Water was quite a problem in the Second World War when the A-bomb was dropped on Hiroshima.

Dr. Myer Selby, Boston chemist who invented a way of canning the stuff, says:

"So far as water supply is concerned, this seems the best solution to the atomic problem."

Under atomic attack, Dr. Selby points out there is a new complication: the water supply may pick up deadly materials from the exploded bomb, tiny particles of plutonium, and other poisons.

Here's where the canned water comes in.

It's sterile and lasts for years," says the chemist. And he adds:

"The cans are of convenient size and they can be tossed around without breaking. Each can will have a can-opener attached to it."

Dr. Selby recommends that a supply of cans be kept in each firehouse and that the firemen carry them in their pockets and on the trucks. Hospitals, restaurants and schools which are to be set up as first aid stations should also have buried stockpiles, in the opinion of the chemist.

AUTOIST, HIT BY TRAIN, UNHURT

Kitchener, Feb. 12 (CP) — To be hit by a train and live to tell about it, was the experience during the weekend of Amsey Martin, of Kitchener.

Martin was driving his car near St. Jacobs and was about to cross the CNR tracks when he saw a train bearing down on him.

Seeing he could not make it across—the latter he slammed on the brake and tried to get out, but not before the engine hit the car and sent it flying through the air, causing more than $500 damage.

James T. Walden Retires After 43 Years' Service

Railroad "chauffeur" for royalty and other internationally-known figures, James T. Walden, of Niagara Falls, formerly of this city, retired from active duty with the Canadian National Railways on Wednesday.

Mr. Walden retired right "on the line" for he celebrated his 65th birthday on St. Valentine's Day, the time of his severance of association with the railway.

"Never had an accident; never hurt a person; never damaged a wheel", is Mr. Walden's proud record after 43 years service with the road, the majority of which was spent at the throttle of freight and passenger locomotives.

One of his prized possessions is a letter written in 1906 by the then superintendent of the Belleville division, complimenting him on the safe handling of the locomotive which carried Field Marshal Earl Kitchener of Khartoum and party. On other occasions, Mr. Walden has "throttled" engines that have been carrying the late Duke of Connaught and Lord Byng of Vimy.

Started at Montreal

It was way back in 1907, when Mr. Walden left the family farm for and got a job with the former Grand Trunk Railway in its Montreal yards, but soon felt the lure of the "road" was too strong and he started in the "line" where he "signed on" as a fireman. Three years on the business end of a shovel and he was classified as an engineer.

Came World War 1 and Jim Walden's services as an engineer enlisted with the 24th Battalion C.E.F. and spent four years overseas, two of them in France. He served in several major engagements, including Vimy Ridge, and after the Battle of Vimy Ridge was decorated with the Military Medal. He returned to Canada with the rank of sergeant and immediately returned to his job with the railway.

Fired for Year

He went back as a fireman, but it was only a year before he was back as an engineer. From then until 1936 he "engineered" all kinds of trains running in this division. In 1936 he was sent to Niagara Falls with the transfer service, where he remained until the time of his retirement.

In the city over the weekend, Mr. Walden was tendered a birthday party on Sunday evening at the home of his son, Mr. Roy Walden and Mrs. Walden, West Moira Street. A handsome birthday cake formed the event, with the guest of honor was the recipient of many gifts from relatives and members of the family, including, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Walden, Mr. and Mrs. Larry Madelines Meagher, and Miss Florence Walden. Flight Sergeant Ron Walden, RCAF, Camp Borden, and Miss Dorothy Walden were not able to attend.

Mr. Walden plans to take a well-deserved holiday immediately following his retirement. He intends to continue to reside in Niagara, Falls.

Davison, William Grills, Alfred MacDonnell, J. F. Darlington, John Shannon and Philip Smith.

LATE WALTER A. ISTEAD

Hornsby conducted the service in the chapel and also the last rites at Belleville Cemetery.

The bearers were Walter Aselstine, Earl Vickery, Larry Brown, Gordon Craig, Lyle Storms and Harry Moorman.

LATE JOHN W. EMERSON

The funeral of the late John W. Emerson took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home on Saturday to Moira United Church for service. This was conducted by Rev. Morley Carlee, who also said the last rites at Thomasburg Cemetery. During the service Mrs. Donald Holdcroft sang "Beyond the Sunset" as a solo.

The L.O.L. No. 251 conducted a service at the graveside under the direction of the Master, Graham C. Mouck, assisted by Archie Sinclair and Thomas Emerson.

The bearers were Nelson Wells, Percy Cooney, Donald McInroy, James Vanderwater, Clayton Vanderwater and Fred Regensburg.

Two Injured In 3-Car Crash At Cannifton

In a rear-end collision at Cannifton in which three vehicles were involved two Belleville persons suffered injury late Saturday afternoon and were treated at Belleville General Hospital. Maxwell Turner, Everett Street suffered a gash in his forehead requiring seven stitches to close, while Leona Reynolds, Station Street, suffered a cut in her leg and a bruised foot.

The Turner car was the third of three vehicles proceeding on No. 37 near Cannifton, when the last vehicle slowed to make a turn. Unable to stop in time the second vehicle bumped into the first truck, while Turner crashed into the second vehicle causing considerable damage to his car.

Both the injured persons were allowed to proceed to their homes after treatment at the hospital.

The accident at Cannifton was one of a series of minor crashes which occurred over the weekend on provincial highway 2. Thurlow crossing at the east end of the CNR yards in which considerable damage resulted to one vehicle. There were no injuries. Provincial Constable Tasker investigated both mishaps.

$1,500 Damage By House Fire In Thurlow Twp.

More than $1,500 damage was done by fire to a home belonging to Mr. A. Sarginson, just outside the city limits on Saturday evening. The home is located at 272 E. Moira Street in Thurlow township, and was discovered by neighbors. Entombed in the inside of the house and its contents.

The Sarginsons had gone to a movie, and were called from the theatre when a neighbor turned in the alarm to firemen. Fire Chief Gerald Vance said this morning that the fire had gained great headway by the time his men got to the scene, but they were able to save the house. All the contents were ruined, and the windows and inside sheeting were burned out. The roof of the home suffered no damage.

Fire is believed to have been caused by a defective chimney. Sarginson had no insurance on either the house or contents.

On two other runs, firemen extinguished a chimney fire at the corner of Sidney and College Streets with no damage, and attended a back playhouse on 164 Pleasant Road. It suffered a conflagration. Both runs were made yesterday.

Weather Warmer With Some Rain After Cold Snap

The unpredictable weather man had another change of heart over the weekend, sending mercury temperatures soaring to near-spring temperatures.

Over a period of forty - eight hours the temperature leaped 57 degrees from 15 below zero on Saturday to 37 degrees above zero on Sunday afternoon.

A winter - weary populace shivering in frosty temperatures on Saturday awakened today to slushy watery streets as the weather did an abrupt about-face.

Water ran down gutters and collected sidewalks presented danger hazards before sanding operations got under way.

And it looks as though the mild weather will be around for a day or so since the weather man predicts "mild with rain" for tomorrow.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 12—(CP)—Massey-Harris, Ltd., dipped $2.50 to 361 on the Toronto Stock Exchange today on announcement that a five-for-one split is planned for its shares, subject to approval of shareholders.

It was announced that the new shares would be put on a quarterly dividend basis of 17½ cents a share. This is equal to $2.50 a year on the present shares as compared to the $2 they have been paying. But in view of the fact that the old shares last year paid an extra dividend of $3, the new rate apparently didn't come up, to the expectations of some traders.

Consolidated Smelters, another stock rumored for a stock split, advanced $4.50 today, but following the Massey-Harris news, dropped back for a net gain of $3. C. P. R. which controls Smelters got a rise which was trimmed to $1.50.

Steels were strong and most of them ahead. Liquors were strong with Distiller-Seagrams up $1.50.

In the base metals International Nickel and Noranda were ahead fractionally; Patrick gained 40 cents and Steep Rock 15.

Western oils were mostly ahead. Golds were quiet. Rlefurne added 25 cents and MacLeod five cents.

Income Tax Case Against Three District Men Opens

Disposition in the income tax conspiracy case against Fred. S. James of Belleville and Roy Taylor of Madoc, officials of the Canada Talc Company, at Madoc, will be made by Magistrate Wills at 11 o'clock Tuesday.

This morning the two men pleaded guilty to conspiracy involving the defrauding of the income tax department of an amount of approximately $50,000 from the years 1940 to 1947.

Mr. E. J. S. Wallwork of Belleville, accountant for the mining company, is also charged with conspiracy, but declined to plead and the preliminary hearing this afternoon was adjourned until March 5th, at request of Crown Prosecutor George B. Harvey, stated that Mr. James and Mr. Taylor would be called as Crown witnesses against Mr. Wallwork.

Other Intractions Charged

The three men are also charged with a number of infractions of the income tax act, as to whether or not these cases are proceeded with is dependent on the disposition of the conspiracy charge. Senator Salter Hayden is appearing as counsel for Mr. James and Mr. Taylor.

Mr. McKibond, investigator with the Toronto office of the income tax department testified that between the years 1940 and 1947 the Canada Talc Company had made payments and cash transfers to the amount of Mr. Wallwork to the amount of $119,150. The monies were then charged back against the company in the form of purchases and expense accounts, but of the above amount $116,000 had not been spent.

The investigator said that an agreement Mr. Wallwork paid two-thirds of the amount back to Mr. James and Mr. Taylor and retained one third for himself.

Reduced Taxable Income

The effect of these arrangements was to reduce the taxable income of the company by approximately $93,377 which resulted in a tax reduction of $56,499.

He added that the $116,000 taken from the company and split three ways was not shown in the personal incomes of the three men.

Investigation into the matter had been commenced in 1947 when the company moved many transfers to Mr. Wallwork which were not substantiated. The necessary information had been received by the department only in May 1950. Mr. James and Mr. Taylor had shown the department co-operation in giving the information it was stated.

Prior to commencement of this morning's proceedings the Canada Talc had made a full adjustment of their income tax with the department and Mr. James and Mr. Taylor had also paid back to the company the money transferred to Mr. Wallwork.

Asked to Make Audit

Mr. H. W. Gilmour, accountant with the public accounting firm of Clarkes and Gordon, Montreal, said that in May, 1950, his firm had been asked by Mr. James and Mr. Taylor to make a complete audit of the Canada Talc Company books.

His firm had been told by Mr. James and Mr. Taylor to do everything possible to ascertain the correct amount owing by the company in income tax. A complete audit of the company's books had been made dating from the inception of the company in 1937 this showing that $118,763 had been paid in income tax. Still outstanding in additional tax and interest resulting from the investigation had been $165,738.

Some Exemptions not Claimed

Against this his firm had found many items of company business such as depreciation, depletion of mine, and audit and accounting fees which had not been claimed as exemptions.

The over-all situation was that an assessment of $210,000 had been agreed upon by the Department and by the mining firm, this being felt a "fair settlement." The additional sum in excess of the $118,000 previous paid in tax had not been paid by the company.

Three character witnesses were called by Defence counsel. These included George S. White, of Madoc, M.P. for Hastings Peterborough, who appeared on behalf of Mr. Taylor, and Donald Baxter, Bloomfield, M.P.P. for Prince Edward County, and P. C. McGuire of Belleville, who appeared on behalf of Mr. James.

Four Killed, 22 Believed Buried in Slide

Airolo, Switzerland, Feb. 12 — (AP) — At least four persons were killed and 22 others were believed buried by avalanches which crashed into two villages in southeast Switzerland last night.

Continuous snowfall in the area renewed the threat of slides in the section where 75 persons were killed by avalanches in a single weekend last month. Many villages previously hit were again being evacuated.

One avalanche early today hit Airolo, at the southern entrance of the St. Gotthard tunnel. Four bodies and five persons still alive were dug from the ruins of their homes. At least six persons were believed still buried. Little hope was held for them.

At Fraseo, a hamlet 20 miles north of Locarno, rescuers dug out 10 of the 16 persons half the population — buried by a giant avalanche.

The Airolo disaster cut the rail line through the St. Gothard Pass one of the principal railroad lines between Italy and Central Europe.

The slide crashed down on the village in the early 5:30 minutes, on a 200-yard front. A wall of snow, 30 feet high, blocked the main road to the village, hindering access to the buried victims.

Airolo was partly evacuated last week because of avalanche danger. Two days ago the danger was believed to have passed and the inhabitants were permitted to return to their homes.

Need for Revival Stressed by Speaker

A combined meeting of the Christ's Ambassadors of Frankford Full Gospel Church, and Grace Chapel, Belleville, was held in the basement of the new church on Friday night with a large number in attendance. The entire program was conducted by the Frankford young people.

Under the capable chairmanship of Miss Vivian Wood the visiting group presented a varied and interesting program, with a challenging message given by the Frankford president, Mr. Carl Andrews.

Several numbers played by the youth orchestra were well received. The quartet, comprised of Reg. Solmes, Ray Walker, Doreen Orr and Vivian Wood, sang "For Me Ye Live is Christ", A violin solo, "The Stranger of Galilee" was played by Miss Juanita Fox and Miss Mary Elliott was heard in a vocal solo, "A Closer Walk." A service of testimonies and choruses was led by Mr. Lonzo Reilly.

"No matter where you go these ing and talking about revival," said Mr. Andrews in his address. "Some people ask, 'why do we need a revival? We are living the best we know how. Why do we want to get all stirred up?' We need a revival because the time is short and Christ is coming soon," affirmed the speaker. "Another way is about to be ushered upon us and our young men need God."

"It is our responsibility as Christ's Ambassadors to lead others to Christ. A revival has to start in ourselves. If we obey God we will have one. Jesus wants us to yield up our whole lives to Him. When we let God have full control, He is bound to use us. God wants young people to be on fire for Him in these days.

Bail has been set at $500.

Dies of Wound Caused by Bullet

Englehart, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP)—Police said today they are seeking a decision from Crown Attorney W. H. Walter on whether a charge will be laid in connection with the death Saturday night of Daniel Wright, 24-year-old husband.

Wright died some 40 minutes after a bullet ripped through his chest following a gun-swinging fight between his brother Albert, 29, and Bertram William Tardif, 55, in the latter's farm home about 10 miles from here.

No arrests have been made.

Les Bates, a teamster hired by Tardif and a witness to the fracas, said Daniel Wright likely was shot when he tried to pull the rifle barrel from under his brother and Tardif who were struggling on the floor.

Tardif said he had used the rifle to try to fend off an attack by Albert Wright, but dropped it in the fight. He said the fight started over an argument involving $15 he owed Daniel Wright for a log cutting job. He said that Daniel, himself, had not attacked him.

An inquest will be held, with Dr. J. F. Edis, of Swastika, near Kirkland Lake, presiding. The date has yet to be set.

Police Called to Scene

Police were called by telephone from a neighboring farm by Lawrence Vickery, about 25. Vickery told them he drove Daniel Wright and his brother from Englehart to the Tardif farm. The brothers claimed Tardif owed them money for cutting timber. Vickery said he stayed outside the farmhouse while the Wright brothers went in to see the Tardif.

Police said the Wrights and Tardif got into an argument. Vickery told them he was about to go into the house when Daniel Wright staggered past him. Daniel was helped back into the house, where he died a few minutes later.

Tardif told reporters the Wright brothers had started to beat and abuse him. He said he took a rifle from the wall "as a gesture of self-defence". He said Albert Wright grappled with him, they fell to the floor, and while they scuffled, the rifle was discharged. The bullet struck Daniel Wright, who was standing nearby.

Winnipeg-Born Pianist Scores London Triumph

London, Feb. 12 — (CP) — Ross Pratt, Winnipeg-born concert pianist, scored a resound personal triumph last night when he appeared as soloist with the London Symphony Orchestra.

Playing before a capacity crowd of 6,000 in Albert Hall, Canadian was accorded a roaring ovation for his stirring rendition of Tchaikovsky's Concerto in Flat Minor. He was recalled 6 times by his enthusiastic listeners. Even members of the orchestra joined in applauding the Winnipegger's fine technique and polished performance.

It was Pratt's first appearance as soloist in Albert Hall; while many of the world's leading artists have scored their great triumphs. The Canadian pianist, however, is no newcomer to London. He completed his music studies at the Royal Academy of Music, made his début at historic Wigmore Hall and last year gave the first performance in England of the Richard Arnell concerto with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

WINNING BATTLE OVER T.B.

Health Minister Martin holds before Canadians the possibility that it is hope that tuberculosis may be virtually banished from Canada in the next half-century. Today the death rate from this disease in Canada is the third-lowest in the world. Such progress as has been accomplished is the ground for the encouragement that the final state of a nation without this dread malady will be achieved.

Mr. Martin related in Ottawa that 1949 statistics showed only Denmark and the United States have a lower rate of death due to this disease.

The present rate in the Dominion is 30 per 100,000 population. Fifty years ago the rate was 200 per 100,000 population or nearly seven times as great as the present figures.

Health departments and various organizations are doing a fine work in reducing the incidence of this disease. Older citizens remember those days when the number of deaths from this disease was far greater. They can appreciate what the labor of organizations and of doctors succeeded in doing in saving so many lives from this dreaded disease.

Organized health bodies have achieved a great deal in the past few decades in raising the life expectancy far beyond what it used to be. Not only the professional men are interested and taking a great share in the work of eliminating causes of disease and illness but the public generally has become vitally interested.

APPLYING NATURE'S PRINCIPLE

Everyone has noticed the value of the cat's whiskers. The feline has from its earliest ages used the whisker. The cat's life makes the use of this sign nature's intelligence still of use in this twentieth century.

Now according to the Manchester Guardian, man is thinking of applying the cat's whisker principle to the motorcar to prevent accidents.

"Motor cars, it appears, can now be equipped with a sort of cat's-whisker device which sets out a little to the front and rear and give a warning buzz to the driver if he touches anything when he is parking or backing in a confined space. It is evidently all done by kindness; even if he is not specially worried about other people's cars the driver will be glad of this gadget will think twice about damaging the sensitive antennae attached to his own vehicle. He will pussy-foot his way into a tight corner with the cat's-whisker buzzing — or purring — approval at his delicacy of touch. And if something like the same sensitive mood of approach can be extended from the parking-place to the open road there may be timid pedestrians who will also have reason to purr. Perhaps one day there will be a super-cat's-whisker which will operate like radar at longer distances and shout "Go slow!" to the careless driver."

EVERYTHING BUT STILTS

History is sometimes shaped indirectly by unforeseen and comparatively trifling circumstances.

Unripe food, which Napoleon's staff destroyed many of their stomachs by eating, is said to have foredoomed his invasion of Russia in its early stages. A heavy rain, which fell a few hours before Waterloo, is also stated to have worked to the disadvantage of the Little General in that strategy. The historians can point to numerous such incidents.

Such a simple thing as the recent tour of a Russian basketball team in China was not without its impact on international relations and appears, indeed, to have opened wider the almond-shaped eyes of the Chinese people. They have discovered that the Stalinists will play ball, yes, but only on their own terms as usual and strictly in conformity to the one-sided conception of what the Marxist code should be.

Much to the objections of the Chinese teams, athletic officials and sport fans in general, the Russians insisted that their rules prevail. This display of self-engrossment gave the visiting Muscovites all the breaks at the outset because the Chinese are used to playing by the orthodox rules observed in most countries where the game is engaged in.

The referee was a Russian official for all games, and when more than a few of his decisions were booed by the spectators, the latter were reminded over a loudspeaker, in a hissing accent, to exhibit the etiquette of international courtesy. Three members of the Russia team stood more than six feet in height and one is reported to have been six feet, eight inches tall — merely the long arm of coincidence, comrades. What occasioned surprise among the Chinese was that Stalin's players didn't use stilts.

The Russians won every game, of course, in the Moscow view of it the tour was an overwhelming success and again pointed to the supremacy of the communist pattern of life. But the visitors left a bad taste in the mouths of the Chinese masses, particularly as the Russians, by way of a crowning insult, issued an analytical statement by which they presumed to tell the Chinese what was wrong with their games!

Just how much of Moscow's distortion and nauseating self-concern is a duped people expected to take before they see the light? — Hamilton Spectator.

HAPPINESS

We talk of happiness as though
'Twas something all were born to know,
Yet, there is neither code nor law
By which is pleasure guaranteed,
All happiness must come from carved;
From courage to withstand despair;
The happiest man I've ever met
Had just discharged a heavy debt.

The desert flowerless will remain
Without the fall of snow and rain.
That life would be a barren one
The sun forever shone
upon.

That happiness we seek is won
By burdens borne and duties done.
By meeting troubles undis-
mayed
And debts assumed and fully paid.

Since then he has made steady headway and he is today one of the best known ball players in Canada. He received recently an offer of $125 per month to play with the Bay City, Mich., team, but turned it down in favor of an offer from New Orleans, La., and he expects to leave for that city next week. Belleville friends will follow his career in the city with interest.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The finest way to travel in the whole world is not by airplane. Not by ocean ship, with the tiresome tumbling sea. Not by Packard or Cadillac, and you lolling in the back seat with a cigar. Not even on foot, with old good boots, a stick, and a pocket-full of stale bread.

No, sir; the best way in the world to travel is in the cupola for a caboose.

Caboosers are usually on the tail end of freight, but the cupola I like is that small turret with windows that rise from the back end. It has seats for two and is reversible iron seats in it, one on each side of the car, set close to the windows that give a view forward, sideways and to the rear. There iron seats are comfortably cushioned.

They need to be because a freight train is not as rolling a ride as you would get on a Pullman. But if you don't find the comfort you want, a caboose is not pots of a caboose.

But if you want to see the world and all that is in it, then the cupola on a freight's caboose is a ringside seat. You can see more of it as that than you could be travelling by any other means than the deck of a ship, from which you see next to nothing, save a limited variety of horsehaggers, or by flying, from which you can see nothing but a map.

Aloft in the caboose, you have a panorama. You look down into fields and woods. Creatures like rabbit or fox that flee shyly from the passing train you detect in the background from your perch. There is just enough elevation to give you a view of, were, of farms. And you have a birdseye view of the villages and hamlets through which you pass, not racing, as in a passenger train, but rocking along at a spectator pace. The action of a freight is something like that of an elephant.

And that is why you feel like a rajah, when you ride in the cupola of a caboose.

to cheer up the "old man," by encouraging the giving of suitable gifts.

G. H. Redfern, secretary of the new association, admits the idea is primarily designed to boost sales. Subscribers, he said, are mainly manufacturers of articles fathers might welcome, such as pipes, pen and propelling pencils.

"There is no humbug about this association," Mr. Redfern said. "The idea is to devote one day each year to the interests and welfare of fathers. But I am not saying that we will all go to church on Father's Day."

Pop's day will likely be the last Sunday in June.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

(This is the last in a series of columns on how people are coping with the cost of living.)

Seems obvious that a great many people have been long and serious thought to the cause and effect of high prices. For the past three days we've been looking the individual cases, most of them selected because they were typical. Now let's examine some of the thoughts and reflections of folks from all walks of life:

How are people getting along under present conditions? — inquires Mrs. J. P., of Peterborough. "Well, one method is being used and is increasing at a rapid pace. How many loan companies are operating in Toronto? I do not know, but in Montreal there are more than 30 and new branch offices are being opened almost every week. Loan companies do not do business except with those who are steadily employed. Consequently, it is obvious that the great number of applicants for loans are using the money to meet their obligations out of income. Present spending is largely being done on a credit basis."

"Do you know why so many people feel hard done by these days?" asks Mrs. M. G., of Peterborough. "It is because during the war most of us became accustomed to a higher standard of living than we were used to and now we holler when we have to lower it a notch. It's terrible to have to budget, but for most of us 'the good old days' were the way years."

"There is one saving grace in all this," writes Mr. A. H. G. of Vancouver. "Although we are hard on the parents, a home can be made and kept happy on a very limited income. It was that way in our home and I'm sure that's the way most think first and last of our children."

* * *

"It's what happens in the homes that I like," writes Mrs. B. of Vancouver. "A great many mothers are being forced to take full or part-time work to stretch out the family income. That is my own solution and I, in turn, employ a woman to take my place at home. She has several children and I make over some of the clothes them. It often strikes me as ironical that we have a Prime Minister who is trying to value family life above all else, yet under his administration families are being wrecked and disrupted by economic pressures as never before."

"The trouble, as I see it, is very simple," opines Mr. G., of Victoria, "but never are we getting softer and fatter."

Labor is well able to protect its interests and to insist upon its rights by means of its own organizations," writes M. L., of Vancouver. "The so-called white collar class is the problem class. ment!"

I see an advertisement for an accountant to act as office manager for $350 per month. That is about equal to the pay of a Montreal bus or streetcar operator who is regarded as being qualified only by unusual instruction. So far as a normal and really satisfactory life is concerned, it looks as if that condition need not be expected by the white-collar worker. We are exploited in rents and food, the two prime necessities, to the extent that nothing is left for anything else. How do we get along? I don't know, but I often marvel."

George K., of Brandon, writes: "The problem is simple. A constantly growing part of Canada's production goes to war and war preparations. All this is financed by creeping inflation, or in plain language, wages are lagging more and more behind the cost of living. Right now there is one answer to all our problems: 'Peace!'"

"While everything, including newspapers, costs more, the purchasing power of money has greater value or service than before," writes A. L., of Ottawa. "An egg at one cent is a better average of food value, no more or less, as one at five cents. Life insurance of enterprise is providing no compensation. All bakers, barbers and hairdressers have increased themselves on the fixed price that will prevail in that area. The only visible improvement is that we have one or two on the small retail level and has no relation to cost as a whole."

"It is a constant puzzle to me who are the people who can make the down payments of hundreds of dollars on automobiles, radios, all the refrigerators, electric stoves, furniture, furs and jewelery," writes Mrs. M. S., of Toronto. "Obviously a large public must do so or else the advertising would not appear in the trade. When I see properties being bought for $25,000 to $30,000 and more, automobiles at $3000 and hotel accommodation at $15 to $25 a day, I marvel at the ease in which some make expenses. There is evidently a pot of gold at the foot of some rainbow in Canada. It is one that has never appeared to my sight or to that of millions of others. Economics is a great study if you can bear the strain."

"It sounds selfish, but I think the worst effect of today's prices is what it has done to the fun out of life," writes Mrs. W. H. M., of Ottawa. "The zest for living half disappeared from the eyes of many of our friends and they have become resigned to the passing from existence of one go to ridiculous lengths to find outside interests. My husband, for example, joined the reserve battalion of the unit with which he served overseas. For patriotism? No. For entertain-

Mackenzie's Column: 'Colombo Plan' Aims to Better Living Conditions

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

This is the day set for an organizational meeting in Colombo, Ceylon, on the ambitious "Colombo Plan" for co-operation by British Commonwealth countries for development of poverty - ridden countries of South and Southeast Asia.

The United States has agreed to participate in this project, which aims at bettering the condition of the "underprivileged" — about a quarter of all humanity — who live in this important area. Untold millions of them are living in hovels with nothing but bamboo and other deprivations.

The plan was devised by Commonwealth countries of South and Southeast Asia in co-operation with Canada, Australia, New Zealand and the United Kingdom. Already in the plan are Ceylon, India, Pakistan, Burma, Singapore, North Borneo, Brunei and Sarawak. Also invited are Indonesia and Siam.

All these countries lie in that vast Asiatic theatre which has become a vital battle ground between communism and the democracies. It is fertile soil for new developments with promise, even if a little easement of the suffering populations.

Despite the humanitarian aspects of the project, it calls for skilful handling. It likely will evoke a communist cry of "western imperialism," and some of the basic ideas of the plan's sponsors will be to assure the countries concerned that it isn't in any way calculated to interfere with "Asia for the Asiatics."

Lies in Hunter Belt

The countries included in the Colombo plan produce most of the world's jute and rubber, a third of the tea and more than half the rice of the globe's tin. There are, of course, many other commodities produced, but this area in general lies in the hunger belt.

It is a matter of fate that the population increase in much of this area far exceeds the increase in production. This projects a peculiar problem, because improvement in living depends on the ability to lower the death rate and thus further increase the population. Obviously, this is a problem that only time can solve.

Essentially, the question of birth-control has cropped up in the discussions, but that is a subject which the Asiatic experts promptly sidestep. There are religious objections to birth control, and some Asiatic peoples don't take kindly to the idea, quite apart from religious reasons.

However, the possibility of over-population in the future is not stopping the Colombo plan. It envisages a comprehensive and great transformation of the area in question. It proposes among other things it is planned to get 13,000,000 more acres of land under cultivation, 50,000,000 more 000,000 more tons of food grains.

The Colombo plan projects that a large part of the cost of the project will fall on the governments of the countries to be helped. But certain own contribution is likely to be well over $10,000,000, of which co-operation will include so far as possible the co-ordination of the various programs in line with the Commonwealth and the United Nations.

THE RH FACTOR AND THE EXPECTANT MOTHER

In a previous article I discussed the disease — fetal erythroblastosis — resulting from a conflict between specific blood factors of mother and unborn child.

Judging by the number of inquiries I get in the mail, it seems that the public has been somewhat alarmed by various reports on this disease published in the press. In view of the fact that the disease occurs only once in every 1500 or 2000 births, and that only about half died shortly after birth, the doctor looked grave and muttered, "It's serious." What else could he do? In recent years the true nature and cause of erythroblastosis fetalis have been disclosed and no longer does the doctor have to mutter about it.

The doctor wish is referring to the possibility of conflict between the Rh factor of mother and unborn baby when he says, "Take advantage of several tests to indicate the necessity for appropriate protective measures." Early in pregnancy the doctor first determines the blood group of the patient and, in some circumstances, the blood groups of the husband — and children, if any. This is necessary in the matter of transfusions the expectant mother may require previously had. He subjects the mother's blood to certain tests for antibodies and later on under these tests repeated two or three times at regular intervals.

A month or two after delivery, he may again order certain tests to determine the possibility of future pregnancies. He may decide on the basis of these tests — to induce labor a few weeks in advance of the normal time, to lessen the hazard to mother and baby. He may subject the new baby to an immediate blood examination in preparation for possible blood transfusion to the baby.

93 per cent of the cases of erythroblastosis fetalis are born of Rh negative mothers. However, 7 per cent occur in babies born of Rh positive mothers because of the deficiency in the mother's blood of other important factors.

Treatment of erythroblastosis by replacement of blood — drawing off large amounts of the baby's blood and replacement with corresponding amounts of compatible blood — has been effective. Recently, a method which seems to be an improvement on this procedure has been used with success. This consists in using concentrated red blood cells" — cells which have been permitted to "settle" or sink to the fluid portion of the blood of the donor. These cells are drawn into a syringe with just sufficient plasma to enable them to float and injected directly into the baby's blood stream. The total volume of the transfusion is much less than in using whole blood, together with the plasma, and the amount of plasma injected with the concentrated cells is too small to be of any consequence. The object in this procedure is to escape the possibility of injecting significant quantities of destroying blood factor which might be present in the plasma.

Much of this is a far cry from the days when little was known of the peculiar and complex nature of the blood of individuals. I do not consider the prospective mother to be overly concerned unduly apprehensive, who, having some knowledge of this disease seeks the best care available — at the risk of being considered "fussy."

Fried Pork Skins

How many calories are there in fried pork skins? Fifteen pounds overweight, but I do crave these pork skins. (Mrs. R. H.)

Answer — Any part of the pig but the lean is high in calories, dammit. It isn't what you eat but rather how much of it and how often you eat it that matters. TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIFTERS AND LEANERS

A friend of mine once said to me that there are two kinds of people — lifters and leaners. In other words there are those who keep giving out something and those who keep taking without any return.

There is nothing that makes life so much worth while as the encouragement to someone else. To inspire and uplift another human being, from lifting another. What you then take is the returning satisfaction though you get nothing else to return. The taker and leaner get no such satisfaction.

Nothing counts for success more than the ability to stand upon one's own legs, live one's own life resourceful, and acquiring the habit of initiative. The leaner discards such things and so he remains a leaner paving his way to failure for which he blames others and circumstances.

History tells a great deal about lifters and leaners, among individuals and nations. A nation cannot long lean too much upon the resources of other nations nor indeed upon its own people, nor can that nation long maintain its position which does not lean too much upon it.

Parents children and talked about our forefathers as rugged individuals. They were that, but because they were people who stood on their own legs, asked few favors of anyone, developed their own resources and took pride in their free independence of thought. They were men and women of character. They leaned upon no one. They planted the seeds in this western world that flower to this day.

Nowadays the leaners are in the minority in every community. I can think of no better idea for a sermon for a young of today than this: Lift — don't lean!

Strength for the Day

WEALTH OF CHILDHOOD

When Michael Faraday was a small boy, he worked and lived under conditions of poverty. When he grew to young manhood, he went to work for a bookbinder, and being brought in contact for the first time with books, encyclopedia, he read many of the articles. Those on electricity particularly fascinated him, and he made notes and later performed interesting experiments with crude apparatus he set up in his home.

It happened about that time that the great physicist Sir Humphrey Davy gave a lecture in London. Young Faraday attended the lecture and at the close of the lecture he called with Davy and showed him the notes he had made. Davy immediately recognized the fact that he had found a genius. In later years the wonderful physicist declared that the greatest discovery he ever made was Faraday.

"The world is full of genius and sometimes it requires a telescope or microscope to think to look for it. No one would have believed in my youth that a poverty stricken home on the second floor of a livery stable would have come the distinguished Faraday, any more than anyone could have believed 20 years ago that out of a humble frontier home would come the great leader which Lincoln later proved to be.

The wealth of a nation abides in the treasures of its people, and no wealth is so great as the wealth of his childhood.

Shah of Iran Weds Daughter Of Tribal Chief

By ROBERT R[illegible]

Tehran, Iran, F[illegible] (AP)—The Shah of Iran [illegible] boomed out the news of the Shah's wedding today to lovely Soraya Esfandiari, 19-year-old granddaughter of a once-rebellious Persian tribal chief.

Seated before two chief Mullahs, Iran's highest religious leaders, the once-divorced Shah and his European-educated, half-German bride were wed in a simple Moslem ceremony at Marmara Palace.

By order of the Shah, the traditional splendor of Persian court fetes was lacking in the celebration of the wedding. Iranian flags flying over snow-covered streets and a prancing squadron of Lancers provided the only spots of color as the new queen's limousine carried her to the palace for the ceremony.

The Shah, 32-year-old Mohammed Reza Pahlevi, waited at the palace while his sisters, Princess Ashraf and Princess Chams, escorted the bride to the wedding scene.

Two small daughters of court functionaries held the train train of Soroyo's silver-lame wedding gown as she walked up the palace corridor to the Shah's study, where the ceremony took place.

A few moments later, the royal newlyweds emerged and walked into the glittering halls of mirrors to receive foreign diplomats and high government officials. Only members of the royal family, relatives of the bride and a few dignitaries were present at the ceremony itself.

Sickness-Riddled Pappas Bills Drop First to Peterborough 65-46

Saturday night at the Belleville Collegiate Pappas Billiards bowed to the Peterborough Outboard Marines 65-46 in the first of a home and home total points to crown series, for further rights in the Ontario Intermediate "B" playdowns. The local squad was handicapped as Bill Spafford sick with bronchitis; John Batchelor, broken hand; Bill Muirhead chest illness; and Merle Masser who was attending the music festival in Kingston, were absent from the regular Pappas lineup. In spite of the hard luck in sickness, the Belleville boys put up a good showing and managed to keep the Petes win down to 19 points. The final basketball tangle is staged at Peterborough next Saturday night.

From the first whistle the locals had tough luck and inaccurate shooting on their scoring chances gave Peterborough a good chance to dominate the first quarter. After a fast, hard fought 10 minutes Peterborough carried a lead of seven points. Summers of the locals was retired from the game when he ran into the wall after making a wonderful basket, but was able to return and share in the scoring honors. Plato and Thorburn with 7 and 5 points respectively headed the Petes scoring list. Score 18-11.

Improve in Second

The second quarter showed some improvement on the locals behalf at the first of the performance as they topped the 5 points it. the sudden spurt, but the pressure and speed could not be kept up and gradually the Marines took over. The Bills suffered still another loss in this quarter when Dave Lockyer left the game with five fouls. Thorburn, nicknamed "little fellow" sparked the out-of-towners with 13 points while Lloyd Faulkner hit for six points for the Bellevillians. After the smoke had blown away the Petes scoring sheet was longer by 17 points.

The third quarter proved as tough going as the previous quarters for the locals, as they attempted to put up a good showing. The Petes were able to walk away with the glory of the third with their accurateness in shooting and extra pressure. Plato and Thorburn continued to lead the Petes scoring with six points each while Faulkner came through with six points for the Billiards. The score at three quarters time gave the Peterborough squad a 22 point lead.

Adding to the hard luck. Summers, of the Bills, went to the showers with his limit of fouls in the first minutes of the final quarter. The game was definitely in the Petes hands, so the Bills attempted to narrow the lead down as much as possible. Sparked by Faulkner and Ketcheson the lead which just reached a 25 point high was gradually cut down to the 19 points of the end of the game. The locals put across the Petes 14-12 in the final which indicated that they have definitely a chance to beat their opponents in next Saturdays tangle. Payne took top scoring honors for the visitors with 6 points.

Stiff work-outs will be on the Pappas Billiard schedule for the week so that they will be in tiptop shape for their attempt to stay in the playdowns. It is hoped that they will be back in full strength next Saturday.

Lineups:

Petes—Payne 7; Kidd 3; Thompson 4; Plato 18; Tyrin; MacPherson 8; Dadson 1; Thorburn 24.

Pappas—Faulkner 21; Ketcheson 3; Summers 8; Lockyer 2; Garrow 2; Scrymgour; Muirhead 1; Watkin 4; Dudley; Pappas 2.

Snow Heralds Wedding of Iran's Shah

Tehran, Iran, Feb. 12 (AP) — A soft snowfall cast a blanket of white — symbol of purity and Persian good luck — over Iran's capital today as the handsome young Shah waited in his palace to wed the lovely daughter of a Persian tribal leader.

Iranians looked on the "white wedding" as a good omen for the 22-year-old Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi and his 18-year-old bride, Soraya Esfandiari. They will be married at 4 p. m. (7:30 a. m. EST) in a simple ceremony to Marmara Palace.

Only members of the Royal Family, the brides relatives and a few government officials and dignitaries will be present in the Shah's study for the Moslem ceremony read by two chief Mullahs.

After the half-hour ceremony, the couple will go to the famed Hall of Mirrors in Marmara Palace for many felicitations from foreign diplomats and ranking government officials.

Excitement Lacking

There has been a strange lack of excitement in Tehran over the fete. Even Soraya, European-educated daughter of a Persian tribal leader and a German mother, was reported by court intimates to have been unconcerned over the ceremony which was to make her Empress of Iran.

The serious - minded Shah, deeply concerned with international affairs and social unrest and poverty in his country, ordered celebrations stripped of the customary thrills and limited to one day.

The only signs of festivity in Tehran were streamers of bunting on the city hall and Gulistan Palace, and little white and green neon lights set atop poles on the main thoroughfare.

The snow fitted into the color scheme for the wedding. The court ordered women guests to wear gowns of white or light colors. Dark colors were banned as a symbol of bad luck.

Tonight 150 guests will dine at a state dinner in Gulistan Palace. Later the Royal couple will appear at a reception of 2,000 persons.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Bakers blew horns in the 14th century when their bread had finished baking.

The blowing of the bakers' horns certainly shows that life wasn't completely crude. They were sensitive souls who realized that a loaf of fresh bread was an event of public importance.

Unfortunately too many modern bread eaters confuse softness with freshness. As long as a loaf is pliant, spongy and slightly moist, they are satisfied with the product. They seem never to have heard of French or Italian bread with its golden crust that shatters rather than bends.

While rural homemakers still bake their own yeast bread, townsfolk prefer the convenience of baker's bread.

So-called quick loaf breads are made with baking powder, and are really a kind of muffin, baked in a loaf pan. They are somewhat sweet like a muffin, and are at their best when sliced by firm but crumbly. Cranberries and orange rind are a tart balance for the sweetness of this quick bread.

Cranberry Quick Bread

1 cup cranberries
1-4 cup orange rind
2 tablespoons grated orange rind
1-2 cup shortening
1-2 cup sugar
1 egg
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Force cranberries through a food chopper. Mix with 1-4 cup sugar and orange rind.

Preheat oven at 350 degrees.

Grease and flour a loaf pan about 9 1-2 inches by 5 1-2 inches.

Shortening should be at room temperature. Mix shortening until smooth. Gradually add 1-2 cup sugar, beating until light and fluffy. Add egg. Beat well.

Measure sifted flour. Sift again with baking powder and salt.

Add the cranberry mixture to the shortening mixture. Add the dry ingredients and the milk alternately to the shortening mixture, beginning and ending with the dry ingredients.

Turn batter into pan and bake 40 to 50 minutes. Loaf is done when it shrinks from sides of the pan and when top is firm when lightly touched.

Cool loaf in pan 15 minutes. Remove and cool on cake rack. Loaf should stand at least 2 or 3 hour before slicing.

Bancroft.—The World Day of Prayer Service" was observed in Bancroft on Friday afternoon, when about 80 women of alldenominations met together in St. Paul's United Church, joint choir was composed of members of the Anglican and United Church choirs, and Mrs. Everett Schram was soloist for the afternoon. Miss M. M. Fools Age-Guesser, Has Simple Formulae

Tampa, Fla., Feb. 12.—(AP)—With a twinkle in his eye Robert A. Early stepped up to the age-guesser at the Florida State Fair and said: "Guess mine."

The barker sized up Early, wrote "81" on a slip of paper.

Early a retired Corbin, Kentucky judge and contractor, is 101.

Ice-Box Acts up

Quebec, Feb. 12—(CP)—Georges Champagne of St. Anselme, in Southshore Dorchester County, got his money back by superior court order yesterday because his ice-box generated heat instead of freezing-temperatures.

Mr. Justice Oscar Boulanger said he thought evidently the testimony is exaggerated" but I ordered the Roy Brothers to return the $275 Champagne had paid.

Says Some Wives Overfeed Hubbies

London, Feb. 12—(AP)— A British dietary expert said today some married men get fat because their wives overfeed them on purpose.

"A 'comfortable' obese male," wrote Dr. A. H. Douthwaite in the British Medical Journal, "is alleged to be easier to live with, and less likely to stray from the path of virtue."

Dr. Douthwaite said such men, because of the added strain on their hearts, are also less likely to live to a ripe old age.

Three Youths Held On Charges of Hold-up Attempts

Galt, Feb. 12 — (CP) — Three youths from Branford's Terrace Hill district — Donald Carpenter, 18, Kenneth Hawley, 17, and Donald Francis, 16 — were arrested last night and charged with the attempted armed hold-up of the refreshment booth of Mrs. John Irwin.

The woman was alone at the time when the trio entered. One produced a gun and demanded money. Mrs. Irwin let out a scream for help and the trio turned and ran out into the street, jumping into an old car, without a car licence.

Galt police were on the scene within three minutes and raced to Branford but found no trace of the gunmen.

Brantford city and provincial police joined in the hunt and set up a road block at Osborne's Corners at intersection of highways No. 5 and No. 8.

The unlicensed car came upon the scene and the trio were arrested.

Police found two .32 loaded revolvers hidden in the car along with a supply of bullets.

The arrests were made less than an hour after the unsuccessful hold-up attempt.

YUGOSLAVIA STILL

Their principal delegate here, however, one-time guerrilla leader Alex Bebler, previously had personally indicted the communist Chinese for their Korean action.

Many in the U.N. do not agree with the Yugoslav's refusal to go to the aid of the lines when the countries they'll have to get help from if Russia tries to crush Tito. But they make these points:

Try for Position

The Tito brand of nationalism has to try for a position of leadership in the communist world.

It tried to get across to the red Chinese and the Korean communists that the Russians were not their only friends in the U.N.

One keen observer of the Balkans in the U.N. adds this comment:

"In addition to trying to convert other communist countries to their brand of communism, the Yugoslavs have a domestic problem. Theirs was the only country in the cominform built up on the personality of one man—Tito. If he falls, the cult of Marx, Lenin, Bolsheviks, some Trotskyists, and converted present day communists may easily fall.

"But if Tito should veer too much to the west, there are large groups inside Yugoslavia that would start hollering for him to restore press freedom, religious and other individual freedoms, abandon land collectivization, do away with other communist institutions.

"That is a strong domestic reason why Tito has to keep on taking a communist position of his own brand in international affairs."

The Yugoslavs know that if Russian satellites, or Russia herself, attack they'll have to ask the U.N. for help.

They know that their forces of mountain fighters would be counted on to play a big role in guaranteeing Mediterranean security, to stop Soviet-bloc forces from turning a Turkish-Greek military wing, to stand in the way of a quick Soviet invasion of Europe by way of Italy.

So they know they have a fair military rating.

That feeds political independence.

B.C., FLOODS TAKE

The number of homeless stood high in the hundreds. B. C. was still without telephone connections early today and the trans-Canada highway was cut.

Water was four or five feet deep in some parts of Chilliwack, a city of 7,000 which was 58 per cent inundated.

Jack Moran, 31 - year - old Chilliwack taxi driver, described the floods this way: "I've never seen so much water in Chilliwack, not even during the Fraser River flood in 1948. This time it takes half the water back. This time it came straight out of the sky."

Two Drowned in Car

The death toll rose to three yesterday near Abbotsford, east of Vancouver, when an automobile slipped into a ditch filled with 7 feet of water.

Two men were drowned, while three other occupants swam to safety. Dead are Wilfred H. Hill, 36, of Vancouver and Remy Maurice De Cosset of Hope.

The first flood victim was Willa Foreman, 70. Her body was found floating in her flooded home at Chilliwack.

The water supply was threatened at Chilliwack, 60 miles east of here. Two of the three streams from which the city takes its supply were contaminated. Buses were unable to bring children from rural areas because of flood-weakened roads and bridges.

While the situation grew serious in the Sumas district, it eased at Princeton, 183 miles east of Vancouver.

One hundred families fled their homes Saturday night when the ice-choked Tulameen and Similkameen rivers spilled over their banks for second time in two weeks.

However, the rivers cut a channel at their confluence yesterday and the waters began to recede. The 83-mile Hope - Princeton highway was reopened.

Move to Higher Ground

Elsewhere, 200 families moved to higher ground in the Sumas area; in Yarrow, where the Vedder River mounted over its banks, about 100 residents were evacuated by truck to Abbotsford; another 15 families quit their homes at Pocum, nine miles east of Chilliwack.

A Canadian Pacific Railway spokesman said last night it was hoped the line could resume traffic some time today. A spokesman for Canadian National Railways wasn't so optimistic and the C. N. R. last night began a Kamloops - to - Vancouver shift to bring stranded passengers to their destinations.

Passengers also will be flown west from Edmonton.

C. N. R. passengers marooned at Hope, about 100 miles east, will have to wait until service is restored. Both transcontinental lines will be stored. Both transcontinental lines ley. About eight trains were halwere cut Friday by mud slides ted short of their destinations.

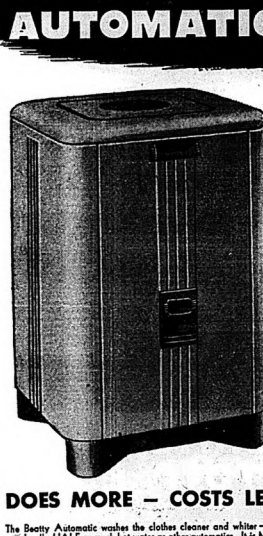
SENSATIONAL NEW MONEY SAVING Beatty AUTOMATIC WASHER



NOW HERE

It washes, it rinses, it damp dries, it pumps the wash water out, cleans itself, shuts itself off — AUTOMATICALLY. You put the clothes in and you take them out — your hands never touch the water.

Here at last is the END of wash day. Because you can put a load of dirty things in any time. Set the control, and RELAX.

It's so simple to operate that even a youngster could run it. Just ONE control to set and the washer does the rest.

A MARVELLOUS INVENTION

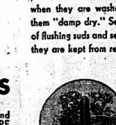
Come in and let us show you the marvellous "HYDROFLEX TUB" which enfolds the clothes when they are washed and rinsed and squeezes them "damp dry." See the "TOPFLOW" method of flushing suds and sediment out through the top so they are kept from resoiling the clothes.

DOES MORE — COSTS LESS

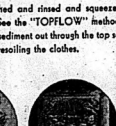
The Beatty Automatic washes the clothes cleaner and whiter — and uses hardly HALF as much hot water as other automatics. It is MORE PRACTICAL in many ways. It does not have to be installed — does not have to be bolted down — it is movable on casters so it can be run in and out of kitchen or bathroom. The cabinet is handsome as any piece of furniture and will "do you proud" in your kitchen.

COMES WITHIN YOUR MEANS

Because of its simple, sound construction, the COST of the new Beatty Automatic has been kept down. It costs less than others. The cost will be greatly reduced by the generous ALLOWANCE we will make for your old washer. And you can spread the balance out in easy monthly terms so low you'll hardly miss the money. Sure you can afford it! You can't afford to be without it.



PRACTICAL! Here's the most efficient washing action in the world — it's the patented Beatty "lemon hand" agitator. It was long ago proven to be the most PRACTICAL.



EFFICIENT! The rinsing is done by the agitator, too, and many times more thoroughly than it can be done by hand or by any other method—gets clothes cleaner, whiter.

10-Pound Cat In Chicken Crate Is Mystery

Adding ten pounds weight to a shipment of 200 chickens purchased and trucked from Enterprise, a large black cat cost Picton chicken buyer Sam Vigodda an additional $2.50 in express charges.

The cat was found in a crate with the chickens when they arrived at his Union Street establishment and had cost him 35 cents per lb. live weight. Just how the cat came to be included in the shipment was not explained.

"It is a fine cat," Mr. Vigodda commented, "but I did not expect to buy cats when there are so many around my own neighborhood."

The special scrap book of Mount Pleasant-Rawdon Church history will be completed this year. Heirloom Bible

Last week the Rawdon reporter was looking for some historical notes which had been found the years ago in an old heirloom Bible, This particular book was published in the United States and contains the books of the Apocrypha which has since been deleted from modern editions. It was brought to Canada by the late James Wescott, United Empire Loyalist, when he and his family hewed their home out of the woods at Pump Street, Mount Pleasant-Rawdon, where Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gunning now reside.

While searching for records a dozen old funeral notices of relatives of this pioneer were found and this one dated September 3rd 1857 gave food for thought as Midland Junction had never been heard of before, although having always resided in this community. Decided to copy it for the Rawdon readers. It reads as follows: "Died in Rawdon on Friday, 2nd September, 1857, Elizabeth Weaver relict of the late John Weaver, aged 96 years, six months and 25 days. The funeral will leave her late residence (the old Weaver homestead) on Sunday 6th Sept. at 10.30 a.m. and proceed to the Mount Pleasant Church where service will be held, after which will proceed to the "Weaver" Burying Ground, 2nd concession, Rawdon, near Midland Junction, for interment. Friends and acquaintances are respectively invited."

The name Midland Junction, capital letters of the words "Burying Ground" and the morning hour of service seemed to be far-to-the distant past and yet it was just 63 years ago last September. No doubt there are folks in Rawdon who do remember Anson being called Midland Junction.

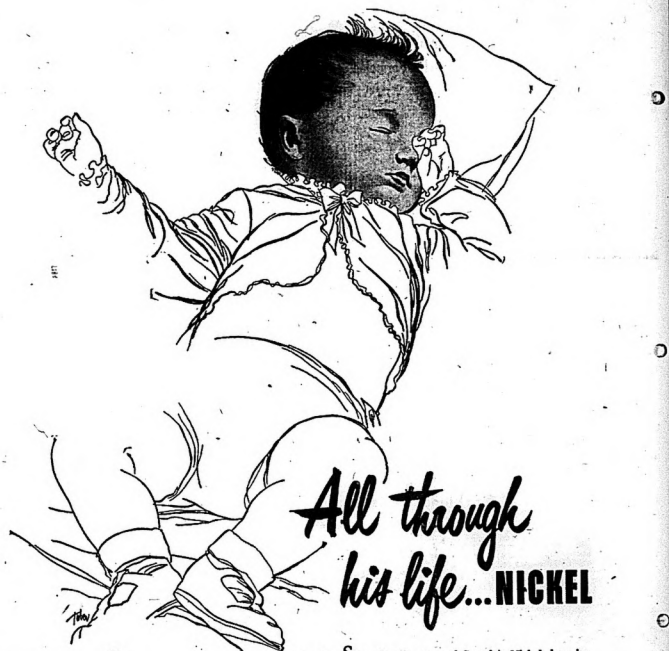
All through his life... NICKEL



In the laundry where baby's diapers are washed, Nickel alloy equipment eliminates rust and verdigris stains because it is rust-proof and corrosion-resistant. It does not develop jagged edges, so prevents tearing of the wash.

Much of the equipment used in the plants where oil and liver oils, medicines and toiletries are processed, is made of Nickel alloys to maintain the purity of the product.

To commemorate the 200th anniversary of Cronsteds's discovery of Nickel in 1751, the Royal Canadian Mint has this year issued a new five-cent coin. This coin, like previous five-cent pieces, is made of pure Nickel.

Since the discovery of Canada's Nickel deposits, hundreds of uses and vast markets have been developed for Nickel through a planned program of research. So Nickel is now one of our most important exports to the United States and other countries. As a result millions of U.S. dollars come to Canada, which the Nickel industry uses to pay wages, taxes, freight, and to purchase lumber, machinery and supplies.

Canadiens Trimmed Twice Detroit Wings Win Two and Toronto Splits in Weekend

It looks more and more as if Dick Irvin, coach of Montreal Canadiens, was right when he said Detroit Red Wings were better than Toronto Maple Leafs. Detroit which has been carrying on a season-long feud with Toronto for the National Hockey League's No. 1 spot, scored two victories during the weekend, one of them over the Leafs, and the other over Boston Bruins.

Both were done in neat fashion and both were by the score of 3-1. The Toronto game gave Detroit a season's edge over the second-place Leafs of five victories against three losses with three ties.

Other weekend games saw Montreal Canadiens drop a pair, one to New York Rangers at Madison Square Garden 3-1 Sunday night; the other to the Bruins on Boston 4-0 Saturday night and Chicago Black Hawks take a 5-3 beating from Toronto.

Result of the five games leaves Detroit on top, seven points ahead of Toronto, Boston 20 points back in third place, Montreal two points behind Bruins in fourth; New York one point back in fifth, and Chicago well down in the cellar 11 points behind the Rangers.

The consistency of Detroit play was apparent in the 14,377 Toronto fans Saturday night as the Red Wings held a margin of the first two periods when they scored both their goals, then staved off desperate Leafs thrusts in the final period.

Lindsay and Skov Score

Left winger Ted Lindsay and rookie Glen Skov scored the Red Wings' first two goals coming about four minutes apart in the second period.

Tod Sloan got one for Toronto with less than four minutes in the game.

In Boston Sunday night, Gordie Howe, brilliant right winger and league leading scorer, came up with both Detroit goals as Bruins took their first home defeat since Dec. 17. Howe, who now has 38 goals, scored one, 41 seconds after the game started. Vic Lynn tied it up at 12.58 and the teams played goalless hockey the key until only two minutes and 23 seconds remained when Howe got the winner on a pass from Syd Abel.

A crowd of 9,680 fans saw Jack Gelineau make 29 saves in the Boston net, two more than Sawchuk.

The largest crowd of the season in New York—15,183 fans—watched the Rangers pull to within two points of Canadiens in a game which featured the battles between the two teams at three wins and four ties each.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard got his 22nd goal of the season for Canadiens in the second period. Rangers set a goal-a-period pace, Eddie Johnston, Buddy O'Connor and Ed Slowinski beating Gerry McNeil.

In Boston Saturday night 10,068 fans gave Gelineau a big ovation as he earned his fourth shutout of the season.

The game was fairly close for two periods, Paul Ronty opening in the first and Ed Sandford in the second.

Sloan Got Three

However, in the space of three minutes and 23 seconds of the third period Dunc Fisher, Pete Horeck, Ednick and Johnny Pierson beat McNeil for a four-goal barrage.

In Chicago, Tod Sloan got three goals for Toronto and was also prominent in the penalty parade with 14 minutes, including two minors and a misconduct.

Ray Powell and Pete Babando scored for the short-handed Black Hawks who suffered their 22nd defeat in the last 27 games. Best they have been able to do in that period is four ties and one win.

Harry Watson and Flem Mackell were the only scorers for the Leafs who gave goalie Marcel Pelletier a busy night, forcing him to make 44 saves against 24 for Al Rollins.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THIS WEEK TELLS THE STORY!

The Junior Rockets wind up a scorching schedule this week with two games, one at home. Tonight they visit the Oshawa Beer Os in Oshawa and much depends on the outcome of the tussle! Next Friday night the Rocks are hosts to the Port Hope Panthers in the final game of the schedule. Lindsay Kinsmen by virtue of their 4-1 tie with Port Hope Friday night now enjoy a one-point lead on top of the heap with 28 points. The Petes Links are next in line with 27, the Rockets have 24 and the Oshawa Beer 20. Port Hope trails with 9. Each team has two games to play and it is anybody's powerwave from here in. Port Hope can provide a couple of upsets since they clash with the Petes and Belleville. Oshawa tangles with the Rocks and Lindsay while the Kinsmen meet Peterborough next Friday in what might be one of the most important games of this unpredictable set-up. Right now, as always, you "pays yer money and takes yer choice". Should be a hot week in Junior "B" circles.

THAT MAN AGAIN!

Mr. Michael Rodden takes some consolation for the Redmen defeat at his beloved Nylons the other night in digging up figures of the Reds' defeats at the hands of all and sundry especially the Patterson men. Tush, tush, Mike, that's water under the bridge. The future is what is interesting. However, here is what Mr. Rodden had to say quote:

"This observer is indebted to Mr. George Carver who seems not to have applauded constructive criticism as it concerns — or should have concerned — the Redmen. In rebuttal to such dire insinuation it might be pointed out that the following statement appeared in last Wednesday's issue of this newspaper:

"The statistics show that the Belles have failed to keep pace with Nylons in any department of play but this situation does not preclude the possibility that the Reds will march into Victory Row tonight in the Harty Arena."

It must not be intimated that the Reds — or even Mr. Carver — read the above and were inflamed and inspired but it is factual that the Bellevilles did march into 'Victory Row' and cleverly no doubt subdued themselves, Nylons, the fans and Mr. Carver just as they did all others who make a close study of the hockey charts.

"In extending apologies for lack of foresight or something pertaining to gifted intuition, we offer as an alibi the fact that in fourteen road games to date last Wednesday's revelation the Redmen won three, their most notable achievement having been a 6 to 5 triumph over the Eagles early in the season in Peterborough. In other raids they beat Queen's here by 7 to 5 and edged the Gans on the latter's ice by 4 to 3.

"In the three games staged here against Nylons previous to the Wednesday upheaval the Reds managed to lose them all and were outscored by a rather convincing total of 17 to 7. These non-fanciful figures are presented in support of the contention that last Wednesday's reversal of form could have been anticipated only by a Houdini or a George Carver.

"In more serious vein it can be said that the Belleville triumph did harm unto nobody. It kept alive the Ice Reds' very slim chance and will get any higher than fourth in the standings and it indicated that Nylons will not be participating in an Allan Cup elimination round unless they achieve their swiftest pace of the season or the Peterborough Eagles lost more of their flying feathers."

MERCHANTS STILL ON THE BAND WAGON!

Belleville Merchants are rolling along right merrily in the Trent Valley League's southern section. Friday night they racked up their fourth win out of five starts turning back the RCAF Flyers by a 6-3 score. Earl Cousins, the team's leading trigger-man added four points to his total with two goals and two assists. The Merchants trek to Trenton tonight where they take on the town squad in what should be a thriller. The lads are travelling at top speed under Coach Tommy Thurlow's guidance and say certain they can add another scalp to their belts tonight. At the moment they are sitting in fourth place four points behind the Flyers.

BILLS DROP THIS ONE

A crippled Pappas Billiards basketball squad went down to defeat before the Peterborough Marines here Saturday night by a 65-46 score, giving the Marines a 19-point margin to take home for next Saturday's second intermediate "B" game. Spafford and two other Pappas stars were unable to play through illness. The boys, however, despite the handicap feel they can scuttle the Marines in their own harbor — but it will be quite a chore. Torbert, of Marines, racked up 24 points with Plato getting 19. Faulkner was top-netter for the Bills with 21.

Ottawa Driver Wins Special Courage Award

(By The Canadian Press)

Cecil McCooey, game 24-year-old Ottawa musher, didn't win any of the top prizes in the 100-mile International Dog Derby, but he wasn't forgotten entirely. He won a special award for sheer courage.

McCooey started the race along with 19 others with a handicap that would discourage most persons—an artificial leg. His right leg was amputated below the knee as the result of an accident when he was seven.

Before the race Mickey said he would buy a new leg if he copped the $1,000 first prize. He finished fifth.

However, he will be able to buy a new leg anyway. At a banquet, he was presented with a $200 cheque as the "gamest driver in the race". The award was made by W. R. (Bob) Ballard, Toronto sportsman.

Willie Shoemaker, the taciturn Texan, will receive the second annual George F. Woolf Memorial Award at Santa Anita today as the outstanding jockey of 1950.

Southern California turf writers conferred the honor on Shoemaker, who rode with Joe Culmone as the country's leading rider last year.

At Davos, Switzerland, Hjalmar Andersen, powerful 29-year-old Norwegian truck driver, skated through snow and slush Sunday to win the world speed-skating championship for the second straight year.

Andersen clinched the title by winning the 10,000 metre event after finishing second in the 1,-500-metre race in the morning. The Norwegian star won the 5,-000 metre grind Saturday.

At Columbus, O., two world swimming records were broken Saturday as Ohio State defeated Iowa 52-33 in a dual meet.

Dick Cleveland, lanky Ohio freshman, churned the 100-yard free-style in :49.8, one-tenth of a second under Alan Ford's accepted record, set in 1944.

Jackie Taylor of Ohio State did the 100-yard backstroke in :58.5, compared to world mark of :58.9 set by Adolph Keller in 1944.

Paul Kelley's Gangway, running last at the half-mile mark, roared up on the outside in a great finish Saturday to win the $25,000 McLennan Handicap at Hialeah race track before a crowd of 21,287.

Gangway, in the mutuel field, covered the 1 1-8 miles in 1:49 2-5 and paid $20.80, $8.20 and $4.50.

Ruth Lilly captured the $50,-000 Santa Susana Stakes Saturday when hard luck stuck wealthy Alfred G. Vanderbilt for the second straight weekend at Santa Anita.

Ruth Lilly racing against 10 rival three-year-old fillies, was awarded the victory and its rich net prize of $41,700 when Vanderbilt's fast-closing Sweet Talk was disqualified out of first place and moved back to third.

Just a week ago Vanderbilt's prize four-year-old Bed O'Roses went home just as it appeared she might burst into the lead and capture the $205,700 Santa Anita Maturity.

A 23-year-old Montreal housewife, Mrs. Rhoda Wurtele Eaves, led a Canadian Women's ski team to victory over a United States team at Lake Placid, N.Y.

The Canadian team won the Kate Smith Trophy at the 15th annual women's ski tournament sponsored by the Lake Placid Snowbirds.

Combined time for the Canadian team in the events was 28:50.4 compared with 34:44.7 for the U.S. squad.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

A riot broke out as soccer fans attempted to storm the barriers at the field where Motherwell defeated Celtic 2-0 in a Scottish cup soccer game 29 years ago today. With the ground jammed to capacity hundreds more rushed the gates and fighting broke out. Many nursed broken heads and several were arrested.

LAST YEAR AT TUCSON

Cleveland, Feb. 12 — (AP) — Cleveland Indians may make this their last year of spring training at Tucson, Ariz., the baseball club's president, Ellis Ryan, said Sunday.

"I'm not sure where the club will train next year," he said before heading for Tucson. He admitted that a change is being considered.

The Indians have trained at Tucson since 1947.

Sources close to the team say they may go to Florida next year, probably at Daytona Beach, now the team's training site for farm clubs.

Tom C. Gratton Scores Double Win at Dufferin

Toronto, Feb. 12 — (CP) Tom C. Gratton, owned by A. Balcombe of Ancaster, Ont., and driven by Joe Hodgins, scored two close decisions when he defeated a good field of trotters and pacers for a double heat win in the fifth and featured event at Dufferin Park Saturday.

In the first heat he outsprinted his rivals down the stretch. Hodgins then rated him along while resting his pace and in the drive for home had something left in reserve to hold off Peter K. Ike in a driving finish. Canada Direct, a sharp factor throughout, was third.

Tom C. Gratton, a contender from the start of the second heat was rated close to the pace in the early part, going down the back stretch he was in close quarters but Hodgins bided his time and entering the home stretch was sent between horses and with a thrilling rush won in a photo over Senator Pointer. Peter K. Ike set the early pace and lasted to be third.

Marlie Juniors In Second Place Tie in League

(By The Canadian Press)

The in-and-out Toronto Marlboros, a pretty good hockey club when the spirit moves them, scared the daylights out of their Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" opposition Sunday.

For a club that is equally capable of scoring the hometown customers right out of the rink on an off-day, Marlboros rained a few eyebrows as they cooled off the up-and-coming St. Catharines Teepees 6-2, to move into a second place tie, just one point behind the idle Barrie Flyers.

Gaetjah Billsmeyer, who had lost only one of their last 13 starts, gave two points behind the Dukes before the day's hostilities, were so impressed by the hometowners' performance that they promptly dropped a 3-2 verdict to the slambang Toronto St. Michael's College Club in the second game of the Maple Leaf double - header.

It was a good weekend for the underdogs. Oshawa Generals, winless in eight previous tries, across the month and one-week Windsor Spitfires 5-4 Saturday night, dropped the startled Dukes into a second-place tie with Marlboros.

And Marlboro Hurricanes, an increasingly bad-tempered bunch of late-players, murdered the seventh-place Stratford Krochlers 5-3.

Their fellow-townsmen, Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen of the O.H.A. senior group rallied, tried hard to do the same at the expense of the league-leading Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs, but lost out 5-3 in overtime.

Sam Kennedy and Ken Watson were the extra-time heroes who put the game on ice after Billy Pitch of the Dutchmen had sent the game into overtime. Mickey Roth and Dinny Flanagan were the other Kitchener - Waterloo goal-getters, while Gord Hannigan, Bill McKenzie and Johnny Arundel completed the Monarch total.

Had Plenty of Beak.

The junior Marlboros, who showed neither fight nor finesse in dropping a 5-3 decision at Windsor Friday, had plenty of both on display against St. Catharines. Ten major penalties were imposed in the last two periods for an assorted collection of brawls, but the Dukes took time out to sew up the game with a three-goal effort by Eric Nesterenko, plus single tallies supplied by Earl Balfour, Don Peart and Ron Stewart.

Bud Boone and Wayne Brown aniped Teepees tallies in the game's opening minutes.

Second-period goals by Bill Dineen, John Weidrick and Willie Marshall gave St. Mike's juniors their victory. Dineen and Bill Lee, completed their total, while Ron Murphy, Andy Bathgate and Herb Dickenson counted for the Biltmores.

Oshawa defenceman Ted O'Connor and Windsor centre Erwin Grosse tired two tallies each as the Generals edged the Spitfires. Lou Jankowski, Bill Sierwicz and Herve Dejordi were other Oshawa marksmen, while Marlie Zorzin and Earl Johnson completed the Windsor scoring.

Waterloo's sixth victory in 44 tries was fashioned by goals from the sticks of Fred Pietsch, Warren Godfrey, Murray Dunnette, Charlie MacDonald and Roger Malsonneuve. Ged Myles, Jack Aitken and Guy Henri lit the lamp for the losers.

Gourley's Bowlers All But Cinch Commercial Title

Gourley's Motors all but clinched the championship of the Men's Commercial Bowling League Friday night with a 3-2 victory over Alemites. The Motors keglers have a ten-points lead with but two games to play. The other squads, however, will battle for the Fitzgerald Trophy as the league champions automatically drop out of play for this silverware.

Welding Steel scored the only 7-0 defeat setting back the Moose Lodge by that count. The Flowmen the Star Welding are battling hard for the second slot and the Fitzgerald Trophy with both teams winning by a 5-2 count over D'Neill Sales and the Rockets respectively.

Balyx Brothers handed the Howes and Bagerman seniors a 5-2 defeat with honours going likewise to Legionnaires.

Jimmy Corlies and Doug Ashley are battling for average honours each having 232 to his credit thus far. The League donated $15 to the March of Dimes to hear its president, Jim Daly warble over the airwaves in the good cause.

Capitals Tag Cleveland Barons With 7-2 Loss

By The Canadian Press

Third-place Indianapolis Capitals took Cleveland Barons, leaders of the Western Division of the American Hockey League, to camp Sunday night. Caps tagged Barons with a 5-2 win.

In games between the Eastern and Western Division clubs, Providence Reds stayed home to edge Pittsburgh Hornets 3-2, Hershey Bears defeated Mohawks 6-2 at Cincinnati, and Buffalo Bisons came from behind to win 3-2 from St. Louis Flyers at home.

The Barons scored in the first 32 seconds on a shot by Ray Cavallin and again with 4:12 to go on a shot by Walt Hergesheimer.

Max McNab and Freddy Glover got the Caps in front before the first period was over. Gordon Haidy and Marcel Pronovost kept up the scoring pace in the second period, and Enio Sclinizzi turned on the light in the third period.

Jack McGill scored the winning tally at 2.11 in the final period. The puck bounced off defenceman Pete Backor's back into the cage.

Hornet defenceman Jim Horton inadvertently drove the puck into his own net in the first period. Ken Davies' tally at 8.47 gave the Reds a 2-0 first-period lead. Second-period tallies by Bob Solinger and Frank Mathers tied it up.

At Cincinnati, the Bears zoomed ahead 2-0 in the first period on goals by Frank Marlo and Mark Marquess.

Cincinnati scored on a fluke, disputed shot by Gerry Plamandon in the second. Then Red Sullivan counted, and Marquess clicked again.

Arnie Kullman scored again in the finale before Johnny Denis got Cincinnati's last goal.

Buffalo Bisons tallied early in the first when Sid McNabney deflected Lloy Finkbeiter's shot into the cage. Eric Pogue tied, rapping in Roy Kelly's rebound.

Vic Grigg sent the Flyers ahead in the second. Then the Bisons rallied, with the Flyers' George Milligan serving time, on Paul Meyer's goal.

Finkbeiter slapped the puck past Red Almas for the decisive score.

CASUALTY OF NOTICES

New York, Feb. 12. (CP)—Graham Gelinas' record-breaking Canadian play "Ti-Coq"—closed Saturday night after three Broadway performances, a casualty of adverse notices.

"Ti-Coq", the story of a cocky little French-Canadian soldier who yearned for a family and saw his fondest dream dashed, played in French and English to 250,000 Canadians and then had a successful run in Montreal.

But most of the New York critics, who can make or break a play, damned it with faint praise and some were a little rougher.

Gelinas wanted to keep trying for another week but the show's financial backers were reached too late Saturday to make arrangements.

Jake Lamotta Makes 160 Pounds For Robinson

Chicago, Feb. 12 — (AP) Jake La Motta, all haunted by a weight-making problem he all but roosts on his scales, has finally shaken off the ghost.

He has pared down to the 160-pound limit for defense of his middleweight crown against Sugar Ray Robinson Wednesday.

The Bronx bull now says his only worry is "conserving my strength."

As early as last Saturday — five days before he tangles with the welterweight champion in Chicago Stadium — thick shouldered Jake hit upon how to stockpile his energy. He would simply rest.

He called off his Saturday sparring session and went on a shopping tour for loud neckties in the Loop. It will be just light drills today and not even that tomorrow.

Old-time ring birds say that a five-day vacation before a title fight is unprecedented.

As unorthodox as it may seem, La Motta has formed a habit of vacationing before ring time. He did not box for three days before risking his middleweight title against Laurent Dauthille at Detroit last September. And he recalled he rested four days before winning the crown from Marcel Cerdan in 1949.

Against Robinson in Chicago Sept. 26, 1945, Sugar buckled Jake's legs in the ninth but the Bronx bull's flailing fists chased Robinson all over the ring in the last two rounds.

Sugar won that bout with a 12-round split decision. But neither he nor any one else, has ever knocked La Motta down, let alone out.

Robinson has decisioned Jake in four out of five bouts. The only loss Robinson ever took in 123 fights was a 10-rounder to La Motta, a 3-1 underdog, on Feb. 6, 1943, in Detroit.

Robinson, a 3-1 or 4-1 favorite this time, wound up his drills yesterday and weighed 153, two lbs. less than he expects to carry Wednesday.

The nationally televised and broadcast fight is shaping up as a $150,000 gate with 10,000 to 12,000 fans on hand.

Quebec Musher Wins Dog Derby

Ottawa, Feb. 12—(CP)—A Canadian nosed out an American Saturday to win the gold challenge trophy and $1,000 in the 1951 100-mile International Sled-Dog derby.

Emile Martel, 48-year-old lanky six-foot Quebec Musher drove his cross-bred bounds across the finish line in a combined time of nine hours, one minute and 11 seconds. The race was run in three daily heats of 33 1/3-mile heats.

Martel's time was 1 minute and 29 seconds better than that of Bill Shearer of Boston, Mass., who missed out on the top honors with a combined time of nine hours, two minutes and 30 seconds. He drove huskies.

Dr. Roland Lombard of Auburndale, Mass., finished third with a time of 9:07:43. He was followed by Laird Ouellette, The Pas, Man., fourth with 9:16:56, Wilf Lepine, Quebec, 1950 derby winner, fifth with 9:23:51 and Tony Landry, Alaska, in sixth with 9:27:00.

Antonio Giguere of Lorettieville, Que., the oldest musher in the race at 52, finished 27 seconds out of the money with a time of 9:27:27.

There is how the prizes were distributed: second place, $500; third, $300; fourth, $150; fifth, $50, and sixth, $25.

Of the 20 teams that started the first day only 12 crossed the finish line in the final day.

Merchants Hang 6-3 TVL Defeat On RCAF Flyers

Scoring four goals in the second period, the upsurging Belleville Merchants handed the Trenton RCAF Flyers a 6-3 defeat in Trenton Wednesday night. The win gives the city team 14 points, just four behind the third-place Flyers. It was Merchants fifth victory in six starts.

The game was clean and hard-fought with the officials handing out six minor penalties, three to each squad.

Earl Cousins, the teams leading point-getter fattened his total with four points scoring two goals and getting as many assists. Graham scored one marker and was credited with two helpers while Bone, Barrett and Semark accounted for the remaining Cousins goals. Yorke drew two assists with Delaney being credited with one.

Play was fairly even in the first period with the Merchants drawing first blood on Semark's goal early in the period. Cunningham tied the count on a back hander in the period and the session ended that way.

Cousins paved the way for the Flyers attack in the second period scoring twice in a minute and twelve seconds on assists from Graham and Yorke. Nobell cut the margin for Flyers scoring on a pass from Bone but Jackson put Bone slung home the puck at thirteen minutes with Barrett adding the Merchant's fourth goal of the period seconds later.

Play settled down in the third heat with Graham scoring for the Merchants and Adams notching the Flyers lone counter.

The teams:

Merchants: Goal, Green; defence, Yorke, Reeves; centre, Cousins wings, Graham, Semark; subs, Hatfield, Bone, Adams, Delaney, Barrett, Wardhaugh and Stevens.

RCAF Flyers: Goal, Freebairn; defence, Cunningham, Hughes; centre, Gobiel; wings, Sargent, Jackson; subs, Hampson, Zaleschkie, O'Mears, Adams, Roberge, Mason, Andrews.

Selke Favors Long Schedule

Montreal, Feb. 12 — (CP) General Manager Frank Selke of Montreal Canadiens said Saturday he thinks the National Hockey League should keep its present 70-game schedule.

Selke made known his stand following reports that a return to the 60-game schedule is being studied in view of slumping attendances in the United States and of the circuit.

Selke said that, from the Montreal viewpoint, the players want the present system because of increased salaries and also the fans, in a survey, have shown they are in favor of the extra games.

He said the smallest increase in pay as a result of the extra 10 games is $1,000 and the players wouldn't want to take cuts and spend further spare time at practices or exhibition games.

BETTERS RECORD

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 12 — (AP) Tuning up for the annual Big Ten indoor track meet here Mar. 2-3, Don Laz of Illinois bettered the American dirt track mile record Saturday with a leap of 14 feet 7 3-8 inches.

The former dirt vaulting record was 14 feet 6 1-4 inches by Earl Meadows in 1939.

The series of 15 foot plus vaults of world record holder Cornelius Warmerdam were off board runways.

BANCROFT

Pontiacs Cinch Top Position In H. and A. Loop

Bancroft — Bancroft Pontiacs unquestionably took possession of first place in the Hastings-Addington Hockey League when they defeated the fourth place Madoc team by a score of 10 to 6 in Bancroft arena on Friday night.

This win gave Bancroft 17 points and assured them of the first to play the third team team in the first round for the Tweed News Cup. Playoffs begin on Wednesday in Bancroft with their opponents still in doubt. However, it will be either Tamworth or Tweed as the issue might have to be settled by a sudden - death game between these two places on Monday night.

Two local players were missing from the game. Ted Maxwell, who received an eye injury earlier in the week was not on the ice and the chances of his being in future games this season are doubtful. Joe Kavanagh started the game but this and a sore throat sent him home after a couple of minutes were played. Jim Bruce moved forward from his defensive position to fill his spot.

Never Headed

If Bancroft had not been goal hungry the score would have been around 10 to 2 or 3. As soon as they scored twice in the first period they started to play five men forward and the defence seemed to rush every time that they obtained the puck. Art Young in their goal bore the brunt of this and managed to come out with a victory despite a four goal Madoc spurt in the third.

While we were leaving the rink we heard the experts wondering by what score Madoc might have won if the game had been four instead of three periods. The margin would be interesting to see how the Pontiacs could play a defensive period to protect a goal lead. The locals certainly are exponents of the good old rule that the best defence is a strong attack.

During the game there were 8 occupants of the penalty box, with the honors equally divided.

Hugal, Baker, Kelley, Crawford, Hayworth and Smith scored for Madoc. Bancroft marksmen were E. Bough (3), R. Bough (3), Pilgrim, D. Maxwell, Comrie, Delyea and Bruce.

CRITICALLY BURNED

Centralia, Ill., Feb. 12 (AP)—Two men were critically burned last night and a third less seriously injured when a gasoline tank car exploded in the Illinois Central and Quincy Railroad yards. Within 20 feet of the explosion was a three-car freight train loaded with 200-pound aerial bombs. A strong wind was credited with the fear of a 175-car freight train caboose was smashed and an empty oil tank car and a loaded gravel car were forced astride the main line and a siding paralleling it. All 13 passenger cars remained on the track undamaged.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Feb. 12—(AP)—Remember that game in the 1945 World Series when Chuck Hostetler fell down running from third toward home and cost Detroit an important run? . . . Well, you may see more of that according to the latest word from the National Baseball Congress . . . Hostetler had played in the N.B.C. tournament for several years before 1945 but couldn't make the roster of his non-professional club that spring before the short-handed Tigers pulled him into the Major league. . . The same sort of frantic grabbing for players from the sandlots has been going on this winter. . . For instance, one N.B.C. circuit—the Bronx National League—had seven of its players signed by Major League scouts, four by Cleveland Indians. . . No doubt these kids were earmarked for farm teams, but they may be up in the big league in the manpower situation gets much tougher.

Pulling Somebody's Leg

Haskell Cohen, the National Basketball Association tub-thumper, relays this one about one of those rare occasions when big George Mikan was having a bad night. . . In a tussle for the ball, George dislocated a finger and coach John Kundla undertook to repair the injury and at the same time reprimand Mikan for his mistakes. . . John yanked at the finger and talked a blue streak while George tried to interrupt him . . . each time Kundla would say: "Shut up and listen to me." . . . Finally Mikan got in a few words: "OK, coach, but all I wanted to tell you is that you're pulling the wrong finger."

AT THE CAPITOL — Marshall Thompson plays his first MGM starring role as the sinister killer, in "Dial 1119", suspense-packed drama of a crazed man who holds five lives in his hands. Thompson, who won personal plaudits for his fine portrayals in "Battleground" and "Command Decision", is given the acting opportunity of a lifetime in the new thriller, opening tonight at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program, thrills and romance with Bill Williams in "The Rookie Fireman." Both hits are first showings.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Gordie Howe's thunder was stolen last week in the National Hockey League's individual scoring race, by one of his own Detroit teammates. Howe still is running ahead of the pack with 62 scoring points made up of 29 goals and 33 assists.

But Sid Abel catapulted from fourth place into undisputed possession of second. Able combined 20 goals and 30 assists for 50 points, three ahead of Detroit's Ted Lindsay, Montreal's Maurice Richard and Toronto's Max Bentley.

Richard retained his top goal-scoring position with 32 but Howe is creeping closer. Richard tallied only one goal last week against Howe's four.

Lindsay makes up his 47 points with 20 goals and 27 assists and Bentley, who got no scoring points this week, with 16 goals and 31 assists.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 13—(AP)—Now comes gallant Lary Parks to the defense of Elizabeth Taylor, selected "the most objectionable ingenue in motion pictures" by the Harvard Lampoon.

Since hapless Liz made no rebuttal after the humor magazine's onslaught, I sought some words from Parks, who recently finished a picture with the actress. His reply:

"I suppose the selection was meant to be good clean-college-boy fun, but I think it was rather bad taste, particularly at this time when she is having personal troubles. Furthermore, I think their selection is incorrect.

"I best only met Liz once before we started the picture and I expected not to like her. I thought there must be something wrong with anyone that beautiful. But I must say I was agreeably surprised. I have never worked with anyone as co-operative.

Great Talent

"Aside from being conscientious, she has great talent. I am convinced of that. Will she ever win an academy award? I don't see why she couldn't, if given the right kind of material."

Parks remarked that he found other surprising things about the girl.

"I naturally expected a girl with a face like that to have plaster legs," he said. "I thought she probably have to wear long skirts all her life. But this picture shows more of her than has ever been seen on the screen before, and her figure is just as perfect as her face."

The picture bears the highly-debatable title of "Love Is Better Than Ever."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

When your luck in bridge will change is unpredictable. Losing three rubbers in a row with good hands was discouraging. So, it was getting monotonous for south when up came the deal shown here:

	NORTH
	♠A 8 4 2
	♥Q J 3
	♦A Q 10 8
	♣K Q
WEST		EAST
♠K 10		♠Q 9 7 6 3
♥A K 9 8		♥10 5 4
♦7 6 2		♦5 3 2.
♣J 9 8		♣10 2
	SOUTH
	♠J 5
	♥None
	♦7 6 4
	♣J 9 8 7 6 5 4 3

The bidding went like this:

North	East	South	West
1 D	Pass	Pass	2 H
Dbl	Pass	5 D	Dbl
Redbl	Pass	Pass	5 H
Dbl	Pass	6 C	Dbl

The first pass by south was correct. He lacked the high card strength promised by an immediate response to an opening bid of one. His leap to five clubs was optimistic. But he was desperate by then.

The redouble by north was truly optimistic. After a pass and a jump to game by south it was undoubtedly a desperate gamble. That it could be made was something north did not know at the time.

This redouble scared west into believing there was a freak in the deal. As such it might make five clubs. And he did not feel it was worth taking the chance of making game on redoubled terms.

So, west decided to stick in the five heart bid even if it went down. His loss would not be more than a trick or two. And there was always the possibility that it might make.

Ordinarily, south would have passed the double of five hearts. But he had visions of losing another rubber and preferred to take a defeat and get another chance. So, he desperately bid six clubs.

A west opening lead of spade king would have defeated the six club bid. But west did not know this in advance. His lead was heart king and south made his club slam. Luck is funny that way.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which each birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Tuesday, February 13

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Somber light, unimportant planetary indications on day's chart. Double effort; don't sit back and wait; don't worry or feel sorry for self. Get out, go something about it NOW!

April 21 to May 21—(Taurus)—Spell of stable character can make headway despite problems, hazards, just put right efforts into action. Don't be backward expressing solutions but watch means of gaining credits.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Some things may seem unfriendly now, make up your mind to expect them and work hard for what you want—you will be surprised at good effects. Obstacles in business, finances; be on guard.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Note advice to Cancer, use those God-given talents of tenacity, grit and good memory today and you will achieve. News may help decisions. Be eager, willing to apply it sensibly.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Fairly quiet configurations neither stressing any real advantage or any adverse indications. Be awake, watch trend of all progress, especially humanity's and Government activities.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Take some rest, be guided by health, duties that must be attended to, other things can wait. You are conscientious about others' welfare, be sensible in care of self.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Nothing much to offer in extra help or very favored influences. You are on your own in building up advantages for day. Work out a businesslike schedule, keep to it. Mind budget.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Take things in stride as they come, don't get over excited or too lax. Go along in your fairly born practical way. Tend to essentials; make no foolish expenditures; watch trends.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Planetary inclinations point to a normal day, but the karmic worker will be best rewarded. Catch up on back letters, personal chores; heed loved ones', family's needs.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Your planet warns against moods, worrying about something that hasn't even shown. Do some extra research, charity work; ask questions, become better informed.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Top achievement may not be had unless you seek it diligently in right manner, on intellectual lines. Endeavor to do your best but avoid unnecessary strain, steps, delay.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Not all easy for attainment now, even in unfamiliar matters let alone tedious, tricky tasks. Don't take on more than you can handle well and without strain of body or mind.

YOU BORN TODAY: Have sympathetic nature, can become excellent doctor, nurse or teacher with study and right direction. Are usually patient, sincere in effort and, while conservative as a rule, will often take risky chances for reform's sake. You deal in facts rather than theories and once you set your mind on something, can do a fine job.

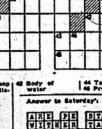
Answer to Saturday's Puzzle



Drivers Given Safety Award Pins by Company

Recently the recreational hall at Corby's Distillery was the occasion of a very pleasant gathering when thirteen of Corby's drivers received the Safety Award pins, awarded by the Ontario Safety League, for "no accident" driving. Mr. Wilfred Lapointe, distillery manager, opened the meeting and congratulated the drivers on the very fine record which they have established, both for themselves and for their company. He then called on Mr. Roy Topping, garage foreman, and presented him with his 12-year pin. Mr. Topping expressed his thanks and in turn presented the drivers with their respective awards. Those receiving pins in order of their service were R. Topping, 12 years; W. McCaffrey, 10 years; P. Mossman, 9 years; Mayhew, 6 years; W. McKay, 6 years; R. Muirhead, 4 years; T. Lyons, 4 years; K. Lyons, 4 years; J. Stone, 2 years; A. Fraser, 2 years; W. Mondeville, 2 years; J. Archer, 1 year; J. Latchford, 1 year.

Following the presentation, films on the subject were shown through the generosity of Mr. Bill Farm. Cards and refreshments were enjoyed by all bringing another memorable "Safe Driving Night" to a close.

Civil Defence Will be Topic At Mayors' Meet

Mo[illegible], Feb. 12 (CP)—Civil defence will be the chief topic discussed by Mayor P. Horace Bothwell-Granby, Que., president of the other executive members of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities at a two-day conference here Wednesday and Thursday.

Mayor Bolvin said today that while the first day's activities will be devoted to the discussion of civil defence, the next day's sessions will deal with purely municipal questions.

Irish Bank Clerks' Strike at End

Dublin, Feb. 12 (Reuters)—Ireland's 4,000 bank clerks today ended their seven-week strike for more pay after an arbitration court had granted some of their pay demands.

But the banks, closed since Dec. 23, will not open until Thursday as arrears of work must first be cleared.

The arbitration tribunal today decided that higher pay should be given to officers with more than 16 years service. This meant that 1,550 gained nothing.

The tribunal also suggested the suitable marriage age of a bank clerk is about 30, which many of the younger men do not like.

The long strike has caused many headaches in business transactions where cheques passed from business men one to another as many as a dozen times. Bank executives fear many of the cheques will be found valueless when checked against accounts.

Taverns, movie theatres, bookmakers and racetracks have been the main source of ready cash in small quantities during the strike.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Most clearly and frighteningly she was now remembering the figure of her father on the ridge ... the echo of Lavinia Grenville's scream ringing in her ears ... a furtive movement in the shrubbery as she had gone up the back steps into the Grenable house to telephone?

What was there between Elizabeth Stratton, Lavinia Grenable's sister, and her father that they ... to hide? And along with the rush of memories came another and more terrible one, her father's words at the breakfast table yesterday morning when she had told him about Court. "I'd give my life to keep you away from her," he had said. And at that precise moment the front doorbell rang.

Lisa's father came out of the den and went directly to the door almost as though he were expecting someone. She heard the low exchanges of greetings and she ran the rest of the way down the stairs to meet the caller.

Angus Kent waved to her over her father's head. He followed Mr. Farwell through the reception hall and the intense quality of his gaze again made her blush.

"Good morning," she said a trifle breathlessly, as though it were not at all unusual to have callers at 6:30 in the morning.

Angus came immediately to the point. "I know I'm early," he apologized. "But last night when I got to Ellesmerita," Tim thought he should see if there was anything he could do at Grenables. I went back with him. We learned a few things."

Angus rubbed his chin, smooth-shaven above his gray gabardine sport shirt, Lisa noticed. He's about 27, she decided. He looks as wonderful to me this morning as he did last night. But of course she had known it would be that way. And then his peculiar embarrassment and the apprehensive undertone of gravity in his voice jolted her.

"It's only routine," Angus was saying to her father, "naturally the authorities would want to talk to all the neighbors."

"Who?" she said.

"Sheriff Lane ... the police," he repeated gently. "I was telling Mr. Farwell the police questioned Tim and me last night. I think they even suspected me," he said grimly. "You see," and he added the last very casually, without meeting her eyes, "some of the Grenables are a man leaving the grounds by way of the ridge about the same time Mrs. Grenable was killed."

Lisa felt her cheeks burning and her hands grow icy and she just stood there staring at Angus remembering that she had seen the figure on the ridge too. But it was Henry Farwell who spoke to her stiffly.

"You see, my dear, Angus is here to warn us that police think Lavinia's death was not entirely accidental and they plan to question everyone, including me."

"But were you on the ..." Lisa stopped, unable to finish the word "ridge" and Angus filled in hurriedly ...

"The police know it wasn't an accident, Lisa. It's a plain and simple case of murder. The emergency brake on the wheel chair was sawed in two."

Her father's voice was calm "Does Sheriff Lane have any ideas?"

"I couldn't say, but the Grenables are doing their best to give him some," Angus Kent observed wryly.

Lisa had the sensation that he was watching her, trying to learn something from her, and she felt an odd helplessness for the first time in his presence.

Lisa Farwell's helplessness of the moment was the same sort of feeling she'd had when she met Court Grenable the night before —when Court kept staring into the ravine and wouldn't let her ... Liz to him while they were waiting for the police to bring his mother's body back to the house. But now there was a kind of terror mixed in with the suspense.

Lisa found her tongue and asked weakly, "when do the police want us for questionings?"

What to do if you think you suffer from

ARTHRITIS

CONSIDER SERIOUSLY that more people in Canada are suffering from ARTHRITIS than from any other single disease.

RECOGNIZE that a gradual stiffening of the joints may indicate the onset of ARTHRITIS.

BEAR IN MIND that medical authorities agree that ARTHRITIS is probably due to a multiplicity of causes. Glandular deficiencies, faulty diet and inadequate rest may play a part. Improvement following cleaning up of focal infection supports the fact that bacterial infection may also be a factor.

REMEMBER that it is advisable to treat ARTHRITIS early, and if you are suffering from stiff joints you should see your doctor without delay.

LANTIGEN LABORATORIES LIMITED urge upon all ARTHRITIC sufferers that they undergo early diagnosis and treatment of this painful disease.

LIKE SO MANY OTHERS you, too, may find that LANTIGEN "C" will help relieve the discomforts of ARTHRITIS and RHEUMATISM and of other germ-caused RHEUMATIC DISORDERS such as LUMBAGO, SCIATICA and NEURITIS.

Lantigen "C" is one of the Lantigen series of dissolved oral vaccines.

Outbreak of Influenza Reported Across Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Scattered outbreaks of influenza, apparently in a milder form than that prevalent in Britain, were reported today across Canada, a Canadian Press survey showed.

At the same time, in eastern Canada, where the winter has been comparatively "open", health departments in most areas reported persons were suffering from colds. It was suggested that some persons who thought they had taken influenza had, in fact, only severe colds.

In Montreal, Dr.; Adelard Groulx, city health officer, called the prevalence of influenza there an epidemic—but he gave no figures. Officials estimated that 1,500 of the 9,000 city employees were ill.

Influenza, combined in some places with measles, chicken pox and mumps, led to closing of schools temporarily in several centres in the Maritimes.

In Sydney, N.S., schools supervisor A. W. Woodill announced that 1,500 students and 24 teachers had taken ill. The outbreak downed 19 to 15 per cent of Halifax city employees and about 20 per cent of the city's teachers and students.

The Ontario Health Department said 18 influenza cases have been reported in Ontario this year, fewer than usual, but colds were keeping many persons from school and work.

In the west a "large number" of influenza cases were reported around the Battlefords and Prince Albert in northern Saskatchewan. Before the outbreak passed its peak in the Battlefords, about 20 per cent of the population was said affected. In Prince Albert, many pupils were away from classes and business firms were shorthanded.

MOTHER FOUND DEAD

Barrie, Ont., Feb. 13 (CP) — Mrs. Eileen Morgan, 24, mother of three children, was found dead on her kitchen floor yesterday after a neighbor noticed two of the children playing unclothed in the snow. The neighbor called the childrens father, David Morgan, 26, a Hydro engineering worker at a camp near this town 45 miles north of Toronto.

Coroner Dr. E. G. Turnbull said death was due to a heart attack.

The cold air is pushing slowly southward and the freezing rain will give way to snow late today, and stop early Wednesday.

Northern Ontario will remain clear and very cold today and Wednesday.

Dr. F.W. Routley, Former Director Of Red Cross, Dies

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP) — Dr. Frederick William Routley, who directed the Canadian Red Cross blood factory during the period of its greatest growth—1938 to 1948—died in hospital yesterday. He was 70.

A leader in the field of public health service in Canada for more than a quarter of scentury, Dr. Routley gave up a lucrative medical practice in Maple, Ont., in 1921 to join the Red Cross.

He became national commissioner the year before the Second World War and guided the society through the unprecedented years of strife during which the Canadian Red Cross distributed 50,000,000 articles of clothing to needy countries overseas, 15,000,000 prisoner-of-war parcels to Europe and spent $90,000,000 contributed by the people of Canada.

Dr. Routley, who represented the Canadian Red Cross at many world medical organizations, retired from the Red Cross policy of buying meat in bulk and the meagre eighteenpny (about 10 cents) meat ration, but in the ordinary alarm clock in the parcel with a letter addressed to Mr. Eightpenny Webb."

Little 'Miss Beautiful', The Kid With Cancer, Holds Hearts of Nation

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 13 (AP) — Frail little "Miss Beautiful" the kid with cancer who whispered she would like to be a valentine, is happily holding the hearts of a nation today.

It is a warm, snuggly feeling for 12-year-old Jacquelyn Marre. Over and over she murmurs, "Mother, why, oh why, is everybody so good to me?"

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthus S. Marre, say Jacquelyn has insisted on sending a paper heart to everybody whose address she has.

This is an especially-nice Valentine season for Jacquelyn, because last year she was unconscious most of the time.

She had to undergo three major brain operations and it was after the second that the doctors declared the cancer incurable.

It was then, said her father, that "we took her out of the hospital and brought her home to be happy."

Life can be pretty dull when you have to spend 90 percent of your time in bed, explains little Jacquelyn said it would make her happy if she could be the doll he somebody's valentine.

Fighting men and firemen, circus folk and business men, housewives and newspaper people read of Jacquelyn's plight and deluged Jacquelyn with valentine greetings.

Jacquelyn received the title of "Miss Beautiful," by the way, from San Diego, Calif., newspaper photographers.

The game little girl, who was given but three months to live over a year ago, has had to stop listening to the news broadcasts her father reported. "She gets too upset. Worries about everything."

This is the child who once told her father, "if I had one last wish, it would be for world peace."

WORKMEN'S ACT STIRS UP DEBATE IN LEGISLATURE

Wants More of Report Incorporated in Bill

Toronto, Feb. 13 — (CP) The Ontario Legislature, for the first time this session, left some unfinished business yesterday when it adjourned without a vote on the principle of a government bill to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act.

The House resumed the Throne Speech debate today.

Joseph B. Salsberg (Lab.-Prog. — Toronto St. Andrew) asked that dividends on stocks and bonds of public utility companies be limitted to three per cent of face value.

In a motion tabled in the Ontario Legislature yesterday, he proposed that rates should be reduced by government order if there is a surplus after payment of interest, dividends and provision for capital replacement.

The communist member said that the Consumer's Gas Company of Toronto, by a private Ontario law of 1887, had to pay dividends of only ten per cent on its capital stock.

The Workmen's Compensation Act's amendment is based on the Royal Commission report of Mr. Justice W. D. Roach, raised strong opposition, chiefly from labor and the C. C. F., Liberal and Labor-Progressive parties and from Premier Frost's government for not including more of the report's recommendations in the bill.

A motion by Mr. Salsberg that the long - dormant Legislature committee on labor be convened to study the bill was defeated in an oral vote. The committee has not been called since 1944.

Ticking Parcel Proves to be Alarm Clock

London, Feb. 13—(CP)—Police bomb experts were called today to examine a ticking parcel addressed to Food Minister Maurice Maurice Webb at his office. The parcel was found in the Leland Yard where laboratory examination disclosed an alarm clock.

An attendant who accepted the parcel from a taxi driver reported he heard ticking inside it. He dunked it in a bucket of water until the police arrived.

The Press Association said it received an anonymous telephone call a few minutes before the incident, in which a caller said:

"A very interesting parcel will be delivered to Mr. Webb at the Leland Yard. It will be from Mr. a story you would want to know about."

Finally police put everyone at rest. A practical joker, obviously opposed to the government's policy of buying meat in bulk and the meagre eighteenpny (about 10 cents) meat ration, put in the ordinary alarm clock in the parcel with a letter addressed to Mr. Eightpenny Webb."

Controls May be Necessary To Help Fight Inflation Says Governor Bank of Canada

Ottawa, Feb. 13 (CP)—Direct controls may be necessary in Canada to help fight inflation and rising living costs resulting from increased defence activity.

This is the highlight of the 1950 report of Graham F. Towers, Governor of the Bank of Canada. The 7,000-word report, made public today, had been sent to Finance Minister Abbott for tabling in the Commons.

Mr. Towers said that fiscal and monetary measures may not be enough to provide stability in the Canadian economy. They may have to be backed up by controls.

(In the Commons Monday night Mr. Abbott rejected requests of opposition parties for reimposition of price controls at this time. Mr. Abbott said he does not believe a system of over-all price controls would be as effective at this time. The government would use controls by the extent needed when it felt they were necessary.)

Some sections, Mr. Towers said, have suggested that production should be increased as a means to provide for defence without curtailment of civilian needs. Some have pointed out the need for taxation which will keep the government on a pay-as-you-go basis, or perhaps at the early stages something more than that.

Others Favor Restraint

Others have emphasized the need for the maximum possible reduction in less-urgent expenditures—particularly non-essential capital expenditures — of public authorities and business. The desirability of increased personal savings as a means to combat inflation was frequently stressed.

"Finally, said Mr. Towers, "general price controls are often advocated as a means of keeping down prices; in some cases this suggestion has been linked with, wage controls—but not in others.

"In order to have an adjustment to a defence economy which will leave much freedom as possible within the price and income structure but which will prevent any general upward spiral of prices and costs, it is necessary for current demand—both for defence purposes —to be kept in approximate balance with the current output available to meet it.

"If defence expenditure became so great that it was humanly impossible to finance it on a pay-as-you-go basis, or if at an earlier stage financial measures designed to produce a fair allocation of the burden did not command public understanding and support, it might become necessary to make increasingly-general use of direct controls in order to curb up fiscal and monetary measures, despite the dangers to economic efficiency and personal freedom inherent in such controls."

Rather than seeking a solution to the problem the govt should be to "minimize any unfairness which might arise."

Fears of Runaway Inflation In Canada Overdone--Towers

Ottawa, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Graham Towers said today fears of runaway inflation in Canada are overdone and "very foolish."

The Governor of the Bank of Canada told a press conference also that direct controls on the Canadian economy "are the last resort" after other methods have been tried and failed.

"They will postpone trouble and prevent a really inflationary spiral race," he said, "but they are not perfect and they are extraordinarily difficult to police, particularly in a world not at war."

He came to the bank's annual press gallery to answer questions about the annual report of the bank.

He was asked if prices and costs are going to continue to rise.

He said there is no way of telling accurately, but he was inclined to feel today's fears are overdone. If runaway inflation develops it must either be that governments and the world have handled the situation badly or that people have been able to carry public opinion with them "for the things they must do."

It was impossible to tell how much two would balance over the next year.

He was asked if Canada is in the grip of inflation now.

To some extent, he said, Canada has had inflation and we don't want to minimize the situation, but thoughts of runaway inflation, as in Germany, are premature, which have developed in the past in certain countries, were "very foolish."

Big Four Deputies Will Plan Foreign Ministers Meeting

Paris, Feb. 13 (AP) — The Big Four deputies will meet in Paris between March 10 and 15 to arrange for a meeting of the foreign ministers of the United States, Britain, France and the Soviet Union, a French government official said today.

This source said the deputies would set down a place, and date for the meeting.

Such a meeting would have as its main purpose the writing of a peace treaty for Austria.

The agenda of the deputies in their Paris meeting must be restricted to framing an agenda for the Big Four ministers, with no preliminary talks on policy matters.

Any western attempt to add far eastern questions to the agenda is expected to produce a Russian counter-demand that communist China be represented for such discussions.

Close Watch Kept On Totals of Rubber Exports

London, Feb. 13—(Reuters)—A government spokesman, answering in the House of Commons last night that two boatloads of rubber totalling 10,000 tons are on their way to communist China from the British port of Singapore.

The statement was made by Colonial Undersecretary Thomas Cook, who said it was assumed the above was of a low quality.

The statement came in reply to a question asked by a Conservative member.

Cook added that "there are no restrictions on the export of rubber, but a close watch is kept on the cumulative totals of exports to individual countries."

ABBOTT BELIEVES PRICE CONTROLS NOT DESIRABLE

Reimposition Not Likely At the Present Time

Ottawa, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Reimposition of price controls at this time would be neither desirable nor effective, Finance Minister Abbott told the Commons last night. He rejected requests of opposition parties for immediate action to halt the rise in the cost of living.

Mr. Abbott said he does not believe that as yet a proportion of Canada's national production has gone into defence output to the extent that controls are necessary.

The government, with experience in controls in the Second World War, knew the limitations and capabilities of controls, and would use them "to the extent" needed when it felt they were necessary.

Mr. Abbott outlined the government's views after George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, charged that government policies alone were responsible for the defence-spurred rise in prices.

Mr. Drew spoke in support of a C. C. F. motion calling for a vote of non-confidence in the government because it has "failed" to reimpose price controls and pay subsidies where necessary. A vote on the motion may be taken today.

Welcomes Support

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. leader, welcomed Mr. Drew's support but said he wished to remind the House that in the post-war years when the C. C. F. party was urging the continuation of controls and subsidies the Progressive Conservatives voted against it.

Father Who Lost Three Children In Fire Also Dies

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 13 — (CP) — Jean Guy Mathieu, 24, burned in a fire that killed three of the five children of his family, died in hospital early today.

An oxygen tent brought here from Ottawa yesterday failed to save his life. He had 50 per cent of the skin burned from his body in a vain attempt to save his three children, who died in the fire that destroyed their frame house near Coniston, about six miles east of here.

Mathieu had carried his youngest baby, 13-month-old Roger, from the flaming home before going back to get his other children. His wife also escaped and she and her son are living with relatives in Coniston, awaiting word another baby.

Funeral services and other new drugs were used in an effort to save Mathieu's life.

STUDENTS QUARANTINED

Newmarket, Feb. 10. (CP)—Doctors yesterday quarantined 150 students of Pickering College here because of mumps. Authorities also cancelled the college's annual formal dance scheduled for this week and the students' mid-term leave.

Britain's Chief Hangman Says Women Go to Gallows More Bravely Than Men

London, Feb. 13 (Reuters). — Take it from a man in a position to know: Women go to the scaffold more bravely than men.

"I have personally known a condemned woman to break down at the last moment," Britain's chief hangman told a government commission investigating capital punishment.

Albert Pierrepoint, 45, conducts executions as a part-time job. His other job is the local sheriffs. But Pierrepoint's fame has spread and he is invariably they choose him. He receives $10 (about $30) for every hanging plus his expenses.

Since Pierrepoint was called in to hang European war criminals he has had "assignments" in many parts of the continent.

"My job is sacred to me," he said. "Normally I refuse to talk about it. It is something I think that should be kept secret."

Woman Throws Magazines in Face Of Young Bandits

Galt, Ont., Feb. 13 (CP) When three youths entered Mrs. John Irvine's store last night and stuck a gun under her nose, the 53-year-old storekeeper threw a handful of magazines at them and ran to the counter and screamed for help.

The three youths dashed out of the store, piled into their waiting automobile and took to the highway.

A few hours later, provincial police captured Ronald Carpenter, 18, Kenneth Beasley, 17, and a 16-year-old juvenile, all of Brantford, and charged them with armed robbery.

Mrs. Irvine indignant," Mrs. Irvine explained to police when praised for her courage.

Massive Attacks Gather Momentum On Central Front

Allied Forces Driven Out Of Road Hub of Hoengsong

Tokyo, Feb. 13 — (AP) — Chinese communists shifted the direction of their massive attack in central Korea today and headed down mountain corridors to split Allied lines between Wonju and Yoju.

Gen. MacArthur visited the western front and warned on his return to Tokyo that the enemy still has plenty of manpower and supplies.

The first red onslaughts dented Allied lines as much as 18 miles and swept United Nations forces out of the road centre of Hoengsong, 10 miles north of Wonju and 50 air miles east of Seoul.

But this apparently was only the eastern wing of a heavier attack now gathering momentum.

Seven Divisions Attack

Lead-off columns of at least seven Chinese divisions massed for the attack struck at Hoengsong and north of Chipyong and southward Tuesday. They slipped past Hoengsong, 10 miles west of Hoengsong, and headed down two mountain valleys toward the Wonju-Yoju road.

Other Chinese forces surrounded Chipyong and Tuesday night launched an attack on the town. Tanks and self-propelled guns pounded Chipyong from the southwest while artillery or mortars were firing from the northeast. Other attacks came from the north and east.

Allied air force, marine and navy planes combined in low-level strikes aimed to break up the mounting threat to the main east-west road in northern South Korea.

Would be Menace

Once in possession of the road, the reds would be in position to strike east or west behind allied lines. They would menace the four or more divisions along the western front in the Seoul area, and 10th Corps units holding the central front line near Wonju.

Allied air power pounced on one band of 1,000 reds moving down the mountains west of the two valleys near Sokkiing. Pilots estimated they killed 300.

Allied planes also hit two other groups—about 400 reds 10 miles northwest of Yoju and another 100 skirting Chipyong.

There was little ground fighting Tuesday except for Monday-Tuesday's blazing battle around Hoengsong. American and British troops fought their way out of the trap sprung by a Chinese force that had driven in behind a new defensive positions.

Much of Tuesday was spent by both allied and communists in regrouping for new fighting.

The battle around Hoengsong leaves Chipyong the northernmost allied strongpoint on the central front.

For the first time red tanks were reported moved in to bolster the communist defences along the north shore of the Han River and inside Seoul.

Allied air claimed two tanks destroyed. Some of the tanks knocked out Monday had been abandoned in previous action.

Southeast of the Han, savage local fighting raged.

Temperature Dip Eases Threat Of Flooding

Toronto, Feb. 13 — (CP) — A temperature drop today eased a flood threat along Etobicoke Creek in suburban Long Branch.

Works Department officials said an ice jam upstream from where the creek empties into Lake Ontario caused the creek to overflow, sending about four inches of water over a flat area where 300 families live.

When the temperature fell below freezing, the runoff of rain and melting snow several miles upstream slackened and the flood waters started to subside. Officials, who arranged for trucks to take about 70 children across the flooded area to school, said they expected the situation would be under control today.

Engineers last night blasted ice jams in Humber River, west of Toronto, to reduce flooding. But one report today said the water had risen. Police said yesterday, when a bridge was submerged. One hundred children stayed home from school.

COYPU RAT KILLED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Feb. 13 — (CP) — A small animal, killed recently by dogs along Lyons Creek, has been identified as a coypu rat or nutria, native of South America, game conservation officer Roy Muma said today. The only previous record of a coypu rat found in Ontario occurred at South Algoma several years ago.

ing trip to Korea, said U.N. forces are fighting the only kind of war they can in the present political campaign.

"We are still engaged in a war of manoeuvre with the object of inflicting as heavy a punishment as we can on the enemy," MacArthur said. He added that any attempt to set up an allied line across Korea would result in destruction of our forces piecemeal.

The top commander said the future of allied forces in Korea "rests on political and international considerations." He added:

"Talk of crossing the 38th parallel at the present stage of the campaign, apart from any political action incidental to the tactical situation, is purely academic."

DENSE FOG SLOWS TRAFFIC IN DISTRICT

A heavy "pea soup" fog which settled over the district early after the supper hour Monday slowed down traffic in the Bay of Quinte area Monday evening.

The fog closed down about six o'clock in the evening and was reforcing highway traffic to proceed at a snail's pace as well as reducing visibility in the city. No accidents however were reported in the heavy driving. Side streets and less travelled traffic arteries in the city proved slippery this morning as ice covered streets proved greasy. Lowering temperatures today served to dry up the moisture to some extent, but at noon streets were still slippery.

BORN WITH TWO TEETH

Toronto, Feb. 12—(CP)— New Liskeard's chubby John Barry Mainard had his record broken last week by little Miss Judy Blanche Kelly, who went one better by being born with two lower teeth. Hospital authorities said the odds were 10,000-1 against a baby being born with one tooth or when John old just that! Then Judy cupped his feet.

Good Old Days Not so Good as Many Like to Think Rotary Club Told

Interspersing his address with humorous stories of the past and present, the Rev. Dr. Ralph Tavish, minister of Bridge Street United Church, spoke to the Rotary Club yesterday on the topic "The Good Old Days".

In some things, Mr. McTavish said, quoting an old lady of his acquaintance, "the old days were better and better and in others worse and worse". "Older people", he said, "were prone to remark that the present day world was going to the dogs".

Economically and socially, he believed the world of today was much better off than in the old days. "We would not", he said, "want to go back to the old pioneer aspects of life and its conditions."

He quoted a newspaper that in 1785 a Negro girl was offered for sale. In the same advertisement the publisher offered a bay mare for sale.

"In 1825," he went on, "advertisements appeared in American newspapers asking for healthy skinny fellows, orphans preferred, who would take jobs at $25 per year as riders for the overland express".

Children Prisoners Lashed

One hundred years ago in a Canadian penitentiary an eight-year-old boy was sentenced to seven years and lashes. A ten-year-old received the same sentence and ten for whistling. A French Canadian was also ordered lashed because he took French.

"All around us", Mr. McTavish said, "people are advocating disturbed over the increase of alcoholism. There may be as much drinking now as in the past but not the drunkenness that prevailed in the old days. Then the aim of life established the expression 'drunk as a lord'. Cockfighting and gambling were the pastimes of the day.

"But we have the manpower in Canada," he said. "We have thousands of trained airmen in Canada—men with proven courage and ability."

He said that sufficient trained fighter pilots could be secured to man 20 fighting squadrons. The cost would be $3,000 each for refresher courses as compared with $300,000 for training of raw recruits. And then there would be no guarantee the pilot would be suitable for combat duty.

Says Conscription Fair

Also Canada needed five army divisions for the defence of Western Canada and more overseas. "If we think we can get the men through voluntarism we are thinking is jellied," he said. "Conscription is fair and war is necessary at the moment. Yet no political party is urging conscription. There is no leadership", stated Mr. Robb.

Inflation was also claimed by the speaker as being every bit as dangerous as the threat of war. With the cost of living largely on the increase Canadian people have spent their war and their savings, while insurance and annuities were being decreased in value.

Adding to the cause of inflation, according to Mr. Robb was the government policy of family allowances, old age pensions and the action of unions, which sought to increase profits.

Calls For Renewed Interest

He called for a renewed interest and intelligence in politics and said the lack of leadership in politics shown by the local newspaper was "disheartening" as the conduct of many local businessmen in their lack of interest in politics was equally disgraceful," he said.

"We must have people, who are unafraid to speak and to act fearlessly in politics. We may not survive, but at least we will have tried," he concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Kin John Lennox with thanks being expressed by Kin E. B. Follwell. President Murray Davis presided over the meeting.

Need For Conscription Stressed in Talk

The need for the immediate institution of conscription to fill Canada's manpower needs was stressed to members of the local Kinsmen club at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening.

Addressing the club members on "The High Price of Survival" Malcolm Robb, local solicitor, said that only by conscription could Canada hope to raise the army and air force needed for proper defence.

Mr. Robb said that Canada today was threatened by two forces, either one or both of which could destroy the country. He named the two forces as Russian communism and the spiral of inflation which is rapidly driving up the cost of living in this country.

The speaker said that conditions are vastly different today than they were in 1939. Then the advantage of manpower was on our side. Russia and China were on our side as well as India.

Critic of Policy

Mr. Robb was critical of the manpower policy of the Canadian government during the war years when adequate reinforcements for overseas duty were sadly lacking. This resulted in many men going to the front lines without proper training and cause the unnecessary casualties.

He pointed to the publicity now being given to the aim of securing volunteers for Canada armed forces and termed the "propaganda" the publicity being given to one platoon which had not yet gone into action in Korea and for one fighter squadron gone to England for training.

"But we have the manpower in Canada," he said. "We have thousands of trained airmen in Canada—men with proven courage and ability."

He said that sufficient trained fighter pilots could be secured to man 20 fighting squadrons. The cost would be $3,000 each for refresher courses as compared with $300,000 for training of raw recruits. And then there would be no guarantee the pilot would be suitable for combat duty.

Boys' Section Christ Ch. Choir Wins Trophy

On Saturday the boys' section of Christ Church choir went to Kingston to compete for the Rotary Shield in Class 121 in the Rotary Festival of Music, and against very tough opposition, brought back the trophy.

The adjudicator, Dr. W. S. Gluck or Hampstead, London, England, had nothing but praise for the boys' performances, which to use the doctor's own words was, at once correctly interpreted, sung with enjoyment and was diction-perfect."

The boys were directed by Arthur Simpson, and accompanied at the piano by George Maybee who is now organist and choirmaster at St. George's Cathedral in Kingston. Incidentally Mr. Maybee's choir competed in the same class as the Christ Church boys.

The choir which is entered in three classes next Wednesday at Kingston, when great efforts will be made to put Belleville on the music map.

The choir committee wishes to thank the Rotary Club of Belleville for the provision of transportation to and from the competitions, and also for the gracious help of those people who gave of their time and money last Saturday.

St. Catharines Man Given 10-Year Term

St. Catharines, Feb. 13 (CP)— Joseph Kazarian, convicted Saturday of wilfully shooting at his wife with intent to maim and disfigure her body, was sentenced to 20 years.

Defence counsel Stuart H. Fleming called a number of character witnesses who testified to Kazarian's reputation as a citizen, his honesty, and generosity.

In passing sentence, Mr. Justice Gale pointed out that shooting with intent to maim is of serious consequence, although not murder, and both have a maximum penalty of life imprisonment. The jury, in finding Kazarek guilty of "wilful shooting" with "intent to maim" rejected the suggestion that he was suffering from amnesia or mental confusion.

Montrealer Suffers From Flu, Hiccups

Montreal, Feb. 13 — (CP)—The way Joe Goldberg sees it, Montrealers who have only the flu are lucky. He has the flu and hiccups as well.

The hiccup bout started 10 days ago and family doctors have had no success in ridding the 54-year-old Goldberg of the three spasms which jolt him 15 times a minute. The gripe and the hiccups have weakened him to the point where he also suffers intermittent fever.

Fabulous Play 'Harvey' Will be Presented Here

Harvey, Mary Chase's farce about a rabbit whose full six feet one and a half inches are invisible to everyone but one man, is the far grossest more than $8 million on its tours. Its screen rights were sold to Universal-International for $1 million, and it has played in many countries.

Three men on the stage, Joe E. Brown, Frank Fay, and Sidney Field, in England, have had their personal stock rise in theatre ranks because of the wanderings of Harvey, and the fabulous success of the comedy took an obscure housewife from her kitchen to the first ranks of the playwriting field.

Which is all me- a way of saying that if the a competent Wednesday e at B.C.I., Harvey stands an excellent chance to keep the record moving. The play is being presented by the Queen's Players Guild, under the sponsorship of Queen's Alumni in the city and district.

Cast of the play has been assembled at Queen's from students who have had experience on the stage in various cities. Belleville will be represented in the production by four former students of B.C.I. Hamish Wilson will be in charge of makeup, and Howard Hart, Phyllis Coles and Joan Ashbury are expected to do other production work.

The male and female leads will be played by Peter Macklem of Kingston and Joyce Repo of Peterborough. Both have had stage experience, Mr. Macklem at Trinity College School in Port Hope, and Miss Repo with both amateur and professional companies in Peterborough.

New Avalanches Cause Deaths Of at Least 19

Geneva, Switzerland, Feb. 13 (AP) — New snow avalanches roared disastrously down Alpine mountainsides today for the second time in three weeks, killing at least 19 and possibly 30 persons in Switzerland and Italy.

Continuing snow falls, alternating with thaws, heightened the danger of more slides in the Swiss, Italian, Austrian, and French Alps where about 100 persons died under avalanches in late January.

Twelve and possibly 15 persons lost their lives in crunching avalanches which swept two villages in eastern Switzerland in the last 48 hours. Seven persons were believed killed and 27 injured in avalanches or accidents due to the weather near Italy's frontier with France and Switzerland.

Monday the two men pleaded guilty to the charges with sentence being deferred by the magistrate until today.

Other Charges Withdrawn

Other charges against the two men laid under the Income Tax Act were withdrawn when no evidence was offered by the Crown.

Jointly charged with conspiracy with Mr. James and Mr. Taylor was E. J. S. Wallwork, of Belleville, accountant for the Madoc mining firm. He did not enter a plea to the charge and the preliminary hearing in the Wallwork case was adjourned until March 5th.

Special Prosecutor George Bagwell of Toronto stated that both Mr. James and Mr. Taylor would be called as Crown witnesses against Mr. Wallwork.

Co-operated Fully

In passing sentence on the two men, Magistrate Wills noted that both accused had co-operated fully with the income tax department in making their investigation and had made a complete disclosure of facts required.

Also they had made payment of all taxes owing the department and had refunded to the company the funds transferred from the company account.

Despite Increased Expenditures In All Departments Council Lowers Tax Rate to 59 Mills

In face of general rising costs in all municipal departments, city council Monday afternoon set a tax rate of 59 mills for 1951, a decrease of one mill from the rate of last year.

Mayor R. T. Potter in addressing council expressed his appreciation to chairmen of the various council committees and members of council for their co-operation in keeping expenditures to the minimum.

Estimated expenditures for the year had increased roughly $150,000 over last year he said, but this added cost had been offset to a great extent by increased assessment. Assessment for the general rate this year is $16,947,731, the assessment for the Collegiate Institute purposes being $16,988,833. Public school assessment is $15,145,898.

Total expenditures for the year were estimated at $1,219,864.82, the 59 mill tax rate providing for a surplus over expenditures of $11,509.75.

Additional Traffic Patrol

In passing Mayor Potter noted there was room in the budget to get this year which were not included last year. These were the cost of recreation co-ordinator and cost of a motorcycle and additional police constable for traffic patrol.

Addressing council prior to presentation of the budget by-laws, Chairman of Finance Alderman C. W. Haig noted there was little difference in the demand for services in the city with the exception of providing for services continue at an accelerated pace. The deterioration in the international exchange is felt by the average citizen through the increase of the cost-of-living.

First Time in Budget

He also noted that for the first time in history of the city a provision for recreational program appeared in the budget and also the amount allotted to public libraries has been substantially increased. The cost of education was much greater, the increase being felt almost entirely to the two new schools and increases in salaries and the number of teachers required.

"I feel that the limit of taxation on real estate has been practically reached," Mr. Haig said. "No greater catastrophe can befall a municipality than to get itself in the position, where its citizens are unable to pay, resulting in properties being returned to the municipality for tax sale. It is to be hoped that the federal and provincial governments will soon be able to resolve the taxation field so that either municipalities will be relieved of the cost of some public services or be permitted other sources of revenue. The need is extremely urgent."

Gives Financial Picture

In giving a brief review of the city financial picture Mr. Haig reminded that figures used were only approximate. The bank over draft at the end of the year had been $173,000, but this was made up largely of unpaid taxes in the amount of $90,000; street ceilings $21,000 due from the arena and varied amounts receivable from the province and others.

Deficit on last year's current account was $15,000 due almost entirely to the inability of the public works department to fill demands on it without the grant of money allotted.

This, he said, was one of the most serious problems which the city had to face.

The public works department was maintaining in an excellent manner the various services for which it is responsible but the citizens should realize that better snow removal, sanding of streets and sidewalks, cutting of trees and other items carry with them a demand for money that will soon exceed the ability of the taxpayer to pay.

Public Works Up

Biggest increase in estimated expenditures within the control of council was that of the public works department which rose sharply from $139,000 last year to $196,500 for 1951. Health increased from $12,000 to $17,000; Fire Department from $103,000 to $117,235; Police from $76,331 to $98,450; Parks Boards from $9,920 to $13,780 and Board of Education requirements from $280,332 to $341,766.

On the other side of the picture direct relief was expected to cost $25,000 less and General Hospital $5,000 less.

Miscellaneous revenue for the city was expected to increase from $126,053 to $174,283.

Less Than Last Year

Mr. Haig noted that practically every item, where an estimated increase is anticipated it can be accounted for by wage and salary adjustments, in the case of the public works department the budget is slightly less than the amount actually spent last year.

At the urgent request of the library board, Mr. Haig provided inspector of libraries the amount allotted to the Corby Public Library was increased from 90c per capita to 75c to encourage the work of that institution.

The increase in the city assessment had been something over $1,700,000 which would produce additional revenue of about $100,000.

This year the city did not have to budget for a large amount of non-recurring items which had to be included last year. This meant that a tax rate of 30 mills, or one mill lower than that of last year could be struck. The decrease was not great, but in view of that most municipalities expected an increase, Mr. Haig felt the 1951 rate in Belleville would be unique.

The tax rate for public school on an assessment of $15,145,898 this year is 15.9 mills; for the collegiate it is 4.6 and for the Separate School, 15.9 mills.

City's Share

The city's share of local improvements will cost 1.3 mills; garbage collection on an assessment of $18,833,143 will be 3 mills; hospitalization 2.4 mills; relief, 1.4 and general rate 30 making a total of 59 mills.

Included among miscellaneous receipts are fines, fees and parking tickets, $11,000; Board of Works grant $30,000; police grant $18,000; fire grant $20,000 and $17,000 revenue from parking tickets, etc, as the supply of steel was limited and the price on the increase.

Concurred in Motion

Council concurred in a resolution from Chesterville village council asking the provincial government to subsidize municipalities 25 1-2 per cent of the cost of sewerage and waterworks projects on motion of councillors Rodgers and Montgomery.

A communication was tabled from the Ontario Public Utilities Commission stating the commission contemplated the erection of a new transformation at approximate cost of $25,000 and asking council for its approval, also for an expression of its willingness to issue debentures for $12,000 to $15,000 should it be needed for completion of the project the public utilities commission to assume all responsibilities for redeeming the said debentures.

A request for use of the community hall by the Boy Scouts on February 22nd for a Father and Son banquet was granted on motion of councillors West and Montgomery.

Sold Old Stoker

An inquiry from W. C. West re sale price of old stoker at community hall resulted in council getting a price of $25 for the stoker, which the scator will be sold for 1-3 cost of a new one of a similar type.

The Salvation Army was granted a sum of $25.00 on motion of West and Montgomery.

A communication from D. C. Morton asking for entire Hastings High School area advised council that Stirling's share of the debenture debt on Marmora's new high school up to the present was $6,000.

Council decided to advertise for tenders on resurfacing the Front Road and the clerk was instructed to accept tenders until March 1st.

The clerk was also instructed to procure the necessary supply of dog tags.

On motion of councillors West and Rodgers, W. Montgomery chairman of streets committee was appointed as a delegate to the Ontario Good Roads Association with his expenses being paid up to $50.00. Clerk Malloy was instructed to send the necessary membership fee. Several accounts were presented for payment.

County Assessor Speaks to Council On Assessment

Stirling—The regular monthly meeting of the municipal council was held in the public library on Monday evening with Reeve H. J. Wells in the chair and he was supported by Councillors Rodgers, Montgomery and R. West.

By-law No. 541 to provide $7,000 for expenditure on the roads and streets of the village was given its several readings and passed by the council.

Assessor Heard

Harry Harrison, county assessor, addressed council relative to the proposed changes in the assessment of the county. He had visited several counties where county assessors had been at work including Grey, Peel, Ontario and Northumberland and Durham counties and was endeavoring to get as much information as possible in order to avoid mistakes. He hoped that out of the information obtained at the assessor's convention in Toronto on Feb. 19th and a subsequent school for municipal assessors in Hastings county a start could be made.

J. V. Holt briefly addressed council, advocating the early purchase of any needed drainage culkets.

Rate Opposed

Alderman Charles Hyde opposed the 59 mill rate claiming that the rate could be reduced up to one mill through elimination or reduction of certain items.

One of the items in the budget which he objected to was $4,500 for the purchase of a motorcycle and additional man for the police for traffic patrol. Another item was the increased remuneration, which councillors voted themselves pending approval of the department of municipal affairs.

In reply Mayor Potter stated that the motorcycle for traffic patrol was needed and should have been purchased last year.

Ottawa Paper Fined $3,000 For Contempt

Ottawa, Feb. 13—(CP)—Publishers of the Ottawa Journal and two of its reporters today were fined a total of $3,000 for contempt of court in connection with a story dealing with the Sullivan manslaughter trial.

Chief Justice J. C. McRuer, in imposing the fine, said the story was "shocking" and if it were not for the good name of the Ottawa Journal, he would have all those responsible for the story committed to jail.

He referred to the story appearing on the front page of the newspaper Feb. 3 in which the two reporters said that they had learned that Mrs. Marion Sullivan, charged with manslaughter in the death of her lawyer-husband would go to the witness box to tell in her own words the story of her husband's death, which had been "locked in secrecy" since he died in a Chateau Laurier bedroom Nov. 17.

Chief Justice's Comment

The Chief Justice said the story implied that Mrs. Sullivan had some secret information to conceal. This implication would have an effect on the jury, some members of which might have access to the newspaper report and be influenced by it.

Chief Justice McRuer imposed a fine of $3,000 on the Ottawa Journal Publishing Company and $300 each on reporters Ainslie Kerr and Ross Smith.

Gratian O'Leary, associate editor of the Journal, appearing in court, said the newspaper had no intent and being in contempt of court and apologized if it was so construed.

Both reporters also apologized. Kerr said the information was given to him by sources assumed to be in proper knowledge and he did not have any idea at the time of writing the article of being in contempt of court, Smith said he had nothing to add.

Both counsel for the defence and the crown stated they had given out no information which would cause the reporters to write such an article.

With the case going to the jury today, jurors would not hear of the

Chief Justice's Comment

Commenting on the story, Chief Justice McRuer said:

"The story has placed the accused woman in a position where if she did not give evidence, the jury might think she was concealing something, that she has something to tell.

"Her first act as she did give her story. She told her story to the coroner, and in her statements to the police and, with minor variations, all of those statements were consistent with one another.

"It is the duty of the press to tell the public only such matters as ought to be published in England and similar circumstances.

HOW THEY SPELL

To be able to spell correctly is said to be a rare gift. In the current Star appears an interesting reference to the ability to spell. "Very few people can spell," it says, "and those who can spell are never able to describe the trick of it to others. Educationists wrestle with the subject in vain. Methods of teaching change faster than light travels and text books offering new methods sell quicker than snake oil at a fair. All to no effect."

But there is a variety of spelling allowed by dictionaries and by custom of good writers.

"Each rising generation provides the same number of victims of spelling methods. They all valiantly resist any attempt to knock spelling into their heads. It is time for someone to speak up clearly and say that perhaps it doesn't matter. Shakespeare's spelling was frightful, yet he got by," they say.

It is not easy to understand so many of the so-called rules of English or in spelling. There are variations enough in the spelling of words seemingly to justify one who spells out of the ordinary to try to justify himself.

Spelling has ranged far from the original forms that words once used.

It is instinctively human that there will never be uniformity for some people like to spell words one way while others prefer another and both can prove by themselves their spelling is correct and that it is justified by history.

Dictionaries which are up to the latest in the use of words list varied spellings and generously allow their users to adopt whatever spelling they like.

Of course outside of the use spellings which have historic basis there are the many persons who just can't spell. This is the class that irks the good spellers and often gives them an immense amount of work correcting the letters to be certain style and uniformity.

The discrepancy of spellings all comes of course from the aging and growth of languages and the influence of languages on one another as well as of the variations which have crept into the languages since the earliest times.

The Star notes some weird spellings which have come into use. It says that "it is hard to understand why 'harass' should have only one 'r' while 'embarrass' has two. 'Britain' is spelled with one 't' but 'Brittany' is spelled with 'two.' If you add 'ed' to the word 'pot' you are told to add another 't' and spell it 'potted.' But if you do the same thing with the word 'limit,' the blue pencil strikes. If you find it possible to 'manage' something you find it becomes 'manageable' but if you find something can be 'reduced,' it is 'reducible.' Where has that 'e' gone to?"

Uniformity in spelling seems afar off. Some will want to standardize an eye to origins of words, others to spell in the latest fashion. There is the word 'defence' so much in the news now. Or should it be spelled 'defense?' Some claim there are rules even for these words and others will not accept that so they use the 's' where the other uses a 'c.'

The truth seems that words not only grow from generation to generation, but they are subject to changes of popularity and it seems that there will never be such uniformity as will please all.

However one rule seems to be rigid—enough, that is that one should spell uniformly; using the same spelling as standard day after day.

Besides those who use accepted spellings there are many persons who simply are poor spellers, following no set style.

HEATED STREETS

A heavy snowfall in Toronto ties up everything in knots, but these occasions are very rare, and the City of Churches is more concerned over the freezing sleet and rain storms that coat the streets with ice.

Heating specialists agree that the idea of heated streets is worth investigating, but no one adds somewhat cautiously that reduced costs in snow removal "might" justify the expense of installing pipes under the pavement.

It is not that the idea is new. Engineers tried the system on 1,000 feet of roadway just outside Detroit in the winter of 1948-49. The snowfall amounted to only 10 inches and the cost of operation was estimated at $1.31 hourly.

We don't profess to be heated pavement specialists, but when we see four, five or six inches of snow falling in one storm, we can see the heavy load that would be placed on the equipment to get rid of the snow, and the high cost of operation.

Street Commissioner Bradley may have trouble in persuading Toronto administrators to interlace the streets with pipes for snow removal, unless it is shown they could also be used for cooling purposes in the summer. Sudbury Star.

BY-GONE JOYS

The many joys that used to be,
In memory still remain!
The first brave climbing of a hollow tree,
Pool splashing after rain;
In winter clinging to a sleigh
To runner ride the snow,
I would not try such things
today,
But loved them long ago.

The little street I lived
upon
Is now a thoroughfare.
The friends I shared it with have gone
And left but tradesmen there.

All things to time and change must bow,
As I have come to know.
I would not care to live there
now,
But loved it long ago.

Time was — 'tis truth that I repeat —
Such appetite had I
It never bothered me to eat
A second wedge of pie.
I ate green apples from the bough
And relished them, but oh!
I would not dare to do that now.
But could, long years ago,

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

RHYME ON!

A lady has just sent me a verse
60-odd lines in length to fill most of this entire page, and I sent it back to her with a short note that expressed my opinion and become a kind of compost pile of verse.

I do not know why so many poets pick on me, It may be because I have a kind face. In any event they come in, they come in like a flash, flood, and a good 99 per cent of it is pretty downright bad. I am able to give this blunt opinion, man to man, because my own verse is not worth a hoot, conquered the habit — as the French so aptly put it, "douser."

Still, the fact is, I am a professional poet, which automatically gives me authority as a critic.
In 1945 I wrote a rousing little stanza, which was eagerly snapped up for the sum of $10 (more as poetry goes) by a sensitive oil company. This stanza was sung to the tune of "Little Brown Jug" and went as follows:

Three Cheers with a smile!
There's a station every mile!
Drop in tomorrow and you will see.

We are as super as super can be!

The verse never got on the air
(I was told its tempo was wrong since it had a bad lisp) but it established me, and my wife was quite with loathing on so much of the verse submitted to my desk, especially the more sentimental, the first fool robin, I do want the poets themselves to know that I write only what I like, and that out amateur poets would be a sad place, indeed. A lot neater, but sadder.

Syd's Blast

I am moved partly to make these comments by the words of a fellow columnist, Sydney Harris, who heads his brains for the Chicago Daily News, and is apparently just as fearless with them as I am with mine. The difference is that Sidney, who has a mean face for the camera, has finally lost his temper and exploded in a burst of indignation.

"Somehow," he says, "everybody who can arrange alphabet blocks to spell
'c-a-t' thinks he is an embryonic poet. Some of these nearly having gone berserk with too much rhyme, and have learned enough bitter experience never to suggest that their literary efforts stink, which they do. Only God can make a tree, but any fool kitchen can write a passable poem.

The slenderbreads who bard editorial offices with their hideous hexameters forget — if they ever knew that poetry is a craft before it is an art, and that a skilled poet requires as much training and preparation as a journeyman plumber or carpenter.
You can no more write by sheer inspiration than you can fix a leaky faucet by inspiration."

There may be a kernel of truth in this astonishingly bitter tirade, but, dear mr, Sydney, it is such a waste of energy. It is like complaining about people whistling on the street or yodelling in the bath-tub. For amateur poetry is something special. It does not seriously pretend to be craftsmanship or fame, but simply because he hasn't anything else to do with it.

It must be remembered, too, that the poor fellow's muse or Muse has no way of knowing he has given birth to a monster. It looks exquisite to it, as exquisite he is by the bitter-sweet joy of creation, and so he sends it out to the editor — one—and that is the end of it for him.

Then it comes in the envelope.
"Thoughts in a Spring Garden," it says, or something like that. I put it down on the desk. And that is the end of it for me.

What Sydney has completely overlooked is that poetry may be terrible, the motive that produced it is a most commendable thing and should be encouraged, not kicked in the dentifres.

Brave Idea

These "dunderheads" and their vile verse are attempts to express a personal conception of beauty, trying to pin down a fleeting moment, to capture a real glimpse at the deeper meaning of life, groping to put down in words something mysterious and lovely, desperately striving to pass on the feeling of being suddenly aware of immortality in a garden.

They flop horribly, of course.
As Sydney says, inspiration isn't enough. Earnestness isn't enough.
The more you work with words the more you are aware of their limitations and their obstinacy.
The poor, eager amateur, made his debut in the newspaper, and of his thoughts, might just as well be working with Ready-Mix Cement.

But it's his trying that counts.
Poor fool, he is not conscious of people are moved by beauty or tenderness, so long as they react to it. Perhaps he doesn't even wink of a changing season, then we have people around who are civilized.

Mackenzie's Column:
Shah Recognizes Poverty Cause Of Most Unrest

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

It's a notable commentary on our times that Iran's serious problems have joined Asiatic leaders who at long last recognize abject poverty as being the cause of most of the unrest in their part of the world.

Only a few months ago the 32-year-old Shah Mohammed
Reza Pahlevi had the stubborn belief that better conditions in his own country. The first was his socalled "White Revolt" in which huge holdings to the land-hungry peasants. Yesterday he capped this by ordering that the estates tions in connection with his marriage to Princess Soraya Esfandiari should be stripped of the usual regal pomp and be confined to the bare essentials.

Bold Move

This championship of the people is a bold move on the part of the ruler. It requires no imagination to realize that the landed gentry of Iran will be the last to take this stand against redistribution, on the basis that it will be dragged down along with it. They aren't yet ready to share with the poor.

Nevertheless, the well-to-do landed gentry is the lesser of two evils for Iran. Across the northern border the long arm of Russian communism is reaching for unripe fruit among the politically privileged. Poverty and hunger provide the most fertile soil for the growth of communism.

The dissolution of the great landed estates will bring the only resulting benefit to the small folk, has been moving apace in recent years. Iran will be about the farthest east that this upheaval has reached on a big scale, barring the American - impelled reforms in Japan.

Several international projects for the betterment of farming in the Far East are getting under way. Mayhap the young Persian Shah's gesture will speed the eastward movement of redistribution and improvement of the agricultural lands.

Reports Conflict Regarding 38th Parallel Crossing

U. S. Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 13 — (AP) — Official reports conflicted today on whether South Koreans actually do or did not penetrate North Korea.

Latest accounts said they had not in their current push.

Reports to Eighth Army headquarters Monday night and Tuesday night said a patrol of the South Korean 2nd Division had pushed five miles north of the 38th parallel — the old demarcation line — at a point west of Kansong in Kangwang and then was forced back 6 miles by red counterattacks.

This would have left the South Koreans still a mile north of the 38th parallel.

However, early today American advisers with the South Korean forces informed Eighth Army headquarters that the South Koreans were forced by withdraw after a fight that ranged a little less than a mile north of the parallel.

Air observation also indicated the reds were linked up virtually on the parallel.

Letter to the Editor

Complains of By-law

Editor,
Ontario. Intelligencer.

I read in your paper of Feb. 7, a by-law passed by our city council regarding the cleaning of lanes, I gathered from reading the report as our Victorian ancestor that Mr. Thomas sponsored the by-law, (which I hope is not the case). A few years ago we had some trouble with out lateral. It got plugged with roots from a tree that was across the street. As I have no tree at the front of my property, these roots reached to and entered our lateral and plugged it. The tree I am speaking of, has been removed so I can't cause any more trouble, but another tree has been planted pretty well in the same spot by the city. As to the legality of this by-law there are enough lawyers in our council, they should know what they are doing, but what I would like to know is: Can the protection of the City of Belleville be because of the above mentioned trouble and compel the property owner to pay the repair bill.

—A Property Owner.

Editor's note: The by-law at which Property Owner speaks was sponsored by Ald. Don Thomas, chairman of Public Work, and passed unanimously by council.

METCHNIKOFF TURNED UP HIS TOES AT SEVENTY-ONE

Metchnikoff, discoverer of a physician. For that matter I'm not an urologist, but I do have a

In his book The Prolongation

Metchnikoff said:

"As it is undesirable to absorb too much fatty matter, it is necessary to prepare curdled milk for regular use from skimmed milk." (For the benefit of city hicks who don't know what skimmed milk is, it is what's left after you skim the cream from a pan of fresh milk that has stood long enough for the cream to rise. Or virtually the same, what is left after the butter fat has been removed from fresh milk by the separator.)

"After the milk has been boiled for five minutes or longer, and rapidly cooled, pure cultures of the lactic microbes are sown in it. Only small quantities to prevent the germination of spores already in the milk and not destroyed in the process of boiling.

"The fermentation lasts a number of hours, varying according to the temperature and other conditions. The curdled milk, pleasant to the taste, and active in preventing intestinal putrefaction

"The milk taken daily in quantities of from 200 to 500 cubic centimeters" (nearly a pound), "acts upon the whole intestine, and stimulates the kidneys favorably. Some milk can be taken at any time of the day, with or in between meals . . ."

"The Bulgarian bacillus taken from yahourth" (also spelled yoghourt) "prepares milk, prepared from cultures of lactic microbes, keeps for a warm temperatures, and, as has been shown by Dr. Orlof, it has the power to live in the intestinal flora of man. "Soured milk," prepared according to the recipe which I have given, has been analysed by M. Grigoroff in the Institute of Pasteur Institute. When it is ready to be taken, M. Famin found that in about 10 grams of lactic acid" (that's approximately a few teaspoonfuls) "and litre" (approximately a quart). "Moreover, a large proportion (nearly 36 per cent) of the casein had been rendered soluble during the fermentation" (digesting).

"Of the phosphate of lime (which is the chief mineral substance of milk) 69 per cent was rendered soluble...these facts all confirm the utility of soured milk...."

Since Metchnikoff's time the Bulgarian strain of lactic bacillus culture for fermenting or souring milk has been succeeded by another strain known as Acidophilus. Acidophilus soured milk has considerable popularity fifteen years ago.

When all is said it appears to be, not a health question but one of your individual taste or preference, whether you take one or another kind of sour milk.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Hard Water

Please state whether very hard drinking water has any deleterious effect on the human bladder. (F. J.)

Answer—If the water has a satisfactory taste it is never too hard to drink—except when it is frozen. Modern methods in softening water has nothing to do with drinking water. None with hardening of the arteries or with rheumatism.

Seventy Cents a Pound

I don't know just why, but when I see the letters "mind" herewith I immediately wonder-ed what Dr. Brady would think about it. (Mrs. C. M.)

Answer—I think a great deal about it. One of the most economic situation it reflects. It is a label from a package of potato "mind" which I bought recently. Mind I'm not squawking—just thinking. And thinking I think about it the gloomier seems the prospect of restoring sanity to the selection and purchase of food.

Building a Hair Ball

Daughter, three years old, has been pulling her hair since she was 14 months old and eating it. (Mrs. L. C. M.)

Answer—The doctors are right—children eat hair. They are likely to suffer intestional obstruction from accumulation of hair balls, or intestinal perforation. If necessary crop her hair short. The habit is difficult to break.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LIVING ON MARGIN

I have been much interested in the many articles and books on the life of the late F. Scott Fitzgerald. I do not believe I could have been an admirer of the man, but I am of his genius, which he squandered and dissipated. I speculate upon what he might have brilliantly achieved in terms of ability to pay in full.

All his life he lived beyond his means and most that he wrote deserves to live.

All his life Fitzgerald speculated upon margins to enhance his fame and success. Tragically he lost out. Here and there is fragment of his remarkable genius between the covers of books, but he become mere gamblers. We only guess as to our winnings. Such men spend upon what they have not yet earned. And most people live their objective in the end, as Fitzgerald did.

Two of the greatest buyers on margin I ever knew were Lincoln the late W. C. Durant and Jesse Livermore. Both at times were become mere gamblers. We only guess as to our winnings. Such men spend upon what they have not yet earned. And most people live their objective in the end, as Fitzgerald did.

Two of the greatest buyers on margin I ever knew were Lincoln
Holmes once said, that
"to live is to speculate," but it is the only half function you only half live, as so many do. Few of us function to the extent of our ability, but living on margin throws its shadow of defeat before you ever very eyes.

Strength for the Day

COST OF FAITH

It is of little use for us to talk about our religion unless we try to put that religion into operation every day so that it will bring us confidence, security, and peace.

St. Paul was explicit in his directions to his followers as to how they could achieve this end. "This is the way I obtain it," he said;
"you can obtain it in like fashion."
Paul was an extremely practical type of religion for the internal, spiritual struggles of which Christ announced all things that I might gain that Person as my friend, companion, Lord and Saviour. I paid the cost, and I received the assurance.

But having received it and having come into this new life,
Paul did not allow himself to think that he had obtained all there is to obtain in a Christian experience or that he had already been made perfect. "Still," said he, "I press on, if it be so that I may lay hold on that for which also I am laid hold on by Christ Jesus.

Religious faith is acquired at the cost of sacrifice and continuous discipline. Having made one sacrifice we must make it daily and ultimate objects. Spiritual security is never a permanent entity. The price of its retention is eternal vigilance.

Town Council to Provide $1,200 For Maintenance School Patrols

Trenton, (Special.)—Trenton town council will provide $1,200 toward salaries of the Board of Education school patrols, it was decided at a special meeting of council held Monday evening.

Chairman of Recreation and Public Services Norman Banfield appealed to council for immediate action in setting up permanent traffic patrols. Mr. Banfield felt that the town would be held liable if anything happened to a child struck down at any of the school crossings while no patrols existed. Town Clerk O. W. Larry put the council straight and clarified the town's position pointing out that although council had a moral liability the town would not be responsible in the event of an accident.

"If it costs $4,000 a year," declared Councillor Banfield, "we're going to give the public what they want."

Lose Interest

Council was asked what happened to the Lions Club's interest in the patrols. It was pointed out Lions Club sponsored the senior student patrols at traffic crossings from the public schools. Recently it was revealed that the patrols had become lax and lit forded little if any protection.

When mention of the Lions Clubs was made Councillor Jones criticized the club. He claimed that the club started these patrols and since they failed to keep them up the council has come in for a lot of criticism. "We're a bunch of suckers", declared the councillor.

Discussion revealed the Board of Education recently washed their hands of the responsibility of the safety of children crossing busy intersections on the way to school. The board in a letter from J. D. L. Campbell, the board secretary voiced disapproval of senior students acting as traffic aad they suggested personnel sent protecting measures would be abolished by the end of the month. Council was asked to set up permanent patrols on or before February 28.

Employ Four Men

Councillor Norman Banfield proposed that four men be employed, two to handle crossings from College Public School on the east side of the town and two with similar duties for Dufferin Public School children on the west side. It was agreed to pay traffic patrolmen $125 per day for each school day in the year. The salary would amount to approximately $250 annually. Councillor Banfield's higher estimate covered the possibility that a fifth man might have to be taken on if the situation warranted it. Councillor Banfield was granted permission to advertise for applicants who will be directly responsible to Chief Constable Jack Taylor. Chief Taylor will decide the four qualified for the job. Veterans and retired personnel will be given priority.

Next Monday night at 8.00 p.m. was the time set for a special council meeting when salary increases of all town employees from town clerk to laborers will be considered. Clerk Larry was asked to evaluate each town employee's job and suggest adjustments accordingly.

Must Keep Land Clean

Sanitary inspector E. R. Cunnell was given authority to prosecute any land owner who neglected cleaning up his land.

Councillor Banfield asked permission to represent council at the March meeting of the Home and School Club when he will call for candidates for the job of administrator of civil defence in Trenton.

It was decided to spend $1,000 to extend a sewer from the town septic tank at the foot of Quinte Street across the Trenton Cold Storage property and out into the channel into the river. The Cold Storage agreed to rent the land to the town for $1.00 a year if they paid for the drawing up of the agreement. The extension was approved by town engineer Rex Davey. Town clerk Larry was instructed to have agreement drawn up.

Council approved of the Trenton Recreation Commission holding Recreation Week for a week including May 24.

C.A.S. Asks $2,000

The Children's Aid Society asked for $2,000 to carry on work in Trenton. Council approved a donation of the same as last year and gave the Society permission to hold two by days if necessary this year. Last year the Society raised $300 by tagging one day in Trenton.

Town engineer Rex Davey was instructed to "smarten up" garbage collection. Councillor Sutherland had received a half a dozen complaints about refuse dropped all over the streets. One housewife reported her garbage can had been stolen. Councillor Sutherland asked to have the driver of trucks made fully responsible.

Charles Bronson agreed to accept an appointment to the Board of Health. Other members of the Board included Bob LaMorre and Eben James. The Board head is Dr. E. A. McQuade, M.O.H.

Skiing Conditions Not Too Good

Out on the Wooler Hills yesterday many Trenton ski enthusiasts found snow conditions sticky and an extra effort to slide down hill. Some skiers had to push themselves down as well as up the slopes. A turn about face in the temperature however failed to dash the hopes of outdoor sportspeople including Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holsey of MacLellan Ave., seen with the many enjoying their favorite winter past-time.

CAMPBELLFORD

Fire Destroys House Owned By Utilities

Campbellford, Feb. 13 —A $5,000 fire destroyed a two-storey house about two miles north of Campbellford on Saturday afternoon. The house was located close to the town power house and was owned by the Campbellford Public Utilities Commission. Mr. Harry Abernethy, an operator at the power house, occupied the dwelling. He and his wife escaped uninjured. The fire appeared to have started from an overheated stovepipe passing through an upstairs partition. The fire smouldered in the partition during the night and was not discovered until the morning.

Volunteer firemen from the Campbellford brigade answered the call, and fought the flames for more than four hours. Huge clouds of white smoke billowed from the building and attracted operators from the surrounding district.

Firemen and neighbors managed to save almost all the furniture from the downstairs portion of the building, but some of this was damaged in the hasty exit.

A 75-gallon drum of fuel oil was removed from a garage at the rear of the house at the height of the fire, when it was feared flames would come dangerously close and possibly cause an explosion.

Three lines of hose were brought into play. Water was taken from the nearby canal and forced through a booster system on the truck, giving firemen plenty of water under pressure.

Coffee was served to the firemen during their long battle with the stubborn blaze.

The loss of $5,000 is partly covered by insurance.

Mr. Keith Bailey of Campbellford, who was one of the first on the scene, aided in removing furniture from the lower floor. He praised the action of Mrs. Abernethy, who worked hard at assisting the men.

The Abernethys are reported to have lost all their clothing in the blaze.

Tout N.Z. Girl As Next Winner Of Olympics

Auckland, N.Z., — (CP) — Yvette Williams, 21, has broken so many track and field records that New Zealanders believe she could be a big star at the 1952 Olympic games. She would need to spend some months under an expert coach in Europe, however, to threaten the marks set at the last Olympics by Fanny Blankers-Koen.

In an exhibition here this season she equalled the world long jump record of 20 feet 8 inches. At an Australian meet in she set an Australian record of 41 feet 8 1-8 inches in the shot put, and added three feet to the Australian discus throw mark. Since returning she has hoisted the discus throw to 118 feet 8-1-4 inches.

She was winner of the long jump in last year's Empire Games and was second in the javelin throw. The year before this she was approaching 5 feet in the high jump. And some judges believe she should concentrate on sprinting, after her good performances in relay races.

New Zealanders, hoping that she will get a chance to shine in the next Olympic games, claim she may be the world's outstanding woman athlete.

NYLON HELMETS

London—(CP)—Firemen in London's west End Ham district go about their jobs with the equivalent of several pairs of nylons on their heads. Their helmets are made from specially hardened nylon.

Women's Quirks Charted By Iron Recorder

London, — (CP) — A unique gadget called the "ironing recorder" has helped scientists prove that the way a woman irons her husband's shirt is a guide to her character.

The experts say quick, careless ironing with frequent change of direction means the lady is an erratic, slapdash person who dislikes household chores.

If she moves the iron jerkily and unevenly, she has an artistic impulsive temperament — and would be better at a career than home-making.

And if she often goes back over the same piece of cloth she is easy-going but insecure. She prefers her husband to make the decisions of the family.

But luckily for most women's peace of mind, their character can't be exposed that way unless the "ironing recorder" is plugged into their brains.

That's not likely, either, because there's only one in British.

COST IS HEAVY

Toronto, Feb. 13—(CP)—Ontario hydro development of the Ottawa River at Des Joachims has cost $63,980,799 to date, Premier Frost reported in the Ontario Legislature yesterday. Replying to a question by William Donaldson (CCF—Toronto St. David), the premier said an additional $4,794,201 will be needed to complete the project.

Woman is Boss Of Eskimo Home

Montreal, — (CP) — In the land of the Eskimo the wife is the mainstay of the family, Mrs. J. A. Bildfell has found.

Mrs. Bildfell spent two years on isolated Baffin Island where her husband was a government medical officer, and she told something of her experiences to a women's club in nearby La Prairie.

"The Eskimo's chief concern is to stay alive," she said. The husband is the hunter and the wife assumes the other family responsibilities." She has to be handy with a needle and thread, a good tanner of animal hides and the epitome of patience and understanding.

During her two years in the far north she suffered no real hardships, said Mrs. Bildfell, while on the other hand she and her husband learned unforgettable lessons from the people there and had nothing but good to say of her Eskimo acquaintances.

Mrs. C. Roulet Speaks To Kiwanis Ladies On 'Learning To Live'

The regular monthly meeting of the Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary was held recently at the Kiwanis Centre. A goodly number were present considering the extreme cold weather.

After the meeting was opened by Mrs. Catherine Poulet, who had charge of the program, consisted of the various committees reporting on their work. Of special interest was the report of the Hobby Class—under the direction of Helena Duffy and Ann Finkle. A sewing class is held after school on Tuesday. It is gratifying to learn how much is being accomplished in these classes.

Plans were completed for the annual Valentine Bridge and tea which is to be held at the Centre on St. Valentine's Day. Everyone is looking forward to this lovely event.

Guest Speaker

Doreen Storm was in charge of the program. The guest speaker was Mrs. Catherine Poulet, who spoke on "Learning to Live". Mrs. Poulet is a graduate of the Trobel Educational Institute in England, and has had a wealth of experience with nursery schools and in the training of teachers for this work. Her talk was extremely interesting and very practical.

She spoke of the formation of character in children and adults. Each person has distinctive drives. That is, unlearned, spontaneous ways of feeling and acting. These instinctive drives or emotions which go with them become linked by experience into "sentiments" (not the usual meaning of the word) and go on acquiring these sentiments during life and an adult's character is largely the story of the sentiments he has come to have formed. All possess one crowning master sentiment—the self-regarding sentiment, that is—the opinion of ourselves.

By speaking of discipline, she said "Children need the security discipline gives them, and suggested a broad frame work of rules and within this framework, as much freedom as possible.

Day's Routine

The typical day's routine for the pre school child was outlined and suggestions were made for rainy day activities. Included were painting on large sheets of paper, finger painting, potato cuts, kneading, story telling, simple rhythm games and nursery rhymes.

This excellent talk was followed by the skit called "A Day in a Nursery School".

Delicious refreshments served by Bride Sills and her committees concluded the evening.

Man And Wife Run Law Firm

Flin Flon, Man. — (CP)—Manitoba's only husband-and-wife law firm — the Wrights of Flin Flon — is something unique. Instead of marriage killing a professional career, it inspired it.

Molly Wright did not plan to read law. She was graduated from the University of Alberta with a Bachelor of Degree and in 1931 married Orson Wright. They came to Flin Flon the same year. Mrs. Wright intending only to be only a good wife and homemaker.

During the Second World War when stenographers were scarce and her husband busy, Mrs. Wright found herself spending more and more time in the office.

"Since I was in the office anyway," she says, "I thought I might as well study law."

So, in 1946, when her son Grant was five years old, she started reading law in the evenings. Each spring she travelled to Winnipeg to write examinations. The course was interrupted for a while by the birth of a daughter, Joy-Anne.

In 1948 Mrs. Wright was admitted to the Manitoba bar. She joined her husband's firm and now specializes in land — and - landlord and domestic cases.

"My husband laughs at me for taking these cases so seriously but I have found a great deal of satisfaction in being able to help my clients."

Molly and her family love the outdoors. They often travel to their summer home at Beaver Lake, 14 miles west of here in Saskatchewan. On the trips, the children are given a lot of leeway.

"We have tried to teach them to be self-reliant," she says, "and have trusted them when they were quite young to exercise self-judgment.

Mr. Grummett, who represents Cochrane South, and sits at the right of the opposition leader E. B. Jolliffe, was not called on to make any decisions.

Dr. J.S. Kidd Addresses Queen Alexandra H. & S. Association

Large number of parents and friends gathered at Queen Alexandra School Monday evening for the monthly meeting of the Home and School Association. After the reading of the minutes, and announcements of the business meeting dates, Mrs. C. Wallbridge, vice-president, introduced Miss Hart, a member of the school staff, and under whose care the Grade 7 pupils had journeyed to Kingston on Saturday last to win for the second time in succession the shield for singing in the Rotary Musical Festival.

Describes Festival

Miss Hart described the musical festival as being a "most enjoyable and profitable experience," and said how excellently it was all planned to accommodate the large numbers of contestants and spectators. Despite slight but uneventful journey to Kingston, were in their seats in good time, and also to hear two other song groups. "And I can say proudly, that these girls and their hostess of our school by their good deportment, as well as by their singing," added Miss Hart.

Great was the joy of the winning choir, and not only had it been a splendid, and unforgettable experience for them, but they had brought honor to their school, and must have felt a great sense of achievement themselves.

Much Appreciation Due

Much appreciation and credit must be given to Miss May and Miss Hart, their teachers, to Mrs. Miller, their accompanist, and for all who in any way had a part in this great musical event. The audience were then privileged to hear the results of all the training and hard work, and very much enjoyed this grand little choir sing "Music Everywhere," with excellent elocution, beautiful tone and expression and obvious enjoyment. Well done, Queen Alexandra!

The room count was then taken, Mr. Anderson's room being the winners for this month, making it appear that February is Grade 7's winning month.

Guest Speaker

The speaker of the evening, Dr. J. S. Kidd, of Toronto, was introduced by Mr. Freeman Burrows, and was the fifth speaker in the series on "Child Growth and development," and his topic was "Citizenship." His talk fell into two main sections.

In the first, Dr. Kidd discussed the various ways we often hears submitted as solutions to the problem of improving citizenship in the individual. These, the speaker, examined, discussed and disposed of in a steady methodical manner, and even in his second theme, suggestive or constructive plans, which he submitted to his listeners, for their critical and intelligent attention More Research Needed

He pointed out that we need more research on the study of humanities, of social sciences, and more time for studying human problems, and suggested our universities could well devote more times and space to these needs. Dr. Kidd emphasized, as had the last monthly speaker, the great need for improved emotional health in adults and children alike, and stressed most strongly that "we should not only think critically ourselves, but also teach our children to do so." Learning how to get along with each other, which can be acquired by working and playing in groups, should also begin early, as in nursery schools, and above all, "keep learning and endeavor to constantly add to our own information and knowledge."

In answering questions put to him at the close of the meeting, Dr. Kidd said that there had been a marked growth in the attendance and participation of adult groups and parent education.

A vote of thanks was tendered by Mr. Yelland, after which the meeting was adjourned.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

It's wiser to "look before you leap"

That old familiar saying that you should "Look before you leap"—always especially appropriate to me in connection with one certain type of woman. That's the woman who, already married herself, falls in love, or thinks she does, with a man who is also married, and then burns all her bridges behind her, in the belief that he's going to do the same and they'll be married and live happily ever after.

I hate to seem like an old cynic, but the many stories of this experience that have come to me in letters through the years have gradually forced me into the belief that in at least 95 per cent of such cases, the woman finds in the end that she's been used to get his divorce, after all. And then she is, without a husband, without a home of her own, sometimes even without the children she brought into the world and was willing to surrender if the expected second marriage appeared to require it.

Take a look, for instance, at this letter:

"I am a young married woman of 25, with a little girl of four. About a year ago I met and fell in love with a married man of 30, the father of three young sons, and he with me.

"One way or another, we managed to meet often enough to find out that the mutual attraction we had felt at first sight was really love, and that we wanted to be married, no matter what the cost.

"I was not going along too well with my husband anyhow, so I left him and soon after obtained a divorce. The men was to get a divorce as soon as I was free

"Now that I am free, the man finds that his wife refuses to let him go. He says he has not in my mind that this is the obstacle in the way of his divorce, as I am quite certain he loves me as much as I love him.

"What I want to know is, should I keep on seeing him, knowing that he may never be able to marry me or should I stop seeing so? Or, rather, should I try to stop it, because I'm not sure whether I could do it or not, I am afraid, though, that if I kept on seeing him, and he never could get free, I might be hurt more in the end that if we decided not to see each other again."

Now it may be of course, that this man was entirely sincere in leading this young woman to believe he would get a divorce and marry her. But, as I have already said, I cannot help feeling a bit skeptical. There are, regrettably, so many married men who encourage wives to become involved with them without having any real intention of freeing themselves for marriage.

Presuming, however, that his intentions were really on the up-and-up, perhaps his conscience has begun to trouble him over seeking a divorce from his wife without any specific grounds, and leaving three sons to grow up with out their father.

But, whatever the reasons may be for his failure to start proceedings for the promised divorce, if the young woman is wise, she will stop seeing him until he comes to some kind of definite decision. Things now are clearly up to him, and she should leave him to work them out on his own fashion.

If it is feasible for her to go away for awhile to some place at such a distance that they can't meet, it might well develop that, once she is out of the way, he would decide—if such hasn't already been the case from the beginning—that he preferred to stay with his family and the whole thing would dissolve. She, of course, would then be left high and dry, to start a new life for herself somewhere. But she will be far better off that way than she could ever be if she kept herself in a continual emotional tumult by hanging around a man who either cannot, or does not choose to, carry out his end of their unhappy bargain.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Make-up and dress colors

Make-up should be used, not abused.

Make-up should not only flatter a girl's countenance, make it more vivid and attractive, but it should be in harmony with the clothes she wears. Wine-colored lips and a dusty-pink lip stingy won't have anything to do with each other. They stage a color fight. To avoid these color battles, a girl would do well to have an assortment of beauty props from which she can make suitable selections.

It does not need a far-seeing eye to know that powder should match the tone of the skin as nearly as possible. Considering the number of shades offered by cosmetic chemists, there should be little difficulty about that. If one is in doubt, one can patronize a make-up bar—every large department store has one—and play with samples to one's heart's content. Before a strong mirror, and with the advice of the attendant, an enhancing blend can be found.

If the texture of the skin is coarse, it is well to have a powder of slightly darker tone to serve as a camouflage to enlarge pores. The consistency of powder must be considered. The blonde, who usually has a delicate, transparent skin, should select a light powder, and that is also best for an oily complexion. The arid complexion is best served with a powder that has a creamy base. Foundation cosmetics or tonic lotions will condition the flesh when powder is to be applied.

Before buying rouge, select the right lipstick. Mouth conformation is conspicuous, especially when laid on lavishly, that it f best to hit upon a happy choice, then find the commercial blush that belongs to the same color family. Incidentally, better get your nail polish while you are about it. Then you are all set; colors will tie up.

Blot the lipstick application with tissues. Touch the inner surfaces of the lips lightly. Have a clear-cut outline. Do a broad grin so the pigment will be pressed into the little creases. Spotty, lips are not according to beauty Hoyle. Crude methods do not fit in with the ideas of the moment when perfect grooming is demanded.

One fact is to be kept in mind; delicate treatment, the light touch, the correct colors will make a girl look sweet. Bright tints, laid on too generously, will make her appear brittle. Make-up should be used, not abused.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. [illegible]

"The pleasantest thoughts in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art of life is to have as many of them as possible." Montaigne wrote these interesting words . . . and how stimulating to study them and to try to put them into practice in our day-to-day lives!

In this circumstance most definite plans should be made

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter's wedding is to be a formal church wedding in the morning. The bridegroom's family and most of his relatives live such a great distance from here that none of them will be able to attend. Therefore, should the ushers ask some of the bride's friends to sit on "the groom's side" to even up the seating a little?

Mother

Yes, this is the proper and practical plan . . . and under these circumstances quite customary. So that there will be no confusion about this (as sometimes there is) the groom should be extremely definite in his instructions to his ushers as to seating-procedure. And as the groom's parents will no doubt be occupying the first pew on the right of the aisle, the bride and groom should confer together as to who is to be invited to sit there, since guests would hesitate to accept seats in that important pew. It would be best to assign this pew to two, or perhaps three, people most closely connected to the groom's family if possible; if not, his closest friends and these guests should be notified definitely about this plan. Also it would be an excellent idea to ask before hand some of the bride's friends if they would be willing to ask an usher to seat them on "the groom's side". I particularly urge this definiteness because so many times in this circumstance I have seen the confusion that results when definite arrangements are not made beforehand.

A Valentine . . . not a Valentine gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have known this boy for only a few weeks, but I am very fond of him. We have been to the movies several times together, and to one dance, but he has never given me a gift of any kind, not even a corsage. I would like to send him a gift on Valentine's Day. Would this be proper?

Fran B.

No. . .It isn't proper for a girl to start this type of gift-giving. If the boy has good taste, he will be embarrassed by this "gesture" from you. Better just send him a Valentine!

ARMY AIDS LUMBERMEN

Oslo—(CP)—Heavy snow in southern Norway is proving a real handicap to lumbermen. In some districts army bulldozers are helping to clear paths through the woods.

Elegant Ermine

BY ALICE ALDEN

THE delicate, snowy beauty of white ermine adds to the interest of the winter evening whether at home, under a southern moon, or aboard a cruise ship. Debi Bacher designs a coat that is opulent without being overdone. The fur is gracefully overworked in an important looking jacket, generously flared, with soft, rolled collar and deep turn back cuffs. The length is just right for almost any type of evening clothes.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

Not all foods are becoming bigger and better. Some are gradually becoming smaller and smaller. Take almonds, for instance. The five cent candy bar has been shrinking for a long time. Candy manufacturers, accordingly, have been insisting on smaller almonds for their product—and almond growers have succeeded in growing a smaller nut for the nickel bar, which is now sold practically everywhere at six cents.

The combination of chocolate and almonds is a dignified partnership of long standing. In most cakes and pastry the almonds are chopped or slivered, so that the size doesn't matter too much. Chocolate almond torte is a rich biscuit dough topped with a chocolate brownie spread.

Chocolate Almond Torte

1 1-2 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup sugar
1-3 cup vegetable fat
1 egg well beaten
1-2 cup milk
2-3 cup condensed milk
1 square melted unsweetened chocolate
1-2 cup raisins
3-4 cup chopped almonds
1-4 cup heavy cream
2 tablespoons sugar
Preheat oven at 350 degrees. Grease an 8-inch square cake pan.

Sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and 1-3 cup sugar. Cut in the vegetable fat until particles of fat are the size of rice grains.

Mix together the beaten egg and milk.

Add the liquid all at once. Stir with a fork until a coarse batter is formed. Turn batter into pan. Smooth with a spatula or back of a spoon.

Mix condensed milk, melted chocolate, raisins and almonds. Spread over batter in pan.

Bake at 250 degrees about 30 minutes or until done.

When cake is cool cut into squares. Best heavy cream until thick. Add 2 tablespoons granulated sugar. Spoon whipped cream over cake.

Fashion Flashes

ALREADY, under fur coats, women are wearing handsome dress and jacket prints. Black pin-dots on a beige or shocking pink silk surah ground is the color scheme for a slim dress made with halter-top cuffed bodice. With it a slim, matching jacket with a scarf collar that criss-crosses and fastens with rhinestone buttons.

Re-Enact Sagas At Festival

Brighton, England—(CP)— A pageant depicting nearly 2,000 years of Brighton's development, from the time it was a Roman encampment, will be staged as an attraction for visitors to the Festival of Britain next May.

Featuring the event will be a series of chariot-races in the tradition of ancient Rome, with a cast of more than 1,000 local people participating. Film stunt men are also being engaged to create a mock-up of Alhenic, atmosphere of furious competition.

"The races will be realistic," said A. Dinmore, the pageant-master. "It would never do to have the horses trotting sedately around the course. There must be plenty of dust and thundering hooves."

The riders, wearing Roman togas will race around the floodlit arena and the winner will be crowned with Laurel leaves by "Julius Caesar" himself.

A number of other episodes in the history of the city will also be re-enacted, including the burning of Brighton in 1213 by French pirates and the marshalling of King Charles's army by the Battle of Hastings in 1066.

Watchdog Out, Geese Now Guards

Cloverdale, B.C.—(CP)—Geese have replaced Fido as the watchdog on the farm of William Hoehn.

His hybrid geese, descendants of a Saskatchewan wild goose mother, guard the farm and children and spread an alarm the minute a stranger appears.

"They're better protectors than any dog we ever had," says Hoehn.

The big birds were produced through the mating of a Toulouse gander and a wild goose sent from Yorkton, Sask.

WORKMEN'S ACT

Bill Proposes

The government bill proposed: To reduce from seven to five days the waiting period for compensation payments; increase the maximum annual wage on which payments are based from $3,000 to $4,000; boost payments to widows of fatally-injured workmen from $100 to $200; increase federal grants from $125 to $200, and alter the methods of payment by employers.

K. E. Fell (CCF—Toronto Parkdale), urged that the standing committee on labor be called and instructed to revise the bill to include more of the Roach report's recommendations. Only three of 18 important recommendations were included in the bill, he said.

His motion was ruled out of order by Speaker M. C. Davies, who found that it would involve extra expenditure. Legislature rules allow only the government to propose money bills.

Premier Frost said the labor committee could become a "long sounding board that would create division and doubt among our people." The government would not rush the bill through final readings, but would wait until it received briefs submitted by several groups.

Eamon Park (CCF—Toronto Dovercourt) and opposition leader E. B. Shuttle attacked the government for failing to implement the Roach report's recommendations for the representation on accident prevention boards.

Nearly $400,000 was paid in 1949 to accident prevention boards directed by employers, Mr. Park said, but the government had no statutory control over them.

Says Commissions Shocking

It was "quite obvious," Mr. Park said, that Labor Minister Daley preferred to listen to the views of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association on accident prevention that to Mr. Justice Roach, who recommended labor representation on the board.

"Employers in general are as much interested in accident prevention work as the workers are," Labor Minister Daley replied.

Premier Frost said that although the government was not bound by any commission report, the present bill was "nearly a substantial compliance" with the Roach report. "There is not a line in this bill that we want to change."

The premier said some of the recommendations might not be carried out for some time, but the government would not dilate its policy-making responsibility to the labor committee.

Mr. Salsbury said omissions in the bill were "shocking". It had recommended "only the minimum of improvement."

J. G. Brown (L — Waterloo North) said the bill should help disabled workmen whose compensation is based on lower wages and lower payment rates in effect when they were disabled. He urged recognition of industrial diseases for compensation payments.

The Labor Minister said that Mr. Justice Roach had made some recommendations which were "theoretically sound" but were not practical for legislation.

The legislation also approved in principle bills to:

Increase provincial assistance to privately - operated training schools and require more municipal support of training schools.

Amend the Change of Name Act to bring it in line with the Federal Citizenship Act and with laws regarding bankruptcy.

Settle county council representation on municipal school boards and allow joint public and high school boards only where public and high school districts coincide.

Provide for absorption of continuation school assets in a high school area.

DR. F.W. ROUTLEY

In the announcement of his retirement, Dr. Routley said "it has been a satisfying experience watching the Red Cross grow into a great, powerful organization."

He continued as Canadian representative on such organizations as the League of Red Cross Societies, a body in which he had been medical director for a few months in 1928.

Dr. Routley's Red Cross work was recognized by three foreign countries after the Second World War.

In 1947 he was awarded the service medal of the Greek Red Cross. Last July he received the French cross of Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, and less than three months ago he awarded one of the highest decorations of The Netherlands, the Commander's cross of the Order of Orange Nassau.

Born in Lindsay

Dr. Routley was born in Lindsay, Ont., where he received his early education. He was graduated in medicine from the University of Toronto in 1907 and took a post-graduate course in England.

The following year he set up practice in Regina. At the urgent request of officials of the Canadian Red Cross he gave up his private practice in 1921 to become director of the Red Cross Ontario division.

Under his leadership the division expanded rapidly and it was during his term that the outpost hospital service in isolated communities of Northern Ontario was organized.

Chosen national commissioner in 1938, he left the following year for England to direct establishment of the Canadian Red Cross overseas organization in preparation for arrival of the First Canadian troops.

He was a founder of the York County Medical Society and the first president of the Canadian Hospital Association from 1930 to 1934. He had been honorary secretary of the Ontario Hospital Association since 1924.

A fellow of the Academy of Medicine, he was also a member of Rotary, the United Church, Masonic Order, Canadian and Rideau Clubs.

He is survived by his widow, the former Gertrude Fry; a daughter, Mrs. Arthur Kennedy; and four brothers, Frank, James, Al and Dr. Clarence Routley.

Funeral service will be held at 2.30 p.m. Thursday in the United Church at Maple with burial at the Maple Cemetery.

Show Paintings At New Delhi

New Delhi—(CP)—An exhibition of paintings and drawings by Indian and foreign children was recently opened here by President Rajendra Prasad.

The president referred to the exhibits as representing a common language of children all over the world, whatever their spoken language might be.

Some 1,500 pictures were on display, the work of children between the ages of four and 16. Entries were received from China, Japan, Indonesia, Finland, Great Britain, Czechoslovakia, the United States and Soviet Russia.

The first prize, a gold medal donated by President Prasad, went to a seven-year-old student of a Delhi school, for a sketch of a boy. In all 98 prizes were awarded. Eight of them were donated by Prime Minister Nehru.

ABBOTT BELIEVES

Earlier, the debate centred on the manpower issue and was highlighted by a call from James Sinclair (L — Coast-Capilano), parliamentary assistant to Mr. Abbott, for compulsory military training in the reserve forces and the cadet corps.

Other speakers included E. D. Fulton (PC — Kamloops); J. L. Gibson (Ind. — Comox-Alberni); Clarie Gillis (CCF — Cape Breton South), and Julian Ferguson (PC — Simcoe North).

Mr. Abbott said the government would not hesitate to put into force such controls — whether price controls or otherwise — that it deemed necessary to protect the Canadian economy.

The government would do "what it can" to halt inflation. But, "make no mistake about it, this isn't one of those things you can cure by passing a law."

Cure Outlined

The cure for inflation was increased production and curtailed expenditures.

Noting that Mr. Drew had said the government had taken "no single step" to fight inflation, Mr. Abbott outlined some of the government moves in that direction.

One major step was a reduction in government expenditures to the point where the government's 1950 surplus would be "very close" to $400,000,000. That meant the government was taking more out of the spending spread than it was putting into it. The reductions in government expenditures since Korea had been "substantial."

"I intend," he said, "to budget this year for a fully-planned budget."

Mr. Drew recalled that his party had, before the House motion calling for a vote of nonconfidence in the government because it has "failed" to provide leadership; to raise the troops needed for defence and to carry out international obligations; and to deal with inflation and the high cost of living.

Both Should be Used Claim

While his motion had not mentioned price controls of subsidies his party believed that both should be used to fight inflation. They should be used now to deal with the threat to the economy.

The Progressive Conservative party also wanted substantial reduction of non-defence spending; increased production in every line not only to meet defence requirements but to fill the needs of the people; immigration to provide a larger population to bear the burdens of the defence effort; removal of anything that discourages the building of new homes; and the use of government powers to deal with the credit of Canada.

Mr. Coldwell said the government's statement that controls will be imposed at some time is an invitation to some business men to boost their prices. This was done not only to make profits but also to make sure that their prices were at the highest level when the controls were imposed.

Drew Presents Argument

Mr. Drew said Trade Minister Howe had suggested that it was not necessary for Canada to institute controls since the United States already had taken action. But Mr. Howe had forgotten that Canada had her own sovereignty and her own policies.

The inflationary pressures would become "infinitely greater" than they were today. The whole tendency would be for the cost of living to go still higher unless steps are take to "bring it under restraint."

Mr. Coldwell said that in speaking of price controls he limited them to direct controls. There already was a large measure of control in wages and on the prices of farm produce.

He called for imposition of an excess-profit tax and for a capital-gain tax on unearned income.

Mr. Drew touched briefly on defence matters and reiterated a request for establishment of a defence committee where information about Canada's armed forces could be obtained. He agreed with government plans to place the emphasis of strength on the air force.

Mr. Ferguson, also a veteran of the First World War, recalled the parliamentary battles over lack of reinforcements in the two wars. He wanted to know what provision has been made for replacements for the Canadian troops now moving to the front lines in Korea.

Waiting to See

Noting that the Princess Patricias Canadian Light Infantry is reported to be entering the front line in Korea, he added:

"If there men who volunteered to uphold the honor of Canada run into any fighting, it will be history repeating itself. They will be short of reinforcements from the Dominion of Canada."

The people of Canada were waiting "patiently to see immediate steps being taken, with no further procrastination, with respect to things that have to be done, that should be done and that can be done."

Mr. Gillis, speaking of the re-compulsory service, said he agreed cent Canadian Legion call for with the Legion's program, but felt it was "badly timed." Canada could not have compulsory service for some months because she lacked training facilities.

Mr. Gillis said 3,500 men had been laid off by General Motors Corporation at Oshawa, Ont., and added: "You can't tell me a shortage of material developed that fast." If these men were being turned loose to be pressed into the services, it was the worst kind of conscription.

Agrees With Legion

Mr. Gibson, a lumberman, said he agreed with the Canadian Legion request for national registration and suggested national registration cards should include fingerprints of the holder. Though he did not think Defence Minister Claxton was satisfied with the response to the call for men in the Reserve Army, he realized there were "great problems" regarding enforcement of compulsory service.

As for defence production, he suggested the labor force digging gold from Canadian mines could better be used to dig strategic minerals in short supply. He believed Canada could get along on about half her present production of newsprint by sending less to the United States.

Nehru Hopeful Events Will Take Turn for Better

New Delhi, Feb. 13 — (Reuters) — Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru told Parliament today the United Nations' procedure heading China an aggressor put an end, temporarily at least, to any attempts at negotiations or settlement.

Nehru said, "We hope still it may be possible for events to take a better turn in the future but I must confess that at the moment hope has grown very dim."

He said India's friendly relations with China had been "very helpful" in attempts for a negotiated settlement of the Far East problem. In spite of a difference of opinion India would continue to try to maintain her friendly relations with the United States, he said.

Nehru said the dispute between India and Pakistan over Kashmir was a "struggle of people against reaction."

India stood by her pledge given to the people of Kashmir and subsequently to the United Nations that it was for the people of Kashmir to decide their own future.

He said India would not give up "at anybody's bidding and under any threat" the principles involved in the Kashmir issue.

Ray Robinson Heavily Favored To Beat LaMotta

Chicago, Feb. 13 (AP) —Heavily favored in his five previous scraps with Jake LaMotta, Sugar Ray Robinson again is being backed from 3 to 1 to 4 to 1 to make the Bronx Bull's middleweight belt tomorrow night.

The welterweight champion, in the peak of condition, and LaMotta battle the scales in the official weigh-in tomorrow.

Sugar expects to tip 154 pounds his top weight, and Jake is confident he will make the 160 limit. He carried 176 a month ago before starting drills for his rival.

If LaMotta is over 160, he will be given two hours in which to make weight. If he fails, he will forfeit his middleweight title to Robinson, right on the spot and the 15-round bout in Chicago Stadium will be little more than an exhibition.

Robinson prescribed a long sleep for himself today, LaMotta said not plan anything more strenuous than a walk in abiding by his decision to rest for five days preceding defence of his crown.

The fact that Robinson has declined a total of four of their five meetings and that Jake is vacationing five days "to conserve strength after weighing" has kept 2-to-odds pretty near the 4-1 level.

Sugar Ray was a 4-1 favorite when he first met LaMotta in 1943 and rewarded his backers with a unanimous 10-round decision at Madison Square Garden.

In 1945 at Detroit, LaMotta was a 3-1 underdog who came through with a 10-round unanimous decision to hand Robinson his only loss in 123 fights.

In 1946 at Madison Square Garden, Robinson was 3-1 and took another unanimous 10-round count. In their last meeting, Sept. 26, 1945, at Comiskey Park in Chicago, Sugar was 3-1 again and captured a split 12-round decision after a LaMotta uprising in the last two rounds.

The most Robinson weighed in any of those fights was 150 pounds at Comiskey Park. The only time Jake was over 160 was when he won in 1941 at 160 1-2.

George Gainaford, Robinson's trainer who three days ago thought LaMotta's "cocktail training" would hinder him in the ring, has revised the observance.

"Jake knows what he's doing," George admitted. "He's got to be careful he don't hurt himself taking off pounds. He'll be ready that's for sure."

THE ROCKS WERE ROCKED!

One thing was proved in Oshawa last night is that Rockets - Bees Junior hands. And that is that if both teams have any ideas of winning the group championship, they'll have to get away from the hold-on-high and-grab-'em-out style of hockey, and get down to brass tacks.

* * *

We do not know what Referee Andy Bellemer's idea of dealing out punishment is, but he had ample opportunity to show his authority to both teams on numerous occasions, but settled for seven minor sentences. The Bees started from the first whistle to sling their bodies around and before the period ended they had the Rockets flying all over the ice in various styles of wingding. They thumped 'em hard and they thumped 'em often. They hit 'em coming in, and they hits 'em going out. And it was not until nearly the second period end that the Rocks decided to do a little thumping of their own with the result the victory - hungry Bees were slowed down to a noticeable degree in the third heat.

Ernie Trumble was no respecter of Oshawa persons. He threw his torso around, and on one occasion with another player hit Eichler the Oshawa high-scoring ace so hard, he had to be taken from the game.

* * *

The hard - hitting, hard - driving Bees threw the Rockets off stride and they could not get started until it was too late. They missed several golden opportunities around the Oshawa nets, and the same goes for the other end, but they had to be content minus the breaks plus a marked impotency around the Oshawa nets, and thereby hands the tale.

* * *

As matters stand the Rockets cannot be dislodged from third place and they stand a mathematical chance of copping second slot. For did not the potent Port Hope Panthers, who at the moment have better than a five-fly's mouth lead, lick a 6-3 defeat on the Peterborough Links in Port Hope. The only difference in the team standing after last night's games is that Oshawa added two points to their 20.

* * *

The Bees take on Lindsay on Wednesday night in their last scheduled game and the best they can garner is 24 points, two behind the Rockets. The Cook's boys entertain Port Hope here on Friday night while Lindsay takes on Peterborough in the final clashes of the schedule. If Lindsay can dunk the Links and the Rockets defeat the Panthers, the Belleville squad can hop to second place and meet Oshawa in the playoffs.

* * *

And that "if" is a big one. The way these Port Hopers are travelling at the moment they can knock off any team in the group and the Rockets had better be on their best behavior if they want to entertain visitors in Friday night's battle. They'll have to play a lot better hockey than they did in Oshawa last night. That's for sure.

NYLONS HERE TOMORROW!

Fresh from their triumph over the Kingston Nylons and the loop-leading Peterborough "Petes", Walter Bent's Redmen will be gunning for their third straight victory here tomorrow night when they meet the Nylons in the last scheduled game of the season. The redskins have been flying in their last two starts and feel confident they can take the measure of the third - placers from Kingston. Nylons on the other hand who have been shooting for the second-place slot need a victory here and will be out to grab an all-important two points. They are seven points behind the second - spot Peterborough Eagles and although, we understand they have three or four postponed games to play with the Tricolor of Queen's they will not be passing up any opportunities to garner a couple of points at the expense of the Redmen.

The Reds can oust Nylons out of third place if they win their remaining four games, two of which are with Queens, and providing the Kingston crew drop all their future tilts including those with Queen's, which is not likely to happen. The battle from here in looks to be between the Nylons and Eagles for that coveted second slot with a very important game coming up between the squads next Friday night at Kingston.

* * *

The Redmen by virtue of their recent victories over Nylons and Petes are commanding a little more respect in group circles, it seems. For instance, this from the Peterborough scribes, "The surprising Redmen of Bella Villa upset the leading Petes 8-5 on Quinte ice in their senior "B" fixture. The Reds will still finish in fourth place, but they seem to be sharpening their axes for group playoffs. Slipped Nylons the slim side of the score a few nights earlier, and then did it to the Petes — apparently playing no favorites. Wally Bent's bunch will have to be considered when the dough blows commence. Play was fast and clean, with the homesters generally having a little margin of play. Tompkins was hurt and his absence didn't help the cause for the Joplin reds.

PLAYOFF DATES ANNOUNCED

Incidentally the playoff dates of the senior groups have been announced by Convener Lorne Cook, of Kingston. The first or Allan Cup playdown series between the teams finishing first and second have been set for Feb. 28th, and March 2-5-7 and 9th. The second series between the teams finishing third and fourth will start on March 12th and continue through March 14-16-19 and 21st.

The losers of the first series will meet the winners of the second series for the right to continue into the Senior "B" playdowns. Two referees, instead of the usual referee and linesman will officiate at all playoff games.

Belleville Rockets Miss Second Place by Losing to Oshawa Bees by 4 to 3

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

In a shinny-spiced game that saw sticks carried at ear-level the most of the time, the Oshawa Bees staved off a Belleville Rockets third period drive to snatch a 4-3 Junior 'B' victory in the Motor City last night.

It was not the kind of hockey you would notify the folks at home about, for it followed the hit-and-run slap-bang style that might be eye-pleasing at times but this rather monotonous as the seconds tick by.

It was a rugged bolsterous battle with both teams carrying their shillaghs, elbows and knees high with referee Andy Bellemer seemingly reluctant to call the boys get it out of their system, but taking time out to inflict seven penalties, with the Rockets drawing the odd one.

The Oshawa victory made no immediate change in the group standing since the upsurging Port Hope Panthers, the hottest squad in the group at the moment knocked off the Peterborough Links by a 6-3 score right in the Panther's lair.

Cinch Third Place

At the same time the Rockets clinched the third place berth in the standing and can take over the permanent second slot providing they defeat the Panthers here on Friday night and the Lindsay Kinsmen defeat the Links the same evening. The best Oshawa can do is defeat Lindsay tomorrow night for the honor of the two points at stake.

The Bees bolstered their scoring stingers with some of the heaviest lugs-throwing these eyes have seen in some time. They hit the Rockets with everything but the General Motors plant and for a period and a half the Cookian cookies went out there and took it. They finally retaliated with some fancy bumping themselves with Trumble in the limelight, but their third-period reversal to something like the form they can show came too late and they missed the boat by the one-goal margin.

Etcher, starry Oshawa player, was handed a stiff body check by Trumble and another Belleville player midway through the second period, and the Oshawa flash was taken out for the rest of the game.

The teams slammed and banged each other through a hard-hitting first period with both scoring before the end of the heat. Oshawa slammed home a pair in the second period to grab a 3-1 lead but the Rockets rifled home a goal in the first 16 seconds of play in the third session had it nullified six minutes later, then scored again in a matter of a few seconds.

Dominated Play

After that they dominated the play as the Bees faded slightly before their last-minute effort. They missed not a few scoring chances with Ross Mason failing to locate an open net on two occasions. They also hemmed the Bees in around their own hive in the dying moments of the game but their impotency around the nets plus some fine goalie work by Pallister spelled their downfall.

Gerry Desjardins drew first blood after six minutes of play in the first period when he whirled in on the Oshawa defence and drove the rubber past Pallister. The Bees raced in on Tripp with sticks waving like the pikes of the Bengal Lancers (and the Rockets weren't much better) and Wilson on a three-man sortie with Kellar and Johnson evened the score with four minutes to go.

Degray got Oshawa's tiebreaker after six minutes of the second period, when Deeth shot a pass to Brabin, and that player fired it across the goalmouth. The rubber hit the stick of Degray and the handful of spectators roared its approval.

Midway through the period Chiroski put the Bees two up when he took Marshall's pass and surged through the Rockets' defence to score.

Passes Click

Ray Carey put the Rockets within striking distance on the first play of the third period, when he slammed home floss Mason's goalmouth pass behind Pallister. The Rockets turned on the heat and started to dominate the play. Their passes started to click for the first time of the game and Mason missed a glorious chance when he slithered the puck past a goalmouth with Pallister out of position.

Oshawa's O'Connor scored an unusual goal five minutes later when he shot at the Rocket's defence. The puck hit Peter Green on the foot and rebounded right to O'Connor's stick. The Oshawan, with the Rocket defence off balance sifted through and scored. Twenty seconds later, the Rockets roaring to new life sallied in on the Bees defence and gave Pallister some anxious moments. Murphy finally slammed the rubber home on assists from Green and Mason.

Trumble drew a brace of penalties in the last seven minutes but the Rockets staved off the Oshawan plunges and raced in themselves only to lose their power in front of the Bees' nets.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Feb. 13—(AP)—What sort of international team competition is it where two players can make up a team and one good one often can make the difference between victory and defeat . . . It's the Davis Cup—and in our opinion it isn't an international test at all . . . This is inspired by a communique from Davis Cupper Ted Schroeder, enclosing an article by Australia's John Bromwich on the cup situation . . . They agree on one point —the importance of a player like Tom Brown, who can "raise his game to the heights under pressure." . . . Under the present set-up, one man with such ability can win two singles and likely carry the doubles. Two can make it a cinch . . . To make it a real test of tennis strength between countries, they should get at least half a dozen players in there and make it big enough that one man with a "lift" couldn't dominate the series . . . Expensive Sure, but it's not our dough.

When his winter journey around the banquet circuit took him to New Haven, Conn., Detroit Tiger manager Red Rolfe dropped in to see his old buddy Charley Loftus, the Yale publicitor . . . Noting a newspaper in Red's pocket, Loftus wisecracked: "Since Sporting News named you the manager of the year, I suppose you have to carry a copy with you at all times." . . . Replied Rolfe, who had just signed a contract at $42,500 a year: Sporting News my eye. This is the Wall Street Journal." . . . And it was.

Detroit Wings Well Ahead Rest of Pack

Montreal, Feb. 13 (CP)—Four Detroit victories against two for Toronto last week have put Red Wings well ahead of the pack again in the National Hockey League.

When they started their four-game series last week, Wings were one point behind the Leafs. But Toronto dropped one and then two for 99 points and prepared to Wings' 78.

Detroit's winning ways showed up in the individual scoring race, too. Their stars Gordie Howe and Sid Abel are one, two in individual standings, Howe with 29 goals, 36 assists and 65 points while Abel has 20 goals, 36 assists and 56 points.

The title-way tie developed for third place among Montreal's Rocket Richard, Detroit's Ted Lindsay and Toronto's Max Bentley. All have 47 points, although Richard has played one game more in the league with 32.

Boston's Jack Gelineau got the only shutout during the week, his fourth of the season. Detroit's Terry Sawchuk and Toronto's that department with seven, followed by Canadiens' Gerry McNeil with eight.

Toronto netminders Turk Broda and Al Rollins are battling for the best goal-tending average, 3.56 against 3.68 respectively.

Toronto and Boston's Bill Ezinicki shared the worst penalty record, both with 96 minutes. Wild Bill with 115 in the cooler.

QUEEN'S DEFEATED

Don Griffin was top scorer for Queen's with 11 points and team captain Harry Lampman next with 10.

Billy Flick Scoring Leader In Major Series

In the circuit's third spot is Johnny Conick, who was injured a week ago and is out for the season. Conick has 44 points and is closely followed by Murray Comfort with 43 points. In fifth place is Dinny Flanagan with 40 points.

Top goalie in the major league is Phil Hughes of Toronto St. Michael's with a percentage of 3.0 on 21 goals scored against in 27 games. Ed Rafferty of Marlboros is next with 96 goals in 17 games with an average of 3.43.

Lou Jankowski of the sixth-place Oshawa Generals is leading the OHA Junior A circuit with 91 points. Close on his heels is Ken Laufman of Toronto who has 90 points. The third spot is taken by Alex Delvecchio of Oshawa with 82 points and in fourth place is Erwin Grosse of Windsor with 70 points.

Randolph Turpin Boxer of Year In Great Brit...

(By The Canadian

Randolph Turpin, British middleweight champion and a contender for the world title, has been named the Ring's man who did most for boxing in Britain during 1950.

The dusky, 23-year-old "Thunderbolt" won recognition as the country's Boxer-of-the-Year by heading the annual poll conducted by Boxing News, a London weekly. He topped his nearest rival, Jack Gardner, British and empire heavyweight champion, by more than 2,000 votes.

Gardner, however, also was honored by the selectors by sharing with Johnny Williams of Rugby, an award to the fighters giving the best ring performances during the year.

Race track operator William F. Kyne, who also promotes boxing, says he has offered Joe Louis a fight in San Francisco in April. He said he would like to sign Rex Layne of Lewiston, Utah, as an opponent for the former heavyweight champion.

Louis, who started training for his 10-round bout with Andy Walker, San Francisco, here Feb. 23, has told Kyne he would be agreeable to a bout with Layne.

The Biscayne Bay Yacht Club of Miami has issued an embarrassed correction of the report of Saturday's Lipton Cup race out Miami Beach—that the 12-foot slcop Larry won it instead of the 45-foot yawl Revenoc.

Until race chairman Hardy Matheson made the announcement, everyone thought. Jacobo Cabasa's Larry won. Mr. Matheson explained the Miami boat was delayed 16 minutes 46 seconds she was entitled to under racing rules.

Dan Chappell, Miami attorney and horse owner has resigned as president of the Horsemen's Benevolence and Protective Association.

Robert Reid of Columbus, Ohserving as general counsel for the horseman, was named to succeed Chappell to fill out the term which expires in July.

The resignation was submitted Saturday at the group's annual one day convention.

Del Ennis, whose slugging was an important factor in Philadelphia Phillies winning the National League pennant last year, came to terms yesterday with owner Bob Carpenter.

As usual, neither the Phillies' front office nor Ennis would disclose salary terms. But it is generally believed the hard-hitting outfielder received a raise. Last season he collected around $20,000.

Returning Breed Victors Defeated In Show Ring

New York, Feb. 13 (AP)—The only two group winners from last year, the best-of-show in 1949, and a fistful of returning breed victors made unceremonious exits last night in the opening day of the annual Westminster Kennel Club dog show.

Judges, officials, handlers and the 8,000-odd spectators in Madison Square Garden were surprised as one favorite after another was defeated.

First to return to the sidelines was the Afghan, Ch. Turkuman Nissim's Laurel, 1950 hound winner, owned by Sunny Wisky and Sol Makin of Somers, N.Y. Then down went Ch. Puttancove Halla's Hugo, standard poodle belonging to the Puttencove Kennels of Manchester, Mass. Halla's Hugo was non-working finalist a year ago.

Finally, the grand winner of 1949, the boxer Ch. Mazelaine's Zazarac Brandy, shown by Mr. and Mrs. John P. Wagner of Milwaukee, was set down.

Same, however, was dropped by a mighty classy specimen — Ch. Bang Away of Sirrah Crest, exhibited by Dr. and Mrs. R. C. Harris of Santa Ana, Calif. This frisky dog scored a double in

DUTCH HARRISON WINS

San Antonio, Feb. 13 (AP) — K. J. (Dutch) Harrison, who has been following the tournament trail 17 years, won the Texas Open yesterday from Doug Ford in Briar Cliff, N.Y., a freshman to championship golf.

Harrison, the old Arkansas traveller registered from St. Andrews, Ill., and winner of the 1949 Canadian Open, beat Ford by a stroke in an 18-hole playoff necessitated when they tied for first place yesterday with 72 hole scores of 285.

Harrison had a four-under-par 67 over the 6,600-yard Breckenridge Park course.

Harrison took home $2,000 first money while Ford received $1,400.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

WHEN Captain Matthew Webb swam the English Channel on August 24-25th, 1875, he certainly started something. From that day to this, many of the finest swimmers in the world have plunged into the chilly stretch of water, ready to battle the swift currents and treacherous tides. Captain Webb swam from Dover, England, to Cape Gris Nez, France, (about 19 miles), in 21 hours and 45 minutes. He was the first swimmer to cross the English Channel under his own power. On August 6th, 1926, Miss Gertrude Ederle of the United States startled the world by accomplishing the Channel crossing in 14 hours and 34 minutes (a record which still stands for women), and since that time nearly half of the successful attempts have been made by the distaff side.

Canadian Ederle?

After a dozen years of unsuccessful competition at the C.N.E. and elsewhere, a Canadian housewife has decided to take up the challenge of the icy Channel. Last week, Mrs. Winnie Roach Lennsler of North York (Toronto) announced her intention of swimming the 21 miles from Cape Gris Nez to the white cliffs of Dover. If Mrs. Lennsler succeeds, she will become the first Canadian woman to join the swimming greats of the "Dover Patrol". Apparently the trip is best accomplished during August or September, and the fast calls for a great sense of timing and endurance (due to the tides and currents) as well as swimming ability.

For her to relax the Channel has been a family ambition since Mrs. Lennsler was a tiny girl. Her father and coach, Eddie Roach, has been set on the idea ever since Winnie was big enough to make a splash entering the water, and next summer his dream may come true when she attempts the Channel crossing. No doubt, at times in the months of training to come, the twenty-one miles from France to England will seem much further to Winnie Lennsler than they did to Adolph Hitler in 1941, but then, the "Superman" lacked courage.

Hockey Honeymoon

It's likely a good thing that so many members of the Toronto Maple Leaf hockey team are already married. Imagine what would have happened if, say, Ted Kennedy, Turk Broda, Ted Sloan and several other Leafs had been bachelors a week or so ago and had decided to join Centre Johnny McCormack in a multiple wedding! Then, the Pittsburg Hornets would have been able to swamp the Blue with a parade of dazed but dazzling talent, for at least a week or two.

Since the Major decided to spring for the McCormack honeymoon trip (a passing view of Niagara Falls), the incident has thrown new light on the personal life of a professional hockey player. In a profession which is so much in the manner of fame and reward, it seems fortunate that a younger player can leave on the date of his return to the Management. This must relieve the rookie's mind to a large extent, and necessarily improve his game. The fact that even the honeymoon arrangements can be safely left to the front office, only adds to the merit of the system.

However, McCormack's Pittsburg trip may in the end prove costly to the Leafs. But at least the Major won't have to waste words in wiring the lanky Centre to come back. The telegram could read: "The honeymoon is over"

Coming Event

The big attraction in skiing circles this week is the Canadian Ski Championships being held at Camp Fortune in the Gatineau Hills, on Feb. 17-18. Sponsored by the Ottawa Ski Club, the tournament will see the nation's top skiers competing in cross country and jumping events. If you're looking for spine-tingling sport thrills, I recommend you be on the skiing grounds at Camp Fortune this coming week end. Maybe I'll be seeing you.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ekkher

The better bridge bidding signals are known and used by all the best players. They are ignored only by those who do not yet know the reasons that make them effective.

A takeout to a new suit is forcing for one round. This force is in effect until some other bid (assist or no-trump) is used. Only a jump is forcing thereafter, or some special signal.

In complying with the force, a player should tell the truth as to the number of tricks his hand contains. In other words, he does not raise the last contract unless he has an additional trick.

South held the hand shown here:

♠ Q J 6 2
♥ K 8 5 4
♦ 9 7 3
♣ K 3 2

His opening bid with this hand can be heart. North responded with one spade. Being a takeout to a new suit the spade response forces south to bid again.

The opening bid by south promised a minimum of five tricks. He has no more than five. Consequently, any raise by him would not be true. Although forced to bid, he must not raise in number.

It is true that he has support for spades. Therefore, he would like to assist. But an assist by him would necessitate a raise in number. And he lacks the additional trick for such a raise.

So, what should he do? He dare not pass. He dare not raise. So, the only choice left is somebid that does not raise the number. The only bid legally possible for this is one no-trump.

When south makes this bid of one no-trump, partner north comes back with a bid of two clubs. South is not forced to bid again. Why? His no-trump bid broke the force of any future new suit takeout.

However, he may bid without being forced if he has something more to say. Honestly, what south can now bid two spades. He can show his assist after two clubs without an increase in number.

A bid does not increase the number. Only a raise does.

Movie Calumn

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 13 (AP) — Young love deserves a break on the screen says John Derek, the heartthrob of the milkshake set.

The actor complains that the over-age romeos 'get smoothing by the bushel in movies, while the young actors get only a peck. Somewhat rashly, he hurled a challenge:

"Just let me make love to a young girl on the screen and I can make it look better than any of the older actors. This isn't bragging; it's just that young love is so much more exciting and real."

The latter could be grounds for a great debate but we won't go into here. Let's get back to Derek's complaint. He remarked that he has been unable to display his romantic abilities on the screen. In four out of five pictures he has been portrayed as a killer. ("He's at it again in "The Secret.") In his other film he devoted his time largely to playing football.

Current Trend

This illustrates the current trend of Hollywood thought. The producers are inclined to present the picture of young people devoting all their time either to strenuous sports or murder, mayhem and other forms of delinquency.

"They seem to have forgotten that young people make love, too," Derek said.

"In one of my pictures, I was supposed to play a young man. But when I read the dialogue, it was written for a man of about 35. It sounded silly for me to be saying those words and I knew I would be hit by the critics because of it.

"That made me realize that young people are no longer represented in the making of pictures. The writer, the producer and the director, all had forgotten how young people talk and act."

Take It Away

The older actors not only take the stories away from the younger ones, Derek said, but the actresses, too.

"It's easier for a young girl to get roles than for a boy," he said, "because the male role in picture more often requires the bigger name. The result is that younger girls appear with older men and then seem too mature to play opposite someone young."

NO BLAME ATTACHED

Digby, N. S., Feb. 13 — (CP)— A coroner's jury decided yesterday that Cpl. Donald Clifton, found unconscious in a washroom at the nearby Cornwallis naval base Feb. 5 died as a result of an accidental fall. No blame was attached to anyone.

The verdict said the 20-year-old trainee from Woodstock, Ont., came by his death from "a fractured skull sustained in an accidental fall."

Farmer Pianist Rides Into Wings On Gift Tractor

Philadelphia, Feb. 13 (AP) — To "oh cheers" of thousands, pianist Rudolf Serkin rode into the wings at the usually-austere Academy of Music aboard a brand new tractor. No doubt it was the strangest exit ever seen in hallowed halls of music.

The tractor was given to Serkin, who runs a Vermont farm as a sideline to playing on the concert stage and teaching at the Curtis Institute of Music, by the Philadelphia Orchestra Association. It was presented in thanks for Serkin's offer to play without pay at a benefit concert Saturday night.

"It's wonderful," Serkin said afterward.

The audience and the critics felt the same way about Serkin's new de Force. The playing of three piano concertos, accompanied by Conductor Eugene Ormandy and the Philadelphia orchestra. None could remember when a pianist had undertaken so much in one evening.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL

Sweetsburg, Que., Feb. 13—CP —Oscar Seneca, 53-year-old Waterloo, Que., farmer, was committed for trial at the fall term of the criminal assizes yesterday when he appeared for preliminary hearing on a charge of murdering his wife last Nov. 7.

Several witnesses testified that Seneca beat his wife in a fit of jealousy and buried her body in a makeshift grave at the rear of their farmhouse. Seneca was arrested two weeks ago.

Little Benny's Note Book

I walked as far as the bus with pop on my way to school this morning, and Sam Cross came out of his house and I said to pop, Darn that guy.

Why, I thawt he waved at you very pleasantly, pop said, and I said, Yeah, that's all he does, wave. Why dont he pay me back those 3 cents he owes me? He cant claim he's forgotten about it, because I've reminded him plenty. Jimminy roosalem he ought to have enough conscience to do his own duty without me having to ask him to remember all the time, I said.

It's hardly fair to his conscience not to give it a chance to wake up by itself, pop said. I'll tell you what I'll do, I'll advance ize you, as though you were a farmer and I was a government. I'll advance you the 3 cents, and I'll never ask you for them on condition that you remind Sam again, and when he pays you, you can pay me back.

And he gave me 3 cents, seeming like a swell idea, and after supper I said to pop, Hay pop, I've got bad news, Sam Cross said he'd come 3 times this afternoon out of his own conscience, I said, and pop said, I hope you haven't spent it.

No sir, G, I got it rite here for you, I said. But the bad news is, I spent your subsidy 3, because I expected to and darn Sam to keep me waiting indefinite, and now the idea hasn't hardly had time to take hold, I said, and pop said, I see what you mean, and I'll give you what the government calls an extension of credit. Pay me back when you start to work, he said.

G, pop, thanks, do you want a resept for it? I said, and pop said, No, your word is good enough for me.

Being a long time to remember, but I hope I do.

Appeal Board Fixes Fees To Composers

Ottawa, Feb. 13 —(CP)— The Copyright Appeal Board has fixed the fees to be paid by radio stations and places of entertainment for use this year of musical works in the repertoire of the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association or Canada, it was disclosed Monday.

The three-man board, headed by Mr. Justice J. T. Thorson of the Exchequer Court, left the fees much as they were in 1950. Objections to the fees were considered by the board following public hearings last month.

Radio stations will pay C.A.P. A.C. $304,942 compared with $292,718 in 1950. The CBC will pay $152,421 and a similar amount will be paid by private stations as a group. The fee is fixed at a rate of 14 cents for each licensed radio-receiving set in Canada. The CBC pays seven cents and the private stations as a group a similar amount.

The private stations also will pay a total of $41,548 to broadcast music Recorporated for use of its musical works. The fee is fixed at the rate of two cents for each licensed radio-receiving set. The total, as in the can of C.A.P.A.C., increases as the number of licensed sets increases.

Risk of War Now Very Great Says Pearson

Montreal, Feb. 13 — (CP) External Affairs Minister Pearson yesterday told the Canadian Lumbermen's Association that the risk of war "is now very great."

In a solemn appraisal of the world situation, he said, "I do not accept the thesis that war is inevitable, but at the same time draw attention to the fact that the Soviet Union regards peace as short of war while may have damaging effects upon our way of life."

Mr. Pearson warned:

"We must be ready for the possibility that an overattack may not come for many years but that, meanwhile, we and other countries in the free world will be subjected to very tender and provocations and exertions. We do not know enough about the present intentions of those who direct the policies of the Soviet Union to determine which the of challenge — the direct or indirect—is more likely."

Albert College Upsets BCI Seven Juniors Lose In COSSA Basketball

B. C. I. Juniors decisively downed Albert College Juniors 53-12 in the first game of a Bay of Quinte C.O.S.S.A. basketball doubleheader. In the nightcap, the Albert College Seniors pulled a tremendous upset as they handed the B.C.I. Seniors a 56-43 setback.

A hard fighting Albert College basketball team came from behind to hand "Red" Townsend's B.C.I. senior their initial defeat of the season in a game played yesterday afternoon at the B.C.I. gymnasium.

The B.C.I. team started off in fine fashion and at one portion of the game led the visitors from Albert College by a margin of ten points. Then, late in the second quarter, Ed McClay committed his fifth personal foul and was forced to leave the game. Up to this point in the contest McClay threw in fourteen points. When McClay left the game, the play of the B.C.I. team became ragged and sloppy. The Albert team took control of the play from here on in but trailed 26-25 at the half.

College Overcomes Lead

In the second half, the Albert quintet really began to roll. Spearheaded by the deadly accurate shooting of their star centre Fitzsimmons, the visitors crept up on their scoring rivals from B.C.I. and as the three quarter mark rolled around the B.C.I. team was trailing in the contest.

Four B.C.I. players including Dowsett, McBride, Cameron and Davis all were removed from the game for committing five fouls during a hectic final quarter. Albert also lost two members of their team in the closing stages of Utting and Fitzsimmons. However before these boys left, Albert had built up a substantial lead which they held until the end of the game. The Albert team came up with a great display and definitely deserved the victory on the afternoon's play.

Alex Fitzsimmons paced the winners with 16 scoring points and in controlling of the ball. "Fitz" hooped four-counters apiece for Albert while Shepherdson and Harris also contributed eight points apiece.

For B.C.I. McClay who played in only part of the first half, was high scorer with fourteen points. Dowsett and McBride who scored six and seven points respectively turned in fine efforts before they fouled out. Cameron contributed eight points for the losers.

The main difference in the game came from the free throw line. Each team scored 38 points from the field but the winners netted eighteen out of fifty-two tempts for the foul line. B.C.I. scored only ten points from the foul line although they had twenty tries.

Junior Game

B.C.I. juniors kept their hopes for a trip to Toronto alive as they downed a hapless team from Albert College, 53-12.

The game was actually a walkaway for the B.C.I. team, although they played a sloppy, sticky brand of ball, the winners had it with them in fast flurry every department. Had it not been for the fine work of Vaughan and Balmer, the red and black clad team from John Street would have absolutely humiliated the losing Albert five.

For the B.C.I. team of Dill, Page and Harlock backed the hard drive and enthusiasm that was displayed by them in last Friday's encounter with Picton. Page led the scoring with eight hooped for the winners while Dill managed to contribute five points. Harlock and Dill were very effective during the time that they were on the floor.

Vaughan with six and Balmer with three led the scoring attack for the losers. None in the other Albert College players showed anything in the line of basketball talent and thus do not deserve to be mentioned.

SUMMARY

B.C.I. 53: Page 9, Harlock, Dill 5, Bowen 3, Hagerman 2, Morden 2, Houston 9, Bovay 2, Farmer, Mathews, Dwyer 2.

Albert College 12: Balmer 3, Brown, Burk, Hazwalker, Vaughan 6, Weggeman, Scott, Guilfoyle 2, Hodd 1, Fleck, McCullough, Williams.

Cliff Summers handled the officiating duties in both games.

Frankford Sport

Frankford—Frankford-Batawa Combines, still smarting from their humiliating defeat, have settled down to play hockey Friday night on the Frankford rink on the last place Wellington Club. A fair crowd braved the sub-zero weather and turned out to see the homesters rack up a 9-2 triumph over the visitors from down Prince Edward way. The issue was never in doubt, as the Combines carried the play throughout the game.

Jimmy Farmer bagged two goals for the winners, with Elder, Cooke, Cosgrove, Foster, Rankin, Shaw and Hood each scoring once. For the visitors Lever and Channell were the marksmen.

Frankford Bowling League wound up the third quarter of their schedule Thursday evening in Trenton, with little change in the standings. Dorvals continued to roll like a first place team, as they took five from the Alley Cats. The Screwballs held on to second place, as they battered the hapless Aces for five points. The Aces have won only thirteen points in the third quarter, after having walked the second quarter at the head of the league. The Monarchs made it a clean sweep over the Royals, who have now lost twenty - one consecutive points. The Lucky Strikes took 5 from the Sharpshooters, and climbed a notch higher in the standings.

ELDORADO

Gifts Presented At Farewell Party

Eldorado—Prior to their removal to Madoc, the friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Empey, of Union, gathered at their home to bid them farewell, and to present them with tangible evidence of their esteem. The Reverend J. F. Lane was chairman for the occasion.

The address signed by Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Robertson, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. Everard Carman, Mr. and Mrs. George Palmer and Mrs. Arthur Robinson, was read by the latter, in which appreciation was tendered for their ready hospitality; their fine co-operation in community events, and their leadership in the church, with special mention being made of the 30 years of faithful service by Mrs. Empey as church organist; her active participation in the W.M.S., the Sunday School, the W.I., the L.O.B.A., and to Mr. Empey for his sterling worth through the passing years, which could not be measured by dollars and cents. The address of appreciation was read with the knowledge that they would not be far distant and on many occasions they would still be able to be with them.

Presentations Made

—After wishing Mr. and Mrs. Empey good health and God's richest blessings, in the coming years, they were presented with a set of knives in the engraved table. The Union Sunday School also expressed their appreciation to Mrs. Empey in the gift of a Bible, Mr. and Mrs. Empey gracefully expressed their appreciation both for the gifts of remembrance and for the good wishes accompanying them, and extend a most cordial invitation to visit them.

A sing-song and the serving of refreshments brought the evening to a close.

At the close of the regular meeting of the Eldorado-Union W.M.S. for February 8, the address was read to Mrs. Empey, on behalf of the society by Mrs. Beryl Carman expressing appreciation at losing her from their midst, deep sincerity and devotion shown in the Master's work which had been given without grudging and without stint, and in a splendid manner in which she had filled the post of president of the Belleville presbytery.

As a fitting symbol of this appreciation, Mrs. Empey was presented with a lovely lace tablecloth, for which she expressed her thanks and appreciation, adding that the only reward she asked, was that they pray for her.

At the January meeting of the Bannockburn Women's Institute, Mrs. Empey was presented with a lovely cup and saucer by the W. I. members.

RAWDON

Mrs. Frank Jeffs Gives Fine Paper At 'Day of Prayer',

Rawdon—Mrs. Roy Thrasher, past president of Mount Pleasant Women's Missionary Society, presided on Friday for the World Day of Prayer service in Mount Pleasant United Church.

Owing to extreme zero weather and very icy roads, there was a small attendance from Mount Pleasant with no representation from Bethel or Wellman's.

The service opened with "A Prayer for Peace", written by German Christian women.

The theme of the service was "Perfect love casteth out fear". Mrs. Thrasher said "all in this country of Canada should be most thankful that they have freedom to attend such gatherings.

Quiet Music Freshed

Mrs. Burton Sharp played quiet music at various intervals in the program and previous to the call to worship.

In the adoration period, all read responsively, "A New Song to the Lord".

Mrs. William McAdam presided over "Penitence" based on Psalm 130. Mrs. Percy MacMullen was in charge of "Assurance" using the theme "What the Lord said to His Disciples in the Sermon on the Mount".

Mrs. Ross Jeffs conducted "Dedication of Self". This told how clearly the Prophet Isaiah heard the call of God about 2,-600 years ago and how that call was answered.

Suitable hymns were sung, following each of their divisions in the program.

The pastor, Rev. H. C. Vaclavik, gave the intercession period offering prayer for the six appointed parts.

Miss Ruth Linn sang "Beautiful Garden of Prayer" and Mrs. Frank Jeffs gave a splendid paper relating the theme "Perfect love casteth out fear" and the special leaflet, "What your money does?"

In 1950, over 7,000 cases of Lent, Canadian women held their first prayer service and by 1922 the whole world had adopted the idea for the first Friday in Lent.

In 1950 there were 90 countries who observed the "World Day of Prayer" and of those 2,300 groups over 52,600 was realized.

"Perfect love casteth out fear" is constantly knowledge to every day life in Canada but what of the millions who cannot read and of the other countries millions who have nothing to read.

Prayer Changes Things

1951 De Soto Custom 4-Door Sedan

A beautiful new grille, and a more massive, lower-looking chassis contribute to the appearance of distinction which is the keynote of the new DeSoto for 1951.

DeSoto's bigger, more powerful engine with 7 to 1 compression ratio gives the car extra pickup and power for top performance in hilly country or heavy going. The "Tip-Toe" shift, which eliminates clutch pressing and gear changing under all normal driving conditions, contributes extra relaxation and ease of operation in the new DeSoto.

In addition to the custom 4-door sedan shown, the DeSoto is available as well in a club coupe,

Wind Ties Perfect Overhand Knot

New York, Feb. 13 (AP) — The Coast Guard has some knotty problems, too.

It came up yesterday with this account of one:

During a recent storm, a lighthouse which aids navigation was blown some distance from its usual spot off Barnegat, N.J. Afterward it started hauling in the anchor to return, and all hands got a surprise.

There—as if a giant hand had tied it — was a perfect overhand knot in the heavy anchor chain.

A ship with a 20 - ton crane was sent to the scene and unlifted it.

Bantams Ready For Wiggins Trophy Playoffs

Bancroft—Last week the Wiggins Garage trophy for the bantam championship of North Hastings received its annual polishing. The Bancroft boys were very applying the polish, were likely thinking that at this time next year some body from Coe Hill or Apsley would be doing what they were doing.

Over in Coe Hill, according to rumour, the boys were preparing a spot on the shelf beside the Clarke Rollins softball trophy for the second hoped to win this season. From Apsley there was no news, but their team in second position in the league have now lost twenty - one consecutive games. The Lucky Strikes took 5 from the Sharpshooters, and climbed a notch higher in the standings.

Senate Studies Move to Reform Upper Chamber

Ottawa, Feb. 13 (CP) — The future of Canada's 102-member Senate for years a subject for debate—has come home. The Senators themselves may decide the issue.

Senator Wilbart Robertson, Conservative leader, has initiated a move for Senators to say what steps they think should be taken to reform the upper house, announced by Sir John A. Macdonald as House of "sober second thought."

Senator Robertson introduced a motion providing for appointment of a special committee to study methods "to enable the Senate to make its maximum contribution to the welfare of the Canadian people." In elaborating, he made four suggestions:

1. That future Senators retire at 75 years of age on a contributory plan. At present they are appointed by the government of the day for life.

2. That two-thirds of the membership be appointed for terms up to 75-year age limit to retain the semi-judicial and politically-independent character of the House. The remainder could be appointed for five-year terms with the right of re-appointment, thus bringing fresh thinking into the chamber. Average age of Senators is 68.

3. That the political make-up be widened to include every major school of political thought. At present there are 80 Liberals, 11 Progressive Conservatives and 11 vacancies. Political parties such as the CCF and Social Credit have no representation.

4. That the Senate choose a House leader distinct from the government leader, responsible for handling government legislation in the Upper House. At present the government leader, more or less by tradition, also acts as House leader.

Senator Robertson said his motion had not been prompted by any member of the government, though the government did not object to the suggestion. He invited the widest discussion.

So did Senator John T. Haig, Progressive Conservative leader, who said there had been a great misunderstanding in Canada about the functions of the Senate.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"They'll want your corroboration of my story along with your father's," Angus Kent explained still watching her closely. "Sheriff Lane said 10 o'clock this morning. But I think he plans to call you himself."

Angus had been thoughtful, Lisa realized as she came to understand suddenly that he had come over to her house early in order to prepare her and her father for the sheriff's telephone call. Gratitude brought tears to her eyes and Angus looked away unhappily.

"Stay for breakfast," she urged.

He moved toward the door with the excuse that the Ellsworths would be expecting him. Lisa followed him down the hallway to the door. When they were out of hearing distance of Mr. Farwell, Angus turned suddenly.

"I thought, last Farwell, that if I came early enough, I could talk to you alone. The police don't know for sure yet that it was your father on the ridge. I don't know your father well enough to tell him, but urge him to be careful what he says until he knows for sure whether one of the Grenables actually recognized him. They're a vicious bunch."

His face tightened but he went on doggedly, whether he included Court she could not know. "They'll hand this thing on anyone. In my five years' practice, I never saw such hatred for any single person as Lavinia Grenable's family had for her."

"Your practice?" she hung on the words stupidly.

He grinned then. "Law. Didn't I tell you. . . no, there wasn't time. I'm Tim Ellsworth's law partner in the city."

"Oh," She stared at him. "And you think Dad might have. . .

She shook her head and began to cry. It was such a childish, stupid thing to do but she hadn't had breakfast and she was confused and frightened.

"Men like Henry Farwell don't commit murder," Angus declared. "And along with all her other feelings toward Angus she added gratitude. He asked softly, almost accusingly, "you haven't asked about Court."

"Court?" she blinked, finding it difficult even to remember Court or the things she thought Court had meant to her, yesterday." Do you think he did it?"

"I don't have enough facts to go on to think anything," he told her flatly. "But I gather a lot of people had motives." His eyes were brutally direct. "Do you think he did it?"

The question should have stirred Lisa's indignation, but she just shook her head.

"No," she said faintly. "Court had no reason to murder Lavinia He was her favorite."

"Is that the best you can do for your fiance?" Angus asked.

"It's not like you to be cruel," she returned.

Instantly she knew she had said the wrong thing. He took her hands quickly.

"How do you know what is and what isn't like me? Lisa, I have to know. How do you feel about Court Grenable, really?"

She drew back reciting like a lesson well learned, for indeed, she had repeated it to herself frequently enough during the past 12 hours to have thoroughly memorized it. "I'm engaged to Court. I'm going to marry Court."

Angus turned away. "Forgive me," he said.

He started to go out through the door, then hesitated. "By the way," he asked, "could I use the telephone. I want to leave a message to Lane."

Lisa led him into the den and he dialed swiftly after she gave him the Grenable number. It was several seconds before a receiver was lifted at the other end of the line. Standing near Angus Lisa recognized Geri Palmer's voice.

"This is Angus Kent," he said. "I hope I didn't awaken you?"

"Oh, no," Geri said quickly, and there was a pause. "Excuse me—" Another pause, and then "—er!"

"I want to leave a message for Sheriff Lane, if you'll be so kind as to give it to him. He asked me to meet him at nine o'clock this morning at Grenable's. Tell him I'll be delayed half an hour or so. Thanks."

After he replaced the phone, he turned slowly away and looked at Lisa. "That's odd," he said. "I could have sworn she was crying Maybe somebody is mourning the old lady."

Angus Kent rubbed his chin at the startling thought.

Lisa Farwell followed Angus Kent back to the door. "Some people have queer taste," she reminded him. "Or maybe she wasn't really crying—she might have had the hiccups or something." She meant it as a joke, but Angus looked down at her. "Try not to worry," he advised disregarding her remark. "If you want me or need me, I'll be around."

Lisa watched him go down the long front walk to the road. The sun shone on his head and shoulders and for her the last trace of the cold charm of Court Grenable's lithe darkness was completely dissolved, washed away by warm sunlight on a tall blond young man's head. With a little shiver of dismay she shrugged back to the house.

Sheriff Lane arrived about 8.30 as Angus predicted. Lisa and her father were to be at the Grenable house between 9.30 and 10 o'clock, not later.

Lisa was relieved when the time came for the thoughts crowding her mind were frightening more than she wanted to ! - father to know. She hadn't been able to bring up the matter of his telephone conversation with Elizabeth Stratton that she had overheard and she couldn't find the right words to tell him she had seen him on the ridge.

Lisa only knew she was ready to deny it if anyone questioned her.

On the way over to Grenable's she said casually, "Angus said if we wanted him he'd be around."

Henry Farwell turned sideways in the car to look at his daughter carefully. Unexpectedly he smiled, and for just that moment his round face resumed its customary genial confidence.

"That is good to know," he said calmly. But she wasn't at all sure if he meant what his words 'd on the surface.

The Grenable house looked as ungainly and menacing in the morning sunlight as it had seemed to be yesterday evening, and not even the gay yellow of the early forsythia bush on the east corner lessened its prevailing grimness.

Lisa parked the car near the police car in the bend of the drive and they followed the flagstone path to the side entrance.

As Lisa and her father passed under the whispering oaks and elms to the house she wondered uneasily if all the lives and all the years could return to haunt these terraced lawns, what their testimony might add to the summation of hatred for Lavinia Grenable.

Geri Palmer met them at the door. "Come in," she said pleasantly. "I'm Geri Palmer, Mrs. Grenable's secretary."

"Yes, I know!" Lisa said. Lisa had seen Geri before, shopping in Hilton and once with Court when he had driven Geri to the station to catch a train to Chicago on her day off.

With her bright hair, the color of burnished copper, her slow sure smile, along with a figure that was almost statuesque, Geri Palmer was not a woman one could easily forget, Lisa thought.

Geri was smiling now, momentarily erasing the lines of weariness that had seemed at first to be second her mouth.

Geri led them toward the sunroom which was so filled with people that Lisa had a childish impulse to run away and hide, but she felt her father's steady hand against her elbow and together they went in.

Oddly, her eyes searched first for Angus, and found him standing near the front windows talking to a deputy sheriff and then she felt a hand on her shoulder and turned to look up into Court's face.

This was the man she had thought she loved. But that was yesterday. Today she was a stranger to him.

He was no longer the dashing Court Grenable with a ready smile and teasing speech and a way with his women. He was a dark, thin-cheeked man with too thin lips and nervous hands that lighted cigarets one after the other as he talked.

"It's a mess, Lisa," he muttered. "It's all such a mess."

His eyes were pleading with her. He was bewildered, shaken, and she suspected as she looked at him afraid. And yet there was no grief in him for his mother. Lisa should have known he would feel no sorrow, but still she had expected a little in him for he had been Lavinia's favorite. Court had understood or rather tolerated Lavinia when the others would not. But it was more but she felt her father's steady hand against her elbow and together they went in.

Pats Break Camp, Ready to Move Into Combat Area

Kept Out of News Until Enemy Contact Established

By BILL ROSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With Canadian Troops in Korea Feb. 14 (CP) —The Patricias struck camp today to move up to the combat area tomorrow.

They will be led up by Lt.-Col. C. R. Stone, their commanding officer, who returned from the front yesterday afternoon, briefed on the battalion's first operational project. Brig. Frank Fleury of the Canadian military mission arrived from Tokyo the same afternoon for an overnight visit.

The positions where the battalion will dig in are two days' road travel distant from the Canadian and South Korean training area. The battalion moves at first light Thursday in United States troop-carrying vehicles. It will bivouac in the open air on the way.

The job awaiting the Patricias may keep them out of the battle news for some days, under regulations permitting reporting only when firm contact with the enemy is established.

Brig. Fleury said his visit was prompted by "an abundance of caution" to ensure that the battalion's administrative and supply lines are in good order.

"There was much less for me to help out with than I'd anticipated," he said. "There were but one or two things for me to do. On the whole, they are well set up."

He said reinforcements would be "pipelined" into the British stream at Kure, Japan. Equipment and replacements for battle casualties will be sent to the British or American ordnance installations, depending on the type of equipment.

Battalion Ready

"It might be difficult to get vehicle replacements for a little while as the Patricias already have more vehicles than any other battalion in Korea, reducing the amount of pressure we can bring to bear until other formations are up to strength."

He said he was impressed by the battalion's fighting fitness and morale.

Col. Stone was enthusiastic about the operational and fighting efficiency of the British brigade with which his troops will be integrated.

"I was there when the brigade was put on the alert," he said. "Things functioned like a quiet drill—even to establishing postal and ambulance car post locations should movement orders be issued.

"It was all done without paper work. They've had only one paper order since arriving in the theatre."

He said the Patricias' new area is picturesque and mountainous like their training area but extremely cold, with snow on the ground.

The companies' last two days' training was devoted to attack exercises during which every battalion weapon was fired for the last time before action.

Men Not What They Used to be When It Comes to Valentine Day Sentiment

Washington, Feb. 14 (AP) — Let's face it: Men aren't what they used to be.

But women haven't changed a bit.

On this St. Valentine's day, try to imagine a 1951 male with all the sub-poetic spirit to tell his gal:

I bear in sign of love
"A sparrow in my glove,
And in my throat a dove—
This shall be thine."

Today's day did it in granddaddy's time.

The Library of Congress proved it today, unearthing—by request—some choice specimens of yesteryear's valentines.

Compare them with today's slick, gag-in-every-line jobs and you get a sad, sad comparison — from the viewpoint of any young woman who hoped for three cents worth of old-fashioned sentiment this morning's mail.

Today a girl is lucky if she gets a dime store card with some such heart-stirring message as:

"Your eyes are crossed, your knees are knocked.
"I kind of like you when I'm crocked."

Ah, but the grandfather's timemen wrote their own then, or at least copied them from the cupid's-little-helper book that had a terrific sale. Here's a ripe sample:

"Your lips are bright twin corals,
"Your teeth the fairest pearls.
"Your eyes are sapphire stones,
"And golden rings your curls."

And the women? What were doing with their time in those days? Such gossamer rhymes?

They were, to the aged old sport of sticking hatpins into the male ego.

"Here's one girl's tender reply (A.D.M. 1867) to a poor guy who proposed to her by valentine:

"For if I should ever marry you
"I surely hope you'd die."

SOCREDS URGE COMPULSORY RESERVE TRAINING

Non-Confidence Vote Defeated 150 to 54

Ottawa, Feb. 14.(CP) — The 10-man Social Credit party has demanded compulsory military training for Canada's Reserve forces.

The move was made in the Commons last night by Solon Low, party leader. It likely will bring the contentious issue to a vote.

Mr. Low placed before the House a motion accusing the government of failing to initiate that a complete program of preparedness, including compulsory training, for the Reserve forces for home defence, be executed with the greatest degree of equality and sacrifice."

The motion was the fourth calling for votes of non-confidence in the government since the Throne-Speech debate started three weeks ago.

Shortly before Mr. Low spoke, the government and Liberal supporters voted 150 to 54 against a C.C.F. motion which called for a vote of non-confidence in the government on the grounds that it had "failed to exercise controls and subsidies in the fight against inflation and the high cost of living.

Last week another C.C.F. non-confidence motion was defeated on a voice vote. The motion criticized the government for having supported at the United Nations a United States resolution declaring red China an aggressor in Korea.

Still, before the Commons is a Progressive Conservative non-confidence motion. It charges the government with "failure" to give leadership; to provide the troops needed for the defence of Canada and carry out international obligations; and with not dealing effectively with inflation and the high cost of living.

Fighters Make Required Weight For Title Bout

Chicago, Feb. 14 — (AP) — Middleweight champion Jake La-Motta weighed 160, and challenger Sugar Ray Robinson at the Chicago Stadium tonight. Robinson scaled 155½ at the official weigh-in.

Had LaMotta, who has not worked out in a gym since Friday, failed to make the weight, he would have forfeited his crown to Robinson, but the fight would have been on "failure" basis.

LaMotta disclosed he had nothing to say about the weight. He spent the last few days jumping on and off the scales in his room, sweating, under a hot light, rushed to a heavy breakfast after the weigh-in and planned a substantial meat around 4 p.m.

Premier Frost Announces Treatment, Research Cancer Centre Costing $2,000,000

Toronto, Feb. 14 — (CP) — A province-wide attack on cancer, with a 2,000,000 institute of radiotherapy in Toronto as its focus, was announced to the legislature yesterday by Premier Frost.

Work will start at once on construction of the Toronto clinic beside the city's Wellesley Hospital, the premier said. It will have facilities for diagnosis and treatment, and for research into prevention aid cure of the disease.

The Toronto institute would be linked with present or proposed centres for diagnosis and treatment in Windsor, London, Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, the lakehead and other Northern Ontario points. The premier estimated an additional $500,000 will be spent on new or expanded facilities at these points.

Today's sitting of the legislature has been set aside by the government for consideration of private members' bills — the first in several years that a government has earmarked a special day to debate back-benchers' bills.

The legislature yesterday also heard provincial secretary Welsh pledge financial assistance and support of municipal civil defence groups.

Premier Frost said the new clinic plan was "Ontario's declaration of war on cancer."

The institute would enlist "the very best that can be had of knowledge and experience in attacking the serious problems presented by this dreadful disease."

Handled at Toronto

The institute will be directed by the Ontario Cancer Treatment will be handled by the Toronto General Hospital staff, backed by specialists from the University of Toronto and other hospitals in Toronto and provincial cities. Scientists and doctors at the Universities of Western Ontario, Queen's and Ottawa will also be enrolled.

"Ontario possesses some of the very finest personnel in the world in this field," Premier Frost said. "Its most valuable knowledge and experience will be reinforced by the most experienced knowledge that can be found anywhere."

The institute will contain high voltage X-ray therapy machines, a radioactive Cobalt bomb, and isotope and radio-therapeutic equipment. Research will continue toward the ultimate goal of stamping out cancer.

A nurses' residence will also be built for personnel of both the institute and Wellesley Hospital.

Premier Frost said the scheme was undertaken with the federal government's "full co-operation." He expected federal grants "to the full limit" of the Ontario government's own grants.

The provincial secretary reported during the Throne Speech debate that over $1,000,000 worth of work has been laid for Ontario's civil defence organization. Some 70 municipalities are fairly well advanced with civil defence plans.

Although no agreement with Ottawa had been reached on financing the plans, Mr. Welsh said the province has already spent money and is ready to spend for what he termed "an insurance policy" for civil defence.

Officials See Little Chance MacArthur Will Get Power Needed to Win in Korea

Washington, Feb. 14 — (AP) — Officials here see little chance that Gen. MacArthur will get the power and authority he considers necessary to achieve decisive victory over the Chinese communists in Korea.

The expected dispatch of American troops to Western Europe, as widespread desire in high places here for a reasonable Korean settlement if possible, the determination to avoid spreading the war — all these factors seem certain to limit the kind of reinforcement of the conditions described by MacArthur as essential to success.

In a Tokyo statement following a battle-conference the field commander yesterday described the situation this way: Recent United Nations advances have been merely tactical successes; it now is academic to talk about a massive drive across the 38th parallel into North Korea; instead a drive would require offsetting the numerical superiority of the communists with their protected bases in Manchuria.

From the latest summary he made and his insistence on the point that there are decisions beyond his province, officials in government's can make, it is apparent that MacArthur is calling for a definition of United Nations objectives in Korea now and the decision to pay the price necessary to win them.

His own statement indicates that steps necessary to a military victory would require (1) a substantial enlargement of the forces more nearly equal to those of the foe and (2) authority to bombard positions and communications of the Chinese troops in Manchuria.

Permission Denied

On the first point, while MacArthur's forces are being given reinforcement now and brought up to full strength, the state and defence departments are anxious to build up a big reserve of Far East divisions for assignment to Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic command in Western Europe. MacArthur is understood to have been promised only two divisions Nationalist troops from Formosa but that has been denied on the ground that they are needed to defend that island.

On the issue of bombing by U.N. planes in Manchuria, Washington sees difficulty on two counts. Some American allies, notably Britain, are anxious to keep the Korean war in strict limits. And military authorities here have ruled out bombing in Manchuria because it might bring a communist Far Eastern Air force into the fight.

Pressure developed some time ago that neither the communists nor the U.N. forces could win a clear-cut, decisive victory in Korea. The Chinese have too many men and the U.N. troops too much fire power, according to this estimate.

What is hoped for here is that the Communists will agree to the same decision and so agree to negotiations which the Western powers could accept as a possible settlement.

THIRTY - TWO ARRESTED

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 14 — Thirty-two Communists were arrested during a communist demonstration today outside the United States Consulate here.

Crowds of onlookers blocked the road and halted traffic as police battled with communists carrying posters protesting against the visit of John Foster Dulles, special United States envoy.

At the time of the demonstration Dulles was on his way from Darwin to Canberra, where he is to have talks on a Japanese peace settlement with the Australian cabinet.

MRS. SULLIVAN FREED BY OTTAWA COURT

Not Held Responsible For Husband's Death

Ottawa, Feb. 14. (CP)—Mrs. Marion Sullivan was cleared last night of all criminal responsibility in connection with the death of her husband, Francis J. Sullivan.

A 12-man jury acquitted her of a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of the 52-year-old lawyer and Ontario government solicitor.

So ended the 10-day trial of the 46-year-old Toronto society woman whose tragic ordeal began on the early morning of last Nov. 18 when her husband's body was found in the Chateau Laurier suite occupied by the couple.

Mrs. Sullivan, who remained composed throughout the trial, clasped black-gloved hands tightly together when foreman Napoleon Pelletier began to announce the jury findings. The jury had deliberated for four hours.

"We find the prisoner not guilty, My Lord", he said.

The 300 spectators, many of whom remained throughout an adjournment ordered to enable jurors to have supper, roared approval.

Mr. Justice J. C. McRuer first convicted two spectators of contempt of court—but did not impose a fine—then turned to Mrs. Sullivan and told her she was free.

"I can only add that in my opinion it is the only reasonable verdict which could have been arrived at in the light of evidence."

Forty Persons Homeless by Fire In Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 14 — (CP) Forty persons were left homeless early today when fire of undetermined origin swept out of control and gutted a six-dwelling tenement row in central Ottawa.

None of the residents of the two-storey brick structure was injured. Damage was estimated at $60,000.

The blaze broke out about 2:30 a.m. It had spread rapidly by the time the building. Sweeping over the rooftops, the fire continued to spread.

The row of houses had recently been purchased by the University of Ottawa as a site for the expansion of the Medical College. The tenants had been given notice to vacate the premises within a few months.

Thousands of Reds Killed in Ambush On Central Front

Naval Bombardment Heavy In Surprise Wonsan Raid

By OLEN CLEMENTS

Tokyo, Feb. 14 — (AP) South Korean marines landed today at the big North Korean east coast port of Wonsan in a surprise raid under cover of a strong Allied naval bombardment.

Wonsan is 80 miles inside red territory above parallel 38 on the Sea of Japan.

On the flaming central Korean front, American, French and Dutch forces inflicted a staggering toll on Chinese and North Korean divisions striving for a knock-through against a 20-mile-wide section.

A field dispatch said the Allied defenders shattered two communist divisions "in a welter of blood, bombs and shelfire." It added:

"The Chinese dead lay by the thousands on all sides of surrounding Chipyong. Other thousands were heaped up also in the river valley eight miles west—northwest of Wonju where they stumbled into a murderous air and artillery ambush."

On the western front, American soldiers mowed down 1,132 red Chinese troops who had crossed the Han River and slipped inside Allied lines. They captured nearly 250 more communist soldiers.

Small Allied Losses

American machine guns cut down fleeing remnants of the red Korean forces as they tried to splash back across the Han.

Allied losses were reported small.

The landing at Wonsan was made early Wednesday afternoon. A big allied naval force bombarded red installations. Then the South Korean Marines swarmed ashore north of the harbor.

Eighth Army headquarters said the South Koreans fought to the city's outskirts and seized two islands off the port.

Resistance was reported light.

United Nations artillery was pounding with deadly effect into the red ranks. One red division walked into an American artillery ambush Wednesday upon about six miles northwest of Wonju.

Another earlier barrage caught a Chinese battalion which included pack animals loaded with ammunition.

Red With Blood

"Streams turned red with Chinese blood," a dispatch from the front said.

American and French forces battled to hold Chipyong 20 miles northwest of Wonju and western approaches to Wonju itself.

"We are all playing for keeps this time," said a commander of the French division. "My success with the help of the French at Chipyong and with the Dutch at Wonju have knocked out two Chinese divisions as organized fighting forces.

"We can scratch those divisions off."

The commander said Chinese at Chipyong "helped out the gunners by making banzai charges against prepared defences. From the air we could see the bodies piled up on top of each other."

The enemy launched a predawn probing attack Wednesday on allied positions northwest of Wonju and then hit in force at Hoyaliji, 10 miles northeast. The road hub were swarming with attacks ranging from 200 to 1,000 reds.

Hope to Crack Front

The communists apparently hope to slide past Wonju on the west or encircle Chipyong and drive through the mountain corridor between the two towns.

The U.N. moves obviously aim at cutting the main Wonju-Seoul highway road and cracking the central front wide open.

If the reds succeed in smashing the line, they could fan out to the east or west. A move west would put the Seoul and allied troops in the area immediately south and west of Seoul.

On the western front, the communists have begun large-scale infiltration in the allied rear south of the Han River near Seoul.

Plane Reported Crashed in Woods S.W. of Ottawa

Ottawa, Feb. 14 — (CP) — A plane, tentatively identified as a military jet type, was reported to have crashed and exploded in a heavily-wooded area about 15 miles southwest of Ottawa today.

Provincial police here sent patrol cars to the scene.

Francis Trachan, a district resident, said he was watching the plane when it suddenly "seemed to break up."

Trenton, Ont. (CP) — The RCAF said today a Mustang fighter plane is missing on a flight from an air base at Arnprior, 40 miles west of Ottawa.

The craft is based at National Research Council experimental station at Arnprior, an RCAF spokesman said.

No further details were available here.

Dives to Death To Escape Bath

Sunderand, England, Feb. 14—(AP)—The nurse told Harry Scott it was time for his bath.

"Oh, no," protested the 69-year-old coal miner. " I had a bath last week."

With that he dived out the window of his hospital room and was killed.

A coroner returned a verdict of suicide.

Lie Urges Arms Reduction Effort Be Continued Despite World Tension

By MAX HAKKELSON

Lake Success, N.Y., Feb. 14— United Nations Secretary-General Trygve Lie today urged the continuation of arms reduction efforts despite world tension.

Lie addressed the opening session of a new committee created to take up President Truman's suggestion that talks on arms reductions and atomic control be combined. The committee is made up of 11 specially council members plus Canada.

On the general question of disarmament, Lie said:

"In the present state of tension in the world, with rearmament proceeding at a rapid pace on all sides, it may seem academic and even utopian to proceed with serious discussion and planning on the regulation and reduction or armaments. I do not agree with this view."

Efforts at political settlement and the regulation of armaments, he said, should go hand in hand.

The committee meeting brought the Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, Jacob A. Malik, to Lake Success for the first time in three years. He has been reported suffering from a heart ailment.

Malik told the committee the failure of the U.N. to make progress on the reduction of arms and atomic control was due to efforts of the United States to undermine the discussions.

The 12-country group will report back to the 1951 General Assembly on the feasibility of combining the atomic control and disarmament talks.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 14 (CP) Sprinkles of Clear skies in Northern Ontario allowed temperatures to fall to 40 below at Wilds, River and 22 below at Sudbury, but in the cloudy area near Lake Ontario and Lake Erie temperatures held just below zero.

The weather is beginning to moderate in Northern Ontario, but the southern section of the province will be clear and colder tonight with moderating temperatures Thursday.

A new disturbance near New Orleans will move northward tonight bringing cloud to Southwestern Ontario Thursday and snow to the Windsor area by afternoon.

SEVEN MINK STOLEN, POLICE INVESTIGATE

Disappearance of seven mink valued as breeding animals at approximately $800 is being investigated by city police. The mink disappeared from their pens at 76 Canniffon Road. The owners are Patrick Dizon of that address and Mr. Salisbury.

Police stated that investigation indicated the animals had been stolen as several of the pens had been overturned and the boxes torn off the doors. Ten animals were originally reported missing, but three have been recovered. Four females and three males are missing.

The animals were kept by the owners for breeding purposes and hence were of greater value. A mink pelt was said to be worth anything from $30 to $50.

Travel Difficult On Country Roads

Rural sideroads, as well as the city streets, have taken a beating from the perverse weather of the past few days. Even small inequities in the country were so acute that automobiles couldn't make any headway on them. In the city, buses as well as cars had their troubles in some areas.

By this morning, however, city streets were in somewhat better shape, but county roads will likely be slower according when a thaw. In all, this has probably been one of the worst weeks so far this winter for driving. Sunday night was misty and wet, Monday showed glaring ice in spots, and yesterday slippery streets and roads kept both motorists and pedestrians on their toes.

Program Director Of 'Y' Addresses Deseronto Club

"How England Is Handling Her Juvenile Delinquency Problems" was the topic of an address given to the Deseronto Lions Club last night by Walter Bent, program director of the Y.M.C.A. here.

Mr. Bent described the special schools provided for youthful delinquents by the British Government, where experts with a wide knowledge of child problems are doing a fine job in giving boys and girls who have taken the wrong path, the chance to "go straight" in the future.

Upwards of 120 of these schools are in operation in England which take care of over 9,000 young people the greater majority of whom are boys.

Mr. Bent described the Court Leas Institution in Surrey which accommodates 128 inmates. They were found to be alert, well disciplined and happy, with every incentive to work and play hard. The school had a large dining room, library, gymnasium, where motion pictures were shown for entertainment given.

In the well equipped metal and woodwork shops are examples of excellent chaftsmanship. Those who leave the school are able to taught farming or gardning under skilled instructors.

Basketball Recorded

Team spirit is inculcated into every boy, Mr. Bent said with each new entrant being allotted to some group as the boys seek to adjust himself to the new conditions and surroundings. Each boy in the school receives conduct money with those in the workshops being paid a bonus according to progress. After six months residence a boy with fine grades a week's leave to go home.

"The policy of the schools is to make each boy self respecting," he said. "The staff does its best to make each boy better person, more useful citizens and break them of their old associations and habits."

Mr. Bent was introduced by Reeve Ernie Lake with appreciation of the club expressed by Llon Ray Ryerson.

Mr. Bent were members of the Y.M.C.A. Boys' Choir who provided the musical entertainment. Ron McBride sang a solo and offered a piano number. An accordion solo was given by Dale Rokosh and Larry Tucker sang "Whispering Hope." Ken Post was also heard in a vocal solo. Mrs. Stan McBride provided the accompaniments.

A collection amounting to $8.00 was taken by the chairman for the Belleville March of Dimes campaign.

Mechanical Defect In Transport Jury's Verdict

Negligence on the part of those responsible for proper inspection of the highway transport involved in the crash was found Monday evening by a coroner's jury at the inquest into the death of Fred Wallis, Trent Road.

Wallis, a service station operator on the Trent Road was instantly killed February 2nd when his light panel truck crashed into the side of a highway transport which jackknifed across the highway in front of him.

The jury found that Wallis came to his death as result of a collision between his panel truck and the highway transport driven by J. E. Elliott of Harrisburg, the collision being caused by mechanical defect in the transport.

From evidence given at the inquest the jury found negligence on the part of those responsible for proper inspection of the vehicle prior to its use on the public highway.

Mr. Russell Scott acted as coroner while Crown Attorney R. C. Donnan acted for the Crown.

JACK BENNY 39 AGAIN

Hollywood, Feb. 14 — (AP) — Jack Benny is 39 again today.

The comic, a Valentine's Day gift to Waukegan, Ill., is probably the only 39-year-old who admits he was born in 1894.

He'll celebrate quietly, he says, at home with his wife of 24 years, Mary Livingstone.

His age of 39 has been a running gag for years but actually is the one-time boy violinist's 39th year in show business.

Belleville Visitor to Goose Bay Finds Life There Interesting; School System Compared

While all the citizens of Belleville were warming up with the cold blasts, a local man hied himself off to Labrador, and was probably warmer than most people here. Roy E. Macklem, inspector of public schools for Hastings south, went on a jaunt to Goose Bay about ten days ago, and took so many clothes with him he "suffered with the heat" at times.

Mr. Mackiem went to the north to inspect the public school at Goose Bay for the second official time (his first trip to Labrador was unofficial) and found education standards up there comparable with Ontario's. In fact, some of the teachers at Goose Bay have Ontario certificates, and Ontario textbooks and courses are used there. The principal of the public school is Donald H. Wallers, is a Brockville man.

Fine Accommodation

Mr. Macklem was quartered in the R.C.A.F. officers' mess, and said that he found it "wonderful". "Everything seems to be just a shade cheaper up there too", he said, "Mr. Walters rents a brand new house for $63 month, and that includes light, heat, repairs—almost everything."

There are about 142 students at the school, mostly children of R.C.A.F. personnel, Department of Transport or American Air Force personnel. There are seven or eight teachers were ill, and several students were away from school, but what surprised Mr. Macklem most was the continuance of the Ontario system in the high school.

Majority of the teachers who go to the area only stay for about two years, Mr. Macklem said. Then the "keenness" about the job gets them, and they have to move out. After the day's work, there are only table tennis, billiards, or liquid refreshments on bridge. Belleville's salary schedule exceeds that of Goose Bay, with most of the Goose Bay elementary teachers receiving $2,400, and one drawing $2,800.

In Isolated Post

Mr. Macklem spoke with a man who is teaching at Fort Chimo, away up near Ungava Bay. He and his wife intend to stay there for a while, and caring for the children of the few whites and Eskimos in the area, until they have saved enough money to come south and buy a house. They think they'll have to stay three years.

To get back to the weather, Mr. Macklem said that the peculiar part of the cold up there is the range in temperature from 45 degrees above zero to 20 below. Belleville has about the same amount of snow as Goose Bay right now.

The Belleville man left here a week ago Sunday by train to Montreal and Dorval, P.Q. From Dorval he flew in an R.C.A.F. DC-3 to Seven Isles, P.Q., and from there to Goose Bay. The plane left Dorval about 11 a.m., and didn't get to its destination until about 6 p.m.

The return trip, however, was a different story. The plane took off from Goose Bay at 9 a.m., and landed at Dorval at 3 p.m., a fast but boring flight.

$200,000 School

The school, a $300,000 new building that all the residents are justly proud of, is situated in a treeless area, Mr. Macklem said, and is either "too hot or too cold." All the students come from within a one-mile radius, but children from the famed "Happy Valley," a poorer district some few miles from Goose Bay, are not allowed to attend.

The unfortunate part of the situation is that the Happy Valley students are left without proper instruction, and are at present being tutored by a fellow minister and his 16-year-old daughter.

Only ten pupils are attending the high school, two in grade 12, two in grade 11, four in grade 10, and the remainder in grade nine. One student is carrying on some grade thirteen work by himself, but any who wish to get upper school education are invited to come down to Ontario, where they may continue their courses on relatively the same curriculum.

While Mr. Macklem made some of the trip unaccompanied, due to R.C.A.F. heads who control the school and who fit its administrative, such as increasing the military schedule to attract more experienced teachers, there's one thing he's more than just definite about. He would not trade Belleville for Goose Bay any time.

Cornerstone of New School Will be Laid Thursday Morning

The cornerstone for the new Queen Elizabeth public school now in the course of construction on east Belleville will be laid Thursday morning, it was stated today by an official of the local Board of Education. Construction of the school has flow progressed to a point where the cornerstone can be laid.

But a very brief ceremony has been planned for the occasion. Chairman of the board accommodation committee, Harold Seldon, is scheduled to officially lay the stone. Chairman of the Board A.

C. Campbell will preside while Mayor R. T. Potter and Rev. E. N. Caldwell have also been invited to take part in the ceremony.

Kiwanis Observes Valentine Day At Luncheon

It was Valentine Day at the weekly luncheon of the Kiwanis Club at the Centre on Tuesday. Many of the members, including Mark Vanner, Harold Craig, John Thornbury, Jack Wood, Chris Latimer, Fraser Fulton, Claude Tice and Stewart Robb presented valentines from the president Everett Fairman and were requested to read them to the members present.

The club enjoyed an address by Rev. Duncan McTevish, pastor of Bridge Street United Church entitled "The Good Old Days." His address was given on Monday at the Rotary Club and featured in the Ontario Intelligencer for Tuesday, but it did not lose anything in the retelling. It was a most interesting, witty address, in a manner that reflected exactly the personality of the speaker. It was one of the finest talks given to the club in some time and Mr. McTavish will be welcomed back on any occasion. He was introduced by S. E. Larman and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Jack Wood.

The members were given a treat, when the seventh grade pupils from Queen Alexandra's school under the direction of Miss Phyllis Ash, presented a concert in the public schools, and Miss Lillian Harr as pianist and teacher gave the number, that won them the shield at the Rotary Music Festival on Saturday last. These children are expertly trained have wonderful blending and produced a calibre of voice not usually heard in classes of this size. L. A. Kells, administrator for public schools, gave a resume of the honors won by pupils from this school and stated it was an outstanding record. He claimed there had been no additions from other schools to the classes that won, the classes being the normal ones at each school. It was a fine tribute to the director and teacher and the members felt very proud of his efforts of the children in their number.

Bill Slade was the winner of the attendance prize given by Howie House.

Transport Firm Presents Awards For Safe Driving

The employees and management of the Direct-Winters Transport, Belleville, branch, spent an enjoyable hour on Tuesday evening at one of their regular safety meetings.

The occasion was marked by the presentation to the employees of their awards for no-accident driving for periods covering from one to five years in the city and district and on the highways.

The meeting was under the chairmanship of R. H. Godden, the local manager. Guest speaker Chief of Police R. W. Probert, addressed the men, commending them on their efforts toward safety and at the conclusion of his address presented the awards to the individuals, accompanying this with his thanks for their efforts and the wish that they might add years to their good records.

Mr. James T. Keys, director of Safety for Direct-Winters, Ltd., expressed his thanks and the appreciation of the company to the employees for their efforts toward making streets and highways safer by their careful living and drive.

Mr. A. H. Bevan, engineer for The Travelers Insurance Co., who is also well known to many Belleville and district drivers, was introduced the appreciation of his company, to those present. Mr. Bevan has assisted in conducting many safety meetings during past years.

The awards presented to the no-accident drivers were: to Mr. Belshaw, an electric Mixmaster, for 5 years accident free driving. To G. Downey, a mantle radio for a 2-year record. To N. C. Dafoe, an electric kettle for 1 year record. Safe driver buttons were presented to W. Denyes, F. Elliott, E. Fitzgibbon, F. Heffernan, soil M. Baragar who had all driven in the year 1950 without an accident which could be charged against their records. Belshaw a special button for the 5-year period.

To those who failed to qualify through some mishap the thought they can qualify for awards next try again and all present hoped that they would be honored at the next meeting.

The meeting was held at Latimer's Tea Room and refreshments were served.

Soviet Charge Of Aggression Quickly Rebuked

Tokyo, Feb. 14 — (AP) Russia charged today that Gen. MacArthur is using Japanese men and supplies in the "war of aggression against the Korean people." It drew a quick rebuke.

The charge was voiced by the Soviet delegate, Maj.-Gen. A. P. Kislenko, before the Allied Council for Japan.

William J. Sebald, United States chairman, led the four-power body, snapped:

"Keep the United Nations' action out of this discussion."

Last July MacArthur authorized the Japanese to establish a police reserve corps to help maintain internal order.

Col. W. R. Hodgson of Australia, the Commonwealth member, said:

"My government and my country are very gravely concerned about this proposal. We do not want to see the resurgence of militarism in Japan."

Dangerous Bush Wolf Believed Lurking in Area

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 14—(CP)—A "dangerous" bush wolf is believed still lurking today in the vicinity of Oldcastle, less than 10 miles from the outskirts of Windsor.

District sportsmen, hampered for more than 24 hours by bad weather conditions, are expected to form a posse to hunt the animal.

Sleet followed by a driving snowstorm late Tuesday forced cancellation of plans to track down the wounded animal in a concentrated effort.

Token hunts were made for the animal by armed residents of the area but the wolf was not sighted. There has been no sign of the wounded cross-breed since its early call was last heard early yesterday.

The animal was "definitely wounded" by buckshot from the gun of 19-year-old Jack Beer during an encounter Monday night on the property of Thomas Warner, on Highway No. 3. Mrs. Warner said she saw the wolf sit as he stood snarling in the glare of automobile headlights in the backyard of the Warner home early yesterday.

Moments after the wounded animal, believed half dog and half wolf, ran off yelping toward a brush thicket at the rear of the Warner farm, a second wolf emerged from behind the barn and walked leisurely toward youth. Caught without his gun loaded, young Beer fled but his father, Wilbert Beer, and Mrs. Warner killed the animal with a high-powered rifle shot.

"We have definitely identified the slain animal as a mongrel bush wolf," conservation Delmer Bailey of Leamington, said. "But it is part dog."

Lloyd Douglas, Writer of Many Novels, Dies

Los Angeles, Feb. 14—(AP) — Lloyd C. Douglas, 73, author of some of the most controversial and widely-read religious novels of the century, died last night of heart disease.

He had suffered from arthritis since 1944, and his condition had grown markedly worse in recent months.

Douglas' great books were "The Magnificent Obsession" his first, published in 1929, and "The Robe," published in 1942, in the period between there were numerous best-sellers including "Green Light," "White Banners," and "Disputed Passage," which were filmed.

Douglas, an ordained Lutheran minister, was in his 50s when "The Magnificent Obsession" became an immediate success. It went through 51 printings in little more than a year.

Douglas served in several Lutheran pastorates. One time minister of the First Congregational Church at Ann Arbor, Mich., he also was pastor of the First Congregational Church at Los Angeles, where he served from 1926 to 1929.

CARRYING 46 WATCHES

New York, Feb. 14—(AP)— Customs officials yesterday said they found 46 Swiss watches, with $1,000, in the luggage and clothing of a woman displaced person after an inspector noticed that she was carrying her trunk awkwardly. The woman was detained as she left a plane at International Airport.

Refunds of Income Tax Run Into Huge Amounts

Ottawa, Feb. 14 —Approximately 1,000,000 taxpayers — representing 27 per cent of Canada's individual taxpayers — will like-ly claim income tax refunds totalling about $36,000,000 when they file their 1950 returns, it was announced today by the Honorable Dr. J. J. McCann, Minister of National Revenue. It is estimated 3,650,000 individuals — taxable and non-taxable—will file 1950 returns.

Overpayment of tax by wage earners who had tax deducted at the source last year, may be attributed, largely, to one or more of the following factors:

1. Interrupted employment;

2. Change from single to married status;

3. Relatively large medical expenses or charitable donations;

4. Increase in the number of dependents.

Better to File Early

Although the April 30th deadline is about 2 1-2 months away, individuals are urged to file early in the returns. The volume is expected to increase at the end of February and during the early part of March when most wage earners will have received T4 slips of salary and wage slips from their employers. Employers are required to file copies of the T. 4 slips with the Income Tax Division not later than Feb. 28th.

In view of an increase in the labor force across Canada last year, it is estimated 2,350,000 taxpayers will file taxable returns for 1950. This represents an increase of 3.5% over the 2,274,000 individuals who filed taxable returns for 1949.

Canadian taxpayers are gradually becoming more conscious of the advantages of preparing and filing returns early, instead of waiting until near the deadline. Last year more than 1,200,000 individual returns were filed for the 1949 taxation year. Of this number, approximately 1,300,000 were received during 'February and March, while an additional 630,000 were filed during the first two weeks of April. Last year less than two percent of individual taxpayers incurred late-filing penalties.

Advantages Gained

Preparing and filing income tax returns early enable taxpayers to:

1. Receive refunds quickly:

2. Prepare the returns carefully;

3. Check and make sure each applicable item on the form is correct;

4. Make certain they have attached T. 4 salary and wage slips.

5. Make sure they have attached T. 5 slips for dividends and other investment income.

6. Collect all receipts for allowable medical expenses or charitable donations;

7. Know how to pay, on time, any taxing;

8. Make it convenient for themselves to get help from the district income tax office;

9. Avoid the last minute rush.

But this did not mean the conform countries might not be ready for an attack at some future time.

POLICYHOLDERS' DIVIDENDS AGAIN INCREASED

Sun of Canada's 1950 Business Largest of Any Canadian Life Company

Four hundred and forty-one million dollars of new life insurance was issued by the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada in 1950, the largest amount written by any Canadian life company during the year, and over $68 million (18.4%) more than the total for the preceding year. The volume of new insurance written during 1950 was $2,500 for each working day, George W. Bourke, President of the Sun Life, told the 80th Annual Report announced a further increase in policyholders' dividends effective April 1, 1951, bringing the total amount paid during the year to more than $18 million.

Reduction at New High

The report reveals the strong position of the Company and the continuing expansion of its business and services. Total Sun Life insurance in force now amounts to $4,462,000,000, or $275 million (6.6%) more than a year ago. Group business now in force is $1,085,000,000, an increase of 13.8%. Over $98 million of new Group business was written in 1950 compared with $62 million in 1949. Payments to Sun Life policyholders in 1950 amounted to $121,476,000, a new high, bringing to $2,361,-000,000 total benefits paid since the Company's first policy was issued in 1871.

Assets of the Sun Life increased during 1950 by $70 million, and now stand at $1,597,000,000, 73% of which is invested in government, municipal, public, utility and industrial bonds. Mortgage loans, reflecting the trend in home building, showed an increase of $31 million for the year, bringing the total to $188 million, or 12% of assets. The rate of interest earned on the assets in 1950 was 3.61% as against 3.48% in 1949 and 3.30% in 1948.

Distribution of Business

The international character of the Company's business is illustrated by the amount of insurance and annuities in force in the various countries where the Sun Life operates: Canada 58%; United States 38%; Great Britain 12%; other countries 2%.

Mr. Bourke, in his review of the year, discussed the value of life insurance in the fight against inflation, and pointed out that life insurance premiums, while not to provide protection for individuals and families, allowed to savings which, in turn, benefit the total economy through investments for essential purposes. The business of life insurance reflects the voluntary co-operation of the millions of men and women whose confidence and faith it enjoys. In return, the companies have established traditions of service and integrity which are unique in the annals of human endeavour.

Steps Against Inflation

Mr. Bourke offered five suggestions for government measures against inflation: (1) Purchase only what is necessary, (3) Increase productivity by greater efficiency and maximum use of plant, (3) Finance defence and other necessary needs by expenditures on the pay-as-you-go principle. (4) Avoid wasteful government expenditures and duplication of service. (5) Increase personal savings.

A copy of the Sun Life's complete 1950 Annual Report to Policyholders, including the President's review of the year, will be sent to each policyholder or may be obtained from J. Franklin Hinchey, Local Representative, Belleville.

THE OLD STYLE KITCHEN

A picture of days of old time winters in the kitchen is drawn in an editorial in the Ottawa Journal with a sense of nostalgia for the past which differed so greatly from the present day especially in the kitchen.

"Typical prose and understandable poetry have been written regarding nickel-trimmed, parlor base burners with isinglass doors revealing leaping, colorful flames above knotty chunks of hardwoods. Science has been the praise and scant the paeans extolling the humble kitchen range. Oldtime wood-burning ranges are on the way to join bootjacks, Buffalo robes and horse blankets. We would not be a boulder in the path of progress; gas, oil and electricity are immeasurably efficient and considerably easier so far as work is concerned.

"But there are many older citizens these winter days who recall the old-fashioned kitchen of yesteryear—kitchens that were the heart of home and not a dinky, tiny, chromium-plated, two by four 'food laboratory.'

"Half a century ago the kitchen was a place for preparing food and eating it; sometimes it was the room after supper when Pop, Ma and the winter's evening there was something friendly, comfortable and reassuring as the family was all together. Boys and girls did their homework lessons. Dads were known on occasion to conceal "The Adventures of the Lone Canyon Outlaw' behind a dog-eared geography. A big, brass-bowled kerosene lamp on its up-and-down chain hung from the ceiling. Father sat in his battered morris chair before the open oven, reading farm journals and the paper; mother moved slowly back and forth in her favorite Boston rocker, knitting, darning, sewing and answering questions on how to spell hard words and what was the capital of Saskatchewan. Two dented copper kettles sang and chuckled above the red-orange flames of ash and hickory.

"There was nothing particularly spectacular or exciting about it — just warmth, security and family unity in those long winter evenings before radio, cars, atom bombs and pictures through the air came into our lives. When a human history is written, recognition will be given the kitchen-stove. In its warmth, men and women made their plans and problems of the time when they would be travelling distant roads on life's high adventure."

LINCOLN ANNIVERSARY

Anniversaries are important events that may well stir the soul, for so many in the past have been with richest suggestion and blessings for mankind. One of such days is the national holiday on which Canadians can look with pride and with inspiration to themselves and to the world.

This week the United States marked the Lincoln anniversary, which to the great Republic is rich in significence. Referring to the "Lincoln Idea" the New York Times says "it might even be true, as some scoffers say, that Lincoln has become 'the greatest American myth.' It could be true that the cult of 'Lincolnolatry' has obscured the man and most of the facts about him. Nevertheless, the man and his meaning have an indisputable and unshakable place in American life and in the hearts and minds of all Americans. There is definitely such a thing as the 'Lincoln Idea.' The name is a symbol and its connotation is much the same wherever it is spoken."

In such an occasion it is natural for the people of the United States to exalt his name and fame. In the Times' words, "To invoke the name of Lincoln is to place first emphasis on complete integrity. This feeling has now gone far beyond the 'Honest Abe' of his contemporaries." As the New York newspaper puts it, "the man symbolizes for us the positive conception of personal goodness and social righteousness. The imagine of Lincoln is recalled when, we as persons or as members of a social group, are asked to choose between right and wrong, good and evil. It may, indeed, dictate our choice."

The name of the great Emancipator signifies to free people "the true integrity of a great simplicity. It is free for of artifice. It is the destroyer of vanity." The Times notes that "if Americans are, as they should be, humble in his presence, it is in the realization that he, too, was humble in the presence of the great truths by which he was controlled and adds that "it is partly because Lincoln himself was so much of the people that he could speak persuasively of government by and for them. He gave us our most eloquent and at the same time, our simplest real definition of government by consent of the governed."

Lincoln is a world figure, and in thoughts of his life says the Times, "we can once more hear a call for a new dedication to the old and once more determine that, we shall, have under God, have a new birth of freedom."

Each succeeding year is the scholar of that which went before. — Publius Syrus.

JUST FOLKS

FLATTERY

It's merry music to the ears.
It's fragrant perfume to the nose.
A cup of stimulant that cheers.
But one that habit-forming grows.
A little soothes the troubled mind
And heartens all for road-weary trough,
But who believes in it will find
That flattery is dangerous, stuff.

It is a sweet reward for good,
For patient effort and for skill,
But one should take it as he would
A medicine when he is ill.

Who takes too much will start to swell
With deadly arrogance and pride,
For future tasks when man is well
No strength will flattery provide.

Some men have learned this truth too late
By letting flatterers deceive;
That no one ever is as great
As they have led them to believe.
Men drugged by flattery forget
That with tomorrow's rising sun
There still is danger to be met,
And always duty to be done.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

DO NOT DISTURB

Riding to work in the bus one morning last week I chanced to overhear two gents in the seat ahead talking about a certain columnist.

One of these fellows, clearly a man with a mind of his own, came out with the opinion that the columnist was writing a nasty little crumb, too big for his britches, misinformed, sour and with an inflated idea of his own importance.

The other man was somewhat more charitable. Sometimes, he liked what the columnist had to say, he opined, and sometimes he didn't.

I shouldn't have been eavesdropping, of course, but the columnist they had under the microscope was, me, and so I felt a kind of perfectly natural interest in the conversation.

Indeed, I had to resist a strong temptation to lean over the shoulder of the first critic and introduce myself.

"Been some terrible mistake here," I'd like to have said. "This lovely chat you're talking about. I am not such a bad guy. Let us go and have a beer and straighten this thing out."

I didn't have the nerve to make the approach and so I thought I might put it in the form of a column. I do not mind anybody giving a blunt verdict on my opinions. That's part of the game. But when people in busses start working out their opinions (which they know nothing about) it seems time to speak up in a firm barking voice.

The truth is that a guy writing his own personal stuff for a newspaper makes at least one enemy per critic every time he puts "30" to a piece of copy.

Unless he has the hide of an elderly alligator he's bound to feel discouraged at the knowledge that he is a prune to a large section of his audience.

On Trial

With a paper like this, read daily by about 20,000 different people, there will naturally always be a strong group of dissenters. Let me give you a personal examples.

If I write about family life, I invariably get letters reminding me that there are too many items dealing with warm valuable space with domestic chit-chat. If I venture to tackle a more serious subject I'm told that readers don't want something in the lighter vein to take their minds off world affairs.

A column of personal opinion often suggest social change. A column of somebody else's opinion? Then you're accused of second-hand views."

People will criticize you if you devote your column to letters. And if you leave 'em out you get angry letters asking why you don't give the fellow a chance to speak his piece.

It's strictly an audience participation show, this column writing business and that's the way it ought to be, but I'm often baffled by the people's reactions.

Hardly a week goes by, for example, that somebody doesn't cancel a subscription because of something in this space. You never grow callous about that. A dissatisfied customer is a cause for gloom in this business as it is in any other.

Still, this isn't any ordinary business. Yesterday's satisfied customer may be tomorrow's worst enemy. More than two hundred thousand words funnel through a column like this in a year, but the columnist is only as good as his last sentence.

Probably the real reason for the critics is the fact that the columnist writes so much in the first person. The "I" key is always the first to go and the overall effect is one of incredible vanity.

Ah, but that is precisely what the columnist gets paid to indulge. Let his retreat into a false modesty or the careful editorial "we" and he'll have not only a readership but his irritation values.

It sometimes seems that you just can't win.

A Platform

Perhaps columnists should take time out every so often to explain their peculiar stand to their readers. The philosophical platform, as I see it, would read something like this:

"Here is a column by a fellow who is being paid money to write what he thinks. His columns do not expect to please everybody every day. There will be many, over with the years, that will please nobody at all, including himself.

"These opinions expressed by this fellow are his own, arrived at painfully by a process of thought. If these opinions will be wrong, the law of averages being what it is, but the columnist will be the last expected to admit this. Those in the audience who are dismayed by the columnist's views are free to tip-toe from the room and kindly refrain from slamming the door.

"The columnist will endeavor to transmit his impressions of a changing world with as much fidelity as he possesses. Rude noises from the audience are not invited.

"Those customers who disagree with the columnist are respectfully asked to put their complaints into writing. These will be carefully, and even eagerly, considered.

"The columnist is a reasonable chap, quite likable in person, who has never been in jail, behaved ladies across streets, passed his Boy Scout woodcraft tests and, in private life, is known as a timid, introspective man, no more nor less likely to be right than the next guy.

"The columnist hopes that his customers will remember that he is doing the best he can and that he needs the money."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The number and the proportion of people who want to work for themselves is definitely declining. Private enterprise is becoming too complicated for anybody but the big operators who can hire skilled accountants, expert managers and technically trained specialists for business and industry.

The day may not be far distant when there will be a shortening of the controls which have made private enterprise on its present levels more and more burdensome. When we think of private enterprise, we are liable to forget all the store keepers, the merchants, the little shops along the miles and miles of business streets in our cities and towns. The small machine shops, garages, laundries, repair and service establishments of every kind constitute the bulk of private enterprise in every community from city to village.

The universities, the schools, the employment agencies of many kinds all report a definite falling-off of young people having any intention of going into business for themselves. The whole trend is towards training and equipment to work for somebody else. This drastically changes the socialistic-minded. For when private enterprise is pushed into fewer and fewer and bigger and larger corporations, the easier will be their isolations and destruction. There is more ways of arriving at communism than by following the Red Flag.

The leaders, the bankers, industrialists, have been aware of this trend for a long time. Nice as it is to be big and bold, there are fatal consequences to sticking out like a sore thumb.

We may reasonably expect, therefore, some cautious moves in both political and economic fields, toward the encouragement of people to go into, and to stay in, small businesses. The furious production by the universities of such high-class employees as engineers, business administration experts, technologists and other wizards may be gently curtailed. Dad's job in the small store or the little shop must be permitted to be attractive enough for his son to want it.

Judge Approves Sale of Paper

Toronto, Feb. 14 (CP) — Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson of the Ontario Supreme Court Tuesday approved sale of the Sudbury Star and radio station CKSO, Sudbury, to a group headed by James R. Meakes.

The newspaper and radio station are part of the estate of W. Z. Mason who, before his death in June 1948, set up the W. Z. Mason Foundation, with Sudbury Memorial Hospital as principal beneficiary.

Mr. Justice Ferguson approved the purchase offer of $1,294,750 made by Mr. Meakes, publisher and general manager of the Star, and George M. Miller, W. B. Plaunt and Judge James Cooper, all of Sudbury.

WHAT BOOKS?

Many people write asking me to suggest books that they should read. I am always glad to do this, but I can only suggest books that I have liked or loved. Books were written men and women—alive, and all great books live forever! But I think I can well say that books are fatal consequences to sticking out like a sore thumb.

We may reasonably expect, therefore, some cautious moves in both political and economic fields, toward the encouragement of people to go into, and to stay in, small businesses. The furious production by the universities of such high-class employees as engineers, business administration experts, technologists and other wizards may be gently curtailed. Dad's job in the small store or the little shop must be permitted to be attractive enough for his son to want it.

TRICHINELLA

The trichinella or trichina is one of the several parasitic nematodes (round worms, thread worms) that infest animals and man. Besides Trichinella, which is the smallest of these parasites, the more familiar parasites are thread worms of man are Ancylostoma duodenale or hookworm, Ascaris lumbricoides or round worm, Oxyuris vermicularis or pin worm (also called thread worm, seat worm) and Filaria which causes elephantiasis in tropic and subtropic countries.

Adult trichina is from 1/10the inch (male) to ¼ inch (female) long. It is almost invariably found in intestine of the rat and in the intestine of the hog. Rats about slaughter houses and butcher shops become infested by eating scraps and offal, as they do about refuse and garbage dumps or disposal works. Perhaps in the absence of hogs the parasite would be unable to perpetuate itself in rats.

Man becomes infested by eating trichinous pork, ham, insufficiently cooked or even raw (as in the Italian dish called prosciutto or sometimes like that). Embryos of the worms penetrate the wall of stomach and intestine, enter lymphatic or blood vessels and are carried to all parts of the body. They become lodged in or between fibres of muscles or connective tissues, weave a cyst and encyst and develop into larvae.

The same process occurs in the hog when trichinous raw meat or offal or perhaps trichinous rats are eaten by the hog.

The fully developed cyst in the muscle or other tissue is the minute that it is difficult to detect with the naked eye but careful inspection of meat cannot be relied on to prevent infested pork, ham, etc., from finding a resting on the market.

But cooking thoroughly cooking destroys trichina, if the pork, ham or sausage happens to be infested. If trichinous meat is insufficiently cooked or raw is eaten the cysts are digested and the larvae set free in the intestine, where they grow into adults in about a week.

Usually the effects of this setting free of larvae in the intestine are nausea, vomiting, diarrhea and pain, with sudden attack a few hours after the meal. If enough meat has been eaten, these symptoms last a week or more and may be mistaken for "typhoid" or "paratyphoid" or vague "food poisoning" or, worst of all, because it is 100 per cent hokum, "stomach poisoning."

Second stage of the illness corresponds to migration of the larvae from lymphatic and blood vessels and lodgement in muscles. This stage is characterized by muscular pains, debility, delirium, coma, labored breathing irregular heart action, edema of face (puffiness of face with redness of eyes and swollen lids)" and continued fever. The second stage lasts two or three weeks. In severe cases death occurs perhaps a month after infestation.

In the first stage sometimes the Trichinella may be found by microscopic examination of a drop of blood, but as a rule the disease is diagnosed only by finding the encysted parasites in a bit of muscle removed under local anesthesia. In any case when blood examination shows a higher percentage of eosinophiles (white corpuscles that take a typical stain) than normal the presence of parasites of one kind or another is suggested.

Here's one fund eventual rule for everybody: Fresh pork should be cooked until it is white throughout. Through, and no portion shows red or pink.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Refined Food and Bad Teeth

If the "lonely isles" where you found the people have such fine teeth are inaccessible, I can reply, how come "the children now can get candy, pop and refined white flour"? — Mrs. D. D. S.

Answer—Capetown and London company has established a canning factory on the fine crayfish that abound there, and a company supply ship from Capetown visits the islands every month. So it won't be long till the people there have a bad birth as other people in England and United States have.

Caesarean Birth

My baby was born by caesarean section. Does it follow that if I should have another baby it must be the same way. Do you believe that "once a caesarean always a Caesarean"? (Mrs. J. E.)

Answer—Only your own physician can give a dependable opinion. In a good many instances subsequent births can be as the normal way. In a great many about a week. instances subsequent births by Caesarean operation is easier than the first one. Doctors may prefer to be guided entirely of the operation and with good reason.

No Magic

Fingernails ridged and full of white spots. (L. S.)

Answer—Supplement your diet the year around as described in pamphlet 6 on Foods and Old Folks—for which send stamped self-addressed envelope. Condition may be your nails indicate nutritional deficiency, or, you probably call it, malnutrition.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

CAN'T BE REFUTED

Charles Studd, a great English cricketer, became a missionary of note. On his way to the mission field, he had many arguments with the captain of the vessel in which he sailed. This captain either was or pretended to be an unbeliever. He knew the Bible very well and could with ease overwhelm every argument that Studd produced in behalf of the soundness of Christianity.

One day Studd said to the captain, "Captain I can't answer your arguments but I know the value of a Christian life because I live it." The captain's reply was, "I can refute everything but say but that. There is no refuting a sincere Christian experience."

This is true today and undoubtedly will be true until the end of time. It was true 2,000 years ago. The ancient Romans persecuted the early lives of the Christians. Jaded and bleary-eyed from their excesses, the pagan Romans found the Christian and persecuted him, yet down in their hearts they admired him, and in the end Christianity became the official religion of the Roman Empire.

Some people believe they can refute arguments advanced in support of Christianity, and nobody has been able to refute the Christian life. Get right on that and you will have all the theology the Bible contains, as well as a life that will be proof against the onslaught of temptation.

Fin Cases Reported at Air Station

Group Capt. G. Dunlop, commanding officer of the Trenton R.C.A.F. Station issued a statement yesterday regarding an outbreak of influenza on the station. He said: "There are a few cases of flu but we are not alarmed about it."

Last night a station worker said the hospital was filling and one of the barrack blocks was being used to accommodate convalescent cases. At capacity the hospital can hold over 40 patients.

According to an airman 145 men reported on station sick parade on Monday.

Dr. E. A. McQuade M.O.H. for Trenton reported last night there were no reports of cases of flu in town. The Health Officer saw no reason for alarm explaining that the type of flu making the rounds at present was a much milder type than the hemorrhagic infection which killed so many in 1918. Dr. McQuade pointed out that medical science nowadays was much better equipped to fight an epidemic than after the First War.

TWEED

Driver Uses Part of Clothing To Stop Train

Tweed — When driving in to his work after midnight from his home near Sulphide, Mr. Bill Marsh, night operator at C.P.R. station, Tweed, had the unpleasant experience of having his car skid on the icy road at the level crossing, turn around and head up the right-of-way. When he got the car stopped he heard the night express train coming, so he dashed up the track swinging some of his clothing to attract the attention of the engine crew, who promptly brought the train to a halt before any further damage resulted.

Unhappy Motorist Mistaken for Prowler

An innocent effort to obtain a tow truck to haul his car out of the ditch to where it had skidded from a slippery roadway resulted in investigation by police for Jan Dejong, R. R. 2, Bellerville.

Early this morning, Dejong was driving on Parker Street when in turning into Wellington Street his car skidded on the corner and went into the ditch. It was late, but there was a light still burning at the Weston Bread warehouse and the unhappy motorist sought to get to a telephone to call assistance.

The result was that prowlers were thought to be in the vicinity of the warehouse and a call to the police station brought the police cruiser instead of the tow truck.

OSD Pupils Demonstrate Lip-Reading

By common consent one of the most interesting programs in the history of the association, a demonstration of the methods of teaching deaf children, the Grade 7 choir of the Deaf was given at Monday night's regular meeting of the Queen Victoria Home and School Association. The meeting began with the discussion of various business matters after which Mr. W. J. Morrison, Principal of O.S.D. introduced Miss Hegle and four members of the kindergarten class who demonstrated the ways in which deaf children from an early age are taught to articulate vowels, consonants and finally words, as well as to read and write, although it was long past their normal bedtime, the little ones behaved splendidly and completely captivated the audience. Next the Grade 7 choir of Queen Victoria School sank the song "Music Everywhere" with which they won first place in the Musical Festival at the Kingston Music Festival, running a very close second to the rival choir from Queen Alexandra School.

Mr. Morrison introduced Mr. Alec Gordon and his class of older children, ranging in age from 11 to 15. Mr. Gordon demonstrated the great progress which these children had made in lip reading, speech and even singing, although, as he pointed out, it is very difficult to explain "pitch" to someone who has been completely deaf from birth. The class then forged itself into an able and accurate rhythm band to suffer the baton of one of its members, and concluded the demonstration with a laborate and graceful folk dance.

Mrs. Alec Gordon had answered a number of questions, the thanks of the association were ably and warmly expressed by Mr. E. K. Atwell. At the close of the formal part of the meeting, the Queen Victoria children acted as hosts in a get-together party designed to give visitors milk which both parties appeared to enjoy, after which the visitors were escorted in small groups over the school, while the older members of the audience turned their attention to the refreshments provided by the social committee.

Says Forces of Evil Cannot Prevail Against Divine Power

Living a true Christian life is more of a fight these days than ever before, stated Evangelist Charles Struck of Brantford, who, with Mrs. Struck, commenced special evangelistic services at the Gospel Temple on Tuesday evening.

He stated that Satan is bringing great forces to bear against the church these days and is spectacularly slighting the young people. "But there is no giant big enough nor a devil in hell strong enough that can prevail against the Lord Jesus Christ", he asserted. "It takes the indwelling spirit of Christ to defeat the giants of doubt and fear and the snares of the world these days."

Mr. Struck referred to the famous story of David and Goliath and pointed out that David had certain credentials that fitted him for meeting the giant in battle, and that was the Spirit of God. David had already killed a lion and a bear. "What man could slay these wild animals with his bare hands without the supernatural power of God?" said the evangelist. "David couldn't use the weapons and armor of Saul but he went to meet that giant with the Spirit of God all over him.

Need Certain Credentials

"I believe that people should have certain credentials before they preach the Word of God," stated Mr. Struck. He said that he believed in education but that college degrees were not enough. Some individuals, he intimated, had just enough to get by, fortunately they did not preach the true gospel.

"I thank God that we have credentials enough when we have the blood of Jesus Christ, God's Son, applied to our hearts and preach under the anointing of the Holy Spirit. We are here to lift up the name of Jesus and see people saved from eternal damnation. If we could only get people to preach about the unsearchable riches of Christ we would not have so many divorces and child delinquency."

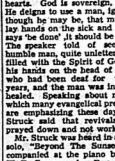
Mr. Struck said that man today is looking for power; he is trying to reach into the supernatural, into the realm of God. One scientist claimed that even if a man's heart stopped beating, he could make it run five years longer.

"They are telling God to sit to one side and watch them do the supernatural", said the evangelist, "but when it comes to the supernatural power of God, this can only be given from the hands of God Himself.

The Sick Healed

"I am glad that God can bring down His Spirit and put it in our hearts. God is sovereign, and if He feels it is time, ignorant though he may be, that man can lay hands on the sick and if God says 'be done' it should be done". The speaker told of seeing a humble man, quite unlettered but filled with the Spirit of God, lay his hands on the head of a man who had been deaf for twenty years, and the man was instantly healed. Speaking about revival, which many evangelical preachers are emphasizing these days, Mr. Struck said that revivals were prayer down and not worked up.

Mr. Struck was then a vocal solo, "Beyond The Sunset", accompanied by Mrs. Struck at the W. B. Greenwood. Rev. Laurie Price was in charge and introduced the two evangelists. Mr. and Mrs. Struck are to tell their life story at future meetings.



Impressions of Music Festival

(By R. H. TANNER)

On Saturday afternoon, I paid my first visit to the Eastern Ontario International Festival of Music, organized for the second year, by the Kingston Canadian Rotary Club. For me, interested in music, it was a confrontation; why didn't I go last year, and why haven't I been more interested, years? Since the reason is largely one of ignorance there may be many Kingston lovers in the same position, others who would be just as interested and who would support this very worthwhile event if they knew a little more about it. Hence this article.

Few will dispute the contention that the encouragement of artistic development of any sort is a praiseworthy object, especially in these days when material matters are so often uppermost in people's minds. In sponsoring and organizing this festival therefore, the Rotary Club of Kingston has earned the gratitude of music lovers within a very considerable area, which is a glance of the list of contestants, shows, extends from Napanee to Gananoque and even overlaps the International Boundary as far as Watertown. Eighty-nine classes (or individuals) must have been entries in 215 classes and the consequent completeness the whole field of music from, for example, "Solo for Guitar (only one entry) to "Sonatinas — Piano Solo — Girls under 16 (8 entries) and extending to such outskirts as "Choral Speech, Grades 1 and 2" or "Folk Dance Groups."

Difficult Arrangement

And then the arrangement of the program, a jig-saw puzzle of time and compliance, and to the solution of which the smooth running of the whole festival largely depends. The convenience of the competitors from the furthest points becomes paramount, so that, for example a collegiate glee club which has entered in two or three classes does not have to make several journeys to Kingston. But a detailed account of all the aspects of the organization demanded by an event of this kind is impossible here as is shown by the listing in the official program of nineteen separate committees dealing with such matters as adjudicators, stage and platform, program sales, and last but by no means least, budget control.

Naturally enough, most of the entries, either individual or group, were from the schools, and indeed what better encouragement can there be to an aspiring scholar, whether he be a brilliant soloist, or a new member of a classroom choir, than a public and competitive performance followed by the critical yet extremely helpful comments of a skilled adjudicator. It seems a pity therefore, that there weren't more adult competitors. For one example, only one of the Belleville church choirs took part, and some of the classes advertised in the preliminary booklet had to be cancelled for lack of entries.

It may be said that to sit and listen to a well known piece on the same test piece is a tedious proceeding, but the truth is, especially if you are one of the competitors. How seldom can one hear, one after another, interpretations by different minds, voices or fingers of the same composition, which so often throw a completely new light on a well known piece.

To judge by the faces of the children as they listened, this point was certainly not lost on them. As each new performance began, they would analyze it, mentally comparing it with their own, appreciating the good points, or a little scornful of the bad. And then, at the end of each class the fascinating business of comparing one's own judgment with the official decision in the margin of the program with that of the adjudicator.

Could Do Better

Now — has Belleville contributed to this Festival and could we could better next year? The answer to both questions is "Yes" Four out of the five public schools sent grade choirs and both the collegiate and collegiate bands took part. In addition, there was a fair number of individual entries in both instrumental and vocal classes. Altogether, perhaps not as numerous an entry as could be wished, but from the point of view of quality, one which left nothing to be desired. The grade choirs took first place, second and a third, while the bands were respectively first and (against very stiff competition.) Christ Church choir carried off the palm for the first of their classes, (boys only) tying with the much larger group from Bridge Street United, and we hope that they will do as well in their future public entries on Wednesday evening. Next year, perhaps more of us will be able to support this splendid event, by competing ourselves, by persuading others to compete, or by attending some of the festival sessions or one of the three concerts held after the judging is all over, at which a selection of the items performed. In fact, there is still time to do the last named this year, as the concerts are on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon and evening.

Fashion Flashes

AND NOW it's the chignon that is the big hair-do furor. So, of course, there are beautiful ornaments to add sparkle to the hair. One is a long, dangling affair of tiny brilliants and filagree, ideally suited to the chignon for evening wear.

A GROWING DEMAND is indicated for the ensemble suit. Good for Spring or for travel is a four-piece affair of brown and white checked tweed, consisting of a boxy topper, classic collarless jacket, slim skirt and wide, fringed scarf-stole.

NOVELTY fur pieces are marching out of the stores in fine shape. Inexpensive and smart is a choker made of mink tails and trimmed with a velvet bow and flower. Some girls wear the collar as a pillbox hat with the trim at the side or back.

Darling, Pa., Feb. 14.(AP)—It's darling to darling to darling in a constant relay of Valentines through this tiny post office today.

Postmistress Martha Darlington says she has hand- stamped thousands of letters and cards sent to this little Philadelphia suburb so they'll bear the most-widely-sought dateline in the United States Feb. 14.

Miss Darlington who has been on the job here 25 years, claims to have an intuition about the Valentines which pass through her hands.

"This year, there is an underneath feeling—not the happy-go-lucky feeling of last year," she said. "People seem really to want to lighten the lives of others."

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Science who beaten recently by some black-eyed peas.

A clever electronic sorting machine which picks out bad beans from good ones and was thoroughly rattled when some black eyed peas were exposed to it. The machine works with a photo electric tube which registers discoloration in beans, ejecting those with visible defects. The machine is part of a Department of Interior project in North Platte Valley, Nebraska. So far it stubbornly refuses to believe that the black eyes in peas aren't shiners but simply the way nature intended them to be.

Many families are no longer satisfied with a little bowl of soup as an introduction to dinner. If the soup is thick and hearty, it deserves to be the piece de resistance, with second or third helpings for everybody. Black eyed peas are the mainstay of this minestrone type soup.

CAMPBELLFORD

Conservatives Elect Officers In Two Sections

Campbellford — The annual meeting of Campbellford Progressive Conservative Association took place last Friday night in the Legion Hall. A goodly number of ladies and gentlemen attended despite sub-zero weather.

Mr. Ralph J. Locke, president, called the meeting to order. Mrs. Wm. Tatham, president of the town Ladies' Association, made a brief address. Election of officers for the Men and Ladies' Associations was ably conducted by Major R. Earle Drope of Harwood. The following were chosen:

Men's — President, Ralph J Locke; vice-president, Alex MacColl; secretary, Arthur K. Loucks; treasurer, C. H. Davidson; chairmen (in respective chairmen (in respective order), Ward 1, Jack Hall; Ward 2, Vice; Ward 2, Free Clark, Jim Heathcote; Ward 3, Percy Melville, Wm. Nicholls; Ward 4, Oscar Mason, Jack Slorie.

Ladies' president, Mrs. W. C. Tatham; ward leaders and vice-leaders (in respective order) Ward 1, Mrs. F. G. DeCarroll, Mrs. Dave Nese; Ward 2, Mrs. A. J. Armour, Mrs. Geouth, Tanner; Ward 3, Mrs. George Nicholls, Miss M. Winstanley; Ward 4, Mrs. Douglas Watson, Mrs. Elsinor Allan.

Mr. Locke, in a few words spoke of the work of the association, in particular of the ladies' organization and of Mrs. Tatham, its head.

Premier Praised

Major R. Earle Drope spoke of the good work of Ontario Premier Leslie M. Frost and of his cabinet. He stated that time had come for the Mossa Test, or more appropriately dubbed "Mean Test" for Old Age Pensioners to be abolished. He believed that Ontario's price-freezing threat was largely responsible for the present soaring cost of living. Canadian business was soaring, so if prices as high as possible before a move was made freezing prices at present levels.

He stated that he did not believe that an active part in politics harmed business for anyone, and that in his opinion two political parties are necessary.

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, Ontario's Minister of Welfare since January 1946, stated that when he took his portfolio, there were 80,000 Old Age Pensioners in the province. This total has now skyrocketed to 98,000. He agreed wholeheartedly with Premier Frost's recommendation to Ottawa that the Mean Test for Old Age Pensioners must go. He also expressed the opinion that Ottawa should take immediate steps to abolish collections from estates of Old Age Pensioners. He said that the Frost government would co-operate with Ottawa in any matter of national importance and for the common good of the nation as a whole.

He was convinced that Premier Frost of Ontario was the man for the job, and was increasing in wisdom and knowledge in the leading affairs of this banner province of Canada. He was a most popular and likeable figure everywhere. He spoke of the women in politics and said there was a place for them, for they had a vital interest in the welfare of their communities and of the nation, even closer to the core of the country's needs than he men. He spoke of the Progressive Conservative Ladies' Association of Ontario's President, Mrs. Mac-Kenzie, now reeve of Beaverton, and of her important part in political affairs. To win elections the party must be alive and active at all time, he exhorted the party workers.

Hon. Mr. Goodfellow praised the word of Progressive Conservative leaders in Campbellford, and of the local presidents, Mr. Locke and Mrs. Tatham. In conclusion, Mr. Howard Irwin, honour township chairman, spoke a few words.

God Save the King" concluded the business portion of the meeting, following which a social hour was held, the ladies serving tea and sandwiches. Mr. George Nicholls was pianist for the evening, and Miss Elienor Allan, secretary of the meeting.

STIRLING

Resident of Many Years Given Farewell Party

Stirling—On Friday evening last, and despite the extreme cold, about 25 neighbors and friends gathered at the old pioneer home of Mrs. Dave Burkitt and tendered her a farewell before her departure next week to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. John Heagle, at Wellington.

Mrs. Burkitt has resided for 49 years on the corner of John and Front Streets, and for a great many years her lovely perennials were a wealth of bloom, about the grounds and a beautiful rock garden near the Dawson creek was a masterpiece of beauty.

Master of Ceremonies

During the evening, Mr. George Leury, another of Stirling's pioneers, who has resided in the town for a period of 52 years acted as chairman for a brief program.

Mrs. Roy Eggleston led in a round of community singing with Mrs. Bob Williams as accompanist.

Mr. T. Boyce delighted with a humorous reading about "Women".

Mrs. Louis Rodgers and Mrs. R. Eggleston also read appropriate selections.

Brief addresses were made by Messrs. Will West, J. O. Donnell, Mrs. B. Williams and Mrs. Dave Lamb,

Address of Appreciation

Mr. Leury read an address of appreciation to Mrs. Burkitt and she was presented with an electric heating pad as a corsage of American Beauty roses.

Mrs. Burkitt graciously expressed the thanks for the lovely gifts and to those who had arranged such a delightful evening in her honor,

The affair was a complete surprise and Mrs. Guy Bradshaw arrived a few minutes early to sort of break the news as mother's home was filled with old time neighbors.

The guests signed their names in the greeting card, after which dainty refreshments were served and a social half hour enjoyed.

The gift was wrapped in blue and tied with a large white bow, making a picture of loveliness with its dainty trappings. Mrs. L. Rodgers had the honor of pinning the corsage.

MOUNTAIN VIEW

Community Forms W.A. Group to Aid In Maintenance

Mountain View — The community of Mountain View met Thursday forth an enthusiastic and whole-hearted effort into the formation of a Women's Association group whose primary function will be the co-ordination and progressive helpful maintenance of the church, part of which effort will consist of a Valentine tea and sale of home cooking to be held in the octagonal (eight-sided) home of Mrs. Joseph Doucette. The tea will be under the sponsorship of Miss Freda Fleming and Mrs. Madeleine Doucette, whose kindly and helping gestures are much appreciated.

Mountain View Church, now known as the United Church, dates its inception back to the days of the Methodist Episcopalists, and was built, in part, by the late Mr. Oliver Young, carpenter and farmer. A son of his, Mr. Benjamin Young, now residing in Trenton, who at the ripe old age of 97 vividly recalls giving the new wood of the church its first prime coat of paint. He also clearly remembers many of those who formed a part of the capacity congregation of other days; of a Mrs. Fisher, who used a hay wagon as a means of transportation, and of the enjoyable church tea socials which were regularly held.

Don't be HALF-SAFE

by VALDA SHERMAN

Many mysterious changes take place in your body as you mature. Now, the makers of Arrid spare no pains to secrete daily a new type of perspiration-stop under circumstances which will—if they reach your dress—positively defy detection!

You'll face this problem throughout womanhood. It's not necessary to stop the odor of this perspiration. You must not use a deodorant that stops the perspiration itself before it reaches—and ruins—your clothes.

As doctors know, not all deodorants stop perspiration and odor. But Arrid does! It's been proved that the new, creamy Arrid stops underarm perspiration 1 to 3 days safely—keeps underarms dry and sweet.

Remember this, too. Arrid's antiseptic action kills odor on contact—prevents formation of odor up to 48 hours and keeps you "shower-fresh". And it's safe for skin—safe for fabrics.

So, don't be half-safe. Don't risk half-safe deodorants. Be Arrid-safe! Use Arrid as it is now. Arrid with Creamogen will not dry out, and it's so pleasant and easy to apply. Get an Arrid—Canada's largest selling deodorant—today!

PREMIER FROST

Could Reduce Casualties

The minister said the defence organization as planned could reduce casualties by 50 per cent. He warned against over - expansion that might make "civil defence groups unwieldy. Organization should be "capable of expansion to meet any emergency."

Mr. Wells said he felt that Sudbury, Niagara Falls and Sarnia should be added to the national defence department's list of "potential atomic bombing targets. The list now includes Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, London, Windsor and Sault Ste. Marie.

J. D. Baxter (L — Prince Edward-Lennox) urged the government to reduce liquor sales, ease restrictions on municipal grants and control highway trucking loads. He said vegetable growers and processors should use caution in agreeing on produce prices for the coming year, for fear they might put canned food prices beyond public reach.

Joseph E. Hanson, (CCF—Wentworth) said Ontario should take responsibility for providing low-rental housing for families who had too many financial problems to give a lead in housing.

The federal government, he said, should shoulder the full cost of civil defence organization. He also asked that farmland bordering Lake Ontario be protected from encroachment by industrial plants and pressed for relaxation of laws restricting sale of farm produce from stands on the Queen Elizabeth way and other controlled-access highways.

Approve in Principle

The legislature also gave approval to government bills to increase the maximum fire protection charge in certain areas; allow debenture issues for school pension plans; permit appointment of an assistant police township school boards with 100 or more teachers; extend the College of Art teachers under the Ontario superannuation plan; reduce the maximum work week of full-time firemen from 72 to 56 hours; clarify municipal rights in agreements with the province and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation to finance public hospitals for treatment of mental hospital patients; and compel X-ray examinations for those suspected or having tuberculosis.

Mr. Welsh in discussing possible risks of Ontario cities, said no area of the continent was too remote for bombing aircraft. The chief defence against atomic bombing would ultimately be dispersion of industries.

Bombing would disrupt Canada's productive capacity and panic and uncertainty in the population would have almost as important an effect.

Vital Target Decided

Ontario had the majority of targets considered by the National Defence Department as vital. These were Ottawa, Toronto Hamilton, London, Windsor and Sault Ste. Marie. Mr. Welsh said Sudbury, Niagara Falls and Sarnia could be added to the list.

Any material damage to the Sault locks would have "a very detrimental effect," on Canada's war economy. There was "tremendous fire danger" to Northern Ontario forests that would add another hazard in the time of war.

In spite of all defences that could be erected, "some of our cities are going to be raided," he said. In that event, civil defence was the only way to minimize casualties.

Mr. Welsh said he believed the civilian population would not break and run in the face of attacks.

No decision had been reached yet with the federal government, but the question would be brought up in a federal-provincial meeting Feb. 23.

The meeting would also discuss standardization of fire equipment, storm warnings, training programs, and auxiliary fire equipment.

RUNNING IN PACKS

Guelph, Feb. 14 —(CP) — Wolves are reported running in packs in the district between Rockwood and Acton. Two residents complained of losing chickens to the marauders.

Mrs. Sullivan thanked the justice and the jury in a well-controlled clear voice. Her only son, Frank, 21, strode quickly to his mother's side and the two embraced.

Daughter Not Present

Her 16-year-old daughter, Elizabeth, present in court during the first few days of the trial, was not there for the final scene. The girl has been ill with measles and still is confined to bed at the home of friends here.

Arthur Gough of Toronto, Mrs. Sullivan's brother, wept openly when the verdict was announced.

Mrs. Sullivan shook hands with her counsel, Roydon A. Hughes, K.C., and Russell C. Lashley, and kissed a check of each of the two lawyers.

"I can only say that I feel very happy at this moment and I am glad that it is all over," she told newspaper men.

Her son was barely able to speak. He said simply: "I was always believed completely in my mother's innocence."

Mrs. Sullivan stood for more than 10 minutes with her son and her brother while friends then took pictures, then shook hands with the crowd. She was driven off in the family car with her son at the wheel. They were scheduled to return to Toronto today.

Third Theory Advanced

During the trial yesterday the jury heard a summary of evidence by Crown Attorney Rowell Mercier and Mr. Hughes, and received its charge from Chief Justice McRuer.

Mr. Mercier contended that Mr. Sullivan died from blows received in a struggle but Mr. Hughes said he was the victim of natural causes.

The Chief Justice, in his 2 1-2-hour charge, advanced what he called a "third theory". It was that Mr. Sullivan died after a struggle which might not be considered a criminal assault.

Mrs. Sullivan was not charged with the murder of her husband. The charge was changed to manslaughter.

Mr. Justice McRuer, instructing on the possible third theory, said the Toronto lawyer might have gone into convulsions as a result of the brain haemorrhage which medical experts testified Mr. Sullivan suffered.

He recalled evidence that Mr. Sullivan had been drinking. He suggested that Mrs. Sullivan by mistaking the convulsions for drunkenness might have tried to restrain her husband and struggled with him.

In doing so she might have suffered the bruises found on her body and her husband the 60 injuries found on his.

The Chief Justice said Mrs. Sullivan then might have become frightened that people would misjudge the events. Attempting to cover up, she might have packed the pieces of broken glass — crown-exhibited soda-water bottle—in her luggage; tidied room and then called for hotel help. The bottle and other glassware might have been broken in her struggle with her husband.

Mr. Low's motion caused a stir among the various parties in the Commons, where [illegible] of the members are from Ontario. The chief lieutenant [illegible] George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, moved up behind him to discuss the motion. In other parts of the chamber, small groups of members clustered in quiet discussion.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, leader of the 185-member Liberal party, has stated that the government does not plan to introduce compulsory military training at this time.

No Suggestion

Spokesmen for the Progressive Conservative party, which has 43 seats, have said that since the government is not ready to adopt compulsory military training at this time they are not going to suggest an alternative lest it harm voluntary recruiting efforts.

M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, has called for establishment of a "comprehensive plan which will make an "appraisal" of Canada's human and other resources, and recommend the best way to make them in the current crisis.

Some Liberal members have suggested compulsory training in the reserve forces.

Fuzzy-Foolyn Charged

Mr. Low accompanied his motion with a charge that there has been too much parliamentary fuzzy-foolyn done in the vital manpower question, and sounded a call for an immediate national registration of the country's manpower.

Two many speakers, said Mr. Low, "ahked away" from the manpower question. Yet Canada could only fulfill international obligation if she made the best possible use of available manpower resources.

He agreed that this country, with a small population, could make her best effort as a supplier of arms for North Atlantic and allied members of the economic front. But she should have immediate national registration and compulsory training in the reserve for home defence.

He knew of isolated places in Canada where it would be the simplest thing in the world" for an enemy country, such as Russia, to land troops.

"Just how far would we be able to take care of a situation like that if it happened?", he asked.

Defence, the international situation, and prices also were discussed as back-benchers hid the floor.

In the opening stages, External Affairs Minister Pearson said any decision to recross the Korean 38th parallel should be a collective decision taken by nations with forces in Korea under the United Nations banner.

Reinforcements On Way

Defence Minister Claxton reported that 85 reinforcements to fill the gaps battle may make in the ranks of Canada's Korean battalion in its first month of action now are on their way to Korea. This will be the battalion's monthly quota.

In the main debate, A. J. Brooks (PC-Royal) suggested "some measure of control" is necessary to bring down the cost of living and to help to curb the momentum of the inflationary pressures.

J. J. Smith (L-Moose Mountain) said he would support inflation demands for reimposition of price controls if they would come out in support of wage controls. He also would support reimposed controls if farmers' organizations asked for them.

Mr. Brooks said the proposed St. Lawrence seaway would be of "absolutely no benefit to the people of the Maritimes. However they would not oppose it if the government said it was essential to Canada's defence.

J.D. Shaw (SC-Red Deer) said that "if the truth were known" Canadians would be shocked to learn the numerical strength of communists within their country.

It was essential that Canada "develop an organization "to meet not only what may come flying over the ocean, but what may occur in our own country."

Need Defence Wall

Canada needed to build a strong defence wall, but it should be remembered that if and when the communists succeed came pounding at that wall" there will an enemy within trained to unlock the door.

A dozen German scientists and technicians entered Canada on temporary permits last year and took up positions in almost all phases of Canadian industry, a rilamentary return showed.

The return, tabled by Immigration Minister Harris, also showed that 14 wives and children of German scientists and technicians, also were given entry on a temporary basis.

The 12 scientists and technicians came to this country mainly at the request of Canadian industries. They got positions in industries ranging from watchmaking to ceramics and chemical plants.

Provision has since been made for the admission of German nationals to Canada and these scientists, and all others previously in country admitted can now apply for permanent residence.

WILL DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Toronto, Feb. 14—(CP)—Headed by their prime minister, Jim Calliding, 14 youthful cabinet ministers from East York Collegiate House of Commons saw for Rochester, N.Y., today. The members of the mock parliament will discuss educational and international affairs with students from Irondequoit High School in full-dress parliamentary debates over the weekend.

Second Reading For New Pipeline Passed in Senate

Ottawa, Feb. 14 (CP) — A bill to incorporate a new pipeline company to pipe gas from Alberta's Drumheller fields to serve most cities as far east as Montreal was given second reading in the Senate Tuesday.

Explaining the measure for incorporation of the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Company Limited, Senator Paul Bouffard (L-Quebec) said the company planned a 2,200-mile pipeline eastward to serve the main cities on the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railway lines.

These would include Toronto, Ottawa and Hull, as well as Montreal and the cost would be "at least- $250,000,000."

Answering a question by Senator W. Ruperi Davies (Lr-Ontario) if piping of the oil would lower gas prices in Ontario, Senator Bouffard said it was expected there would be a price reduction, but it was hard to say how much.

The bill was sent to a committee for further study.

Senator Bouffard said the company planned to finance itself by the sale of 5,000,000 shares of stock at $1 a share and through sale of bonds and debentures.

A proposition was being financed with U.S. capital, but he could not say what the division was between U.S. and Canadian capital.

The proposed pipeline would have a capacity of 365,000,000 cubic feet of oil a day which could be increased to a maximum of 500,000,000 cubic feet and the oil would be sold through established distributing agencies in the various cities. Thus there would be no question of competition with established distributors.

DOG POPULATION HIGH

CIVIL DEFENCE PLANS

Woodstock, Feb. 13 — (CP) — Woodstock's civil defence group has gone as far as it can on organizational plans, Lt. - Col. Ernest Elliott, defence director, told the city council last night. He said he has asked federal and provincial agencies what further steps should be taken, but has received no answer.

Col. Elliott said that unless direction is received from the province, it may be necessary to disband the civil defence committee.

Johnny 'Goose' McCormack Comes Back to Toronto Leafs After Pittsburgh Honeymoon

The honeymoon is over—and in more ways than one—for the National Hockey League.

The Goose is back.

John Ronald McCormack, lanky relief centre of Toronto Maple Leafs who was suddenly demoted to Pittsburgh Hornets the day after his wedding two weeks ago, has been recalled just before the deadline for exchanging players between the majors and minors.

Recall of the Goose, as Long John is aptly nicknamed, will displease the forwards of the opposing N. H. L. teams who have had good cause to wonder on occasions whether McCormack was using a stick about three times the regulation length.

Johnny's value to Toronto this year has been mostly as a penalty-killer, and his long-armed sweep check has been a repeated joy to Toronto fans who watched him steal pucks from surprised opponents.

As a result of his popularity, there was considerable grumbling when Conn Smythe, fiery Leaf general manager ordered McCormack to Hornets, apparently for getting married during the hockey season, Smythe insisted.

In reply, Smythe said something about the need for strengthening the Hornets, but statistics will show that the addition of McCormack wasn't enough to give Pittsburgh anything resembling a winning streak while he was there.

Happy Day, assistant Toronto general manager, said "Johnny may not be too well liked in Pittsburgh system, and probably is of more value to the Leafs."

While Toronto was wrestling with the mystery of the Pittsburgh honeymoon, New York Rangers have been trying to make something of the near-famous Manhattan prognostications of their general manger, Frank Boucher.

Another Prediction

Latest of Boucher's predictions is that Rangers and Boston Bruins will wind up in the third and fourth playoff positions, leaving Montreal Canadiens and Chicago Black Hawks in fifth and sixth place.

Boucher made the statement more than a month ago. His predictions are that he might be right, New York is still in fifth place, but now only two points behind Montreal and Boston, and of the three teams Montreal has been having the most trouble winning games of late.

Canadiens have a record of seven wins, eight losses and four ties since the start of the year, while Rangers have had seven wins, six losses and three ties.

The New Yorkers play host to the lowly Chicago Black Hawks, winners of only one game in their last 27, in tonight's only game, and a victory would shove them into a three-way tie for third.

Then, both New York and Boston would have an advantage over Montreal by having played fewer games.

Lethbridge Wins Over Switzerland By 11-3 Count

Davos, Switzerland, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Lethbridge Maple Leafs Tuesday walloped Switzerland's best, the champion Davos Ice Hockey Club, 11-3 before a crowd of 2,000.

The Canadian contenders for world hockey honors set and maintained a fast pace despite falling snow which made the ice bad.

The victory gives Leafs, hoping to repeat Edmonton Mercurys' performance last year in the world hockey championship this spring, a clean sweep of their Swiss series thus far.

In their 60-game pre - championship tour of Europe they have posted 20 wins against five losses and a tie.

Canadians' record of seven wins, eight losses and four ties since the start of the year, while Rangers have had seven wins, six losses and three ties.

The New Yorkers play host to the lowly Chicago Black Hawks, winners of only one game in their last 27, in tonight's only game, and a victory would shove them into a three-way tie for third.

Norman (Bud) Polle stopped over briefly with the Toronto Maple Leafs of the N.H.L. while awaiting transfer from the R.C.A.F. to the Canadian Army, and seven years ago tonight scored and set up goals in a second period Boston Bruins. BARONS INCREASE LEAD

(By The Associated Press)

Not that they needed it, but the Cleveland Barons increased their lead in the western division of the American Hockey League last night by whipping the Cincinnati Mohawks, 5 to 1. It gave the Clevelanders a 21-point spread over Indianapolis.

Tommy Williams, Ely Buller and Joe Lund — all defencemen — accounted for Cleveland's first three goals. The game was rough and Referee Wilson Russell handed out 62 minutes in penalties, including a 10-minute misconduct to Cincinnati goalie Emile (Cat) Francis. It was the only game.

NYLONS TONIGHT!

Now since the Redmen have commanded some respect from all hands in the senior group set - up, it looks as though tonight's tilt with the Kingston Nylons, the last of the season, should be one for the archives. The Reds after defeating Nylons and the Peterborough Petes in their last two starts are confident they have settled their strife and will be out there running for their third victory.

* * *

The redskirts, so Coach Walter Bent informs us, will be at full strength for tonight's tussle. Peter Jones is recovered from a leg injury and will be back at his old spot in the centre ice position between Vern Goyer and Jerry Mober. George Graham will also see action tonight on a line with Keith McDonald and Doug. Free

* * *

Belleville ice has nearly always proved a Nemesis to Kingston hockey hopes with the same applying to Kingston ice for Belleville aspirations. The Nylons are not exactly thrilled to be playing here, but tonight's brawl is an important one especially for them. They are battling desperately for that second place position and two points tonight means quite a step in that direction. In any event Kingston and Belleville squads have always put up quite a hockey scrap and tonight's affair should be no exception.

RICHARD HOLDS N. H. L. RECORD FOR "HAT TRICKS"!

Maurice Richard of Canadiens has scored three goals in one game more times than any other player in the history of the National Hockey League. He's performed this remarkable feat no less than 7 times during regular scheduled play and three times during the Stanley Cup playoffs. He failed to garner a "Hat Trick" during his first season with the league, 1942-43, when he only played 16 games before being sidelined with a broken leg. However, he's made up for lost time since then.

N. H. L. REFEREE FORMER FOOTBALL STAR

Red Storey, first-year referee in the National Hockey League, was once one of Canada's outstanding football players. He was a fleet-footed backfielder for the Toronto Argonauts. In a Canadian final between Argonauts and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Red ran wild in the final quarter to score 3 touchdowns and give Toronto a 30-7 victory. Before Red plagued his one-man show, the score was 7-6 for Winnipeg. This feat of Storey's is ranked as one of the greatest in the annals of Canadian football.

SPRING MUST BE HERE!

Three-year-old or younger Trotters and Pacers of Eastern Ontario and South Western Quebec will have another stake race to compete in next Summer. Officials of Zone 2 of the Canadian Trotting Association are ready to receive nominations and will announce the date and place of the race as soon as a local sponsor is secured.

* * *

Entries close March 15th and horses must be owned within Zone 2 as defined by the Trotting Association. This comprises all Eastern Ontario from a line between Picton and Mattawa and the Quebec counties as far east as Lachute. Ed. Birch and R. B. Soper of Smith's Falls are in charge of the event and all correspondence should be with them.

* * *

This is a renewal of the stake race held last year at Picton, Ontario when the gross purse was $2,200, winner's share $880.00. Of this amount, $1,000.00 was put up by the H. J. McFarland Construction Company of Picton and $700 by Picton Riding and Driving Club. With more money for the race being contributed by the Canadian Trotting Association, and a larger entry expected, there is hope the purse will exceed that of last year. The entry fee is again $50., with $10 payable March 15th at time of nomination.

Windsor Spits In First Place Of Junior Race

(By The Canadian Press)

Injured goalie Glen Hall stood like a rock last night and when the barrage of pucks stopped he had earned a 3-0 shutout against St. Catharines' Teepees and first place for Windsor Spitfires in Ontario Hockey Association Junior "A" standings.

Hall was cut over the left eye in the third period but returned after a 10-minute repair and proved as invulnerable as before. He was assisted by his teammates at the end of the game.

Jack Offidani, Jim Anderson and Earl Johnston made Hall's efforts count, although Teepees outshot Spitfires 35 to 29.

In Guelph, Biltmores bounced Barrie Flyers from the head of the league by rapping in three goals in the last eight minutes of play to win 5-4. Jack White, Gerry Toppazzini, Don Emms and Jim Morrison registered for Flyers before Dean Prentice with two, Gerry Theberge, Andy Bathgate and Chuck Henderson fired their decisive salvo.

Toronto's St. Michael's — in ninth place—took Oshawa Generals 4-2 to move within four points of eighth-place Stratford Kroehlers. Bill Berwick and Lou Jankowski scored for the Generals, Wally Marshall with two and Dan McDonald and Bob Sabourin for the Irish.

In a listless event, Galt Black Hawks edged Toronto Marlboros 2-1 in Galt. Ron Comacher and John Sleaver tallied for Hawks, Parker MacDonald for Marlies.

No Junior "A" games are scheduled for Wednesday. In the O.H.A. Majors, Toronto Marlboros meet Hamilton Tigers and Toronto St. Michael's meet Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

MAN CAN RUST OUT

Burgessville, Ont., Feb. 14 (CP) — George Colston, who reckons he is Canada's oldest active telephone operator, marked his 80th birthday Tuesday by reporting to his switchboard for a 10-hour stretch of duty. "You can't make a man out," said Mr. Colston, adjusting his headphone. "But a man can rust out. That's why I'm not quitting."

Senior Teams Win Contests

Ottawa, Feb. 14 — (CP) — Ottawa RCAF Tuesday night handily defeated the pace-setting Cornwall Calumets, 4-1. Just to make it an all-service night, Army walloped Hull Volants 6-2 in the second half of a twin bill.

Shep Mayer and Bill Franklin sent the Flyers in front early in the opener, with Greenlee adding another after only 14 seconds of the middle session and Mayer completing the count before the period reached its half-way mark.

Wally Garrett was the only one of the visitors to get past goalie Bucky Buchanan.

CONDUCTOR OF TWO GROUPS

Kingston, Feb. 13—CP—Darwin Stata of Brockville was conductor of two groups which won first places in the Eastern Ontario International Rotary Music Festival here yesterday. The groups were the Glen Buell School, Elizabethtown, with 83 points in the chorus class for one-roomed schools and the Brockville Madrigal singers who scored 77 and 80 in a class for small vocal ensembles.

'Alfie' Pierce Queen's Mascot Dies in Hospital

Kingston, Feb. 14 (CP) — Albert (Alfie) Pierce, for nearly 60 years mascot and general handyman at Queen's University died in hospital here Tuesday night. The son of a runaway slave, he was born here about 1872, but definite records are lacking.

Best known as an unofficial trainer of Queen's football teams and other sports squads, for years he tossed out the ball to Queen's football squads prior to intercollegiate games. He was also custodian of the famed Boohoo, Queen's goose which accompanied the team everywhere it went in Queen's championship era of the mid-1920s.

Any person who likes real old-fashioned blood and thunder-type hockey is cordially invited to visit the Frankford Arena, (at his own risk, of course), on Friday evening at 8:00. Bomber Berschi, who rules his 'Lions' Club team with an iron fist, decrees that his boys are thirsty for blood, and the Vets of the Legion, under the leadership of Ken "Flash" Lawrence have been busy oiling up their mortars and bazookas to slave off the Lions.

Frank Boucher To Have 'Night' On Anniversary

(By The Canadian Press)

They're throwing a 'night' for manager Frank Boucher of the Rangers tonight in Madison Square Garden.

The fans will give him a new car; the team a television set. Local hockey writers will chip in with a typewriter. These are just a sprinkling of the tokens of friendship planned to honor the 49-year-old Boucher on his 25th season with the Ranger organization.

Tonight "I'll be there" stories still were coming in from those who know and respect him in and out of hockey as well as from his many fans. Bill and Bun Cook, Boucher's linemates in the days when he was one of the game's greatest centres, wi'be on hand. So will Ching Johnson and Murray Murdoch.

He was one of the cleanest players in hockey history, winning the Lady Byng Trophy seven seasons in a row.

Gus Murray, who operated Gait's intermediate baseball team for three years has agreed to take the franchise back to the Okit Baseball Association for $3,000.

The association originally held the franchise but made an agreement to have Murray run it for four years. The club has a year to run but as a result of financial reverses last year, Murray has agreed to give up control now.

The Swedish National hockey team defeated the Bates Manufacturing Co., 10-1 Tuesday night before 2,500 spectators. Jack Poirier scored the American's only goal in the third period. The American team is entered in the world's amateur tournament at Paris next month.

Because of the unprecedented demand for tickets to see Joe Louis box at San Francisco Feb. 23, his 10-round bout with Andy Walker was switched Tuesday from the civic auditorium to the huge cow palace just outside the city limits.

A sell-out at the cow palace would ensure a gate of around $90,000, doubling the amount for which the auditorium was scaled.

If welterweight champion Ray Robinson wins the middleweight crown from Jake Lamotta in Chicago tonight, the welterweight championship will be declared "vacant". In New York, Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said Tuesday.

Joe Triner, chairman of the Illinois Athletic Commission, said his state will rule similarly.

Five Toronto schoolboys, headed by Rich Ferguson, 19-year-old holder of the Canadian interscholastic one-mile title, will compete in the United States indoor interscholastic track and field championships in New York Feb. 17.

Ferguson has twice gone under 4:20 in the mile. His Canadian record is 4:22. The U.S. interscholastic record is 4:21.7.

Baseball star Joe DiMaggio scoffed at rumors Tuesday that he and his divorced wife, the former Dorothy Arnold, may remarry.

"I ain't getting married again," said the New York Yankees' famed outfielder, punctuating the answer with a hearty laugh.

New York and San Francisco columnists in the last few days have intimated that the DiMaggios might reconcile.

Merchants Edge Trenton 9-8 In Close Game

Trenton—(Special) — From a last-minute dazzling attack Belleville Merchants wrested a 9 to 8 decision from the Trenton Town team in a scheduled Trent Valley League game here last night. Winger Graham for the visitors clinched the game with a lone tally at 18.03 in the final session.

The locals in the last period took advantage of a Belleville slump overcoming a three-goal lead to tie the count 8 to 8. Beale with two and Barr with one had the Belleville boys hanging on and somewhat bewildered. The invaders rallied just in time as Trenton again commenced to pour the rubber to Green in net.

Counting with five points, three goals and two assists stood out for Belleville. Graham, Bone and Hatfield carried their end well accounting for all but one or the visitors' total. Delaney planted the other one.

McDonald, Jones and Barr were the big scorers for the hometowners.

Two Extra Ends Needed Before Match Decided

Toronto, Feb. 14 — Something rare in curling occurred Tuesday at the Ontario Bonspiel here.

Rinks skipped by Gordon Gilbert of Chatham and J. W. Currie of Ayr had to play two extra ends before they could decide their match. Gilbert eventually won 7-6.

The two rinks played knockout style throughout and on the first extra end Gilbert took the only Currie rock out of the house with his last shot, but failed to stay himself, leaving the house empty.

In the second extra end, the house again was empty with each skip still to toss one rock each.

Currie was short on his shot and Gilbert bereft to draw into the house to win.

Brintons Defeat T.V.L. Puckists By 4-1 Score

Campbellford, Feb. 14—The Peterborough Brintons continued their winning streak by defeating the Campbellford T.V.L.'rs in the local arena on Monday night by a 4 to 1 count. A large crowd was on hand, and both Campbellford and Peterborough fans were there in more than usual numbers.

Quite a few penalties were handed out on both sides, mostly for boarding.

Campbellford missed a couple of good scoring opportunities, but Byers in the Peterborough nets was practically unbeatable.

The teams:

Peterborough Brintons: Goal, Byers; defence, Riches, Berardi; centre, Eakins; wings, Lawson, Richlard; Alternates, Reid, Anderson, McIndoe, Huard, McCuaig, Hardy, Willshaw.

Campbellford, Feb. 14 — The Norwood TVL team is two points richer after they won a protest against the Maroons Club in Campbellford on Sunday.

AT THE BELLE — Lana Turner and Ray Milland are the stars of MGM's "A Life of Her Own," which brings the alluring Miss Turner back to the screen after a two-year absence during which she led "a life of her own." The story, said to give Lana her greatest acting opportunity, traces the rise of a smalltown girl to fame as a New York model. It starts a three-day engagement at the Belle Theatre today. On the same program a delightful little technicolor musical "Carribean Romance," the Latest World News are also presented.

AT THE McCARTHY — Romance ... Co-stars Pamela Britton and Edmond O'Brien in "D.O.A.", closing tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Second hit features Ronald Colman in "Champagne for Caesar."

AT THE CAPITOL — Lovely Adele Jergens is the romantic admirer of Hunts Hall, the Bowery Thrush, in Monogram's "Blues Busters," at the Capitol Theatre, Thursday for its first showing. Leo Gorcey is starred in this latest Bowery Boys comedy. On the same program, "Cowboy and the Prizefighter," in Cinecolor, starring Jim Bannon and Little Brown Jug.

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 14 — (AP) — Did you ever wonder if the west was really as it is portrayed in horse operas?

Well, I have, and at last I found someone to reply to the question. He is A. B. Guth, author of "The Big Sky" and "The Way West." The latter won him a Pulitzer Prize for the best novel on American life in 1949.

Born in Montana and reared on western lore, Guthrie was on the staff of the Lexington, Ky., Leader for 20 years. He now conducts a writers' workshop at the University of Kentucky and is considered one of the top authorities on the western scene.

He is here to write his first screen play, "Shane," and I interrupted his labors to ask if he thought movie, westerns were authentic.

"No," he replied.

Old Cliches

"It seems to me the movies western and western fiction have fallen into the same pattern of using the old cliches time and time again. For instance, there is the familiar character of the ranch foreman who is trying to put something over on the boss. And the boss usually turns out to be a beautiful girl.

Historical figures have taken a beating in the movies, Guthrie added. He pointed out that Billy the Kid was a trigger - happy little punk who neither looked nor acted like Johnny Mack Brown, Robert Taylor, Jack Beutel or Audie Murphy. (All have played the character on the screen.)

"And the western sheriffs are made to seem like great men," he added. "But, from their records, you can only gather that they liked to kill."

Too Much Violence

"All in all, it does seem that the movies concentrate too much on the violence of the west," the author observed. "Surely, these was some gunplay, but there was also a lot of hard work. There were plenty of men who helped settle the west without firing a shot. I would like to see the stories of those men shown for a change."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Championship tournaments are always duplicate matches. That is the same hands are played at all tables. Naturally there will be a number of deals that are bid differently at different tables.

Unusual results will occur. If the hands themselves are not startling, the bids and plays at some tables will stir up excitement. This was the case in the deal shown here:

♥ 4 3 2
♦ 3 2
♣ K 8 7 6 5 4 3

WEST	EAST
♠ 8 6 4	♠ J 10 9 7
♥ J 10 8 7	♥ K Q 9
♦ Q J 10 7 6	♦ K 9 8
♣ 10 9	♣ Q J

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 4 2
♥ A 5 6
♦ A 5 4
♣ A 2

The south hand looks pretty good. But it is not so hot that it should increase your blood pressure much. Even without putting on your new spocks you can make out no less than six losers.

As for the north hand it is nothing to make a fuss over. True the club suit is long. But the whole hand is weak in high card pep. Actually, it rates only a back-in after a normal opening.

So, at most tables they stopped at three clubs, three no-trump, four clubs, or five clubs. A couple of pairs went to six clubs with their heart in their mouth. All made more than they expected.

At the table I heard about, the dan broke South and went overboard for a make or break score. They were kept into a no-trump grand slam contract that was doubled by east.

East could not be blamed for doubling a seven no-trump bid. It looks as if he must take a couple of tricks in the red suits. At the very least he should take a trick to defeat grand slam.

The opening lead from west was heart jack. This is just what the east hand would have ordered. This or a diamond lead. So east felt good about his double. He was already counting his gain.

But old man distribution had something to say about it. With the club break, south figured the astute play for taking all 13 tricks. As it turns out, no lead will defeat it if handled right.

There is no lesson in this. So, I will make a couple.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, February 15

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Things may be slow, effort on the poor side. Keep trying, we all have these periods. Some delay in communications, mails may cause holding up of progress. Be hopeful, cheerful.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—May be want to discourage, drop back in race if not in lead. Don't! Strive on, whether you come in first does not always matter—how you try does. Take sound advice from loved ones.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Inauspicious days. Extra work, careful planning, some restraint urged. Emphasis upon old friendships in social and business matters. Take more interest in little things in the house.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Withhold making contracts, signing documents unless on sound legal advice or information. New ventures can wait until proper period represents itself. News will clear up some things.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Wield a shrewd, keen wand today. Things will be confusing if you trust to luck or hearsay. Some events may be involved, judge carefully slowly, take time, ask questions if in doubt.

August 23 to September 22—(Virgo)—Hardly the time to go top-very spending or planning, or taking on new goals beyond a day limit. The smart one will put his time and money where it has proved wise.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—May be loss or valuable time if you are not on guard. Don't trust to memory, others' answers, have a date book, file of your own. You have a practical, intelligent head—show it!

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Place your hope in faith and good common judgment, which you have plenty of. Don't allow bias to infiltrate. Should get reasonable help from friends, loved ones, seek it.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—General tendencies mildly favorable. That means some special attention, added effort needed. Scientific work, technical studies, civic pursuits can advance appreciably.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—May find cross purposes at work today. Smile, keep trying, don't ever quit or become discouraged. Out of seeming nowhere come better chances, results. Turn small things into success, too.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Somewhat indifferent tendencies in your sector. You can supply the incentive needed and make a success of day's schedule. Technicians, medical, social service work highly lucky.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—A good planetary day for you. Both money and general business interests can make headway, also heart, domestic and family affairs. Be happy, realize how lucky you are.

YOU BORN TODAY: Gentle manner, calm and progressive, then again restless, impatient with present progress. Sensibly control this inner wavering and discontent, it can defeat the high promise that is yours. Have more faith in your work, ability and worthy friends. You can reach the top of the ladder if you so choose. Show discretion in jokes, mind accuracy in little things. If God's principles come first you won't go far from right path.

Birthdate: Galileo, famed Italian astronomer philosopher; Elihu Root, American statesman, lawyer; John Barrymore, actor.

Police Probing Disappearance Of Sum of Money

Picton—Local police are conducting an investigation into the disappearance of more than $1,300 from the safe of the service station operated by William Drew and Jack Ackerman here. The money was in an envelope ready to take to the bank when it disappeared. Half the amount was in cheques and the remainder in bills. The door of the safe was not locked during the hour whilst Mr. Ackerman was absent and during which time the theft occurred. A number of persons who frequented the station during this period have been questioned but no trace of the money can be found.

PLAYDOWNS START

Picton—Provided that there is natural ice, Intermediate 'B' OHA playdowns will get under way at local arena tomorrow evening. Picton Royal Canadian Legion School of Artillery (AA) will represent Picton in the District league and will have the services of several players from other leagues. The army team meets the Royal Canadian Signal Corps in the first round with the best two of three series. Second game is at Kingston on Feb. 18 and the third game, if necessary, at Picton on Feb. 23. For the opening game, the RCSC band will be in attendance. Winner of this series will meet the winners of the Tamworth-Napanee series. It is some years since Picton has been represented in OHA playdowns.

WHY WE SAY By Bob Morgan, Pete Hunter

"BE MY VALENTINE"

The St. Valentine (one of three) who died about 270 a.d. was a Christian priest who befriended lovers by marrying them against the order of Roman emperor Claudius. St. Valentine is not directly related to the saint who "did a big valentine" started in England became the first boy a valentine to that girl.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Lisa Farwell glanced around the room at the others assembled to the scene of the murder of Lavinia Grenable by Sheriff Lane.

The sheriff was a rather ordinary looking man in his early fifties. He was a big man but he was completely at ease in the atmosphere of the Grenable home. He was new to his office, but as he shook hands with Lisa's father, she recalled that she had seen him before. Her father had designed the sheriff's new house out near the lake.

Lisa nodded to Marion and Phillip Carson. Marion was Lavinia's only daughter, a rather acid-tongued blonde. A blonde by choice rather than by nature. Her husband was a heavy, graying man with a look of the city about him. Lisa recalled the Carsons only vaguely, for they came to Hilton only once a year at Lavinia's request. It was a strange custom, Court had told her only the other day, that his mother had innovated years before when the family began to break up. Once a year, on some holiday, she ordered them back to the nest for a kind of mocking surveillance of their comings and goings. "Command performance!" Court had said grimly. But this one at Easter had ended in a crimson holiday—in Lavinia's death.

There was trouble, Lisa remembered vaguely, between Marion's husband Phillip, and Lavinia. She hadn't wanted them to marry. But then, she hadn't approved of Andrew's choice, either. Strange, and with a little chill of fear Lisa thought, she approved of me for Court. Why?

Elizabeth Stratton captured Lisa's attention for the moment. She was sitting very still and deathly white beside Geri Palmer and Lisa saw Geri pat the older woman's hand once.

Elizabeth tried to smile but nothing resulted. She sat there in the needlepoint chair by the door, Lavinia Grenable's sister, and the naked terror in her eyes was like an advance admission of her guilt.

Lisa saw it and Henry Farwell knew it as before very long the police, if they hadn't already, would seize upon it, too. Lisa wanted to go to Elizabeth, for she had been very close to the Farwells during the years and Lisa herself was named after the other woman. As unlike Lavinia as love from hate, the thin core of devilitry threading through Lavinia's nature had been equally matched by the sweetness in Elizabeth.

But Lisa was afraid to cross the room to her side, knowing the very act of comfort would mean danger by bringing attention to her manner.

Lisa felt caught in the web of discord woven by these people in the Grenable house. Watching them, Lavinia's children, her sister, her secretary, she was struck with the tragic lack of grief in all of them. And she knew that even to offer sympathy to Court would be like lamenting the passing of a rattlesnake.

She looked around for Andrew Grenable and hesitatingly asked Court, "Where's Andy?" Court in another gigantic unease and threw her a sidelong glance toward his fiance.

"Andy's sleeping off last night's binge," he said, scowling.

The room, large and square was a combination sunroom and music room. A grand piano filled the wall corner and a harp stood opposite it across the doorway. An ivory bust of Lavinia made in the arrogance of her twenties, leered at them from its eyes pedestal in the window area.

Sheriff Lane took the deep chair in front of the north window facing them. Lisa discovered he had cleverly arranged the lighting to fall revealingly on their every expression. He said:

"As I told all of you, this is not an inquest. You will be allowed complete freedom for the funeral tomorrow, but I must remind you that no one will be allowed to leave Hilton until after the inquest, which will be set for sometime next week.

"As you know, Mrs. Grenable was murdered. The police have ascertained beyond doubt the wheel chair was tampered with and the emergency brake sawed in half. Right now I want a statement from each of you concerning the connection with the household and your activities the day of Mrs. Grenable's death."

Having said what he had to say, the sheriff plunged his hands in his pockets, nodded at Geri Palmer who was apparently taking notes for him, and leaned back in his chair.

Suddenly, Lisa discovered that Sheriff Lane was looking at her. Quickly she repeated what had happened while she and Angus had witnessed the scene.

Angus Kent took up the story, for it was he who had told Lisa to telephone for help, and he had assisted the doctor and the police in finding Mrs. Grenable's body.

With these details established, Dane asked quickly: "Miss Farwell, while you were on Old Ezra Road, or within the boundaries of the Grenable property, did you see anyone nearby prior to, or immediately after the murder?"

FRANKFORD

Legion Expresses Thanks for Donations

Frankford [illegible] regular bi-monthly meeting of Branch 397, Canadian Legion was held in the Legion Club Rooms on Monday evening, with an excellent turnout. Comrade President Madill called the meeting to order, and a period of silence was observed in remembrance of those who paid the supreme sacrifice for their country.

Correspondence was read, and it was revealed that cigarets could now be sent to active personnel under the same set-up that prevailed during the last war. The Legion is investigating the possibility of bringing in an entertainer to put on a show in the near future, the social evening planned for Wednesday evening was discussed, and plans completed. A report was given by the Committee which had been arranging the curling bonspiel of early Tuesday evening. These have proven most successful. Plans were also discussed for the Legion banquet on Friday evening, between the Lions Club and the Legion.

A vote of thanks was moved to Comrade George Foster for his donation of a load of wood, and to Comrade John Heskell for the donation of a stove, and an exhibit. A $5 donation from Mr. Harry Lohnes, and an $8 donation from Mr. Oscar Farrar, were also acknowledged.

Several new members were welcomed into the Legion, either by joining or on transfer from other branches.

After the meeting closed cards were enjoyed for a couple of hours.

Drew Critical Of Communists

Ottawa, Feb. 14 (CP) —George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Tuesday night he believes it is "time" to hope that Mao Tse-Tung's communist government of China may break with Moscow.

In a speech prepared for delivery to the Ottawa Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Mr. Drew said:

"If the day ever comes when there is a break between Peiping and Moscow, it will be because of the conflict between two dictators, one of whom refuses to be subservient to the other, and not because of any affectionate wooing by the western world."

It was time that Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia had split with Moscow, but it now would be difficult for any other government to follow that course. Russia would take special steps to see that there were no more disaffections.

The communist party in Canada was organized only one month before the communist party in China in 1921. Tim Buck, now head of the Labor-Progressive party, was one of original organizers.

"The time is long overdue for Canadians to recognize in all its naked treachery, the purpose which Tim Buck and every Canadian communist have in mind," said Mr. Drew.

It is time, said Mr. Drew, that steps were taken to amend laws to make it possible to deal effectively with Canadian communists.

NAVAL LONGHAIRS

Doncaster, England — (CP) — Lt.-Cmdr. Barling, sea cadet district officer, thinks British servants are too easy these days. Said he: "Too few parents today make their sons pay regular visits to the barber."

POLISH WITH CLOTH

Niagara Falls, Feb. 14—(CP)—Among the queries received by the Chamber of Commerce was one puzzler from Stratford-on-Avon, England, asking where an apple-polishing machine could be bought. "We've got machines to take the fuzz off peaches, machines to wash fruit, but I never heard of an apple-polishing machine," said one prominent fruit grower. "We polish them with a cloth."

Mackenzie's Column:

Moslems Will Stand Together In Case of War

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

From the recent world Moslem conference in Karachi, Pakistan, has come the warning that the Mahammedan countries will stand together in event of aggression against any of them.

This resolution of solidarity is framed to keep within the tenets of Islam and the United Nations Charter. It is in effect a reaffirmation of the Korean decision by Asian "Verily all Moslems are brethren."

However, when all softening phrases are shorn away, it means that the global Moslem bloc — 316,000,000 strong — is determined to defend itself.

That is a momentous development, which has to be fitted into the big new puzzle of our divided world.

As indicating the scope of this conference, 36 Moslem countries were represented. The Mohammedans of predominantly Hindu India weren't invited because the conference leaders wanted to avoid anything which might cause ill feeling. The Russian Moslems at last report hadn't replied to their invitation to attend, but that isn't strange since Moscow could scarcely be expected to sanction any such delegation.

This was the first session of the world Moslem conference ever held, although the groundwork of the meeting was laid two years ago.

Since the announced purpose of the conference was to promote cultural development, the declaration of intention to fight in self-defence could hardly be anticipated.

One would expect the result to be a careful manoeuvring of both the democracies and the red countries to win the adherence of this huge Moslem bloc.

RED LOSSES 100,000, MASS DRIVE BROKEN

Six Army Divisions Will be U.S. Share In West Europe

Four Divisions Will be Added To Two Now Overseas

Washington, Feb. 15 — (AP)— Truman administration plans call for six United States Army divisions — triple the American forces now in Europe — to serve with the combined Allied armies being organized for the defence of Western Europe against possible communist aggression.

Defence Secretary Marshall gave the figure, which means sending over four additional divisions, to the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees today. He said he did it "reluctantly" but in belief it was better than to have a debate over generalities.

Involves 100,000 Men

Under questioning from Senator Lyndon Johnson (Dem. Tex.), Marshall said the movement of four more combat divisions to Europe would involve the sending of about 100,000 men there.

He said 72,000 fighting men would make up the four divisions at full strength and that "about 30,000 or 35,000" supporting troops would be needed in addition to those already in Europe.

An American Army division consists of about 18,000 men. In addition, support elements supply and maintain the organization, transportation and other units are needed to keep combat forces in a state of readiness.

The U. S. now has in Europe the 1st Infantry Division and a constabulary force — equivalent to a full division, but lacking service support for field combat, yet the last official indication of troop strength in Europe was about 97,000 men. Thus more than 60,000 men of the present force presumably are in support elements.

The Senate Committees are considering whether Congress should adopt a resolution of some nature concerning the "troops-in-Europe" issue.

Aim to Keep Peace

In ripping the top-secret label off this much of the government's blueprint for defending Western Europe, Marshall emphasized that the aim of the forces is to keep peace.

He said the intention is:

"To deter aggression if that be possible, and

"To defeat aggression if, in spite of all our efforts, the attack of the Soviet Union or its satellites should precipitate another world war."

Marshall urged Congress to do nothing which would tie the hands of Gen. Eisenhower as commander of Allied forces, including the number of troops that could be placed under his command.

The proposed six U. S. divisions under Eisenhower would be part of a total contemplated defence force of about 40 divisions.

In addition to the U. S. ground forces, there would also be American air and naval units in the combined defence forces.

Marshall Said:

"Because of the great amount of discussion which has been centred on the subject of ground forces, I have come to feel the president's permission to discuss with you the specific strength of the

CONSERVATIVES WILL NOT SUPPORT S.C. PARTY POLICY

Compulsory Training For Reserves Out

Ottawa, Feb. 15 — (CP) — The 43 - man Progressive Conservative party — official opposition in the Commons — does not intend to support proposals for compulsory military training in Canada's reserve forces.

The party's position was outlined yesterday in the Commons by Mid.-Gen. C. B. Pearkes V.C., veteran of the two world wars and spokesman for the Progressive Conservatives on defence matters. He said he cannot support a motion introduced Monday by the 10-man Social Credit party and calling for compulsory reserve training for all young men for home defence.

Amid applause from Liberal, C. C. F. and Progressive Conservative benches, Gen. Pearkes said that compulsory training now would only serve to retard the development of the Canadian reserves and to people into a false sense of security."

The reserve commander in Canada's Pacific Coast represents the British Columbia constituency of Nanaimo. He does believe the government should undertake a national training programme.

But, on the question of compulsory reserve training, he felt this would only draw from the active forces the equipment and instructors needed to bring them to peak efficiency.

Ray Perrault (SC — Wetaskiwin) said it would not be necessary to draft reserve officers and men from the active army to serve as instructors. There were many former officers, and men, with active service, ready and willing to train the reserves. Canada had enough equipment at least to make a start with compulsory training.

Flu Outbreak Creeping Into Ontario Following Appearance Across Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

An illness variously reported as influenza and bad colds has crept into Ontario, closing some schools and creating absenteeism from factories and offices in some communities.

Similar conditions have appeared elsewhere in Canada. Ninety-two recent deaths in Montreal alone have been attributed to flu.

"There is little doubt that the virus has spread from England to the Maritimes, Quebec and finally here," Dr. J. T. Phair, Ontario Deputy Health Minister, said in Toronto. "It appears as though it was brought it from England by passengers on boats and planes".

Schools and amusement places were shut down in Haileybury and the possibility of similar action was forecast in New Liskeard, five miles distant, where 160 public school pupils were absent and 30 high school students were reported ill.

Labor Force Affected

About six nurses at Memorial Hospital in St. Thomas were reported ill with bad colds and the hospital was closed to visitors. Most of the St. Thomas physicians who were ill earlier have returned to classrooms. Some 75 per cent of pupils and of the St. Thomas labor force is affected by the illness.

Nurses were reported down with flu at St. Catharines and school attendance was cut by an estimated 15 per cent. Schools were closed at Port Erie, Ont.

Many doctors expressed an opinion, however, that a great number of cases were non-flu. The Toronto Telegram said it polled 35 doctors and was told of "dozens" of cases that the public might well consider conditions but it really isn't the same thing".

Toronto's Medical Officer of Health, Dr. Charles Jackson, said that Toronto has escaped lightly thus far with only five influenza deaths reported this year.

In Sudbury, Ont., health officials forbade visitors at two hospitals due to the discovery of between 300 and 800 cases of a rare type of the disease. No deaths have been reported.

In Sarnia, Ont., rising absenteeism from schools and industry is attributed to a rare form of influenza, as are similar situations in Hamilton, Brantford and Port Erie, Ont.

The Provincial Health Department is investigating the Sudbury, Sarnia and Cornwall outbreaks, but Deputy Minister Dr. J. T. Phair said influenza in Ontario has not reached epidemic proportions nor are outbreaks of mumps, scarlet fever and measles in the province connected with influenza.

In cobourg, Ont., 103 cases of flu and colds have been found, while many children in the Timmins mining area are suffering with mumps.

Aylmer, near London, Ont., reports four cases of scarlet fever resulting in all new entries to the Aylmer District High School being given leave until March 1, when they will be enrolled at St. John's.

Montreal doctors have denied that dogs in that area are suffering from influenza, as many owners have claimed. The dog's disease is said by veterinarians to be distemper, not influenza.

The Maritimes are next hardest-hit after Montreal. Sydney reporting coal production dropped by 1,500 tons a day.

Edmonton hospitals have banned all visitors except in cases of emergency. No patient is not expected to recover, and close to 200 students at the University of Alberta are reported suffering from flu.

In Saskatchewan, Prince Albert reports the influenza epidemic seems on the wane, although some schools still have 30 per cent of their pupils absent and many business firms are working short-handed.

BEAT OPPOSITION ON TWO COUNTS IN LEGISLATURE

Hours-of-Work Bill, Voting Rights Defeated

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—Opposition members had their innings in the Ontario Legislature yesterday but were defeated on two counts—a motion to give municipal voting rights to all persons 21 or over and a bill to reduce the maximum work week from 48 to 40 hours.

The motion by Reid Scott (CCF—Toronto East) to extend municipal franchise was defeated on a recorded, straight party vote, 58 to 20, with Liberals voting with government forces.

The hours-of-work bill, proposed by Robert Thornberry (CCF—Hamilton Centre), was squelched by a successful government motion to put it a six-months hoist. The motion, for a six-month delay in voting on the bill, in effect killed it. The legislature will not be in session in six months.

The legislature today resumes the Throne Speech debate.

Three hours of yesterday's session were taken up with consideration of private members' bills—but the first private bill to receive attention in the legislature seen in years. An additional hour, however, was spent in debating the principle of a government bill to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act.

Nootka Receives First Baptism Of Fire in Korea

A United Nations Naval Base in South Japan, Feb. 15.—(CP)—The Canadian destroyer Nootka is back at sea today after receiving her first baptism of fire in the Korean war.

The tribal-class ship, under command of Cmdr. A. B. Fraser-Harris, steamed out of Sasebo Jan. 14 as a relief for the destroyer Sioux, now back in Canada. She arrived at the Korean front, the west coast of Korea and things started popping.

On her first patrol, with the destroyer Cayuga, she engaged in a gun duel with red shore batteries at the Haeju port, of Inchon.

Then she guarded the approaches to the port Cayuga remained in the hostile harbor with the British cruiser Ceylon and a Canadian-built frigate, Athabaskan, while the Nootka and Chilliwack guarded the mouth of the Han River Wednesday night near Seoul.

It was the second consecutive and disastrous red attempt to cross the icy stream near the burned out former capital. More than 1,100 Korean reds were killed in force in a foray early Wednesday.

Elsewhere on the frigid front, British forces were making limited-scale counter-attacks. AP correspondent Don Whitehead reported American troops, attacking with hand grenades, took high ground northeast of Kyongju, 17 miles southeast of Seoul.

Front-line United Nations officers claimed victory "at the moment," said four red divisions are out of action. Two Reds were in the four-day communist effort to drive down central Korea's rocky spine between Wonju and Chinyong.

French, Dutch and South Korean forces also checked the red drive along a 20-mile front at ridges and a low mountain between those two towns. A field dispatch described the scene as "death valley."

Hard-Hit Chinese Break, Run Before Allied Relief Force

Troops Battle Eight Hours Before Breaking Through

Tokyo, Feb. 15 (AP) — An allied relief column smashed through a Chinese red ring today to reinforce American-French forces holding the Chipyong anchor on the central Korean warfront.

The relief force battled eight hours before breaking through to the Chipyong perimeter at 5.30 p.m. (3.30 a.m. EST). The action began five miles south-southwest of the town.

The hard-hit Chinese finally broke and ran.

Chipyong, 35 air miles east-of-southeast of Seoul is the left flank anchor of a 20-mile allied defence line stretching over snow-mantled hills and valleys to Wonju, key to the central mountain front.

The American-French garrison withstood two days of massed red infantry assaults to help break the back of the drive aimed at cracking the central front. The Chipyong garrison was stopped Wednesday.

Red casualties were counted at 10,593 on all fronts Wednesday. It brought to nearly 100,000 those killed, wounded or captured since the Allied limited push began Jan. 25.

AP correspondent John Randolph reported the Chipyong garrison radioed that the Chinese were fleeing in all directions" after the relief column rammed through from the south.

However, AP correspondent William J. Waugh reported more than 1,000 reds were killed in no high ground north of the town. Wipe Out 6 Divisions

On the western front, U.S. soldiers and artillery wiped out 400 Chinese who sneaked across the Han River Wednesday night near Seoul.

It was the second consecutive and disastrous red attempt to cross the icy stream near the burned out former capital. More than 1,100 Korean reds were killed in force in a foray early Wednesday.

Elsewhere on the frigid front, British forces were making limited-scale counter-attacks. AP correspondent Don Whitehead reported American troops, attacking with hand grenades, took high ground northeast of Kyongju, 17 miles southeast of Seoul.

Paul Meger Will Report To Canadiens

Montreal, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced today the signature of forward Paul Meger from Buffalo Bisons of the American League.

Meger, who played his last amateur hockey with Barrie, Ont., hopes to make the Montreal line of tonight's game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Meger becomes the outright property of Canadiens and in exchange Canadiens have loaned Ross Lowe and Vern Kaiser to Buffalo.

Canadiens obtained Lowe from Boston Bruins in a trade announced last night which sent defenceman Hal Laycoe to Bruins from Canadiens.

Meger, 25, is from Watrous, Sask., and currently is the A.H.L. leading scorer with 28 goals and 35 assists. He was named A.H.L. rookie of the year last season.

Airman Killed As Plane Breaks Apart in Air

Ottawa, Feb. 15 (CP) —FO. ... A. Ryan, 29, D.F.C., of Toronto and Ottawa, was killed yesterday in the crash of a plane used for supersonic research.

"It was a little after noon," said Alphonse McKenna, an eyewitness, "that I heard a plane ... ing overhead. I didn't pay much attention until I heard a terrific bang and when I looked up I saw an airplane break apart in the air."

Ryan's body was found late yesterday—after a six-hour search—in dense bush near Dwyer Hill, Ont., 26 miles southwest of Ottawa. His parachute was still in his pack on his shoulders.

McKenna said he saw one portion of the experimental Mustang fighter plane veer away to the northwest section of the wreckage and another section drop straight down. With a team of horses and a sleigh, he went to both places but found only a few pieces of metal scattered there.

Ryan was making a test flight from the National Research Council laboratories at Uplands airport, Ont. The single-seat plane, known as the "Flying Wing Tunnel," has a modification of the wings which causes air to flow over the wing surface at speeds faster than sound.

Small models mounted on the wings permit research on how aircraft react at speeds beyond the speed of sound.

A research council official said cause of the crash is a mystery but he certain the experimental nature of the plane had nothing to do with it.

It was reported that Ryan was making a final test flight before returning to Canada to celebrate the birthday of daughter Linda Susan. She is one year old today.

He is survived by his widow, the former Winnifred Wright of Toronto and a son, Robert A.

Near Smiths Falls

The crash occurred 15 miles northeast of Smiths Falls and some of the rescue workers at the area took part in the ground search. Six R.C.A.F. planes and a helicopter also joined in the unsuccessful six-hour search by ski-equipped snowshoe to search on the ground.

Thirteen-year-old Lloyd Raymond, who saw the crash and later: "I saw a plane around the noon hour with smoke coming from its tail. It went into a dive and then I saw it crash into the bush."

Two para-rescue experts from the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton — LAC. Rud Cockerton of Montreal and LAC. O. B. Lockett, of Timmins—were dropped near the dusk when the wreckage was sighted.

Ryan's body, still in the parachute, was wrapped in his parachute and carried to a waiting horse-drawn sleigh for the trip away for removal to McKenna's farm.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Ont., Feb. 15 — (CP) — Winter was the coldest place in the province last night with a minimum of 15 below. However, in Northern Ontario temperatures fell to 18 to 15 below, while southern sections reported about 15 above. The cold weather is gradually departing as warmer air moves into the region.

The sunny skies which prevailed throughout Ontario today will be replaced by clouds in the Windsor area this afternoon and snow this evening, with these conditions spreading slowly northeastward to cover Southern Ontario by Friday evening.

Hamilton Girl Shares in Estate

Toronto, Feb. 15. (CP)—A six-year-old Hamilton girl who befriended Frederick McGregor the last months of the millionaire contractor's life, will receive a university education, music lessons and a trust fund that she becomes 18, and an interest in the proceeds of the sale of his home.

Mr. Justice Ferguson Wednesday upheld an interpretation of Mr. McGregor's will benefiting June Armer, whose mother and father died within a few days a few weeks of each other.

In his home-made will Mr. McGregor said: "I also leave extra money for her (June Armer) if needed for her education and to fit her for any profession she wishes to follow, medician, doctor . . . she has the right to choose and to follow and demand the money she needs to put her to the top."

SELL REINDEER MEAT

London, Feb. 15 — (AP)—Unemployed workers went on sale for the first time in meat-shy London Wednesday, but housewives were doubtful about its taste and shocked at its price. A small consignment of Swedish reindeer meat cases reached distributors during the last few days. Retail prices ranged from 50 to 60 cents a pound.

Labor whips were reported to have told Prime Minister Attlee they were fairly sure they could avoid a party split on Bevanite censure motion which could force a general election.

In his attack, Churchill said the placing of the iron and steel industry under state control, declive today, typified Britain's problems in a time of international crisis.

"Evidences and example of the ineptitude and incompetence of the government are to be found in most daily glaringly before us.

"We are convinced that the mismanagement exhibited in civil and domestic affairs extends also to the military field and that also is the growing opinion of the nation."

Churchill described the government's present target of £4,700,000,000 or defence spending in the next three years as "an affront" thought and reconsideration of the

Churchill Jabs Government For Failure to Make A-Bomb In Britain Since War's End

London, Feb. 15—(CP)— Winfacts."

He said this was typical of the failure of the Attlee regime to set up the government-given nothing but words, declarations, projects and schemes which seem to increase confusion rather than aid. It is mainly on paper.

"Within the control they have demanded over our manpower and the vast sums of money voted so readily by Parliament, they could have been possible to produce a substantial A-bomb," he declared.

"They have produced so few tactical units that when we put it to the test we could not find it was necessary for us to send a British Army to Korea two months to produce even a brigade group."

The Conservative leader renewed a demand for Attlee to make public the government agreement Churchill signed with the United States and Canada on development of atomic energy. He said Britain now is free to make its own A-bombs and should be doing so in self-defence.

"By creating the American atomic base in East Anglia," he asserted, "we have made ourselves the first target in the parts the bulle-eye, of Soviet attack."

(The U.S. air force is stationed at several bomber bases in East England.)

Attlee jumped up and said:

"Really, Mr. Churchill ought not to misinform the country on a matter of this kind.

"He knows perfectly well that there is no link between the understanding that development of the atomic bomb is based on the other side of the Atlantic and it is utterly untrue to suggest that we have not got it as well as he."

Britain has a plant in operation which is understood to be capable of making plutonium, basic material for an A-bomb. It is not believed to be near the production of actual bombs.

"I say we have not succeeded in building the atomic bomb completely in this country in the 3½ years since the war," Churchill

Several Hundred Fishermen Adrift On Huge Ice Floe on Lake Erie

Buffalo, Feb. 15. (AP)—Several hundred fishermen were reported marooned today on a drifting Lake Erie ice floe, and the coast guard launched a rescue operation. There was no indication they were in immediate danger.

A coast guard spokesman said the Cutter Cherry, two ice boats and a helicopter were sent out shortly before noon.

Boatswain Hugh M. Brown said 200 to 400 men were "marooned on an ice floe heading out across the lake".

A sudden break in the ice isolated the fishermen 2 1-2 to three miles off shore, he said.

The fishermen were strung out from Woodlawn and Sturgeon Point, south of Buffalo, to the north of Commander Marion Amos earlier reported the weather began to pick up 28 fishermen seen outside the harbor breakwall. The anglers had not signalled distress, but Amos became worried when a 10-mile sea wind began breaking up the ice.

The coast guard asked police along the American side of the lake and Ontario Provincial Police on the Canadian side to watch the shoreline closely.

Old Institution, the Paris Concierge, May be on Her Way Out in France

Paris, Feb. 15—(AP) — That centuries-old institution, the Paris concierge, may be on her way out.

She takes up too much space.

Mme. Marie Bertre has worked for 35 years in the same house, a typical seven-storey apartment building in a poor but respectable neighborhood. As concierge, her work calls for the combined talents of a janitor, rental agent, night watchman, receptionist, personal chambermaid and auxiliary policewoman.

But now for the first time in her life Mme. Bertre is worried about her job.

It's a job that has always fascinated visitors to Paris, who find the typical French flat a puzzle.

A lot of French novels treat the Concierge as a sinister hag who spies on tenants and steams open their letters. She can easily do it if she likes. Part of her job is to deliver the mail and she often does housework for tenants. Also, her tiny apartment—the "Loge" — is usually on the main entrance of the building; in oldfashioned houses anyone coming in about 11 p.m. has to wake her up.

But no one has complained of Mme. Bertre's acting too nosey. She says her trouble is just that the owners want to take over her apartment.

"You must know, M'sieu, they want to get rid of us now. These people—they're new, not the ones I know—they've been looking for trouble with me for eight or nine months."

Real estate owners explain that their control has kept Paris housing far behind costs. The Loge is a prize, but they have to economize somewhere. So they would like to

Paul Meger Will Report To Canadiens

Montreal, Feb. 15 — (CP) — Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced today the signature of forward Paul Meger from Buffalo Bisons of the American League.

Meger, who played his last amateur hockey with Barrie, Ont., hopes to make the Montreal line of tonight's game with Toronto Maple Leafs.

Meger becomes the outright property of Canadiens and in exchange Canadiens have loaned Ross Lowe and Vern Kaiser to Buffalo.

Canadiens obtained Lowe from Boston Bruins in a trade announced last night which sent defenceman Hal Laycoe to Bruins from Canadiens.

Meger, 25, is from Watrous, Sask., and currently is the A.H.L. leading scorer with 28 goals and 35 assists. He was named A.H.L. rookie of the year last season.

N.S. Legislature Fifth to Open In Dominion

(By The Canadian Press)

Nova Scotia yesterday became the fifth of Canada's legislatures to launch the 1951 session when it opened with a Throne Speech forecast of sales-tax legislation.

The Throne Speech — official view of government plans on which the legislature would be asked to "consider a measure providing for the imposition of a provincial sales tax."

The Speech gave no details on the proposed legislation but it was learned unofficially that the government plans to ask for a one-per-cent levy.

The other major promise in the Speech was one concerning withdrawal of the Nova Scotia government to pay half the cost of old age pensions as between the ages of 65 and 70. The federal government pays the pensions and it is by the other half if the necessary constitutional amendment first made.

Other legislatures in session are Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

In Quebec, Premier Duplessis told the assembly: "We will have a full, impartial and complete inquiry" into the collapse of the Duplessis Bridge at Three Rivers last Jan. 21.

The premier spoke on a government amendment to a motion presented last week by the Liberal house leader, George Marler, asking for a public inquiry into the bridge disaster.

BOARD TO BUILD ADDITION TO SCHOOL

A meeting of the ratepayers of S. S. No. 2 was held at Bayside school recently to consider action to be taken with regard to the provision of additional accommodation at Avondale school.

It was decided to adopt the plans presented and explained by Mr. Walker and the chairman of the Trustee Board for an addition to the existing schoolhouse and to rescind the motion adopted on 5th January 1951 to build a new school apart from the present schoolhouse.

The votes in both cases carried unanimously.

SOME HOSPITALIZED WITH INFLUENZA

While a large number of city residents are "down with the 'flu," the disease has not reached "epidemic" stage here, it was learned today. Staffs of banks, other businesses and industry are suffering from "absenteeism" on account of the "sneezing, coughing disease" with some people being hospitalized.

FEW ICE BOATS SEEN ON BAY

Lovers of outdoor skating are having their innings since recent thaw and subsequent "free-up". The Moira River and stretches of the bay proper provides excellent "ice surfaces" for those who enthuse in this form of sport. Time was when iceboats flashed up and down the bay when "glare" ice was available, but, this sport has died out in the district and the winter wings are rarely if ever seen.

Health Officer Says Flu Not At Epidemic Stage

Despite the prevalence of 'flu in many other centres of the province nothing like an epidemic of influenza has struck yet in Belleville.

This was indicated today through a check of local schools, at the hospital and local physicians.

In the words of Dr. G. S. Cronkite, M.O.H., "there is an increase in the number of colds as compared to other years but so far it is only a mild type of 'flu the same as we get every winter."

Public School Inspector L. A. Kells reported that no schools in the city were closed and very few teachers were off sick. He said that one school—Queen Mary public school—reported 15 per cent of the enrolment off today. No reports had been received from the other public schools. Only teachers on the public school staff were off sick.

At the collegiate four of the teachers including the principal, G. E. Currie were off sick, while the number of students out with colds amounted to about 20 per cent of the enrolment of 1,071.

No nurses at the hospital were reported down with the 'flu.

At the Trenton Air Station, however, it was reported the station hospital was crowded with patients although station officials said there was no cause for alarm. It was reported that roughly 150 men reported on sick parade Monday.

Story of Diesel Locomotive Told By I.I. Sylvester

The history of the diesel locomotive during the past 25 years was outlined to members of the Belleville branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada by Mr. I. J. Sylvester, Mr. Sylvester described the operation of diesels, and explained the difference between two-cycle and four-cycle engines.

Mr. Sylvester pointed out that an experimental diesel electric car, which was run coast to coast over C.P.R. lines in 1937, still holds the speed record for the trip, from the first static practical application of diesel power was principally made in submarine and switching engines. Further developments in power have brought the engine to the freight haulling stage, where it now occupies top slot for efficiency, power and economy.

The several advantages of the diesel unit were outlined by Mr. Sylvester as being electrical controls, which give smooth tractive power, comparative efficiency in getting the power from engine to rail, and the elimination of the human element.

With electrical controls, the diesel's smoother power makes it possible for it to haul a much heavier load than the equivalent steam locomotive, and in addition, it can operate at much higher speeds on the same rails.

Mr. Sylvester pointed out that at present diesels have not been applied extensively to passenger service because of a greater financial return on freight operation. Cost of maintaining boilers in connection with passenger applications is that of development of boilers for heating with sufficient capacity to cope with the extremely cold winter weather of the western provinces.

The speaker augmented his talk with movies. He was introduced by J. H. Legate and thanked by John Buchan.

Softball Meeting To be Held Over Weekend

The third annual meeting of the Belleville Commercial Softball League will be held in Memorial Arena on Sunday at two o'clock sharp, President Don Lee announced today.

All suites of softball will come under discussion and all interested in the game are requested to attend. Election of officers is included among other important items on the agenda.

The meeting is an open one and will start sharp on the announced time.

PREMIER PROMISES AID

Toronto, Feb. 15.—(CP)—Premier Frost Wednesday promised Ontario farmers the government will back them to the limit in finding a all-dairy product to compete with margarine.

Referring to a meeting Monday with a dairy delegation, the Premier told the Ontario Agricultural Council:

"You can count on this, that we will back you to the limit on this project. We have great research institutions in our province and can put our best minds on it."

Red Cross Campaign For Funds Opens in City on March 1st

The Red Cross "Greatest Mother of Them All" with its annual Dominion-wide campaign for funds on March 1st it was announced here today.

As in the past, the residents of Belleville and district will be asked to contribute their quota. This has been set at $13,000.

The 1951 district campaign will get under way early in March and will continue for approximately two weeks.

Chairman of the campaign is Judge J. C. Anderson. Directing campaign operations will be Joe Church, who will be assisted by Don McKinney assigned to look after out-of-city operations. Mrs. Herbert Ketcheson is chairman of the campaign and will devote her time and efforts to the women workers. Mr. Larry Buck is publicity chairman.

Arrangements are now being completed to facilitate the drive for funds which passed unanimites with others is being appointed and this group will go into action before the general campaign opens.

The work of the Red Cross and its wide ramifications are not strange to Canadians. Always the 'first on the job' when disaster strikes, when floods rage, and catastrophe descends, the Red Cross dealt and destruction in its wake. The Red Cross brings relief and help to the stricken and aid to the needy.

The city and district holds the proud reputation of never "letting down" a humanitarian cause. And as in the past officials of the campaign are fully confident that a war-burdened generous citizenry will again respond to their appeal and subscribe to a quota that represents little less than fifty cents per capita of population.

Shortly after March 1st, residents will be asked to contribute what they can. Any amount large or small will be gratefully accepted. However, the burden on the Red Cross for the year 1951 is great. Now the Red Cross is depending on Belleville to assist in the financial part of important work that lies ahead.

Report on Operations of South Hastings High School District

Young people of high school age from the rural municipalities are showing a keen interest in secondary education, it is revealed in a report of the South Hastings High School District which shows 393 students from the district are attending high schools.

These students come from the townships of Thurlow and Tyendinaga and one of Ameliasburg. None of the above are from Sidney, township or from Frankford which municipalities are not included in the high school district. Following is a report of the activities of the High School district since its inception.

The South Hastings High School District was formed and began operating Jan. 15th, 1949. The area at that time consisted of the townships of Tyendinaga and Thurlow in the County of Hastings, The township of Ameliasburg, in the County of Prince Edward, with the exception of the Consecon Continuation School section, became part of the district as of Jan. 1st, 1950, and these three townships comprise the district as at the present time.

Total assessment of property within the area is $6,050,800.00 made up as follows: Thurlow, $3,654,800; Tyendinaga, $1,646,-900 and Ameliasburg, $1,049,000. Population of the district totals 10,310, there being 5,446 in Thurlow, 2,340 in Tyendinaga and 2,524 in Ameliasburg.

There are two schools, under the jurisdiction of the District Board, attending high schools. Thurlow are sending 230 to Tyendinaga 93 and Ameliasburg 91. There are 361 attending Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School, 11 are going to Trenton High School, 16 to Bancroft High School and five to Napanee Collegiate.

Transportation Provided

Approximately 387 pupils have applied to the District Board for transportation and they are being transported to school each day. The Board has endeavored, here fatality to provide transportation service as close to the pupils' homes as possible. However, due to the fact that the buses would need to take considerably longer and also the fact that costs would be prohibitive, it was found impracticable by the Board to do so and the journey by each student's home. Instead, the board has tried to route the buses over the best roads, having in mind winter snow conditions, and, at the same time pick up the greatest number of pupils as near their homes as possible. There are ten main bus routes and two feeder routes in operation. The average cost of transporting all pupils is 44 cents per day.

During 1950 the district paid out $33,399.46 for tuition as follows: Academic, $20,895.41 and vocational, $12,504.05. This was for the tuition of pupils from the townships of Tyendinaga and Thurlow only for the year 1949, as Ameliasburg was not part of the district at that time. Transportation costs for 1950 amounted to $28,318.04. This expenditure included cost of transporting pupils from not only Thurlow, Tyendinaga but Ameliasburg as well, Administration costs, including payment to board members for meetings, sec.-treas. salaries, bank interest, advertising, postage, stationery, etc. will be restored to the Ontario Legislature, Premier Leslie Frost said yesterday.

Popular in Ottawa, paring allows will mean members to absent himself from the Legislature knowing party strength will remain balanced if a vote is called.

Former Director Of Metropolitan To Speak Here

Dr. Edward Johnson, celebrated Canadian-born tenor and former director of the Metropolitan Opera, will speak to the Women's Canadian Club of Belleville, next Tuesday night. Dr. Johnson will give his address at B.C.I.

Dr. Johnson's love for music started when he was a small boy in Guelph, Ontario, and continued until he reached the top of the operatic world. He moved from the concert stage in New York to European operatic centres, and then came back to America to become the Metropolitan's leading tenor voice.

Prior to his singing success, "Eddie" Johnson, as he was known in school days, was going to be a lawyer. But when he was 20 years old, music overcame him, and he went to New York. He went from church choirs to concert, then to musical comedy, and finally to Italy, where he studied with Caruso's great tutor, Vincenzo Lombardi.

Retired Mrs. in 1921

During his Italian visit, Johnson was one of the country's most popular tenors, singing at the Scala in Milan and at the Constanzi in Rome. He then returned to the United States to sing with the Chicago Civic Opera Association, and then joined the Metropolitan Company in 1921.

Dr. Johnson has long been interested in the youth of both Canada and the United States, and his public retirement from the field has made it his business to encourage young singers. He has often said that in every ambitious young man or woman who wishes to sing, there is hope for the maintenance of Metropolitan standards.

The former Metropolitan director has now retired from his operatic leadership, and recently has been visiting in Canada. Although born here, Johnson is now a United States citizen, having taken out his naturalization papers there in 1931.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 15 — (CP) Golds climbed strongly as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Following several weeks of sluggish trading, they stepped into the spotlight today and advanced over a broad front. The gain was credited to revived interest in rumors of gold being sold on the free market.

McIntyre headed senior producers with a $2.50 jump to $66.50. Dome was up 1 3-8 and Giant Yellowknife, Kerr Addison, Lake Shore and Hollinger added fractions.

Junior producers posted a wide list of penny advances that ranged up to 20 cents. Among the list were Campbell, MacLeod Cockshutt, Preston, Malartic and Conswest.

In industrials steels, agriculturals, refining oils, liquors, manufacturing companies and retail stores showed a majority of gains. The rest of the board was mixed. Price changes were mostly fractional with the odd gain of over a point.

Base metals were irregular. Labrador, United Keno Hill and Sheep Rock advanced fractions. International Nickel eased the same.

Western oils were also irregular.

Worry Over Loan Seen as Motive For Wounding

Vancouver, Feb. 15 (CP) — Worry over a loan of a "few hundred dollars" was given by police as the motive for the wounding of a mother of four children.

Mrs. Tony Casano, 39, was wounded yesterday and Ramon Xandri, 76-year-old pensioner, died of self-inflicted razor wounds.

A fire call to a home in suburban North Vancouver disclosed the case, which police called attempted murder and suicide.

Investigators said the pensioner had loaned the money to Casanos.

"Apparently this investment had been troubling the old man for some time," said police. "This worry, coupled with senility, apparently was too much for him."

Mao Tse-Tung, Chinese Leader, Not Appearing

Hong Kong, Feb. 15 (AP) — Observers of the China scene began to express curiosity today about the whereabouts of Mao Tse-Tung, communist Chinese leader.

They noted he had failed to appear at three important functions in the last few days.

Reports in this strategic vantage point said last month that Mao had gone or was going to Moscow to confer with Stalin on the Korean war and other Asiatic developments.

The report appeared to have been the result of speculation at the Chinese Nationalist capital, Taipei, and were not regarded seriously here at that time.

Mao's last known public appearance in Peiping was Jan. 26, when he attended the celebration of Indian National Day.

The huge Chinese-sponsored celebration of the first anniversary of the Chinese-Soviet treaty signing was held last night in Peiping. Nearly all the Chinese communist government and party leaders were reported there, along with all foreign diplomats. But not Mao.

Tuesday Hugo Valvanne, Finland's envoy to red China, was received officially in Peiping but not by Mao. The honors were done by Li Chi Shen one of the four communist members of the red government.

Communist propaganda describing these events did not mention the absence of the red No. 1, but his name was glaringly missing from the lists.

Mao does not always attend such functions. But it was intriguing that he did not appear at any of the Chinese-Soviet treaty celebrations, which received top billing on the communists' political-social schedule for the week.

OPERATE ON DEMPSEY

Baltimore, Feb. 15 — (AP) — Jack Dempsey was operated on at Johns Hopkins Hospital Wednesday for an infection. He was reported "doing well." A hospital spokesman said the operation was a relatively minor one, and the former heavyweight boxing champion should be around in a few days.

Peterborough Y's Men's Club Enjoys Visit

Peterborough Y's Men's Club night was celebrated [illegible] Club meeting in the [illegible] C.A. when members of the [illegible] club from the Lindsay-Ops were the guests of the local club. The visitors kept the locals on their toes in the matter of pranks, which took place, but the Belleville Y's Men were not outdone in the originality of the stunts. Scott Denton had the crowd in an uproar with his insistence on performing the egg trick. Archie Boyd performed beautifully as the contents of the box called the "Thing."

The impromptu quartet found close competition between the local four and the Peterborough club. A duo of each, however, took the prize. The meeting as usual got well out of hand due to neglect on the part of president Gerry Hyde. President Jack Richardson of the Peterborough Club did little better in his efforts.

George Wishart of the Dominion Entomology Laboratory received as a fine illustrated lecture events of his European trip last year. He explained that the purpose of his trip was to study the biological control of introduced insects, by which was meant the planning of an understanding of the places of origin of insects which had been introduced to Canada, thereby applying technical knowledge to their control.

Visited Many Places

Mr. Wishart explained further that in the course of his travel he found himself in many of the popular tourist places. In brief sentences he gave impressions of the various countries he visited without finding time to elaborate. France, he felt, was a country which had lost its soul. Belgium was progressive but had been torn with internal strife which had greater implications than the monarchial controversy. Holland was a united nation of industrious people. Unemployment had increased due to the Indonesian problems which had forced many of the Dutch to return home. If anything, the speaker felt Holland was over-developed. The Scandinavian countries were beautiful and prosperous and Germany lacked much in resources. "Switzerland", he said, "was a neat country whose people had great stability."

Turning to England, the speaker emphasized that the country was not all but finished as some would be led to believe. They were a cheerful people who understood hardship and had the fortitude to withstand it.

These impressions led Mr. Wishart to say that when Americans finally compete with Europe things will be more difficult than they are now.

Leslie Reid introduced the speaker and Tom Hutchinson extended the thanks of the club. The balance of the evening was spent in games.

Second Mattawa School Closed Because of Flu

Mattawa, Feb. 15 — (CP) — A second school was closed today in this town 35 miles east of North Bay as illness diagnosed as influenza got spread.

At La Cave, in this same part of Northern Ontario, the dance hall at the Ontario Hydro development was taken over as an isolation hospital for flu-stricken workers and their dependents.

Mattawa's three doctors are working round the clock in an effort to curb the outbreak. The Bell Telephone Company brought operators in from North Bay to replace them down with the flu.

With one teacher ill, Mattawa public school was closed and the children sent home. The separate school was closed Tuesday. Although the high school remains open, some 30 of its 125 pupils are home ill.

Twelve cases of flu and mumps have been diagnosed at La Cave. George Martin, a doctor, said some of his patients are "very ill." The La Cave school for hydro workers' children was closed Tuesday.

Navy Veteran On Top of World But Falls Off

Hayward, Calif., Feb. 15—(AP) H. D. Rife, navy veteran of the Second World War, was on top of the world yesterday — for a few hours. He was notified a woman he had befriended 11 years ago had willed him $437,500.

But the bubble burst quickly. No one could locate the lawyers who notified him . . . or the woman, or her will.

Rife, 29, and a paint sprayer in a Dodge automobile plant, related:

A New York law firm wrote him that Mrs. Emma Rivers died last July at Ogdensburg, N.Y., and left him 4 fourth of her estate.

He didn't recognize the name. But he remembered a "little old lady" he met in Long Beach, Calif., while on liberty from the U.S.S. Lexington in 1940. Sitting on benches overlooking the sea, he often talked with her of ships and adventure.

The law firm said Mrs. Rivers never forgot those talks and had traced him through his service serial number.

So the world seemed bright to Rife. He planned to buy a home, clothes for his wife, Marvel Jean, and a $50,000 trust fund for his four-year-old son, Carey.

But . . .

A New York, the law firm couldn't be located. The Bar Association did not list it. At Ogdensburg, records did not list Mrs. Rivers, or her death, or her will, or the probate judge named in the letter to Rife.

New F-84F Jet Bomber Tested, Outclasses F-84E

New York, Feb. 15 —(AP) — The new F-84F Thunderjet fighter-bomber made its first flight yesterday powered with the new British Sapphire engine, the Republican Aviation Corporation announced.

The announcement said the flight occurred at the Muroc Air Force base in California and the F-84F out-performed its predecessor, the F-84E "in every category."

The F-84F, the United States Air Force's newest swept-wing fighter bomber, was powered with the new Wright Sapphire 7,200 pounds of thrust, more than 1,000 pounds over that of engines previously used in Thunderjets.

The announcement said the engine permits a more rapid take-off, faster rate of climb and higher speeds," but no figures were given.

Curtiss-Wright said however, that its predecessor has a top speed of more than 600 miles an hour, a combat radius of 1,000 miles with external wing tanks, and a service ceiling of more than 45,000 feet.

Amateur Radio Operators To Hold Weekend Contest

Amateur radio operators in Belleville and in the Bay of Quinte district will be on the air in full force this weekend, it being the 17th International DX competition of the American Radio Relay League.

The idea of the competition is for amateurs in each district to try to contact as many foreign stations as possible during the period of the competition. Locally, and in this particular district the competition will run from Friday at 7 p.m. to the same time on Sunday.

During that period it is expected that the 20 or so "hams" operators in Belleville will be on the air almost continually. It is expected that contacts will be made in practically every country in which "Hams" operate.

It is pointed out by amateur radio operators in the city that local "hams" have tried to show their appreciation with the use of television sets in that they have remained off the air as much as possible and thus have reduced interference. Also special shields have been developed to eliminate interference wherever possible.

May be Interference

But with so many amateurs operating this weekend it is expected there will be interference on locally owned TV sets. But they ask the amateur's annual DX competition and as such they figure so to speak that it is "their day to howl."

The value of amateur radio operators as a means of communication in times of emergency has been recognized by governments and if another war should arise they will not be banned from the air as in the last war. Amateurs have been allotted specific bands to operate on during emergency.

Toward this end plans are now being made locally for the nucleus of an emergency co-ordinator. Portable radio equipment capable of operation without hydro power is being prepared which could be set up for use in emergency. Already the system is developed among operators to such an extent that messages can be relayed to almost any part of Canada.

U.S. Postpones Executions of 7 War Criminals

Bonn, Germany, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—The west German justice ministry today said it had been told by American authorities that the executions of seven German war criminals in Landsberg prison have been postponed.

A spokesman said he did not know why or for how long the stay of silence had been granted.

Early today about 100 American soldiers with fixed bayonets ringed the grim Bavarian prison. Black-uniformed Polish civilian labor service guards surrounded the prison cemetery.

Eye-witnesses said they saw other German war prisoners digging graves.

The justice ministry spokesman here said the executions were to have taken place early tomorrow. There has been no American statement of the time of execution.

Last night U.S. high commissioner John J. McCloy rejected an appeal by Chancellor Konrad Adenauer to halt the executions

ONTARIO'S WAR ON CANCER

Announcement of the greatest importance to the people of Ontario was made in the Legislature by Premier Frost on Tuesday when he told the members of the Provincial Assembly of the decision of the Government to set up two treatment centres in the province, one in London, Hamilton, Kingston, Ottawa, the Lakehead and other Northern Ontario points.

The Premier expanded on the extent of the plan. This centre will enroll the efforts and skills of several provincial bodies, our Ontario universities, our major hospitals, the Cancer Society and the Cancer Treatment and Research Association." It will be the centre of knowledge and research from the Provincial Institute will flow that knowledge for use in various parts of the Province.

The clinical centre will be the first work to be undertaken in the program. It will accommodate the most modern of equipment in which medical science and investigation will have possible research.

People of this age have through the great light of publicity which has been thrown on the subject of cancer by the various health agencies, a medical profession and by them is well informed as to this disease and the steps to take in the way of treatment.

The early treatment of cancer has been stressed in all the efforts of the cancer associations and there have been most encouraging results as a consequence of informing the public on the nature of the disease. The public more and more is coming to appreciate the potentiality for cure in the earliest possible treatment, thus saving lives from the ravage of this disease.

Establishment of treatment centres in various parts of the Province will be of the greatest aid to those requiring this service and will help to familiarize all with the advantage of early diagnosis and treatment.

WOMEN PILOTS IN R.A.F.

Young women in Great Britain are now to be admitted for training in the Royal Air Force reserve on exactly the same basis as men. The main qualifications are a private pilot's licence and "an interest in flying." Other considerations are age and fitness, from 17 to 30 hours of flying experience required. Certain pilots is now waived. Experience in flying can be gained in the spare time and at a fortnight's course of continuous flying training.

The pilot section of the Women's Royal Air Force Volunteer Reserve was established in 1947 in order to provide the R.A.F. with a reserve of women pilots who can be called upon, in the event of emergency, for non-combat flying duties, such as ferrying and communications flying.

GOOSE GREASE

As one grows older, there is a tendency to look back on the days of youth with nostalgia; to recall the pleasant memories, and to laugh over those with themselves, they who will remember some unpleasant aspects of earlier life, remarks Windsor Star.

One of these comes to mind with the current spate of colds and of flu. Especially when one compares the modern remedies, such as penicillin and other drugs, with some of the more primitive curatives — if they were curatives.

We think of goose grease, carefully saved from the Thanksgiving or Christmas fowl, and put away against a winter emergency. With the onset of a sore throat, a lad would bathe his feet in hot water — often with mustard in it. Then he went to bed, with a rag wrung out in goose grease around his throat — liberally smeared with smelly goose grease. Some mothers insisted a sock was best for the purpose.

Home remedies differed and sometimes the goose grease, rubbed on the chest, included ingredients, most of which seemed to make the treatment any less nauseating.

We aren't willing to vouch for the effectiveness of goose grease. But some mothers swore by it, and if it didn't cure at least it didn't kill. Most patients survived it.

Ever since we were a lad, we haven't been able to look a goose in the face without the unexpressed hope we wouldn't get a cold.

Albert Steinberg has a cure for juvenile delinquency — music. Mr. Steinberg, 40-year-old concert master and assistant conductor of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, pays music lessons for his pupils. "Give me one hour of each day in the classroom with every child from six years and up and I can cut down juvenile delinquency by 50 per cent," says the St. Catharines Standard.

His plan, as outlined in a recent magazine article published by The Vancouver Sun, is simple. "Simply by helping each child to take an active interest in good music you stimulate his imagination," he said. By an "active interest" he means that the child should either learn to play some instrument, or absorb through listening enough of an understanding of good music to develop a discriminating ear. "Music becomes an enriching and broadening thing which, by the very soundness of its background, assists the young person towards good citizenship and responsibility."

JUST FOLKS

WOMAN AND MAN

I don't know women very well,
Nor what they think and plan for.
But knowing men, I cannot tell
Just what they want a man for.

He aids to have a man opposed
To help at times, in small ways.
But, when in man his woman found
To want to have him always?

At best he's slave to mood and whim,
Own twinge of pain — he's dying!
The constant need to pamper him
Must certainly be trying.

Yet, glad am I that love is blind;
So blind, that when we woo them
The women wait too late to find
The bother we'll be to them.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Most of the eccentricities and oddities in people's characters are deliberately assumed in order to attract attention.

Nobody will be more outraged at this statement than the eccentrics and the odd people. They like to feel they were born different.

In most human beings there is a gnawing hunger for individuality. But as the crowded a world, it is often difficult to attract notice.

A girl, for example, changes her early twenties to discover that she is not particularly pretty, lacks charm, her conversation appears to be limited. Her friends say that she is unfeminine, and her family is not much interested in her. One day, quite accidentally, she happens to say she hates cats; and, equally fortuitously, she has a cat the party loves cats. All of a sudden, our unhappy girl discovers she is the centre of interest, for she gets herself all excited over her detestation of cats. The next chance she gets, she tries it again. Maybe she screams and jumps on a chair when she sees a cat. And right away, she is the object of lively interest among her companions.

In time at all, after a little practise, she can turn pallid at the sight of a cat. Her friends start to protect her from cats. Cats have to be evicted from the homes of her friends before she is there. Nobody can wear a cat charm except her. She won't go to movies that have cats in them. In about a year's time, she has developed a magnificent neurosis, which is the more exciting name for an eccentricity; and she is altogether a happy girl, with friends noticing her at last. A sneaky psychiatrist could deprive her of her cat complex if he wanted to. But there she would be, just a dull normal again, with nobody noticing her. And the whole science of psychiatrists should be to provide dull normals with exciting eccentricities that would help them to make friends and influence people.

Govt. Wants To Send Brigade To West Europe

Ottawa, Feb. 15—(CP)—Canada's 10,000-man special force will soon be ready for commitment overseas and Korea's uncertainties are likely the principal factor in deciding what to do with it.

The government now has to take out of it a brigade group—infantry and supporting arms—of 5,000 to 6,000 men for service in West Europe within a couple of months or so.

It seems quite likely that this will be done with the remainder staying in Canada and more being formed into a second brigade.

But the offer of the force to the United Nations for service in Korea, made in August still stands and Korea's uncertainties have never been more pronounced. It is anticipated that talks will be held in the United States in attempt to clarify the picture since Washington is the key capital both for Korea and for building up the defences of Europe.

The plan has been—and probably still is—that it would in time be split into two segments for Europe, one to train in Canada to rotate with the force in Europe. This would mean the establishment of a second brigade by keeping training battalions over at Fort Lewis in existence as regular battalions.

To these two brigades would be added reinforcements from the regular influx of army recruits so that in time Canada would have two brigades for overseas service with reinforcements to keep them up. At present, there is one brigade with reinforcements.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

MURDER IS EASY

At lunch yesterday some of my grisly pals got to speculating about that veiled double slaying—Mrs. Millie Trudell and her lover papers put it—over in Victoria a few weeks ago.

You'll remember the case. Two young men, subsequently described as "drifters," were found in a room in a hotel. Ten minutes after registering there was a wild outburst of shooting and both men were dead.

The case is still pretty much of a mystery and probably will remain that way forever. Letters found on the lovers have been impressed by the police. A coroner's jury turned a verdict of murder "by persons unknown".

Such mysteries are "intriguing and probably account for the staggering sale of detective story magazines, but I am obsessed by a more macabre aspect of the thing—the mystery of the fishermen who hoods over the big one that got away. I am more interested in the killers still at large.

The sobering fact is that we have no way of knowing from statistics on homicide, no way of knowing how many murderers are walking the streets of this city, no way of knowing what they did with the bodies.

The crime of passion, the spur-of-the-moment killings induced largely by alcohol or jealousy are the only ones detected, but there is no way of knowing how many murders have been committed stealthily and successfully.

We cannot know of the perfect crimes.

The Unknown

You might suppose that murder is the most difficult of all crimes to get away with. It isn't.

A certain detective friend of mine whose whole adult life has been spent delving into the gory details of violent deaths, once claimed that he could assemble and handle a round dozen murders himself, murders without a trace, a neat dismembering of the grisly technique in the act and the disposing of a cadaver.

You've heard of Missing Persons Bureau? Each major city has lists as long as your arm. Where are they all? Well, most of them have strayed and become lost in the crowd of the world. But how many lie bludgeoned in some lonely woods? Or weighted at the bottom of the river? Or grey ashes in a furnace grate?

Most good detectives think along such lines, mainly because they're all seen so many "natural" deaths the law itself is, in a sense, on the side of the murderer. The injunction that "the amount of evidence it takes to convict a man of murder."

Time after time the authorities will survey the evidence, often lying in the summer, and let their best pair of trousers that if Dr. Brady slept in the park in mid-winter his night shirt he would end up with pneumonia come morning."

Well, Cuzzin, and anyone else who may be interested, respiratory infections are more prevalent in winter than in summer. But do you know why, Cuzzin? Not because it is winter but because cold weather results in closer contacts of persons with respiratory infections with those who are susceptible.

The almost universal custom, when the weather becomes crisp in fall, is to shut doors and windows and in every other conceivable way to reduce ventilation. Without a continuous, moving volume of air the virulent germs of the secretions of the nose and throat of persons who are infected, or in incubation, person has a much reduced chance of avoiding infection.

Even Cuzzin George, who learned about the facts of life in the days when he was "mixing" his own personal I. Q. to the consistency notwithstanding—the respiratory infections are rare among men who endure real winter-time cold for five or six months on end. Maybe Cuzzin George knows that the respiratory infections among these persons greatly increase—often in epidemic form—when they come into contact with strangers re-cently arrived in the country as mates. Or, didn't Cuzzin George ever read about the experiences of Arctic explorers like Stefansson's "The Friendly Arctic," for instance.

Cuzzin George probably feels very secure from "colds" when he sits indoors in the office, the street car or railway car where the passengers are pumping their mucous secretions from their noses and throats into the surrounding atmosphere. Maybe outside the temperature is zero and the gales are writing about in the fresh air. Maybe, in "science class" somebody told him that a person who has a good healthy incloisure is a much healthier environment than the great outdoors.

Lots of people, who cogitate like Cuzzin George, recall when they develop a respiratory infection, that it was after they were "chilled" or had wet feet. If the human family went as a group on a picnic and as a result of an occasional cooling, as Cuzzin George implies, man would not survive very long. Pneumonia would carry us all off in jig time. Even those who in the summertime erect elaborate would succumb to the baleful effects of the "chilling". Maybe in George's "science class" teacher didn't explain why chilling was all right in July but not good in January.

I never have advocated sleeping overnight in the park for the main reason that it would be unhygienic. Dirt is the main police would probably demand a permit. I never have advocated uncomfortable exposure to cold as a health measure. But when exposure is unavoidable, the only thing to fear is the personal discomfort and the possibility of frost-bite.

The superficial conclusions of the man on medical subjects are the very things that lead to the demand for more doctors and weight-fitting courses. As far as I am concerned, Cuzzin George, you will never have a choice. I am not in competition.

Personal Health Talks

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Signed Letters, Not More Than One Page or 100 Words Long, Regarding Health Problems Will Be Considered, But No Diagnosis or Treatment Will be Answered by Dr. Brady if a Stamped Self Addressed Envelope is Enclosed, Etc.

WELL, HERE WE GO AGAIN

Cuzzin George writes a curious letter to Dr. Brady, indicating his preference for a health doctor instead of Brady and states that "any person with the intelligence of a three year old knows that colds are much more prevalent in the winter than in the summer. Let me get best pair of trousers that if Dr. Brady slept in the park in mid-winter his night shirt he would end up with pneumonia come morning."

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Old Home Bunkem Revived

I inclose another booklet telling about the harm done by bunkem claimed made of aluminum. Your answer did not give any authority. (D. D.)

Answer: The booklet you inclose gives no authority. Instead it is a reprint, without the furtive statement of some unidentified charlatan that foods cooked in aluminum utensils "may cause stomach trouble and even cancer."

We have been using foods cooked in aluminum utensils since Tippy was a colt and none of us developed stomach trouble or cancer.

Calcium Deposit in Shoulder

Husband has calcium deposit in left shoulder, which is very painful. He drinks a quart of milk daily and takes six calcigesic tablets daily. Is there much calcium? Can it be relieved or cured without operation? (Mrs. C. K.)

Answer: No, it is not too much calcium. It isn't the presence of the calcium deposit that causes the shoulder painful. I had a calcium deposit in my shoulder for years after painful bursitis, but it caused no pain or other trouble and I never knew it was there until the doors.

Lots of people, who cogitate like Cuzzin George, recall when they develop a respiratory infection, that it was after they were "chilled" or had wet feet. If the human family went as a group on a picnic and as a result of an occasional cooling, as Cuzzin George implies, man would not survive very long. Pneumonia would carry us all off in jig time. Even those who in the summertime erect elaborate would succumb to the baleful effects of the "chilling". Maybe in George's "science class" teacher didn't explain why chilling was all right in July but not good in January.

I never have advocated sleeping overnight in the park for the main reason that it would be unhygienic. Dirt is the main police would probably demand a permit. I never have advocated uncomfortable exposure to cold as a health measure. But when exposure is unavoidable, the only thing to fear is the personal discomfort and the possibility of frost-bite.

The superficial conclusions of the man on medical subjects are the very things that lead to the demand for more doctors and weight-fitting courses. As far as I am concerned, Cuzzin George, you will never have a choice. I am not in competition.

Mackenzie's Column: Asiatic Theatre Grave Problem For Democracies

By DeWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press News Analyst)

The Moscow press, marking the first anniversary of the Russo-Chinese alliance, makes much of the fact that the joint actions of the two countries will have a powerful influence on the future of humanity.

Of course, this is a correct forecast depends heavily on whether Bolshevism grows in strength or—as many democrats believe—that the world-blow up because of mankind's refusal to be regimented. However, it strikes me that the Moscow edition isn't to be taken at sadde lightly without consideration.

Certainly, as things now stand, the vast Asiatic theatre, which contains more than half the world population, presents a grave problem for the democracies. It could be the decisive battlefield of the ideological struggle.

Generations Behind

Many of these peoples still are living in primitive conditions, literally generations behind the western world. Poverty and hunger are the general rule.

Such conditions provide a fertile field for any sort of ideology which holds out big promises of betterment.

Then, combination of the Soviet Union and huge red China combines, in Asiatic eyes, as perhaps especially since much of their territories actually lie within easter Europe, they are suffering from the common ailment of poverty and hunger. Hence, they look to Russia for assistance.

This enables the Russo-Chinese combination to use force (as in Korea and French Indo-China) or threats of force, with which to drive home the ideological spike. Revolutionary activities are being fostered and aided by the Russo-Chinese alliance.

It is, of course, too early to arrive at any final conclusion regarding the Asiatic situation. A long, hard conflict may lie ahead.

Greatly Altered

Much will depend on the trend of the struggle in Western Europe. Should war develop there, and should Russia overrun the continent, the picture in Asia would be greatly altered.

Such a Russian victory outcome would provide Moscow additional resources with which to carry on the Asiatic conflict. And the democracies naturally would be correspondingly weakened.

In short, Russia would be pretty well queen of the world. But even on a different complexion as communism increasingly comes up against Western freedom countries.

We may expect sturdy religious resistance on the part of the Moslem peoples against atheistic communism. The Moslem takes his religion very seriously, and will fight for it.

We get back to the premise that the outcome of the Russo-Chinese operations in Asia will have a powerful influence on the future of humanity. And there is, as far as present day democracies shouldn't look forward confidently to the outcome.

SEARCH NARROWS

London, Ont., Feb. 15, (CP)—Search for the attacker of a seven-year-old North London girl has narrowed to one man.

Police said Wednesday they are searching for a man whose identity is known to them.

They said the descriptions given them by the assaulted girl and by a man who noticed a stranger in the neighborhood shortly before the Monday afternoon attack tally.

They declined to release his name.

The child was reported criminally assaulted by a man in Woolbridge Barracks at five p.m. Monday.

FOREMAN DIES

London, Ont., Feb. 15 — (CP)—Frederick C. Brown, 57, who formerly had charge of a fish-and-chip combination with more than a century of service to the London Free Press, died here Wednesday. He had been foreman of the pressroom at the Free Press for 35 years.

Govt. Wants To Send Brigade To West Europe

Ottawa, Feb. 15—(CP)—Canada's 10,000-man special force will soon be ready for commitment overseas and Korea's uncertainties are likely the principal factor in deciding what to do with it.

The government now has to take out of it a brigade group—infantry and supporting arms—of 5,000 to 6,000 men for service in West Europe within a couple of months or so.

It seems quite likely that this will be done with the remainder staying in Canada and more being formed into a second brigade.

But the offer of the force to the United Nations for service in Korea, made in August still stands and Korea's uncertainties have never been more pronounced. It is anticipated that talks will be held in the United States in attempt to clarify the picture since Washington is the key capital both for Korea and for building up the defences of Europe.

The plan has been—and probably still is—that it would in time be split into two segments for Europe, one to train in Canada to rotate with the force in Europe. This would mean the establishment of a second brigade by keeping training battalions over at Fort Lewis in existence as regular battalions.

To these two brigades would be added reinforcements from the regular influx of army recruits so that in time Canada would have two brigades for overseas service with reinforcements to keep them up. At present, there is one brigade with reinforcements.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

WHICH WAY?

Man is the most unique and baffling of all creatures. He is created more than an animal, yet when he does not live up to his nature he is worse than a beast or an animal; but when he tries to live up to his dignity he proves to be a man that is very close to the life and nature of God Himself.

We have all seen people who have sunk lower than the animals. The sprawling drunkard, the betrayer who has played fast and loose with the whole of his life, the cruel persecutor who delights in the suffering of others, the person of unbridled passion who commits a crime worse than murder by destroying the reputation and happiness of his fellowmen, these are the examples of the creature, man, sunk lower than the animal.

Socrates in antiquity and Gandhi in modern times were men who lived up to the full stature of their created beings. Moses, the prophet-statesman, and Jesus, leader of them all, Jesus Christ—here are men in whose lives one sees something approaching the full Biblical declaration that man is made in God's image and after the likeness of God.

Our brief sojourn on earth appears to be an opportunity for us to decide which way we will travel, to choose which we will definitely believe anything we were intended to have, or up to a heavenward journey to which we were appointed in our original creation.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR BEST FRIEND

You are your own best friend. You love yourself better than anyone else in the world. When everything goes fine and you have no trouble you are your own best consultant. I would go even farther—you are your best friend, your counsellor, your guide.

Some thirty years ago I started writing down the things I recommended myself. Then I decided to let others in on my thoughts. Several hundred years ago it was the "good Emperor," Marcus Aurelius who wrote down the things that came to him each day to day, over a long term of years. They were written, as he noted—"To Myself." He had no thought of them ever reaching the eyes of others, and it was not until a long time after his death that they were discovered and published. How fortunate, for his little book has inspired millions.

You see, every person has unconscious hours we are with ourselves. Some part of thinking is forever alive in our mind. We cannot afford not to be friends with ourselves if we would be hopeful, reasonably content and happy. No one can analyze us as accurately as we can ourselves. We know our faults as well as our virtues. We do not need to be on our own friend or his worst enemy.

The person who talks to himself can safely find fault, or constructively criticize, in our own affairs. We can be the judge of it, for the gain is all on our side. Only a fool can be resentful when we are the only one concerned. In a larger sense, however, we are serving others. We will do to better our friendly relationship with them.

We are all familiar with the famous saying of Shakespeare: "This above all: to thine own self be true, and it must follow, as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man." And there is a line in Burton's great poem the Anatomy, which says: "From none but self expect applause." Ship with Emerson, we will find the statement that" the strongest man in the world is the man who stands most alone." Trust in yourself. Be sure you are your best friend.

'Harvey' Gets Fine Treatment From Queen's Guild Players

The Queen's Drama Guild brought "Harvey" to Belleville last night, prior to presenting the famed farce later this week at Kingston, and by the time the curtain descended, they romped through the dizzy comedy like veterans. Out-of-this and they managed to create a big white rabbit like magic, and by the end of the first scene, Elwood P. Dowd's boon companion was a firmly established factor.

Dowd, of course, was the central figure, and Peter Macklem used every word and every line to best advantage in his portrayal. He was ably supported by Lorna Beggs as his sister Veta, and got good backing from the rest of the cast.

Miss Beggs lifted the play from her first entrance, and helped to steady a less polished performance by Betty Barton, who played Veta's daughter, Myrtle May. Miss Barton's voice was not altogether suited to the part, and failed her on one or two occasions when high emotion crept into her lines.

Macklem gave a performance worthy of a professional troupe. He had practised Dowd's slow, deliberate manner to perfection and was constantly getting as much kick out of the part as were his audiences. He played the invisible rabbit to a fine point, and did it so well that at the end of the first scene, in the third act, when Harvey is supposed to open the door in Chumley's Rest Sanitarium, he had the audience actually straining their necks for the animal.

Miss Beggs, obviously also well skilled, had the difficult task of overcoming Dowd's audience appeal by emphasizing that of Veta's qualities. She was superb as a sister who believed that Elwood drank too much, carroused too much, and had lost his mind because of Harvey.

Then, when the occasion called for her to switch her attitude back to her brother with the last scene, she did it with ease and carried the play to a finish.

Mary White, as the nurse at the sanitarium, had all that was needed in her part. She had several sparkling scenes with Henry Graham, who played Dr. Lyman Sanderson, a junior psychiatrist at Chumley's Rest. Dr. Chumley himself was played by Don Keppy. Keppy had trouble settling down at first, but when he had been on the stage a few minutes, he gained control and did a fine job.

Douglas MacLean, as a mobsie mad nurse who manhandled his patients, notably Veta, had a wonderful time. He employed every piece of nonsense in his part, and threw the audience into fits of laughter every time he came upstage. Nancy Stewart did a masterful job as the role of Mrs. Ethel Chauvenet, an old family friend who was shocked badly by Elwood's Harvey.

Also competent were Lenore Hanlon as Dr. Chumley's wife, Peter Lavrench as Judge Omar Gaffney, legal adviser to Elwood's family, and Donn Lentz, the erratic taxi driver who unwittingly provided an insight into the workings and effects of Chumley's establishment.

In all, the play was well presented, although the audience was kept hollowed by a one hour for the curtain to go up. For a first run, however, the production was amazingly impressive, and the illusion created by the players was brilliant.

The play was directed by Dr. William Angus. (J. B.)

Father Gets Crick In Back Showing Son How to Dress

Albuquerque, Feb. 14 — (AP) — Now, son, when you put on your pants, you lift your right leg like this, and then your left leg like this and ...

Sheriff John Flasks can tell it: A bit unhappy with his eight-year-old's swarming into his clothes, Flasks decided to show him the correct way to put on a pair of trousers without dirtying the legs.

He perched on one leg and lifted the other high to insert in this trousers. But when he started to lower the left leg, he got a crick in his back and a cramp in the leg.

A doctor slipped one hip joint and vertebra back into place.

Dignified British M.P.'s Don Toque Of Woman Member

London, Feb. 15 — (AP) — Conservative Robert Thurton, a middle - aged lawyer, stood up in the dignified House of Commons Tuesday night wearing a woman's blue velvet hat.

Amid stifled snickers, he raised a point of order.

Conservative Hugh Molson, also middle-aged and also a lawyer, then donned the hat and made a few remarks on the same subject.

The toque, visibly wilting, was next raised across the aisle to the Labor side of the House. John Rankin, 61, put it on and spoke briefly.

Finally Hector McNeil, Secretary of State for Scotland, recovered the hat, strode across to the Conservative benches and restored it to its owner, Thurton Ward.

The curious by-play was caused by a House rule. A member must wear a hat when raising or discussing a point of order in the middle of a vote. Miss Ward's was the only hat handy.

Boiled Dinners

It is not known what chef first hit on the plan of cooking meat with vegetables, but whoever it was, he or she is one of the unsung heroes or heroines of Canadian cookery. During the cold and blustery days of winter, many housekeepers are trying to tempt jaded winter appetites with flavorful, nutritious food.

What could have more appetite appeal to any family than the old-fashioned boiled dinner? Potatoes, turnips, cabbage, onions in fact almost any vegetables can be same, combine well with a variety of meats for this favorite Canadian dish.

It's the cut that counts, whether it is in a new spring dress or in the meat chosen for a boiled dinner. The home economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture have pointed out time and time again that the less expensive, less tender cuts, often referred to as utility cuts, when properly cooked with moist heat are just as satisfying, just as nourishing as the more tender cuts cooked with dry heat.

The beef cuts which are most economical to buy for a boiled dinner are fresh or corned brisket and rump or plate pot roast. It is not necessary to buy the highest quality beef for this dish but the meat should be quite lean, with a minimum amount of gristle. Smoked shanks braised and combined with vegetables is another variation of the boiled dinner.

When buying lamb be sure that the meat is moist but firm and has a fine creamy and slightly pink in color. Pork, fresh, pickled or smoked, may be used to prepare this flavorful repast, the Canadian Home Economists point out. If the pork family specially suitable are fresh, pickled or smoked hocks briefly.

Finally Hector McNeil, Secretary of State for Scotland, recovered the hat, strode across to the Conservative benches and restored it to its owner, Thurton Ward.

The curious by-play was caused by a House rule. A member must wear a hat when raising or discussing a point of order in the middle of a vote. Miss Ward's was the only hat handy.

removed from its original wrapper. The meat should then be wiped with a damp cloth, placed on a dry plate, covered loosely and put in the refrigerator.

Home Economists of the Consumer Section, Canada Department of Agriculture have described two important pointers regarding meat, of special interest to homemakers, namely, wise buying and correct storing. Now, they discuss meat cooking. The less expensive cuts of meat are often spurned, mainly because of the lack of knowledge of how to prepare and use them. The cuts of meat which have been suggested for use in a boiled dinner should be covered with boiling water and cooked slowly at a simmering temperature until tender. For those who enjoy the "browned" flavor and appearance of boiled dinners, the meat may be browned in fat before the water is added. If corned beef is used, it should be covered first with cold water, which is drained off as soon as it comes to the boil and is replaced with boiling water. The vegetables are added before the meat is completely cooked, allowing only enough time for them to become tender. In addition to the usual salt and pepper, such seasonings as horseradish or bay leaf may be used for a change. It is most important not to overcook either the meat or the vegetables, as it is desirable to retain their color and their shape.

Pressure Cooking

The pressure saucepan, that comparatively new time-saving device, makes it possible for many home economists to put on the table, in a matter of minutes, delicious, economical cuts of meat which usually require hours of cooking. Cooking the less tender cuts of meat which usually require hours of cooking. Cooking the less tender cuts of meat in a pressure saucepan requires only a fraction of the usual time. The home economists point out that it is always wise to follow the manufacturer's recommendations for the particular type of cooker you have. Another point they stress is to check cooking time accurately, as a matter of minutes or, in some cases, even half a minute, may make the difference between a perfectly cooked meal and one that is overcooked.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She's had plenty of tragedy—goes more if it should

A letter from a mother wite is frantic over her daughter's choice of a husband tells a tale of dreadful tragedy.

In this woman's family, her own father, her oldest brother and three of her first cousins have all died of tuberculosis. Most of them died when they were quite young or at a relatively early age.

"Because I had been in contact with my father during the three years of illness before his death, and also with my brother, who died of the same disease two years after my father, I was sent to a tuberculosis sanitarium after each death, and stayed there for three months each time," the letter says.

With all this behind her, it is no wonder that this mother is beside herself over the fact that her 20-year-old daughter has become engaged to a young man who is now in a naval hospital suffering from this same condition.

The girl met this boy, who is just her own age, during one of the visits she made to the hospital as a member of a club whose program included this type of activity. The mother's story goes on:

"At this time my daughter met this young man, he had been a patient in the hospital for 14 months. This meeting occurred about five months ago, and, against my wishes, they have now become engaged. He is still a bed patient, and yet he would sometimes meet my daughter outside the hospital without permission, and sit in a movie with her for hours. Once he came to our house. That is the only time I saw him. He hopes to be out in a few months.

"Will history repeat itself and possibly wipe out my family as my aunt's family of three was wiped out. If my daughter marries this fellow? Our family doctor has warned me about this step she plans to take. She has gone to several other doctors for X-ray and tuberculin test. Nothing can change her mind."

Although the illness is naturally the main problem in this situation, the mother is also very much upset because the young man cut his education short at 16 to join the Navy, and she feels he would not be fundamentally congenial with her daughter, who graduated from high school with high honors and later studied art.

"She has always been a fine, obedient, understanding daughter," the distracted mother writes, "and I don't know what has happened to her. She has lost all her senses. I can see nothing but tragedy ahead."

Sadly enough, I doubt very much if this mother is going to be able to do much at this time to influence her determined daughter. In addition to whatever attraction the girl feels for this boy, she also, no doubt, has a strong maternal pull toward him in his sickness, which is probably heightened by a sense of drama in devoting her life to a disabled veteran. On the other hand, of course, both she and the boy may be convinced, as young people are apt to be, that he will overcome his illness and be healthy the rest of his life. All these things are probably mixed up together in the girl's mind, so that she is unable to see anything but what appears to her the rightness of her wish to marry him.

If I were this mother, and had not done so already, I think I would go to the head of the hospital where the boy is, and get him to take an interest in the matter. She might be able to get him to talk to the young people and give him a realistic picture of what they would be up against. His could also undoubtedly clear up many things in the mother's mind on which she may perhaps be placing too much emphasis, as, for instance, the family history of tuberculosis, which she feels may blight her daughter's future.

It may be that modern ways of treating this disease, and of protecting those who come in contact with it, might make the outlook less gloomy than she believes it to be. If not, however, the authority of the doctor's position may impress the girl where her mother fails.

Hat, Hairdo and Spring Affair

By FRUNELLA WOOD

THE password for getting to the head of style this spring is Chignon, meaning that bun, twist or whatnot of false hair pinned at the nape of the neck, mute apology for the frightful, barbered close-cut of last year's too fashionable girls. Even the dime stores sell them, and the wigmakers of great price are dancing in their stellers over the trend. Here is a hat typical of millinery rescue squads, hep to the chignon vogue. It is a golden-yellow straw which has the desirable forward poke of 1951, and a trimming of green lilacs and velvet ribbon to match . . . with a gentle lift at the back to allow chignon leeway. A sheer veil covers the bonnet.

about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Ceilings on food prices aren't a modern invention.

Even the Romans had their O.P.A. Prices were fixed by the Emperor Diocletian who set ceilings on meats, poultry, fish, vegetable oils and other daily commodities including wine.

Certain of the meat specialties like liver, kidneys and tongue, while looked upon as epicurean eating, are actually inexpensive main courses, and can be really helpful in trimming the family meat bill. Even when foods were rationed during World War II, these specialties were plentiful.

Not only can they be made into novel and delightful dishes, but they are also known as an abundant source of Vitamin A.

A southern vegetable combination, tomatoes and okra, is used for the creole sauce in today's recipe.

Liver Creole with Rice
4 Servings

1-2 cup celery diced
1-2 cup onions diced
Vegetable fat
1 No. 2 can tomatoes
1 No. 2 can cut okra
1—6 oz. can tomato paste
1-4 teaspoon chopped thyme
Salt—pepper
1 lb. beef liver cut into cubes about 1-2 inch
Flour
Boiled rice

Put the celery and onions in a large saucepan with 3 tablespoons vegetable fat. Saute slowly, stirring frequently, until vegetables are tender.

Chop the tomatoes fine. Add the tomatoes with their juice. Drain the okra and add to the pot. Add the tomato paste, thyme, 1 teaspoon salt and 1-4 teaspoon pepper. Simmer slowly, uncovered, until sauce is thick, about 20 to 30 minutes.

Sprinkle liver with salt and pepper. Dip in flour. Melt fat to a depth of 1-4 inch in a frying pan. Brown liver lightly on all sides.

Transfer lived to the saucepan. Simmer slowly about 15 minutes.

Wash the rice until water runs clear. Drain. Put the rice in the top part of a double boiler over simmering water. Add 1 1-2 cups boiling water and 1 teaspoon salt. Cook, covered without stirring, until rice is tender, 35 to 40 minutes.

Choosing silver for a ten-year-old girl

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper to give a ten-year-old girl a place setting of sterling silver? The mother of this young girl says that it is the right time to start her off on her silver.

Reader

I'm not sure that I would say that this is a wise thing to do. "Is said that the two things that every girl wants to choose for herself are (1) her husband, and (2) her silver! And as to this question, of choosing-her-silver, it would take a very brave, indeed psychic, person to determine whether a girl so young would prefer . . . and, most important, continue to prefer . . . a traditional pattern or a modern pattern, a simple or an elaborate design, a pattern of high formality or a pattern of perhaps extreme femininity, a rhythmic grace of flowing lines. I've known many girls to change their enthusiasms about a pattern many times during their teenage years, or even between the time of the engagement and the wedding. And many girls scorn the wonderful family silver that is handed down of some fine, noble traditional pattern, and instead choose at streamlined modern pattern of silver "to have and to hold". As to this very young lady of ten . . . how could one know?

She has bizarre idea of sending shower "announcements"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In about two months I am to be given a bridal shower by my bridesmaids. As I have many relatives and friends who live out-of-town, I would like to send some sort of card that announces my shower. My bridesmaids want to send shower-invitation cards, but I feel this would be telling these out-of-town relatives and friends of mine to send gifts even though I know they cannot be here at the shower. Can you suggest to me some way of announcing my shower without sending shower-invitation cards?

Reader

I wouldn't know how you can possibly "announce" that you are to be given a shower without inviting the ones to whom you are sending the announcements. Your bridesmaids have the right idea . . . they should either send shower-invitation cards to all who are to be considered with the news that a shower is to be given for you, or should send no cards. It's certainly true, however, that sending shower-invitations to out-of-town relatives and friends does give the unattractive impression that you have in mind to bid for as many shower gifts as possible. However, even this would not seem so "forced" as sending them some unusual and bizarre form of announcement that-a-shower-is-to-be-given. Don't you really feel "as if this is telling them to send the gifts even though you know they cannot be there at the shower?"

BEAUTY

Arms and the woman

This hand and arm treatment can be given at home.

Any woman, even though she is not a social butterfly, takes pleasure in possessing beautifully rounded, shoulders and arms of graceful proportions. These are dependent very largely upon normal musculature, which must be distinguished from fat. Muscles, of course are something to which women are never a thought, and that's too bad. Graceful movement depends upon muscle flexibility and muscles determine the lines of the silhouette.

To be attractive, the arms should not only be shapely, but they should be white—the skin smooth, of fine texture. They get no cosmetic attentions at all. It is marvelous how appearance may be improved by the free use of creams now and then. Gooseflesh can be blotted out by that means.

A hand and arms treatment that is given in beauty shops can be given at home at small expense. The first step is a warm sprinkling with soap and water and a brush of heavy bristles to bring a glow to the flesh. Then cocoabutter is applied generously.

Start at the fingertips, massaging the cuticle around the nails. Thumb the knuckles; if you are no longer a Young Thing, knuckles can look older than anything. Form a bracelet of fingers and thumb, clasp the arm and work up and down and sidewise, fore-Pull and the wringer stops—quicker than thought.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

Day of Prayer Observed at St. John's Church

White's District — World Day of Prayer was held at Bayside parsonage on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance of members and four visitors. Mrs. Clifton Rush, president of the Bayside Woman's Missionary Society, presided using the theme "Perfect Love Casteth Out Fear." A prayer for "Peace" opened the service followed by the Worship Service by the leader and members in unison under the headings "Adoration," "Confidence," "Assurance" and "Dedication of Self." Hymns suitable for each were used ending with "Just As I Am Without One Plea."

Intercessory Prayers

Prayers were offered by the Rev. A. C. McCallum for Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth, for all councillors and advisers of the Crown and for leaders of all parts of the Commonwealth. The National Anthem was sung. He also offered prayers for Canada and for its communities and citizens.

Mrs. Glen Meyers offered a prayer for the world family of nations, their leaders and representatives in the United Nations and for all refugees and displaced persons.

Mrs. Fox prayed for the strengthening of the home, for all children and young people everywhere and for those whose lives have been scarred by hunger, homelessness, falsehoods and fear.

Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson prayed for the missionaries around the world and for White's District in taking its share in the advancement of the Kingdom.

Mrs. H. Rutter offered prayers for the [illegible] the West, for the young [illegible] of the East, for the [illegible] as that are weak and [illegible].

A solo, "Garden of Prayer" was sung and enjoyed by all given my Mrs. H. C. Lord, accompanied by Mrs. Jeffery.

Guest Speaker

The guest speaker, Mrs. Wilfred May of Belleville, spoke under the heading, "Pray Without Ceasing." She emphasized that prayer must be made for missionaries, for countries, for Dominion Board Council, as they all need prayers and support. The aim is "Advance." This is possible. It depends on each one. Mrs. Frank Leach moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. May for her helpful address.

Some business was discussed. A letter was read by Mrs. Meyers asking that all help furnish a room in the new Mission Home in Toronto in memory of Mrs. Smythe. It was decided that donations be given at the March meeting.

An invitation from King Street Church W.M.S. was accepted for Tuesday, March 6th. Mrs. McLelland, president of the Belleville branch, stated, be the guest speaker. Delegates were named to attend the Belleville Presbytery which is to be held in Picton in March. It was decided that pictures of the sale at White's Church in the near future be put on by Mr. Lehman, a returned missionary. Duet was sung by Mesdames Meyers, Stickle and Nicholson.

Mrs. Leonard Young read an article, "Go Ye Care?" telling of conditions in Korea.

The hymn "The Day Thou Gavest Lord Is Ended" closed the meeting, followed by the Benediction.

White's Annual Meeting Shows Favorable Year

White's District — Sunday School and church services were held at White's Church on Sunday afternoon with Rev. A. C. McCallum in his first [illegible] age of the season, spoke on "The Power of Godliness" using as his text from Psalm 27:14, "Wait on the Lord." One of the things he said most emphatically is that it has lost the art of waiting. The "stop signs" of life seem to be ignored by many. Speed and noise seem to be characteristic of this civilization.

A well known Missionary who recently returned home on furlough after a long absence said "Western civilization seems to have lost much of its spiritual poise. There is an emptiness of soul which psychologists call frustration! The claimant need of the hour is for something to come into our lives to give mental balance, tranquility of soul and peace of mind." He can be experienced by all who follow the precept of the text."

Inward Peace

He suggested three methods, first, the Morning Watch when we begin the day with God, everything finds its proper perspective; second, "We should seek the quietness of the sanctuary third, "Some people can remain inwardly quiet even though they have to remain in the job. What is the inward quietness which religious faith brings. Peace of mind comes only to those who have found God and been found by Him."

CONSERVATIVES

Fearful Criticized

Mr. Thomas, a veteran of the Second World War, charged Gen. Pearkes with "stirring up the mangrove, last. He recalled that Defence Minister Claxton had stated that defence of Canada was to be the first consideration.

"I agree with that but for goodness sake let us go ahead and do something about it."

Jean Francois Pouliot (L—Temiscouata), recalling that he had broken with the Liberal government over the conscription issue in the Second World War, said he still is opposed to conscription.

Everyone, he said, is ready to defend Canada; everyone is ready to support the army. But this did not mean that members must listen to the Canadian Legion, which has been preaching for adoption of conscription.

Gen. Pearkes said that on the issue of conscription for active service Prime Minister St. Laurent had stated that the government limited itself to raise the forces by voluntary enlistments. If the international situation deteriorated or voluntary enlistment failed, the government would be prepared to consider other courses.

That being the case, said Gen. Pearkes, it is up to all members to try to further this country's efforts to raise men by the only means that is possible for this country at present, because of the government's decision, namely by voluntary enlistment."

He could, by going about the country making speeches, discourage young men from enlisting for active service and "do something towards sabotaging this country's efforts."

"But I have never been a saboteur or a traitor and I will do nothing of the sort."

Barring Tax Late Claim

Telling the government that it was starting "too late" to build up Canada's forces, Gen. Pearkes said:

"I believe that the situation is grave and I believe that it is imperative that at the earliest possible opportunity we have in the forces adequate men to meet within the next few months a situation that might arise."

Faced with the Social Credit sub-amendment, he said Social Credit asks himself this question:

"Will having universal compulsory military training for the reserve army, navy and air force be any hindrance to the government's program to raise 115,000 men for the forces in being?

"I cannot help but come to the conclusion that if the emphasis is to be placed on getting recruits by compulsory means into the reserve forces, then there will have to be a reduction in the effort which is being made to raise and maintain the forces in being."

Besides the question of equipment and instructors, the shortage of accommodation would make it almost impossible at present to tackle such a job. It would mean the diverting from defence projects of essential building materials.

Then, too, the money involved could perhaps be best spent on the active forces.

Lack Leadership Charge

Gen. Pearkes charged the government with a lack of leadership which would "suit up the people of Canada the gravity of the present situation." Had it done that, he said, "fairly and squarely" to young Canada, he was sure there would have been a better response to recruiting drives.

The international situation had deteriorated "rapidly", and the government, in a sort of "deathbed repentance," now was making an effort in the last hour to bring large forces into being.

Gen. Pearkes said those who now are in the reserve forces are doing voluntarily more than actually required of them. If they were forced into the reserves they would do only what was necessary.

He recalled how in the last war he had "suffered agonies" in trying to persuade men drafted for home service to volunteer for service overseas.

"I would never want to saddle anyone else with that same problem."

Gen. Pearkes said he believes that Canada may be subjected to more than just a diversionary raid in the event of another war. But he does not regard Canada as a likely main theatre of war, or as the place where the main effort could be made to prevent a third world war.

He believes the best policy still is to defend Canada as far away from this country as possible.

BEAT OPPOSITION

The bill was approved unanimously in a division requested by Progressive Conservative Leader Drew. Only one vote was recorded against it, being by opposition member [illegible] C.C.F. MP Lloyd and Labor-Progressive Fred Rose.

Mr. Scott urged that adoption of his motion to extend provincial voting rights to "municipal electors would give young people a sense of responsibility and broaden representative government. He, himself, when elected to the legislature in 1943 at the age of 21, was unable to vote in Toronto elections.

His motion also called for abolition of multiple voting in larger centres, where a resident can vote for aldermen in any ward in which he owns property.

Should be Represented

Civic franchise should no longer be restricted to those with property interests, Mr. Scott said. Local councils were taking an increasing interest in questions not involving property, such as Sunday sport piebiscites. Young people, in fact, paid civic taxes through room rents and should be represented in councils.

He was supported by a series of C.C.F. members, some of whom proposed a further reduction in voting age to 18.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar said there had been no municipal demands for franchise changes. "We don't want, without serious thought, to knock one of the foundation stones from under the municipal act," he said.

One possibility, the minister said, was that 's large transient vote could upset local affairs. Mr. Scott replied that minimum residence requirements could be established.

Mr. Thornberry's bill called for an eight-hour reduction in the maximum work week with maintained wages, limitation of overtime to eight hours a week and 100 hours a year and time-and-a half overtime pay. He would maintain existing labor contracts which give more than the terms of his bill and change those which provide less.

His bill was supported by C.C.F. members, including Eamon Park (Toronto Dovercourt, C. H. Millard (York West) and J. L. Dowling (Hamilton East). They said reduction of working hours would give workers to share in recent productivity increases, and would increase the individual worker's efficiency.

Labor Minister Daley said small employers could not carry the burden of extra costs which the bill would bring. It would also increase the cost of living and the 48-hour week would strain demands for defence production.

Government Criticized

The government was not opposed to the aims of some parts of bill's measures, he said, but felt that further working hours reductions were the responsibility of unions through collective bargaining.

Opposition of the government's workmen's compensation bill centred around the absence of provision for labor representation on accident prevention boards. The government was criticized for not including the representation, which was recommended in Mr. Justice W. D. Roach's Royal Commission report on workmen's compensation.

Campbell Calder (L—London) said the bill was "only a down payment" on the Roach report, and called for implementation of all its 16 major recommendations.

The government's bill will amend the present act by raising the waiting period for compensation from seven to five days, increasing the maximum for compensation. W. H. Temple (CCF—Toronto, High Park) charged insufficient inspection of safety devices.

Labor minister Daley said opposition demands for increased compensation to injured workmen who are being paid now at former low rates was impractical. It would involve a complete new act and the cost would be too heavy for employers who paid for compensation.

The minister said he wanted more time to study the Roach report's recommendations on accident prevention. Other recommendations of the report might also be implemented later.

"I'm not going to tell the thousands of volunteer accident prevention workers that they are not needed, until I have a formula to replace them," he said. "I must admit I have not got that formula."

Vagabond Codfish, Otherwise Ling, Being Taken From Northern Lakes

Do you know what a burbot is? If not, then perhaps you've heard of the lawyer, eelpout, eelpout, eeling or ling.

All of these odd names and many more — some of them highly unsanglimentary — have been given at one time or another to a vagabond codfish who long ago deserted his seagoing family, took a liking tofresh water and forgot to go home, much to the chagrin of present-day commercial and sport fishermen.

The burbot, ling, or whatever one chooses to call it is the only fresh water member of the cod family. Its relatives all live in the sea. Many of our larger and deeper lakes harbor this escapee from salt water.

The ling, by which name it is best known in Ontario, could be described as the "ugly duckling of the fish world" but its cause has been championed, up to a point at least, in the past, by some serious writers who have contended that beneath its ugly skin there lies a flesh fit to grace any table.

Question of Taste

That is a question of taste but the fact remains no market of any consequence has been built up in Ontario for the lowly ling despite occasional efforts made in this direction. But the fact, department of Lands and Forests biologists are agreed that the multitalented fish is a very heavy cannibal feeder which destroys untold quantities of fish such as pike, perch, herring, pickerel and others. Some fishermen have claimed that the ling follows the whitefish to their spawning ground and devours the spawn. They point out as well that the ling is responsible for a great deal of damage to their gill nets and that a lot of time is wasted removing it from the nets at a season when fishing is precarious and time most valuable.

For the past three years the Lands and Forests fisheries men have been encouraging and assisting in the removal of ling from several lakes in Leeds, Frontenac, Lanark and Renfrew Counties, where they are most prolific. Netting operations take place when the ling are running in numbers during the spawning season in January and February. Local residents anxious to get rid of these predatory fish, often operate the nets voluntarily under the supervision of conservation officers.

Over 10,000 Destroyed

During the years 1948 to 1950, inclusive, a total of over 10,500 ling have been taken from nine lakes in this manner. Final figures for this season's operations have not yet been finalized but it is expected that thousands more will have been destroyed as a conservation measure. Twenty hoop nets are at present operating in lakes of Leeds and Frontenac Counties.

When first removed from the water the fish is very beautifully marked but its color soon fades to a dirty brown or yellow," said one biologist in describing the ling. "Although it has scales they are so minute as to be almost invisible, placing it in the eyes of the public in the same category as the catfish and other coarse species of that ilk.

A recent example of the burbot's cannibalistic tendencies was illustrated by Lands and Forests Conservation Officer, G. M. Drew, of Long Lake, who is currently supervising hoop net operations for the removal of ling from seven lakes in his locality.

Swallowed Pike

"We netted one ling twenty — five inches in length at Crow Lake Dam that had swallowed a seventeen-inch pike. About five inches of the pike still stuck out of the ling's mouth. We caught another at Bob's Lake with a pickerel eleven inches long almost completely swallowed."

The officer also reported that three ling had been opened and in their stomachs had been found a total of "nine-pickerel and fifteen perch" ranging in size from two to three inches in length.

"The future for the burbot or ling looks bright," wrote one biologist years ago. But despite this scientist's optimism, prejudice against the ling has increased, not decreased, with the passing of the years. Not only has its repulsive exterior — which has startled more than one unsuspecting angler — been against it but strong evidence has been piling up to prove that its voracious appetite, which causes it to devour large numbers of more desirable fish is unforgivable.

One of the nicknames the ling has acquired is that of "lawyer". Where and how it got such a name is a topic part of the history of this forlorn fresh water cod. If it does have any debating abilities it is going to have to make good use of them to clear itself from the evidence of destruction which is piling up against it.

British Steel Industry Becomes Govt. Property

London, Feb. 15 — (AP)—The British steel industry became government property today. It was the last and most elusive piece in a pattern of socialism for the country's basic industries. A prompt boost in steel prices is in prospect.

The British steel industry, which turned out 16,323,000 ingot tons last year, is the largest in the world outside the United States and Russia. The U. S. is producing more than 100,000,000 tons annually. Russia's output is less than half that.

Private ownership of the British plants ended at midnight.

It was a triumphant moment for Prime Minister Attlee's Labor government. With the acquisition of steel, the government owns all the country's basic industrial production. Twenty per cent of the country's economic life now is socialized.

This was the primary goal Attlee and his colleagues set themselves when they swept to power in 1945.

Grahl testified his wife had forced him to sleep on the floor three nights in a row and that he was defending himself. Mrs. Grahl appeared in court with a severely blackened right eye.

Miss Ann Marie McCullough reported for the G.G.I.T., which was just organized.

Mr. Clifford Wilson as S.S. superintendent spoke of the co-operation he had received from teachers, officers and scholars, and stated that the work was progressing favorably. Total receipts $362; also M. and M. fund, $68. During the year a modern building was erected at the rear of the church, for storage of wood and other essentials at a cost of $500. The total amount from all organizations beside the sending of liberal amounts to the Manitoba Relief Fund, is $4,401.01.

Following the reports, the election of officers result is: elders for three years, C. H. Wilson and Joe Daniels; stewards for three years, Wm Cooke, George Priest, John Read; Frank Tummon; M. J. Waller. The appointment of other officers was left to the board of stewards.

A letter was received and read from Mr. S. C. Gay expressing his appreciation in every member of the congregation who had remembered him during his illness, also for kindness to Mrs. Gay while he was a patient in the hospital. The secretary was authorized to write a letter of regret to Mr. and Mrs. Gay for their inability to be present at the congregational meeting, and to wish them a speedy recovery, and that they might be soon again enjoying the fellowship.

Guided Missile Tests in Progress in S. Australia

Melbourne, Feb. 15—(Reuters) Experiments on a guided missile to destroy attacking aircraft are in progress at the rocket range at Woomera South Australia.

This was disclosed here today by Sir Henry Gepper, chief scientist of the British Ministry of Supply, and Sir Alec Coryton, chief executive of the ministry's guided weapons project, in a joint interview.

They said work also is being done on the improvement of high altitude bombing.

Progress on the range is "almost beyond belief," they said.

Coryton added: "This is a part of the British Commonwealth's defence effort which should be known. There is nothing else like it in the world."

RAWDON

P. U. Holds Crokinole Party

Rawdon—Last Friday evening about 50 people from [illegible] Mount Community gathered at the church hall for a crokinole party sponsored by the Young People's Union. The president, Miss Ruth Linn, welcomed everyone to the party as it was open all in the community. Mrs. Marguerite McMichullen led in a round of community singing with Miss Betty McConnell as pianist.

There were 11 tables of crokinole and after 90 minutes of play prizes were awarded by the president as follows: Men's high, Mr. Carlton Leslie; high, Miss Doris Linn; men's high Mrs. Milford Hall; low score, Mr. Bert Conrad; children 13 years and under, high girl, R. Scott (playing for a girl); high boy, Kenneth Conrad, and booby, Ralph Linn.

The collection was over $6, so the will be a nice amount for the treasury. Several folks are planning for the Y.P.U. to open another frolic party for the community as they had such an enjoyable evening.

Refreshments were served and the half hour enjoyed.

The next meeting will be held March 9th.

The president and her mother, Mrs. Gordon Linn, and the committee were thanked for their part in arranging the evening. Several others would have been in attendence but for the extreme temperatures and the very bad roads.

Next week the Y.P.U. members are the invitations to a couple of shower parties and a Valentine social.

The leader, Mrs. Page, opened the program with a singing contest followed by a musical parcel which was enjoyed.

MARMORA

Home, Furnishings Destroyed By Fire

Marmora.—Fire totally destroyed the home and household furniture of Mr. and Mrs. James Drummond in Marmora Township, in the early afternoon of Tuesday. The Drummonds had taken their son, William, to the hospital in Belleville, for an X-ray examination, and no one was at the home when the outbreak occurred.

The Marmora chemical engine, with Jim Walker in charge, went to the scene when the alarm was given by Mrs. Mower from neighboring Wanganui Lodge, but the fire was too far advanced to save the building. It is not known whether any insurance was carried on the house or contents.

Mountain Pony Sniffs at Beer

Merthyr Tydfil, Wales, Feb. 15 (Reuters) — The Belle Vue Hotel beer was crowded yesterday when in walked a stranger — a mountain pony.

The little nag pushed open the back door, casually sauntered over to the fire, then sniffed suggestively at a pint of beer on the table.

A man caught the hint and offered the pony a few sips from his glass.

Then he led the four-foot "barfly" outside.

CHURCHILL

insisted. "Does anybody challenge that?"

"Are you conveying that information to Soviet Russia?" asked Defence Minister Shinwell. They glared at each other and Shinwell went on:

"When Mr. Churchill makes a statement that we have done nothing in the production of the atomic bomb in the last 5½ years —that is what he did imply — is he not giving satisfaction to the enemy?"

"If I were wrong, the government would rapidly correct me," Churchill retorted. "If I am right it is all the more important for our people to know the facts than it is for the Russians, who are constantly doing their utmost."

Churchill taunted the government for making a gingerly approach to the problem of rearming western Germany.

"Safety," he said, "is not to be found in searching along the line of least resistance."

If Russia attacks in Europe, the British isles will be in the gravest danger, Churchill said. He added:

"It may not be possible for the Russian armies to cross the channel, but their air power may allow thousands of parratroopers to be used, in number hitherto unprecedented."

"We should be under constant bombardment from rockets and other pilotless missiles."

He estimated the danger to shipping from Russian submarines as "anything from five to 10 times as great as when we started in the German war." He said this menace has been heightened by the scrapping or sale, since Attlee came to power, of "four aircraft carriers, 146 destroyers, 90 frigates and 214 motor torpedo boats."

HARD-HIT

Hundreds more Chinese and North Korean reds met a violent end in today's fighting on the central front. The breakdown on red casualties on that front alone Wednesday was 3,075 killed, 2,[illegible] wounded by ground action alone.

Allied planes took an uncounted toll in supporting ground units rolling with the red punch.

Landings Secondary

The east coast landings were made Wednesday on Cho Rei Islands, some 90 air miles north of parallel 38 and about 130 miles north on the mainland, but U.S. naval officials said Thursday the operation was confined to the two islands. The navy said the landings were of secondary importance.

But seizure of the islands, both close inshore, gives the allies control of Wonsan's harbor. Red supplies and reinforcements funnel through the coastal city to the central front from staging areas in the northeast of Korea.

Clearing skies Thursday gave Far East air force bombers and fighters a better shot at red troops and supply lines on the battle front and northward.

On the western front, AP correspondent Stan Swinton reported 1,153 reds killed in an abortive attempt Wednesday to gain a football on the south side of the Han River near red-held Seoul.

But the biggest blow to the reds was dealt on the central front. The snow-covered hills and the valley around and between Chipyong and Wonju are littered with dead communists.

AP correspondent John Randolph reported that allied artillery and infantry continued to pour heavy fire into the area Thursday and prevented the reds from making any headway whatever.

Randolph quoted an American high staff officer as saying the U.N. forces had won a victory "at the moment," and added:

"It remains now to consolidate it and we hope to do it today."

The allied troops were sticking to their major positions and retaining freedom of movement in some of the heaviest fighting of the Korean war, Randolph said.

forces which the United States has planned to maintain in Europe in the present emergency.

"I take this step reluctantly because of the security considerations involved—but I have reached the conclusion that there is a greater peril to our security through weakening the morale of our allies by a debate based upon uncertainties, than there can possibly be through the public disclosure of our planned strength figures. . .

"We already have there (Europe), on occupation duty, about 140 divisions or ground forces. Our plans, based on the recommendation of the joint chiefs of staff, therefore contemplate sending four additional divisions to Europe."

Marshall was the first administration witness in the hearings phase of "the great debate" on how the United States should build up Western Europe's defence against the threat of communist aggression.

CP in Accord With Salary Hike Recommendations Embodied In Chairman's Report on Guild

Toronto, Feb. 15 — (CP)—The Canadian Press today issued the following statement in connection with the Conciliation Board report on its dispute with the American Newspaper Guild:

The Canadian Press is in accord with the salary - increase recommendations embodied in the chairman's report: $3 weekly to members of the editorial staff receiving less than $40, and five per cent, with a $3 minimum, to those receiving $40 or more.

It accepts also the minority recommendation that a minimum starting rate of $30 be established in the editorial classification, with a minimum increase of $5 after one year; increases thereafter to depend entirely on individual merit.

In connection with salaries, it notes that the majority recommendation provides for somewhat less than the normal increases CP has customarily granted periodically on any individual basis in recognition of developing merit. The salary schedule submitted to the conciliation board was that in effect at Oct. 1, 1950. Since that date some increases have been granted.

Fairly general adjustments are normally made effective early each year. In making current adjustments, the increases recommended in the majority report will be regarded as minima.

It is regretful that several instances what the board states in the form of a recommendation is actually present CP practice. Extra payment for holiday work, three weeks' vacation for 15-year men and night differential have been in effect for years. Compensation for extra time worked is also present practice. The company's pension plan has been in effect since 1944.

Staff Must be Free

The board's unanimous rejection of the guild shop seems to recognize in some measure the insistence of The Canadian Press that the staff producing its news report be free of outside influence.

The Canadian Press must reject any recommendation as to procedure which would in any way modify its authority in transfer, promotion, demotion and dismissal of employees as regard in the handling of news.

It most emphatically denies that the maintenance of this position as regards the news report is evidence of anything other than good faith. The Canadian Press sought common ground on salaries and working conditions. But it can take no "middle ground" on essential principles when that middle ground implies a position other than one of demonstrable integrity.

Best evidence of good faith — all concerned, including the news reading public — is the fact that from first to last The Canadian Press has declined to compromise on the principle; or to conceal the fact that it regarded this as fundamental on which it could not compromise with the American Newspaper Guild or anyone else.

This was stated in the submission to the board Dec. 7: "CP is responsible for the integrity of its news report and does not propose to share or otherwise jeopardize that integrity."

TIME OUT FOR NEWS

Radios are scarce in Korea and this group of Canadian soldiers share one set of headphones to hear news from home on Radio Tokyo. The Army has promised to provide more radio receiving sets. From the expressions on the faces of these members of the P.P.C.L.I., the news is good. — (CP from National Defence).

Civil Defence Will be Discussed By Governments

Montreal, Feb. 15— (CP)— Federal and provincial government heads will meet Feb. 23 in discuss mutual civil defence problems, it was learned last night following a meeting of Mal-Gen. F. F. Worthington, federal coordinator of Civil Defence, and members of the executive and advisory board of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

The general's talk with the mayors and representatives of 22 Canadian municipalities was an "off the record" one, but it was learned he indicated Feb. 23 as the date of the meeting for federal-provincial talks on the matter. It was not known if the meeting would be in Ottawa.

The board drafted a memorandum, on civil defence following opening sessions of the two-day meeting here and concluded by saying that no Canadian centre is adequately and properly defended.

A major topic at the meeting was the determination of the municipalities to learn who would pay the costs of civil defence.

The board also drafted a resolution to ask federal government authorities to stimulate housing construction in the country as an anti-inflationary measure.

"House construction, in a sense, is anti-inflationary in character," said the resolution, "it removes from the pool of purchasing power vast sums of money and credit that would otherwise be spent on a wide variety of goods, many in short supply."

One Hush-Hush Reason For U.S. Patience Toward India is Her Stock of Thorium, Vital for Bombs

Washington, Feb. 15—(AP) — Here's one hush-hush reason for the policy American leaders describe as patience and kindness toward India:

India has three-quarters of the world's supply of thorium, a mineral that may become tremendously important in the atomic race with the Soviet Union, and the United States government doesn't want to risk letting this supply fall into unfriendly hands.

The whole subject is shrouded in secrecy, but one government official, who asked not to be quoted by name, acknowledged today that India's possession of all this potential atomic material has had its effect on American policy.

It may well have influenced President Truman's request —endorsed in principle by former President Hoover and various other leading Republicans — for a gift of 2,000,000 tons of wheat to the government of India to help avert the danger of famine.

"While the main intent is to respond to the appeal on behalf of the people of India," the government source told a reporter, "it cannot be denied that India's mineral wealth also was taken into consideration."

Thorium itself is not a fissionable material—that is, it isn't capable of producing atomic energy. But by the use of another atomic mineral—the A-bomb substance, uranium 235—it can be changed into fissionable U-233, which also can be used for weapons as well as non-military purposes.

Since Second World War days, the figures on American imports of thorium haven't been announced. But atomic energy commission sources said almost two years ago that thorium might become important to their program in the future, particularly if the "breeder" reactor proves successful.

DIED AT 109

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 15 — (AP) — Jennie Overstreet, whose family birth records showed she was 109 years old, died Tuesday at the home of relatives near here. The Negro woman, born in slavery, never rode on a train. A trip to Metropolis, Ill., about 20 miles, was the longest trip of her life.

Farmers Warn Of Danger Of Inflation

Ottawa, Feb. 15 — (CP)—Canada's organized farmers told the government today that increased inflation is a danger, and urged every means be taken to block it before it chews up still more of a shrinking consumer dollar.

In a wide-ranging, 6,000-word brief, the 400,000-member Canadian Federation of Agriculture emphasized, however, that there must be no discrimination if the government decides to wield price controls as an anti-inflationary weapon. No group should be exempt.

The brief was prepared for presentation to Prime Minister St. Laurent and his cabinet by H. H. Hannam, C. F. A. president, and a delegation of federation directors.

In view of grave international events, it declared intention of Canadian farmers to dig in and produce to the utmost in the event of a third world war.

Meanwhile, the farmer was besieged with a host of domestic as well as international problems, and among these the federation appealed to the cabinet to consider:

1. Whether the board of transport commissioners, in allowing recent freight-rate increases, was fulfilling the functions and responsibilities bestowed on it by parliament.

2 Requests for floor-space increases for butter, eggs and bacon, and boosts in the domestic price of wheat to keep farm prices more in line with rising production costs.

3. Inclusion of federal subsidies on the movement of western feed grains in the government's permanent agricultural policy.

4. A "substantial" federal contribution to the final payment under the five-year-wheat pool.

Most of the recommendations grew out of resolutions adopted at the federation's annual meeting in Calgary several weeks ago.

Leaders of Five European Countries Discuss Pooling Forces Into Unified Front

Paris, Feb. 15—(AP) — Representatives of five European governments—including West Germany—conferred here today on a French-sponsored plan for pooling men, guns, ships and planes, in one big European army.

The plan, originated by French Premier Rene Pleven, won the endorsement of Italy yesterday following a three-day French-Italian conference on the Riviera.

The unified European army would come under one defence minister with a single general staff of officers to command it. The idea is to pool European fighting resources in much the same manner as the Schuman Plan would pool coal and steel.

The first assignment for such a force would be to make its armed strength available to Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic Alliance Command. So far individual countries have pledged Eisenhower only about a dozen divisions.

The countries represented at the conference in addition to France and West Germany are Italy, Belgium and Luxembourg. Five other powers invited to join in the plan —Britain, Norway, Denmark, The Netherlands and Portugal—agreed to send observers. Canada and the United States also will have observers on hand.

Germany will have soldiers in the proposed European army, but it will not have its own separate military organization or defence ministry. France broached the plan to overcome the problem of getting the Germans back into uniform to help fend off communist aggression without running the danger of creating another German military machine.

Success or failure of the French plan may depend on the British attitude. Precedent does not indicate that Britain's labor government will be enthusiastic. It has been cool toward the Schuman coal-steel pooling plan and kindred steps toward federalization of Europe.

U. K. Iron, Steel Shares Change Hands Last Time

London, Feb. 15 — (Reuters)— Iron and steel shares scheduled for nationalization changed hands for the last time on the London stock exchange today.

Transactions were unofficial and were not recorded. The market now awaits the terms of the new British steel stock, expected to be 3½ per cent redeemable around 1980 and issue price 100, and in which dealings will begin tomorrow.

Most sections of the market were subdued by domestic and international political happenings. British government stocks moved slightly lower and there was irregularity in industrials.

Engineering issues eased but there was firmness in selected textiles and tobaccos with British American tobacco supported ahead of the dividend.

Small sales depressed oil shares but rubbers were firm and active. Foreign bonds were mixed and with Japanese marked down on lower Wall Street advices.

Paris buying erased initial falls in coppers, kaffirs were mainly steady in small trading.

ONTARIO PLOWMAN WINS

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — Plowman Hugh A. Leslie of Georgetown, Ont., Wednesday won the Festival of Britain cup at the International Plowing Championships at nearby Mallusk. The cup was awarded for the best work done in any class by entrants from outside Britain.

Attlee's Regime Faces Most Critical Test

London, Feb. 15—(AP)—Prime Minister Attlee's regime today faced its most critical test as left-wing Labor members threatened to bolt ranks in a no-confidence vote on the government's handling of Britain's rearmament program.

The showdown comes tonight in the House of Commons vote (expected about 9 p.m. EST) on the no-confidence motion introduced last night by Winston Churchill.

It is particularly critical because the government, with a margin of eight in the house, is threatened with defections of some 20 left-wing socialists who have been muttering for the last three months that plans to rearm Britain are contrary to socialist principles.

The government has threatened any Socialist member who abstains from voting with withdrawal of party support, and has even ordered six members, who are ill, to show up for tonight's vote.

The big question in the lobbies today was "will Attlee's left-wing M.P.s abandon him?"

Most parliamentary correspondents said "no".

Eight Liberal members—one too ill to be present—were expected to decide shortly before tonight's vote whether or not to support the motion.

If the motion is adopted, Attlee's government will resign and the King then either will call on Churchill to form a new government, or call for a general election, which recent polls say the Conservatives would win.

The vote will be the third in seven days on motions which, if adopted, would have required the government to resign. Last week Labor beat down censure motions on their nationalizing the iron and steel industry.

WANT PAY BOOSTS

Brockville, Feb. 15 — (CP) — The Brockville Police Department and Fire Department are seeking boosts in pay.

Police have requested a $300 per year hike and the firemen a $225 raise. The police request is accompanied by the report of the cumulated sick leave, similar to civil service employees and an overtime wage pension plan. The firemen who work a 72-hour week, seek also a 56-hour week.

A recent police request for pay boosts was refused, but town council has promised to study the new proposal carefully.

'Waterlift' Bogs Down as Road Becomes Morass

Columbia, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP)—This town of 12,000, lesbound and partly flooded for nearly a week, was up against a new emergency today—suspension of its vital "operation waterlift" because of an impassable road.

To combat the acute water shortage, tank trucks had been delivering some 1,250,000 gallons daily from nearby towns in the Susquehanna River valley.

But late last night, officials said, the operation bogged down in deep, sticky mud on the last stretch of soft road leading to the unloading station. The excessive heavy traffic of the last few days turned the road into a morass.

In the hope of making up some of the loss, authorities promptly started using a pipeline from Columbia to Marietta, four miles north. The line was made for pumping water—about 500 gallons an hour—from here to Marietta. Now the process will be reversed.

Water brought in by tank-trucks is unsafe for drinking. Supplies for drinking and cooking —mostly bottled—are still coming in from other towns and are rationed, a quart a day to each person.

Gurion Cabinet Given Heave-ho

Jerusalem, Feb. 15. (AP)—The cabinet of Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion fell today after the Israeli parliament rejected no confidence in the government on its religious education policy. The vote was 49 to 42.

The government was formed last October after a two-week crisis following the withdrawal of the orthodox religious bloc, second strongest party in the coalition.

The religious bloc had refused to support a plan to broaden the cabinet by inclusion of a minister for Trade and Industry, but later agreed to support the coalition until the January, 1953, elections.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop before supper, and pop said, I think we better turn back, you're tired.

Aw G, pop, how can I be? We just started, I said, and he said, Then you must of started tired. That's the only logical reason for dragging your feet like a convict with a ball and chain on each ankle. I better take you home and see that you get a little nap before we eat, he said.

Aw, jimminies, pop, why? I feel swell, I said, and pop said, Then for Peet sake try to walk with the healthy spring of a normal human being. It's been millions of years since men were in the reptile or crawling stage, so supbody that scuffs along without seeing the ground is a million years behind the times. I'll try to give you a slite idea of what you look like, he said.

And he started to pull his feet along instead of lifting them natsurel, saying, How does that look?

G, it looks fierce, pop, I said, and he said, I'm glad you realize it.

That lady that just went passed realized it too, pop, I said. She could hardly help lafting, I said, and pop said, She was a nice looking lady and I'm glad it I amused her.

Then G, pop, let's amuse a lot of them, I said. Let's both drag our feet at the same time whenever we see a nice looking lady, I said, and pop said, You'll drag your feet back home if I see one more scuffle, scrape or stumble out of you.

The result being I walked healthy and didn't say anything about wanting to tern back till I got naturelly tired, being about 3 more blocks.

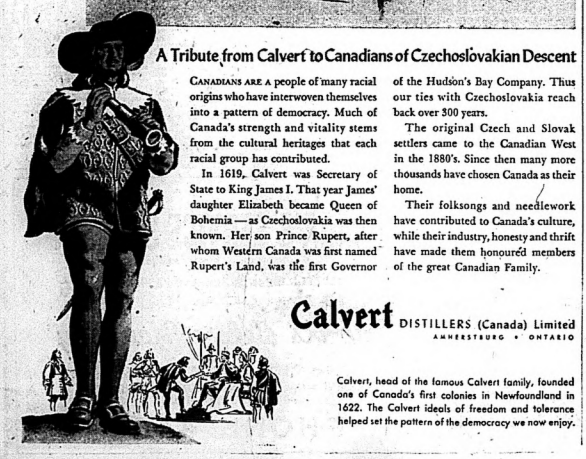
The Canadian Family owes much to . . . Czechoslovakia



A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Czechoslovakian Descent

CANADIANS ARE A people of many racial origins who have interwoven themselves into a pattern of democracy. Much of Canada's strength and vitality stems from the cultural heritages that each racial group has contributed.

In 1619, Calvert was Secretary of State to King James I. That year James' daughter Elizabeth became Queen of Bohemia — as Czechoslovakia was then known. Her son Prince Rupert, after whom Western Canada was first named Rupert's Land, was the first Governor of the Hudson's Bay Company. Thus our ties with Czechoslovakia reach back over 300 years.

The original Czech and Slovak settlers came to the Canadian West in the 1880's. Since then many more thousands have chosen Canada as their home.

Their folksongs and needlework have contributed to Canada's culture, while their industry, honesty and thrift have made them honoured members of the great Canadian Family.

Calvert DISTILLERS (Canada) Limited AMHERSTBURG • ONTARIO

Calvert, head of the famous Calvert family, founded one of Canada's first colonies in Newfoundland in 1622. The Calvert ideals of freedom and tolerance helped set the pattern of the democracy we now enjoy.

Crimson Holiday

By Jane Holsinger

COPYRIGHT 1951 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

Lisa Farwell felt the blood running out of her hands and she held them like cold chips on her lap. How much did Sheriff Lane know? How much was he guessing? What had Angus Kent said about one of the Grenable clan making a statement that a stranger had been seen leaving the house? But no one could prove her—could they?

The figure Lisa had seen on the ridge had been so plain. She couldn't mistake her own father, and then there was that shadowy remembrance of the movement in the shrubbery when Lisa had gone into the house to telephone.

That must have been Elizabeth Stratton, judging from Lisa's father's telephone conversation. He must have been talking to Elizabeth at the Grenable place just before the wheel chair rolled, carrying Lavinia Grenable to her death.

Lisa could feel everyone in the room looking at her and she pushed her head and looked directly at the sheriff.

"No," she lied quietly. "I saw none."

And she pushed back in the farthest corner of forgetfulness the vision of someone else, a still figure of a man standing in the doorway of Lavinia's den looking out to the terrace. How long had Scott Grenable been standing on the terrace? Lisa would never know.

She heard Angus Kent say easily in his pure Devon lilt: "I thought I saw someone from Fort Sheridan. understand a prisoner escaped after the guards were shot. Sheriff Lane with the siren went off with that time. I recall hearing it myself."

The sheriff shook his head. "The escaped prisoner never got any farther than the beach," he said.

"And besides this murder would seem to be the work of someone closely associated with the household."

"In other words, Sheriff," came acidly voice behind the group as Andrew Grenable strolled through the doorway, "a relative, or a close friend of our dear, departed sister, obligingly did the foul deed. One of us."

Stella Lavinia spoke with acrimony and attempted to make a point by striking a chair beside her achievement only to have it sink upward.

But the little shocked silence that followed Lisa felt a peculiar relief that someone had had the courage to express his thoughts openly.

There was no revulsion in her for Andrew Grenable. He spoke with a scathing tongue that Andrew Grenable had become closer to mother changed his plans with her demolition tactics two years before.

Lisa could feel a terrible pity for him and she discovered pain in his eyes, a remembered pain that she could not seem to offer him.

Now Andrew Grenable leaned forward around Lisa to remove the cigaret from the mouth of the head of his brother Court. Andrew carefully put the cigaret between his own lips, lighted it, and recalled his action gravely to Lisa.

Andy's big-boned thin frame was almost gaunt and the sullenness that had become habitual to Andy during these past years suddenly seemed to be replaced by a wistfulness that was new to Lisa's mind was recognizing him as a dangerous man to all of them, while the other was admitting that of all the Grenables he was something more than able about this rumpled and reckless individual; perhaps in knowledge of the habit of his father, Senator Grenable, Lisa decided.

Court turned on his brother viciously.

"Nobody wants your opinion until you're sober," he lashed out. "And I doubt if your opinion would be worth anything then, at best."

"Told the sheriff scrune you!" Andrew asked politely.

Court flushed. "He'll probably come all of us before he gets through. But at least the rest of us can tell him where we were when mother was killed. You weren't even home—or were you?"

"I," Andrew announced dramatically, "was lurking in the nearest lavacus of Hilton, reading the settings in my brew, which are almost as good as tea leaves and twice as stimulating."

Geri Palmer's pencil continued spring, steadily, relentlessly, and Andrew watched her, absorbed. "Good secretary," he said approvingly, and Geri looked up and tried on a kind of mocking acceptance of his compliment.

"Since you're here, Mr. Grenable," Sheriff Lane put in evenly, after watching the by-play between Andrew and his brother, "you might tell us what you know about what went on here yesterday."

There was a little waiting pause while Andrew visibly attempted to collect his mental forces. He shook his head once and winced, as though his head ached and then he leaned forward, one hand on his knees, and looked straight into the sheriff's eyes.

"If you're asking me for an alibi, go choose yourself."

Andrew Grenable seemed to be defying Sheriff Lane to accuse him of having anything to do with Lavinia Grenable's death. Still looking the sheriff straight in the eye, he went on:

"I don't have any alibi, sheriff. I was in some taverns in Hilton. I don't even remember which ones—they're all the same anyhow." He leaned back in his chair, gently.

"Am I to understand that you've been to taverns most of the time since you came here?" the sheriff inquired, diplomatically.

"Sure," replied Andrew. "Ever since I came. I'd been out to New York to visit Marion—my sister, Mrs. Carson—and we all came back together for the funeral." Andrew waved his hand languidly, "—holiday. That's what mother always called these beastly parties. Once a year she blew her horn and all the sheep came running to be shorn and fleeced again. I'm the black one, you know."

There was a pause, and silence broken only by the sound of Geri Palmer's pencil as she took notes on the questioning.

"I used to be white too, until she killed Ellen," Andrew went on, leaning forward again to look at the sheriff. "She don't have much of a tune to play for me any more. I just come home for the year out of curiosity—to see whether turn it to the best advantage."

Andrew grinned with considerable malice as he turned his head to look at his brother Court. "She didn't have time to disown anybody this year, did she?"

"Andy!" Lisa Farwell was startled to hear his name coming from her lips, but she couldn't stand any more of this kind of talk.

First, Andrew had laid himself open to suspicion of murdering his own mother, and now he was drawing his brother Court into his black web. Lisa wanted to stop Andrew before her father and Elizabeth Stratton's turns came. "Andy please!"

"Little Lisa," he said, almost fondly. "See what happens when you get mixed up with a Grenable? Why don't you call your head-almost reproachfully, "We're bad lot, Lisa. Stay clear away from us. All of us."

He looked first at his brother Court and then stared at Lisa for so long that she became uncomfortable. Seeing her discomfort Andrew laughed shortly and turned back to Sheriff Lane.

"Was I to know—why Lavs disowned?" he asked gruffly. He glanced again at Geri's moving pencil. "That's been years and years ago, sheriff. Nice story. About a sweet old lady who killed my girl."

Sheriff Lane interrupted harshly: "Andrew tell me this. Did you quarrel with your mother the morning of her death?"

"Sure," he nodded affably. "Court and I had one whoppin' big row with her. She had a right going on with everybody from the night we arrived until she got it."

"Upstairs, sleeping off the bottle?" Lane asked with a trace of irony.

"What was your quarrel with your mother?"

"Strictly personal," Andrew Grenable said flatly. He closed his eyes and refused to say any more.

Geri Palmer put aside her pencil and looked at the sheriff. Lane She looked very tired, but she attempted to smile a little.

"Shall I type that up, Andy on that statement," she offered. "I heard it, and he may not remember all of it."

"Go on," said the sheriff.

"Andy arrived late Saturday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Carson. He went out again for a few drinks," she consulted wryly. "The next morning his mother returned, but about his drinking that they did have a quarrel, that there was nothing unusual about that. Andy left the house again and didn't return until around 11 o'clock in the morning. We went directly to the den without any lunch and about four o'clock, in the afternoon I took up a tray to him—Lavinia's day housekeeper, fixed the tray. He drank the coffee and ate a sandwich and said he felt much better. I went back to the kitchen with the tray and in a few minutes Andy came downstairs and went out."

The calmness that was characteristic of Geri Palmer deserted her now.

"Mrs. Grenable rang to ask that Andy and Court come up to her den immediately. I did. Lisa stopped suddenly, whitening, and she looked away.

"Tell the rest of it," the sheriff ordered.

Geri looked at Elizabeth Stratton with stricken eyes. "I told Mrs. Grenable that Andrew was out on the terrace with his aunt, Miss Stratton. And that Court's car had just entered the drive. She saw Miss Statton coming up the lower terrace and wheeled herself out the door and I went back to the kitchen to finish my cup of coffee with Lucy."

"That takes us up to the murder," the sheriff said.

Sheriff Lane turned from Geri Palmer to Elizabeth Stratton and asked strangely, "where had you been at the time your sister saw you out on the lower terrace, Miss Stratton?"

"I had been walking— around the grounds," Elizabeth said faintly.

"Were you near the coach house?" the sheriff suggested.

"Why, yes—I went past there" she admitted.

"Did you happen to go inside?"

"Oh, no. I was—just walking."

"Alone?"

Lisa was an infinitesimal pause before Elizabeth answered "yes."

"Did you know that the saw—the saw that was used to cut the emergency brake on Mrs. Grenable's wheel chair—was found in the coach house?"

Elizabeth Stratton paled visibly "Of course not. Only the murderer would know that."

Lisa Farwell wanted to look at her father at this wonderful and unexpected display of courage from Elizabeth Stratton, but Lisa didn't dare for fear Sheriff Lane would notice.

The sheriff went on: "Of course all you realize that the brake was sawed sometime between two and three o'clock yesterday afternoon. That was the hour when Mrs. Grenable rested. She had used her wheel chair all day, and at 2 o'clock she passed and turning back to Mrs. Grenable's sister, he said: "Now Miss Stratton, if Andrew was sleeping, Court was in the city, Lisa was alone in the den around the kitchen, that leaves you alone in the house, except for the Carsons."

The implication was there that Elizabeth Stratton knew more than she had told.

"Yes," Elizabeth answered with a suggestion of a tremor in her voice. She folded her small hands tightly, then released them to look back at imaginary hair from the soft knot at the nape of her neck.

Afterwards, she folded her hands again. "Yes," she repeated more firmly.

Sheriff Lane was watching Elizabeth Stratton's moves closely. There were no fingerprints on the saw he said quietly. "The murderer must have wiped them away."

Elizabeth Stratton clasped and clasped her hands nervously once more.

"I suppose so," she said vaguely.

"Confound it, Elizabeth! Tell the truth!" Henry Farwell stood up and blurted the words at the frail little woman who refused to meet his eyes.

Lisa Farwell's breath stopped and began again unevenly. This had been her greatest fear of her along. Elizabeth was her father's vulnerability and now Sheriff Lane had exposed it.

Elizabeth began to cry softly. "Henry, Henry!"

But Henry Farwell went on: "Elizabeth didn't cut that brake, Lane. I was with her from shortly after two—until it happened."

"I suppose, Mr. Farwell," the sheriff spoke somewhat uncomfortably, "that this admission explains your presence on the ridge at the approximate time of the murder. Miss Stratton had sent for you that afternoon, had she not?"

"Yes," Mr. Farwell almost shouted. "She did. Elizabeth called me on the phone about 1.30 o'clock in my office. She was crying. She said Lavinia had threatened her with a sanity hearing before Judge Plainfield in Hilton."

"A sanity hearing!" The sheriff glanced at the nervous little woman who was still clasping and unclasping her hands.

"It was ridiculous, of course," Mr. Farwell explained. "Elizabeth is just as sane as you or I, and Lavinia wouldn't have gotten to first base, but it was Lavinia's favorite form of torture to threaten her sister with a sanity hearing. Lavinia only did it yesterday, I'm sure, to get me here. She knew I'd come over in a moment to help Elizabeth."

"And why did Mrs. Grenable want to see you, Mr. Farwell?" asked Sheriff Lane pointedly.

Henry Farwell flushed, but spoke out doggedly. "Lavinia wanted to have the pleasure of telling me what I already knew—that her elder son Court, was going to marry my daughter."

Lisa gasped and put her hands up to her face. First Andrew Grenable, then Elizabeth Stratton, and now her father had been placed in the spotlight of suspicion.

Watching the faces all around her, Lisa read their thoughts. Andrew had committed the murder for revenge. They all were convinced that he had done it. Revenge for the death of the girl he had loved,

But did anyone care, Lisa wondered, about anything as unrewarding as murder after you had been robbed of someone you loved? Murder couldn't bring the girl back again.

And Elizabeth, in the coach house or near it, where the murder weapon lay on the terrace afterwards—there to watch the result of cutting the emergency brake, perhaps, or to make sure it would Elizabeth do it? No! Not gentle Elizabeth.

But though Lisa Farwell sadly, even the gentlest of people come to hate some time in their lives. I had been Elizabeth Stratton in the shrubbery then. Lisa knew now that it had been Elizabeth she had seen just after the wheel chair had crashed into the ravine carrying Lavinia Farwell to her death.

But Lisa's father! He couldn't have come to the Grenable house to take a hand in murder. He had come only to talk to Elizabeth. But her father's words kept coming back to Lisa and they folded around her now like a thick, gray veil, suffocating her. He had said: "I'd give my life, . ."

Lisa gasped again, helplessly.

Henry Farwell was saying, "I told Lavinia she'd get no place with her threats against Elizabeth and then I talked to Elizabeth Ingersoll, Lavinia, and she said exactly."

During all of the past year I was in a rundown condition, extremely nervous, tired all the time, and very poor and what little food I did eat caused gas, acid stomach, heartburn and a full, heavy distressed feeling in my stomach. I had no ambition to do my work, couldn't sleep well at night and felt miserable most of the time.

I read about Syntona in the paper and decided to give it a trial. I am glad I did for after taking a few bottles I decided to get a bottle of this herbal medicine. In just a little while I was feeling better and with that encouragement I continued taking it and now my appetite has returned, food digests well without sour risings or heartburn and my nerves are calmed down so that I am getting sound, restful sleep. I am also free of headaches and altogether feel like a new woman. Mrs. Ingersoll.

Fishing Empire Founded on Great Slave Lake

Hay River, N.W.T. Feb. 15 (CP) — The 11,000 - square-mile Great Slave Lake in Canada's sub-Arctic is called the lonely fishing empire of the continent by some government men and fishermen who have piled their trade throughout the Dominion.

Lonely it still is, but the lake is comparatively new — it was first declared open to commercial fishing in 1944 — 45 — yet today the annual yield is valued at between $5,000,000 and $7,500,000.

Ninety per cent of the allowable 9,000,000 - pound catch each year finds an American market outlet, netting Canada hundreds of thousands of American dollars.

Major fishing operations on the lake, some 720 air miles north of Edmonton, began two years after it was opened to commercial fishing. Now nine fishing companies share in the annual catch.

Long Shipping Distance

They use airplanes, snowmobiles, truck and speedy railway express to transport the fish nearly 2,000 miles to market outlets, mostly at New York, Chicago and Detroit. The lake's whitefish and trout are rated the best fresh - water fish of their kind found anywhere on the continent.

In the winter season — Dec. 1 to March 31 — the fishermen travel 50 to 150 miles out on the lake from Hay River on the south shore. They set up camps mostly in caboose shacks, few of them ever coming to town in the four months. The temperature often is 60 below zero or colder and the wind cuts like a knife. But the money is good.

Thick Ice

Before the nets are shot out under the ice, the fishermen dig holes through three to five feet of ice with primitive tools.

If the fish are to be dressed, the men do it on the ice before the fish freeze. If they are to be shipped fresh they are packed in snow and they do not freeze too solidly. If they are to be sent frozen, they are packed in carton boxes at the spot.

Planes and snowmobiles— winter tracked vehicles — shuttle the catches to the fish houses here and they are rushed 320 miles by truck to the nearest railhead. In all they are transported nearly 2,000 miles and remain a fresh and favorite dish on the eastern U. S. market.

Rent Controls Will Continue In Quebec

(By The Canadian Press)

The Quebec legislature, one of four in session in Canada, has unanimously approved a bill to set up provincial rent controls when the federal government vacates the field April 30.

The bill was given second reading yesterday with the unanimous support of the house.

Premier Maurice Duplessis said that while he feels self-control is the best control, the government was forced to continue rent controls because a minority of landlords and tenants did not exercise self-control.

The legislation provides a three-month freeze of rents to allow time for setting up provincial rent control machinery. After that government authorities will be in operation to mediate on cases where tenants and landlords cannot come to agreement.

Clairvoyant Finds Crystal-Gazing Is Too Accurate

Berlin, Feb. 15 (Reuters)

Mrs. Ursula Kardos, German clairvoyant, has decided to leave Berlin for a long holiday. She is the victim of her own too-accurate crystal-gazing.

World publicity was given her prophecy that in 1951 there would be "war — but it will be a year of catastrophes and disasters—something will fall from the sky."

It made her small Berlin home the target for thousands of letters, cables and telephone calls from Europe and elsewhere.

Volcanic eruptions in New Guinea, atomic blasts in Nevada, avalanches in Switzerland and Italy, the flu epidemic in Britain and parts of Europe and last week's rail disaster in New Jersey that claimed 84 lives made many people think this frail Berlin housewife may have the secret of second sight after all.

Family Awarded $34,000 Damages

Milton, Ont., Feb. 13 (CP)—Mrs. Roderick Ryder of nearby Acton and her three young children yesterday were awarded damages totalling $34,000 in a lawsuit arising from the death of Mrs. Ryder's 31-year-old husband in a traffic accident in Acton Sept. 7, 1949.

An Ontario Supreme Court jury found Gray Coach Lines 90 per cent to blame and John Winters of Acton 10 percent to blame. Evidence was that Ryder's bicycle was in collision with the suddenly-opened door of Winters' parked automobile on an Acton Street. The court was told Ryder fell off his bicycle and under the rear wheels of a bus.

94 Public Schools Closed by Strike Are Reopened

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. (AP) — Minneapolis' schools, closed more than a week by a strike, were reopened today for 63,000 pupils resuming their studies.

Classes were scheduled yesterday. Instead, picketing union teachers marched before the schools in support of their demand for a pay raise higher than the $100 annual increase offered by the school board.

The impasse was settled late yesterday by governor Luther W. Youngdahl, who assured the instructors he would intervene with Minnesota legislators in an effort to gain more financial support for the city's schools.

Janitors started the walkout last month with their pay demands, and the teaching staff later joined in the strike. The maintenance men agreed to accept pay boosts of $12.50 to $22.50 a month granted Monday by the board.

But when the teachers set up picket lines, the janitors kept only enough heat in the buildings yesterday to prevent freezing of water pipes. Some teachers showed up but were thwarted by cold classrooms.

What is Goldfish? Is it an Article?

Whitechurch, Wales, Feb. 15. (AP)—Is a goldfish an article?

Crown prosecutor Glyn Hardwicke says it is.

Counsel for two men in a case before the local magistrates say it isn't.

The magistrates say they don't know.

The defendants—both ragpickers—were accused under an act which forbids trading "food, drink or any other article" to children for household goods.

The men swapped the goldfish for rags.

Hardwicke said the act is intended to keep junior from selling pop's best pants for gew-gaws.

"A goldfish," he said, "is an article when it is an ornament."

Magistrate D. R. Phillips objected that it is an ornament only when it is in a bowl.

"A fish," offered George Tillyard, clerk of the court, "is an animate body."

The magistrates adjourned the case to search for legal precedents.

Australia Adopts High Measure Of Defence

Canberra, Feb. 15 (Reuters)—Australia is to be placed on a "semi-war" footing, Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies said today.

Menzies, just returned from his overseas trip during which he attended the Commonwealth Prime Ministers' conference in London, said however, that the country can not be put entirely on a war footing without affecting its immigration and development program.

"Like Britain, Australia must achieve as high a measure of defence preparation as is consistent with the country's immediate needs for increase in population and development," he said.

Menzies did not accept the inevitability of war, which was a policy of despair, but the grim threat of war could not be ignored.

Eight Children Carried to Safety

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—Eight children were carried and led to safety last night when smoke filled several apartments during a $27,500 fire in the Mayfair Radio Shop on west-end St. Clair Ave. Six adults who live above the radio shop and adjoining stores also escaped.

Three firemen were taken to hospital—two overcome by smoke, a third cut by flying glass. Ten other firemen suffered minor injuries.

Mrs. Reva Gutzin, 45, whose husband died in a factory fire about a year ago, escaped last night with her four children, the eldest 13. Four other children were rescued by parents or neighbors.

Nylons Grab Valuable Points With 5-2 Defeat of Redmen In Close-Fought Senior Game

By George H. Carver (Sports Editor)

Paced by the three-goal sniping of sharp-shooter Walt Gerow, the Kingston Nylons roared through to a well-earned 5-2 victory over the Belleville Redmen in Memorial Arena here last night.

While the Nylons win made no change in the senior group standing, it aided in no small measure their chance to wrest the second place slot now occupied by the Peterborough Eagles.

The Nylons were full value for their victory taking advantage of costly lapses of the Redmen defence, and proving opportunists of the first water when chances to score were given them.

It was good hockey all through with the best efforts coming in the second period. Both teams turned on full power and Nylons slashed home two goals in 27 seconds, when the red defence suddenly collapsed and the fast-skating Nylon front lines dashed in to give the redshirt goalie Jim Irvine no chance.

The Nylons grabbed a 2-1 lead in the first period, added the aforementioned pair in the second and split a brace of counters in the third period.

A 'Splash' of Color

The game was clean through-out with only six penalties being handed out by Referee Pete Nye of Peterborough. The only flare-up of the game occurred in the first period when Tommy Schreider and Armstrong of Nylons started throwing punches with the little harm done outside of each being given a major penalty.

The Nylons ace line of Walt Gerow, Kenny Parfitt and Joe Catlin came into their own last night. Gerow always dangerous, especially in front of the nets scored the hat trick with Catlin drawing a pair of assists. The second Nylon line of Aitken, McKeown and Joyce proved another powerful offensive threat as McKeown and Aitken scoring and Joyce being credited with a pair of helpers.

In another sense it was a battle of goalies with Dby Udall of Kingston and Jim Irvine of the Redmen turning in more or less sensational efforts. Udall outguessed the incoming red forwards time after time after they raced through alone while Irvine at the other end did a "Turk Brods" on several occasions. Robbing the fast-skating Nylon attackers of what appeared to be sure goals.

Udall gave evidence of his form on the very first play of the game Vern Gerow grabbed the puck and raced in alone only to have the bespectacled goalie squelch him. Four minutes later he repeated and so did Udall. Both Rose and Mulvihill both got to the Udall doorstep and again he kicked out the rubber.

Irvine at times thwarted the incoming Nylon forwards single-handed and on one occasion stickhandled the puck himself behind his own nets.

Mulvihill Gets Two

Brian Mulvihill, Jackie Wardhaugh and Johnny Green proved the scoring threat of the reds with the former lashing home both Redmen goals with Wardhaugh and Green getting assists. The line of Peter Jones, Vern Gerow and Gerow Moher deserved a better fate and only Udall kept them off the scoring sheet. Keith MacDonald skated miles with George Graham and Doug Free. Tommy Schreider turned in a fine performance on the defence on occasion racing through the entire Nylon team. The latter flashed but the puck was outside the net.

McKeown opened the scoring in the first period after four minutes of play with Joyce and Aitken in on the kill. The lead was shortlived, however, for Mulvihill took Jackie Wardhaugh's pass on a neat play to even the count thirteen seconds later.

Gerow slammed home his first goal of the night from Joey Catlin on a neat goal-mouth passing play to end the period at 2-1.

Defence Lapsed

Whether the Redmen defence expected an offside whistle after 14 minutes of the third heat had elapsed is not known. In any event the puck was alone near the Red blueline with no redshirts paying attention to it when Gerow stepped in and let drive a high-hard shot that found the left hand corner of the net. The red defence was still in more or less of a daze, when Aitken drove in with Joyce and McKeown to fire home the fourth Nylon goal.

Gerow got his third of the night in the first minute of play in the third period and the desperate Reds battled hard to cut down the lead. They surged in on Udall and Mulvihill finally drove the puck home on a neat passing play with Johnny Green and Wardhaugh.

The Redmen's passing plays were not clicking and at times they handled the puck to a Nylon player, when attempting to get into scoring position. On the other hand a stubborn Nylon defence with Ken Murphy and Watts standing out thwarted many a Red foray into enemy territory.

The Teams:—

Nylons: Goal, Udall; defence, Watts, Patterson; centre, Parfit; wings, Catlin, Joyce subs, Plumb, Murphy, Armstrong, Potts McKeown, Aitken, Harrison, Joyce.

Belleville: Goal, Irvine; defence Schmidt, Basteo; centre, Wardhaugh; wings, Green, Mulvihill; subs, Goyer, MacDonald, Jones, Schreiber, Semark, Graham, Moher, Free.

Referee: Pete Nye, Peterborough; linesman, Bill Molway.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By CEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

GOALIES STAR

It was goalies night at Memorial Arena last night. Eddy Udall of the Nylons, with spectacles and youthful Jimmy Irvine of the Redmen had nearly 250 spectators on their feet at times with some of the best puck-kicking calisthenics seen here in some time.

Both net guardians came up with sensational plays especially when opposing goal - seeking forwards raced in on them alone. Udall was especially brilliant at times, outguessing the Redmen attackers with an almost uncanny ability; Young James at the other end did not have the same hard-checking defence in front of him, and at times he turned back the goal - hungry Nylons practically singlehanded.

The Reds could not get untracked for some reason or another. Their passing plays were not clicking and their shooting was off at times. Then again, of course, was that pesky Udall) the final stumbling block.

* * *

Sharp - shooting opportunist Walt Gerow came into his own last night. The rangy leftwinger slashed home three of the Nylons five goals as he, with line - mates Joey Catlin and Kenny Parfit showed the form that has carried the Nylons through a tough schedule. But all the credit does not go to this line. Aitken, McKeown and Joyce were just a shade behind-their team-mates in effectiveness and are one of the most improved lines we have seen this season. In fact they were more dangerous than the Gerow, Catlin, Parfit trio, but they were not the crafty opportunists the veterans proved to be.

* * *

The Nylons victory did not affect the standing of the teams. It did, however, give the Kingston crew two valuable points in their last - minute effort to overhaul the Peterborough Eagles now ensconced in second slot.

THE PANTHERS SNARL.

The potent Port Hope Panthers who have been clawing all and sundry who have stepped in their path in Junior "B" circles the last few days will be here tomorrow night to do final battle with the Rockets. The game is the last scheduled fixture of the season for both squads and much depends on the outcome insofar as the Rockets are concerned. The Meronekers can finish in second place behind the Lindsay Kinsmen providing the latter take the measure of the Peterborough Links in their final tussle in Peterborough tonight. That would mean a semi-finals series with the Oshawa Bees. However if the Links defeat the Lindsay crew they will take over the second slot and the Rockets will drop back to third place and semi-finals with Lindsay.

The Rockets are not selling this suddenly-powerful Port Hope crew short. They knocked off the Peterborough kids by a 6-3 score on Monday night and there is nothing they would like better than to upset the Rockets aspirations for that second-place spot in the playoff sun. The cookies of Cook got a ragged game off their collective chest the other night in Oshawa, and tomorrow night they will be travelling with all jets wide open. It should be a thriller-diller as the Rockets are determined to win and the Panthers as equally determined to take home the Belleville scalps.

MERCHANTS HERE MONDAY

Belleville Merchants who have been creating quite a stir in Trent Valley Hockey League circles lately, winning six of their last seven starts, will show their wares before the hometown crowd in Memorial Arena next Monday night when they meet the Trenton RCAF Flyers in a regular schedule game. Coach Timmy Williams has the boys hustling faster than the traditional one-armed carpenter with the hives and they are slowly but surely climbing their sectional ladder.

* * *

Sparked by Earl Coupens, their scoring ace, who climbed from eleventh to first place in the scoring list in a few games, the Merchants are playing a fine brand of hockey and they fully deserve all the support that comes their way. Manager Ken Parallee tells us that tickets for Monday night's game are now available at Bill Cook's, Jack McNab's, Freddie Symons' and the Checker Taxi office. It takes money to make the hockey mare go, and right now the boys could do with a package of the lettuce you can't eat.

DOTS 'N' FLASHES . . .

The Yardmen and Yard Office teams of the CNR Interdepartmental Hockey League start their semi-finals in Memorial Arena tonight, the puck being teed off at 9:45. The second of the two-of-three series will be played next Tuesday starting at 10 p. m. The winners will meet the Firemen team for the league championship . . . The senior "B" hockey playoffs will start on Feb. 20th, the same time as the series for the Allan Cup playdowns . . . Tickets for the Firemen-Police hockey game scheduled for Tuesday Feb. 27th. are now on sale. They cost but twenty - five cents and the March of Dimes will appreciate your support . . . There'll be entertainment, music and high jinx as well as the famous battle of the blades between the boys of the brass and blue . . . Our sincere sympathy goes with that of sports fans of the district to Michael Rodden, sports editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard in the loss of a beloved mother the other day . . . Twill soon be Trophy Time round these yere parts . . . The Walter Bent Trophy goes to the most valuable player on the Redmen squad. The Boland Trophy goes to the Redman with the least penalties. The Whalen Trophy goes to the most useful player on the Rockets squad, and Goodman's suit or overcoat goes to the Rocket or Redman selected as the most three on the three-star choice over a period of twelve home games . . .

Sugar Ray Robinson Wins Middleweight Title in 13th Round TKO Over LaMotta

Chicago, Feb. 15 (AP) —Sugar Ray Robinson has become the first man in ring history to win one championship and lose another in the same bout.

The rhythmic New York Negro, defeated only once in 134 contests, last night won the world's middleweight championship by hammering durable Jake LaMotta, unbeaten Bronx slugger, to defeat on a 13-round technical knockout before 14,801 frenzied spectators in the Chicago Stadium.

As his gloved fist was raised in victory, Robinson automatically relinquished his welterweight crown. He was forced to surrender it under a ruling of the National Boxing Association, and also by decision of Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, which operates independently of the NBA.

Although Robinson and his manager, George Gainford, said they consider Sugar Ray's double champ, a spokesman probably will be held to fill the 147 pound vacancy.

Sugar Ray would recognize an elimination series involving leading candidates. Top men on the division are Kid Gavilan of Havana, Charlie Fusari of Irvington, N.J., Billy Graham of New York and Johnny Bratton of Chicago.

Under the terms of last night's match, Robinson is required to give LaMotta return bout, probably in New York, next June. However, Truman Gibson, secretary of the sponsoring International Boxing Club, wondered if LaMotta wanted to face the prospect of another beating so soon after his conqueror.

LaMotta remained in an unfavorable condition for two hours after he walked from the ring under his own power. He was immediately administered oxygen when he reached his dressing room. He completely exhausted and suffering chills.

Dr. J. M. Houston of the Illinois Athletic Commission and J.Ke's own personal physician, Dr. Philip Barnard, remained in constant attendance until he was able to leave for his downtown hotel quarters with his wife, Vicki.

The bout was the most successful indoor promotion of the International Boxing Club, which operates in New York, Chicago and Detroit. The attendance gate was $180,619 and the net was $138,286. The attendance exceeded expectation despite television and its estimated 30,000,000 viewers.

LaMotta held the middleweight championship two days short of 20 months. He won it from the late Marcel Cerdan of France at x-unconfirmed reports indicate LaMotta was guaranteed a $75,000 purse by the television sponsors.

Forced the Battle

LaMotta, only man ever to beat Robinson, never fought more desperately than he did last night. For eight rounds he actually forced the battle. He bothered the confident Robinson with resounding body blows and jolting jabs to the head and often forced him into retreat with his two-fisted attack.

But the jolting LaMotta had the spirit to triumph but hadn't the stamina for the 15-round championship route. He outweighed Robinson 4 1-2 pounds, scaling 160 at yesterday's weights.

The fall came in Robinson's favor in the ninth round, when LaMotta began losing his aggressiveness and ability to escape from Robinson's shattering punches. He turned into less than a target for the welterweight champion.

Last night's battle probably was the toughest of LaMotta's six fights with Robinson, who previously had won three. The impression prevailed that Jake was exhausted from the rigors of making the 160-pound limit 6½ from the furious pace he set in chasing the retreating Robinson early in the fight.

Kenny Reardon Wants to End Gardner Feud

(By The Canadian Press)

One of hockey's most [illegible] feuds may be settled soon, one of its participants—Kenny Reardon, fiery Montreal Canadiens defence star—said Wednesday in Montreal.

Now coaching Porcupine Combines, a Junior 'A' farm team for Montreal, Reardon told he'd like to bury the hatchet "with" instead of "in" Toronto Maple Leafs' forward Cal Gardner.

The big defenceman recounted step by step their feud with the usual redness, how it began when he thought Gardner fouled him, how he threatened to break Gardner's jaw, and how he did just that, eventually.

"Then, I thought it was the right thing to do—chase him until "I got him." the 29-year-old Reardon said. "But once you've hung up your skates and look back on your career, the things you mention were crazy. Some time later this season I'd like to see Leafs' and Canadiens' dressing-room and shake hands with Gardner.

It's the eve of spring training for the Philadelphia Phillies but the National League champs have already smacked signed players to make the southern junket worth while.

Club officials have only 15 signed contracts. They leave today for the Carolinas, but last night elite with the status of several players still up in the air.

Nominations close at midnight tonight for the 77th consecutive 1951 Kentucky Derby.

Officials at Churchill Downs said Wednesday they expect about the usual number, the last year, when 134 colts, phillies and geldings were nominated. Of that total 14 started.

The derby will be run May 5 for a $100,000-added purse money. It is open to three-year-olds and will be run over a 1¼-mile course.

Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League announced Wednesday night that they traded defenceman Ray Laycoe to Boston Bruins for Ross Lowe, another defenceman.

The players will report immediately. Laycoe is 28, Lowe 32.

The names of James J. Farley was thrown Wednesday into the Democratic presidential convention ring. And there were signs this might [illegible]

Jake Minix, manager of heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, Wednesday said he "threw a financial bombshell" which apparently blew up a proposed rematch between Charles and former champion Joe Louis in Chicago in early April.

Minix, after conferring with the International Boxing Club officials, on Charles' future plans, said the champion would fight Louis.

A share of $250,000 television fee; a $200,000 or $250,000 guarantee that Louis would fight Charles again if he won; and a champion's 40 percent share of the gate.

Canadiens Tough At Any Time Says Primeau

Toronto, Feb. 15—(CP)—The suggestion that Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League can be beaten merely by stopping the team's most potent scorer, Maurice (Rocket) Richard, provoked a one-word opinion Wednesday from Joe Primeau, coach of the Toronto Maple Leafs.

"Nuts," said Primeau, whose team has been beaten only once by Canadiens this season.

"We've had plenty of trouble from such non-Canadiens as Baldy Mackay, Ken Mosdell, Floyd Curry and Elvin Dunsmuir. That recipe doesn't apply to the Leafs."

Originator of the theory was Neil Colville, coach of New York Rangers, who offered it in an interview during the weekend.

Suggesting that Montreal was a one-man Colville said:

"The Richard up and you have them. That's the cue for beating Montreal. They haven't got much scoring strength outside of him."

Veteran Skater Wins Top Honors At Skating Meet

Winnipeg, Feb. 15. (CP)—Western Canadian skaters last night captured the 440 events in the Canadian Speed Skating championships.

Frank Stack of Winnipeg, skated to big fourth Canadian crown by winning the 220, the 880 and the five-mile events to make a clean sweep in senior competition in the two-day event.

Stack on Tuesday had captured the 440, one-mile and two-mile events to wind up with a perfect 180 points, 90 more than runner-up Gordon Audley of Winnipeg.

Stack capped his performance with the five-mile, feature event of the trials. He moved into second position for the early stages of the 40-lap grind around the Wesley Park open-air rink, then broke away near the end. His time was 16:20.5. Audley was a not-too-distant second and Tuesday's winner, Ken Lindley, finished third.

In Senior ladies' competition, Edmonton's Gladys Rutherford and McLeod went ahead of Pat Underhill, gaining 120 points to Miss Underhill's 66 to capture the title. Both Edmonton girls had 60 points apiece after Tuesday night's skating, but the best Miss Underhill could do last night was to place second to Miss McLeod in the 220.

The local Easterners in with titles were both from Saint John, N.B. Speedy Thaddie St. Pierre won the intermediate boys' title while diminutive Buddy Hamm won the juvenile boys' crown.

The girls' intermediate title went to Ruth Lawson of Saskatoon, who collected 90 points. She was followed by Betty Skene of Regina, and Winnipeg's Rosemary Trudel, with 70 points each.

Three other Winnipeggers won titles in their respective divisions. Roy Mundle, junior boys; Marilyn Johnson, juvenile girls; and Peggy Robb, juvenile girls.

Verna Currie, of Saskatoon wound up with the Junior girls' crown, finishing with 60 points, 10 more than Louise Trudel of Winnipeg. The two had been tied at the end of regular events and Miss Currie won a three-mile grind.

Freddie de Gregoire of Edmonton, won the junior boys' crown on the way, clocking in at 15.2 in a 110-yard skate-off with Winnipeg's Dale Wood.

Roy Failing of Edmonton, took the Midget boys' championship. Another Edmonton representative, Sylvia Robertson, won honors in the Midget girls' class.

Points were awarded on the basis of 30 for first, 20 for second; and 10 for third.

OUT-OF-TOWN WINS IN

Toronto, Feb. 15 (CP) —Out-of-town rinks made more headway in the Wednesday afternoon draw on the third day of the 24th annual Ontario bonspiel. Seven of the eight rinks which reached the fourth round of the Birks Trophy are from outside Toronto.

In the afternoon draw, the North American Life competition was brought to the 16s and, of those left, 11 are from outside Toronto. George Doggett of Kirkland Lake, Don Groom of Sudbury and Jim Nicholson of Sault Ste. Marie represent Northern Ontario, Howard Foster of Utica, N.Y., is the sole United States entry in this event. Toronto High Park, with Gordon Jones and Ken Ashman, is the only club with two representatives left in the fourth event.

Buffalo Bisons, Cleveland Barons Hold Margins

(By The Canadian Press)

The three games played in the American Hockey League Wednesday night had little effect on the standings as both Buffalo in the eastern division and Cleveland in the western section continue to show sizeable leads over their closest opponents.

At Cincinnati, Indianapolis Capitals scored five goals in the last 16 minutes to take an easy 9-4 victory from Cincinnati Mohawks before 1,586 fans.

Jimmy Moore's second goal of the night had allowed Cincinnati to tie the count at 4-4 47 seconds after the final period started. The deadlock lasted only briefly, however, and in the closing minutes of the game Indianapolis cut for the Caps and single talkies were added by Leo Gravelle, Leroy Wilson, Bob Bodnar, and Rod Morrison as the Mohawks defence collapsed.

Joe Carveth, Max McNab and Steve Kraftcheck were the other marksmen for Jean-Paul Denis and Gerry Plamondon also connected for the Mohawks.

At Buffalo, Paul Meger slapped home two goals with less than two minutes to play to push a 3-3 tie for Buffalo Bisons with St. Louis Flyers.

Neither club was able to press home a victory in the 10-minute overtime period.

A crowd of about 1,400 saw Jack McIntyre, Norm Corcoran and Frank Marks score goals for the second-place Bears while Ken Smith and Frank Mathers connected for the Hornets.

Players Use Tough Language To Fans, Referee

(By The Canadian Press)

Tough language allegedly used by two players of Toronto's St. Michael's Monarchs in an O.H.A. junior tilt last night resulted in stiff-winger Gord Hannigan getting a match misconduct and may lead to several unidentified fans proferring charges against goalie Phil Hughes.

Trouble arose after Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen were allowed a disputed fourth goal by referee Jack Hogan in a game Monarchs went on to win 8-4 in Waterloo.

Hannigan laughed with the Galt official and Hughes went for several excited fans. Hogan said he would report Hannigan's, "swearing and obscene language" to O.H.A. authorities, and police said the fans had complained of Hughes' language and would lay charges today.

Jack Muldoon with two goals, and singles for Bill McCracken, Joe Durkac and Tom Fowler gave Monarchs victory; Billy Flick, Maurice Levesque, Don Bauer and Bernie Finnegan registered for the locals.

In Hamilton, Tigers stood off a battling Toronto Marlboro7 attack to win another O.H.A. major fixture 2-1; The win gave Tigers four points since a game Tigers scheduled in Toronto cannot be played. Al Cerda and Doug Maher for Tigers doubled Bill Johnson's Marlboro marker.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The evil bids that bridge experts advocate live a long time in the minds of players. It takes many generations to wipe out the harm. Look at the pair of partnership hands in the deal shown here.

SOUTH	NORTH
♠A K Q 4 2	♠ 4
♥ 5 3	♥ K 9 3 2
♦ A 6	♦ 9 3 2
♣ A 2	♣ K 8 7 6

At one table in a tournament, south opened the bidding with two spades. Somewhere he had learned that an opening bid of two in suit is made with so many of a half tricks or more.

An opening bid of two in a suit is forcing to game. Does this south hand mean to say that he can promise a game? Foolish. If he makes seven tricks it is as much as he can expect.

If you are following a system that says it is a two bid, both you and the system are wrong. You may gamble for one trick, maybe two at the outside, but gambling for three is too much.

South responded with a bid of three clubs. Even if the opening by two spades by south was sound, the three club response is wrong. It promises a sure trick in the hand besides a biddable club suit.

If you are following a system that says it does not promise a sure trick, both you and the system are wrong in answer to an opening of two in a suit, a positive response encourages a slam.

Look at it this way: An opening two bid is guarantee that the bidding will continue to at least a game. So, opening two bidder is anxious to know in a hurry whether there is a slam.

If the opener does not have a slam in his own hand he relies on partner for slam help. Such help most often hinges on finding partner with a sure trick. This is what the opener must know.

So, if partner has no sure trick, he should first say so. The signal for saying so is a response of two no trumps. If they still have a responder can show it later.

Wrong signals make bad bridge.

Merchants Stage Overtime Tie With Wellington

Staging a strong third period drive the Belleville Merchants overcame a two-goal deficit last night to match a 7-all overtime tie from defeat at the hands of the Wellington team in a scheduled Trenton Valley Hockey League fixture.

The Merchants have been undefeated in their last three starts and last night gained a valuable point on the Trenton RCAF Flyers in third place.

The village squad played headlong hockey in their own arena and led at the end of the first period by a two to one score. Both teams scored four goals in a fast moving second session and the city crew reached from behind to score two goals against the locals one in the third session.

Both teams battled hard for the tie-breaker in the overtime session but the game ended in a seven-all stalemate.

Earl Cousins, now the league's leading sniper again grabbed the scoring limelight as the Merchants banging home three goals

Movie Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Feb. 15 (AP)—The "revolt of the comics" today appeared to be hatching Holly-wood's bid for contention in the television industry.

This is no organized rebellion. It is a growing distaste on the part of several top comedians for the rigors of doing television shows in New York. All of the Nos. 1 polled have homes here and most of them are engaged in movie work They dislike being uprooted for the strenuous life of eastern TV.

Furthermore, several of the comics are against "live" video, preferring to offer their efforts on film. Bob Hope is one of these.

"Why not take advantage of cutting?" he inquired. "Doing a show on film would cut out the sloppiness.

"I've seen thing happened in radio. People realized you can go a much better show on tape than you can broadcasting 'live.'"

Abbott and Costello, who recently made their TV debut, are also favor films. They have one more eastern show to do and have turned down "fabulous" offers to do more.

Not Even Skelton

Red Skelton, who has not yet made his TV debut, told me "You couldn't get me to New York on a bet." He plans to do his TV series in October and he will film a half-hour show bi-weekly in Hollywood.

Jack Benny is an advocate of "live" shows and would like to do his stint from Hollywood. He has trekked to New York for two shows this season.

Eddie Cantor is reported eager to do his show from here on film. Ken Carson is also anxious to return to Hollywood with his program in order to pick up motion picture offers.

and getting one assist. Hatfield scored a pair for the city team with Graham and Semark getting the remaining pair.

Wellington passed the village squad with a pair of goals with Twigg, MacDonald, Gosnia, Porter and Scott accounting for the re:t.

THIEF GOT AWAY

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 13—(CP)—The combined efforts of three police forces recovered the stolen car of Police Chief R. L. Giroux of Cornwall township yesterday, but the thief got away.

A provincial police cruiser chased the culprit at high speed, until the cruiser skidded into a ditch. Officers later found the abandoned car further along No. 2 highway.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, February 16

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Friendly day for seeking favors, perhaps promotion, if you have earned it. Grant favors, too. All sound projects, useful commodities, handling government issues honored.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Started profits, money transactions, sound business deals, investments such as government bonds under fine Jupiter influences. Not all favorable for personal wishes, but a good day in general.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Caution advised signing contracts, important papers, etc. Mechanics, scientists, miners, all working with endurance, courage are highly favored. Avoid any selfish thoughts.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Moon's aspect warns against gloomy moods, feeling irritated or provoked at others' decisions. Have faith in God and the fine qualities He gave you; smile and pitch into day's duties.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Your Sun and Jupiter only planets in benefic aspects, augur well for a productive, fruitful day for your talents, and if you are purposeful and foresight at tasks. Work for results.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Writers, journalists, all you using your mental processes may need to prod yourselves to keep up to snuff now. But encouraging Sun and Jupiter rays aid all worthy matters.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Similar to Taurus. Forget any purely selfish action, cooperate with those working for good and you will achieve more than you think. Good day for sound matters, hard work.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Pointless aggressiveness and irritation tabu if you would have the friendly co-operation and help we all seek and need. Be your efficient, friendly self and returns will speed your way.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) Should be peak day for honest interests. Pitch in confidently and do your best. Offer good suggestions, seek and grant favors. Government issues, all worthy lines under favor.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn) — Avoid changes in projects or methods running profitably, smoothly—unless emergencies call for the change. Step up production where needed now. Be helpful and receive help.

January 22 to February 19—(Aquarius) — Unpremeditated moves or changes not in order here either. Keep to essential matters, your job, and make improvements wisely. A day for steady application to duty. Eat sparingly.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Advice to Aquarius can be helpful here. Be mindful of promises, careful in confidential issues and you can gain in your particular world in new matters.

YOUR BORN TODAY: Strong, good, characteristics, also some weak tendencies to be counteracted in this Zodiacal sector. Up to you to weed out the faults and bury them, to develop and cultivate the fine assets. Great possibilities for success, for good work and inner contentment. Tendency to be easily led and pointless stubbornness should be corrected. Outstanding assets are helpfulness, generosity. Prayer and education great stabilizers, comforters. You have talent for art, science, mechanics. Work at your gifts.

Birthdate: Henry Adams, American historian; Jeffrey Lynn, actor.

Boucher Given Shiny New Car By Hockey Fans

New York, Feb. 15 (CP)—Frank Boucher, one of the finest hockey sport performers in the National Hockey League, will never forget St. Valentine's day, 1951.

Boucher, now manager of New York Rangers, an organization he has served as player, scout, coach and manager since the team was founded 30 years ago, was honored last night in a simple but sentiment-filled ceremony.

Boucher, often called the "gentleman of hockey", received a new car from the fans and numerous other gifts. To make the night complete, the Rangers downed Chicago Black Hawks 5-1 to move into a three-way tie with Montreal and Boston for third place.

Only a slim crowd of 8,375 fans was on hand—probably due to the Robinson-Lamotta fight in Chicago—but they were enthusiastic in their applause for the 49-year-old Boucher when he went to centre ice.

Boucher was flanked by his old linemates of 25 years ago—Bill and Bun Cook. Also with him were his wife and son, Earl, who came with some of his hometown friends from Mountain, Ont.

After the presentations, Boucher said: "I am so overwhelmed by all this that I'm afraid I have little to say. We will cherish this night for the rest of our lives. Thanks a million."

President Clarence Campbell of the N.H.L., James A. Farley, former postmaster-general of the United States, and Mayor Vincent Impellitteri of New York also took part in the pre-game ceremonies.

Other gifts received by Boucher were a tool chest from the Rangers' St. Paul club of the United States Hockey League; a pen and pencil set from the Garden minor hockey officials; a silver tea service from New York Rovers; a television set from the Rangers and a portable typewriter from the New York Hockey Writers Association.

Eddie Kullman led the Rangers attack with a pair of goals—both of them in the first period. Don Raleigh and NickMickoski tallied for the Rangers before Chicago replied with their lone tally of the night by Steve Black.

Reggie Sinclair scored New York's final goal.

Immediately after the game, the Hawks, deep in last place, left for Chicago where they play the Rangers again tonight. Second-place Toronto meets the Canadiens in Montreal.

Hockey's Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Gordie Howe continued to hold down top spot in the National Hockey League's scoring race with 85 points, made up of 36 goals and 36 assists.

Team-mate Sid Abel is still in undisputed possession of second place, as neither he nor any of the other big seven were affected by Wednesday night's Chicago-New York game.

Montreal's Maurice Richard, in a three-way tie for third place, still holds doggedly to his top goal-scoring spot with 32.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Howe, Detroit	29	36	65
Abel, Detroit	20	30	50
Richard, Montreal	32	15	47
Lindsay, Detroit	20	27	47
M. Bentley, Toronto	16	31	47
Sloan, Toronto	26	20	46
Kennedy, Toronto	12	32	44

BANDIT FOILED

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—Pte. Walter Vilar, 20, home on furlough from a marine training camp, was taking a five-dawn stroll over Manhattan bridge yesterday when a bandit shoved a gun in his ribs. Police said the marine whirled, flipped the bandit to the pavement, and sought to pin him there when the gun discharged, hitting Vilar in the shoulder. The bandit fled without loot. Vilar's wound apparently was not serious.

BOMBS AWAY

It matters little what type of enemy target lies in this rugged, mountainous terrain of Korea, very little will remain of it after the falling bombs have done their work. This photograph was made from a B-29 Superfort, on one of the dozens of bombing attacks made on communist positions.—Central Press Canadian.

Dash of Color Added to Room As Vicki Enters

Chicago, Feb. 15 (AP)—A dash of color, aside from the reddish-purple welts puffing out his face, was added in Jake LaMotta's dressing room in Chicago stadium last night by the entrance of Vicki.

Vicki is the Bronx Bull's wife. She also was a top contender for the "Mrs. America" beauty crown last year.

Vicki was among the first to reach Jake's quarters after he had been slugged into a 13th-round technical knockout by welterweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson, who became middleweight king.

In a vivid blue dress that clung to her lithe wet silk, and with her Niagara of blonde hair falling below her shoulders, Vicki, indeed, made a spectacular sight in what usually is a men-only room.

It was a good thing she was there. The Bull, although able to leave the ring under his own power, was in no condition to talk. But Vicki could.

At first, Vicki could hardly look at Jake as he lay there exhausted on the training table, wrapped in his leopard-spotted dressing gown. His face was a mess from Robinson's trip-hammer punches, and oxygen was being administered to clear away the cobwebs.

"Doo, tell me fast, how about Jake?—will he be okay?" she asked.

Physician J. M. Huston assured her everything was under control.

Relieved, Vicki had a few things to say.

"Jake had a terrible time trying to make the 160 - pound limit," she confided. "He'll never try to make 160 again—he's going to the light heavyweight division from now on."

LaMotta took such a beating that Vicki couldn't bear to look at the 11th and 12th rounds.

"I just put my head down and covered my face with my hands. I was glad they stopped it."

Jake mumbled something and continued to gaze at the ceiling. "I'm him all this must have been old stuff. But, brother! There never was a dressing-room scene like this.

Meanwhile, Robinson could do his own talking in his quarters. "I kept dancing and Jake kept standing—I didn't think I could knock him out," snorted the new middleweight king as he plunged his left paw into a bucket of shaved ice.

"No, no bones broken," said Dr. Vincent Nardiello of the New York State Athletic Commission. "We just hit Jake so hard and so often that it was thoroughly bruised."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP)—They tossed a party for Frank Boucher at the Garden last night, and the choice of St. Valentine's day may have been indicative of the affection hockey folks have for the guy. The formal excuse for the shindig's the only member of the original Ranger club who still is around for the 25th season . Bill and Bun Cook, who teamed with Frank on the first and greatest Ranger forward line, came in for the occasion. So did a lot of other old-time hockey players. There were appropriate ceremonies and gifts and a bit of waxworks and reminiscing later. There also were a few comments about the bulging waistlines of the guys you remember as slim-waisted athletes 25 years ago. Boucher's agreement that "what is used to be."

Quick Change Staff

The Americans were first in New York hockey and we still remember the dazzling bigger-than-life picture of Billy Burch that decorated the Garden lobby on hockey nights and Bullet Joe Simpson's doubled-over way of skating...But the Amerks couldn't stay first, with their "standing wings" and porous defence, since Tex Rickard brought in a really-fine team...Boucher, the Cook brothers, Ching Johnson, Taffy Abel and goalie Lorne Chabot—first introduced as "Rabbit-skin" for ballyhoo purposes—were just that. It didn't take much more than half a dozen good players in those days when the "suicide" pass still existed, when defencemen usually stayed back and devoted themselves wholeheartedly to the business of racking up opposing forwards with body checks and, when a guy with a long reach like Ottawa's Dutch Nighbor could poke-check rivals into a state of complete frustration...

Pats Continue March to Front In Ideal Weather

Eighth Army Headquarters, Korea, Feb. 16 — (CP) — Canadian troops today continued their move from their camp in Southern Korea toward positions at the fighting front.

After blvouacking in the open the Canadians column moved its long hike to the combat area. The Princess Patricias' column is moving in three flights — rifle companies in United States troop carrying vehicles, with A and B echelons following in that order.

The move is being made in ideal weather, for an reappering after recent mows and overcast conditions. Dirt roads, however, are intended to be greasy, a condition which the increasing cold will change as the regiment nears the more-northern combat area.

Today's leg of the battalion would normally draw its monthly beer and liquor issue from the British NAAFI depot, (Navy, Army, Air Force Institute).

Lieut. Bill Campbell of Winnipeg, battalion welfare officer, checked to ensure that the Patricias would not run out on the issue through the move. He learned that stocks would be moved forwarded and that approximately 700 two-dozen cases would be awaiting the battalion.

NAAFI officials told The Canadian Press that there are short intervals early February because of the operational outlook at the height of the cold, which led to stores not being forwarded to Japan.

The supply on hand should work out to an issue of three bottles a week for each man.

The beer has been either Australian or Japanese, but Canadian brands have shipped from Britain. Most of it arriving until now has been chosen for reasonable enough, to the men at the front.

Two Chinese Words Gets British Soldier by Reds

Central Front, Korea, Feb. 16 (Reuters)—Don Soarz, a 18-year-old British soldier captured by Chinese Reds today, said "how's your father" to two Chinese officers — and then walked past them to his own lines. A burst of artillery fire had separated Soarz, a sniper, and Don took to his heels. Then up walked the two Chinese.

"I didn't know what to do, so I spoke the only two Chinese words I knew — Lee omah (here's your father) — and they just walked by," he said.

CAN USE CREAM

London, Feb. 16 —(Reuters) — Britain's countryside cafes are preparing to serve cream with strawberries and real cream once again — after a gap of 11 years. Food Ministry Maurice Webb said last night that a wartime order banning the making of cream in the cafes of Britain would be revoked this spring and that cream once again may also be imported.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 16 (CP) Synopsis — Skies were clear over Ontario last night with the exception of a small area of cloud in the Toronto - Orangeville region, but more cloud is moving in from the west 30 in Southern Ontario. In northern regions the lowest temperature varied from 10 below to 10 above.

The storm centre which has been drifting slowly up the Mississippi Valley is gathering momentum and will bring rain to Southern Ontario tonight and to the northern section by morning.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT PRACTICES ACT IS INTRODUCED

Designed to Prevent Job Discrimination

Toronto, Feb. 16—(CP)—A fair employment practices act, first of its kind in Canada, went before the Ontario legislature yesterday.

Designed to prevent job discrimination by reason of race, creed, color or nationality, the bill provides for two levels of conciliation and recourse to the courts to uphold its principle of discrimination.

It was introduced by Premier Frost, who said it carried the hope "for the furtherance of a principle which is fundamental to peace in the world."

The legislature today will debate government bills.

Speaking in yesterday's throne-speech debate were Health Minister Phillips, Reid Scott (CCF—Toronto Beaches) and William Grant (Progressive Conservative—Peel).

Dr. Phillips, in a detailed report on mental illness, said nearly $15,000,000 would be spent this year to combat "one of the greatest problems." There were in every 22 in Ontario will at time during in his life be admitted to a mental hospital, and four of every 1,000 persons are at present mentally ill, he said.

Mr. Scott said the legislature should demand federal action to implement price controls and subsidies. C. C. F. leader R. B. Jolliffe followed Mr. Scott by giving notice of a resolution embodying the idea.

Sleet, Snow, Rain Hamper Travel

Chicago ,Feb. 16—(AP)—Sleet, snow and rain cut motor travel to a crawl over wide areas of the mid-continent today.

Relief was expected in some areas with a forecast of rising temperatures. But there was more glazing over the north central region and the plains states.

Heavy sleet remained closed. The freezing rain continued over Iowa, Minnesota, Wisconsin and northern Illinois.

There were no severe cold spots. The coldest was 8 degrees above in New England and northern Michigan. It was six below zero at Caribou, Me., and at Pellston, Mich.

Health Officers Spreading Across Canada Same Type Which Has Hit Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

Federal health officials have indicated their belief that the influenza which has spread through Canada may be the same deadly virus which took almost 9,000 lives in the United Kingdom in the last few months.

Reports of outbreaks are increasing daily, with at least 25 Ontario centres among the latest affected by the disease.

Hardest-hit centre in Canada has been Montreal, followed by Quebec in general and the Maritime provinces. And schools have been closed factories made idle and normal life disrupted in many other communities across the country.

No official explanation has been advanced as to why the virus should prove lethal in England. It attacks both old and young alike.

Montreal has reported 92 deaths, Toronto five.

One doubt still remains as to whether the English virus known as the prime A type and spread to the Continent, has reached there from the continent—a respected British medical writer said a week of laboratory tests to determine this.

Dr. Fraser said yesterday that there is no connection between influenza outbreaks of fever, colds, mumps, red measles and scarlet fever plaguing some communities.

From Prince Albert, Sask., where influenza is reported on the wane, came a warning from regional health officer Dr. C. C. Manly that "mild weather is no excuse for failing to keep temperatures outside, he said, are no reason to don heavy winter clothing or return to work before becoming fully recovered from an attack of the flu.

Premier Frost said the Ontario Legislature would avoid night sittings if possible, that members would be well rested and fit to discharge their duties. He had previously announced that "pairing"—a voting device whereby members of opposite political parties are paired and neither votes in the other's absence—would be introduced to allow ill members to absent themselves from sessions.

Most salient features of the outlook in Canada so far have been closing of schools and precautionary ban many hospitals have placed on visiting patients other than those in critical condition.

Careful Study Being Given To Role Spain and Yugoslavia Can Play in Defence Build-up

Washington, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Careful consideration be being given here to the possibility of using Spain, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey more closely to the 'Atlantic Treaty defence' set - up in Europe.

Officials say, however, that difficult problems stand in the way.

The possibility of action along this line was touched on in a brief exchange yesterday during Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees' hearings on Marshall's testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees.

Marshall was asked what his thoughts might be on bringing in such a Spain and Turkey into the defence system. He replied that any association of Soviet-satellite troops would be tremendously helpful to the Kremlin.

Informed officials do not interpret Marshall's remark as meaning the United States would like to see troops from Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey added at some future time to the Allied forces under Gen. Eisenhower.

The problem they hold in their own countries are of too great a strategic importance in relation both to the Middle East Mediterranean and the southern flank of Western Europe.

What is considered desirable here is some kind of an arrangement which would associate these countries more closely with the Atlantic defence set - up to strengthen the solid front against possible Soviet military threat in the European area and to improve

Russia May be Testing Out New Model Of Ultra-High-Speed Jet in Korea

Washington, Feb. 16 (AP)—Is the MIG-15 the last word in fighting planes in Korea?

American airmen, it became known today, recently have caught a few brief glimpses of a mysterious, unusually-fast jet fighting, presumably a MIG, northwards where the communist jet MIG-15s normally make their sallies wrom fields in Manchuria.

Whether the fighter is an entirely-new design or a refinement on some known type, such as the MIG-19 or the LA-17, is not yet known. Because the United States air force is not yet certain what the plane is, it has referred most glimpses of the craft to aircraft designers.

What concerns American fliers is the report that the mysterious red jet was able to keep standoff range until it pulled away from—the fastest operational jet fighter the U.S. has, the F-86 Saber.

One of the early models of the Saber set a speed record for all planes, recently by exceeding experimental X-1 rocket plane, by flying 670 miles an hour about two years ago. The speed of the standard operational models of the F-86 presumably has increased slightly since then.

Therefore, the red jet did indeed fly away from a pursuing F-86 at high speed, while approaching the so-called "Mach 1" point. That is the measurement for the speed of sound, which varies from 761 miles an hour at sea level to 663 at 36,000 feet altitude.

There was some belief that the red plane may have been equipped with an "afterburner". This device, by injecting fuel into the exhaust pipe in the fighter and igniting it with spark plugs provides an added boost to the pressure produced by the jet engine itself. It imparts to a plane a burst of speed and high rate of climb for interception missions. Its disadvantage is a high rate of fuel consumption. The factor already a problem in jet engines, the F-86 and some models of the F-84 types in operation in Korea are equipped with afterburners, although by the jet engine itself. Not-ordinary plane may be one of the known types—a MIG or Yakovlev—with an afterburner installed to give it additional speed.

FEDERAL CABINET REJECTS MOTION OF S.C. PARTY

Compulsory Training Of Reserves Said Unfair

Ottawa, Feb. 16—(CP)—In less than a minute, the cabinet last night rejected compulsory military training in the reserve forces for home defence.

The rejection came from Defence Minister Claxton late in a Commons debate which produced a split in the Progressive Conservative ranks over the controversial issue.

Members of all four parties, half a dozen of them decorated for bravery on foreign battlefields, spoke on a motion criticizing the government for not introducing compulsory part-time service in the reserve forces for home defence.

Some of them were for it, some against, but Mr. Claxton's brief statement removed the last doubt that the motion — a sub-amendment to the Throne Speech excoriating government policy—will soon come to a vote. That vote may come today.

Claxton Gives Views

Mr. Claxton arose shortly before the 11 o'clock adjournment to say that for reasons already sufficiently explained by many members on both sides of the house the government feels the motion is unacceptable. It was opposed by the 10-man Social Credit party.

Oldest Known District Resident Dies at 108

Kingston, Feb. 16 (CP) —Minnie Fraser, oldest known resident of this district, died yesterday, two days before she would have celebrated her 109th birthday. She died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hughes at nearby Sydenham, with whom she had been living for the past 40 years.

She had been bed-ridden for the last four years, but aside from being somewhat deaf her mind was keen and she had continued to take an interest in things about her.

Miss Fraser was born in Scotland and came to Canada at an early age with her parents and 16 brothers and sisters, All her family predeceased her.

Mrs. Hughes said Miss Fraser would never admit her age and had been telling people who enquired about the touchy subject for the past 30 years that she was 70.

Her favorite literature was romance magazines and she was deeply engrafted in one when she died.

Seize 17 Cars Believed Stolen From Detroit Lots

Police Say Headquarters Of Ring in Hamilton

Toronto, Feb. 16 (CP) —Police said today they have arrested five men in connection with their investigation of an alleged international automobile theft and smuggling ring.

RCMP officers said they also have seized 17 cars which they believed were stolen from Detroit, used-car lots.

Twelve cars were seized at Hamilton, St. Catharines, Oshawa and Bowmanville on the last Tuesday. Five were found in Edmonton.

Police said the Canadian headquarters of the ring was in Hamilton, More cars may be seized soon, they said.

The cars were smuggled into C..nada at Windsor, across the border from Detroit, Investigators said. At Hamilton, serial numbers were changed and Ontario licence plates put on the vehicles.

Three of the suspects are Hamilton residents. Police identified them as Peter Borman, Joseph Mezzatesta and Costas Karadavis. Arraigned two days, they were remanded on $5,000 bail each on charges of being in possession of smuggled goods.

The others, police said, are Edward Charles Degain of Detroit, whom they described as a parole violator, and Joseph Webber of Tonawanda, N.Y.

Degain, they said, was arrested last December as he crossed from Detroit to Windsor in stolen car. He was sentenced to one year in Goffles and three months indeterminate for possession of stolen goods and to a year concurrent for falsifying documents. The latter charge was laid under the customs act.

Inspector A. Cruickshank of the RCMP said charges of criminal conspiracy would be laid against all five men.

He said the ring was a well-organized "big business" which dealt only in 1940 and 1950 cars. Some of the cars stolen had been bought by citizens from used-car dealers who were unaware the autos were stolen.

Most sales by the smuggling ring to the used-car dealers were for about $2,000, Inspector Cruickshanks said. He estimated the total turnover of the ring made $600 a car.

Police said the pair Tuesday broke into two service stations, stole a quantity of cigarets, candy and lighter fluid from one, and attempted to steal gasoline from a third.

New Gospel Hall At Bancroft Gutted by Fire

Bancroft (Special) —Just two days before the edifice was to have its official opening and dedication the new $35,000 Gospel Hall at Bancroft was badly damaged by fire Thursday night which swept through the structure.

Firemen were able to control the flames after a stubborn two hour fight but damage to the hall will amount to between $13,000 and $15,000, it was stated.

The congregation of the church had held their first meeting in the church Thursday evening and the building had been closed up when people returning from the meeting saw the Pentecostal Church saw the flames on their way home. The fire apparently started in the furnace room.

The majority of the members of the Bancroft Fire Department had been attending drill with the chief's report unit in the Hasty Pees and fought the blaze for more than two hours in their army uniforms. Efforts to fight the fire was pumped from the nearby York River.

The new church was of frame construction with a stone front and stone basement. The building is 70 by 40 feet and would seat 400 persons. The interior was badly gutted by the flames.

Athens, Greece, Feb. 16—(Reuters)—Greek premier Sophocles Venizelos demanded "the union of Cyprus with mother Greece" in his ministerial speech today.

In ancient days a part of Greece the Mediterranean island was taken over by Britain in 1878 from the Turks who had held it for 300 years.

Eighteen per cent of the population is Turkish, and opposed to union with Greece. The balance is largely Greek-speaking and in favor of the move.

Snow Paralyzes Tokyo, Something Fire and Bombs Failed to Do in War

Tokyo, Feb. 16 — (AP) — Fleecy white snow flakes have paralyzed Tokyo — something Allied fire and demolition bombs failed to do in the war.

Eight persons were listed dead and 63 injured in the Tokyo-Yokohama area as 12 inches of snow fell, Kyodo News Agency reported today. Six air travelers were listed as missing. Thirty-five fishing boats were wrecked and 66 others washed from moorings. Fourteen United States Navy destroyer escorts were grounded for a time by high winds.

The 4,225-ton Swedish motor vessel Christer Salen, her bow damaged off the raging seas 350 miles from the east coast, was being towed to Yokohama. Rescue vessels reported her 33 passengers and 37 crew members safe.

Tokyo's snowfall was the heaviest since the record of 14 inches Feb. 26, 1936.

Shipping at this city of 5,000,000 stopped Wednesday night when the blizzard struck.

Streets are still closed by the snow. Most railroads are blocked. Subways are closed. Lights go out in many sections. The gas is off in others.

Street cars remain dead in their tracks. Trains are far behind schedule and in some places are not running.

Thousands trapped downtown by the storm have not been home in three days.

Little relief is in sight. And when the snow melts things will be worse.

BLAZE CONFINED TO BOILER ROOM

Some building damage resulted from a fire of undetermined origin which broke out in the Moxam-Wood garage at the corner of Dundas and Dundas Sts. last evening.

The blaze which started in the boiler room was confined there by the presence of mind of garage employees who closed the door while sending in the alarm.

The Fire Department arriving minutes later held the blaze to the place of origin with the result no damage was incurred outside the boiler room. A partition had to be removed to facilitate the work of the firemen.

Types of Credit Subject of Talk For Directors

Various types of credit was the theme of an address given the directors and guests of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce yesterday by J. A. Mackay, public relations manager for the Industrial Acceptance Corporation.

Three types of credit were discussed by the speaker, these included, investment credit for the purchase of capital goods, commercial bank credit for short term loans and consumer credit which Chamber of Commerce members purchased goods to the consumer.

Investment credit, Mr. Mackay explained, facilitated the sale of stocks and bonds which made possible the development of Canada's mines and large industries to a point where Canada was now a world power, exporting products around the world.

Commercial bank credits assist business to meet their business obligations and finance the purchase of merchandise.

"Only in recent years," the speaker said, "since the advent of the modern industry, have finance companies offered consumer credit in the way of instalment buying."

Increases Standard

Instalment buying has increased the standard of living by permitting the small wage earner to purchase automobiles, expensive electrical appliances, and other items which would not have been able to buy without the credit facilities, extended by this new type of consumer credit agencies.

The speaker was introduced by Director Henry Becker and appreciation expressed by Director Charles Cawker.

Secretary - manager Freeman Burrows reported on the Chamber of Commerce secretaries conference held in Belleville recently and stating that 60 secretaries from across Canada were present.

Director John Buchan told the directors the manufacturers division had reaffirmed their support of the Community Chest at the channel through which they will contribute to local welfare and charities.

With regard to the request that manufacturers consider standardizing holiday schedules in order to facilitate delivery and transportation services, Mr. Buchan said this had been fully considered by the division, but owing to their individual approach with labor as to the number of holidays which would be observed, it was difficult for a decision to be reached.

The directors supported a motion that the local Chamber support the Ontario Chamber of Commerce with financial assistance.

COST TOO MUCH

Ottawa, Feb. 16 — (CP) — It would cost billions of dollars to paint the wooden buildings belonging to the Department of National Defence, Defence Minister Claxton said Thursday.

He was answering questions in the Commons by G. K. Fraser (PC — Peterborough West) who promptly told him there must be something wrong with his estimate.

Mr. Fraser asked if the department has considered using fire-resistant paint. Mr. Claxton said it is used where economic to do so but it would cost billions to use any kind of paint on all defence buildings.

Corner Stone of Q.E. School Laid by Committee Chairman

A type of construction new to Belleville but which has proved both successful and popular in Hamilton, Pre-cast Haydite concrete slabs are used for floor and roof construction while the walls are of Haydite blocks faced with grey stock brick. No plastering will be needed in the class rooms of the new school building.

Construction of the new 12-room school with playroom and kindergarten is running well ahead of schedule, it was stated yesterday on the occasion of the official laying of the corner stone.

Chairman Lays Stone

Harold Seldon, chairman of the sites and accommodation committee of the local Board of Education laid the stone and delivered a paper containing facts, naming current newspapers and currency.

Chairman A. C. Campbell presided over the brief stone laying ceremony. He told reporters of a number of board members and architects in attendance. He commented that with the completion of the school, Belleville would have a modern school system and two Separate schools. "This is a big step in addition of the city's growth," he said.

Alderman Rollins, representing Mayor R. H. Potter who is ill in bed with the 'flu, noted that Belleville was the foundation of good citizenship and expressed his appreciation to members of the board for the work they have done for the part they are playing in helping Belleville to be better citizens of tomorrow.

Prayer Offered

Following the laying the corner stone, prayer was offered by Rev. R. E. Caldwell, of Shannonville, rector of St. Margaret's-on-the-Hill, Anglican Church in the Heights district.

Work in the erection of the school is well underway with more than three sides of the building as well as classroom partitions and corridor walls being in place. A total of 27,000 of the special insulating blocks have been laid, while brick layers have laid roughly 60,000 of the 100,000 bricks that will be necessary for the exterior finish of the school. Block and brickwork is being done by H. Edwards & Son-contractor.

One of the unique contruction features of the new one-storey school is that it is as fireproof as possible. All that will be able to burn in the completed school will be the window frames and the doors.

Construction is speeded through the fact that with the use of pre-cast slabs for floors and roof work can proceed without time wasting delay while waiting for concrete to set. For the floors 25-foot lengths of pre-cast slabs are being used, these being held in place by their weight. Over a paved surface will be laid. floors will be finished with terrazzo linoleum.

Use Same Slabs

For the roof the pre-cast slabs will also be used. These will be anchored at the ends sheeting which a cork insulated built up tar and gravel roof will be laid. The pre-cast slabs are purchased from the factory and are sufficiently reinforced so as to require no additional support for the entire building.

The first four feet in the corridors up from the floor will be bricked, the remainder of the walls up to the ceiling to be blocks, which will be painted for interior surface. The blocks have special insulating and sound deadening qualities.

No date for the completion of the school has been suggested by the contractors, following unforeseen delays it is expected the structure will be ready for use and ahead of school opening in September following the summer holidays.

$5 Million Needed by Red Cross To Carry on Their Work of Mercy

Toronto, Feb. 16 —More than $5,000,000 will have to be gathered by Red Cross in its annual appeal for funds, opening March 5, to enable the Society not only to carry on its peacetime services but also to provide blood and blood products for Canada's armed forces as recently requested by the Canadian government, L. A. Winter, O.B.E., honorary treasurer, announced today.

While the bulk of the society's funds are expended for services at home, Mr. Winter emphasized that Red Cross has international obligations as well.

Pointing out that the Canadian Society's medical-social welfare team was the first to be dispatched to Korea to work under the United Nations with civilian refugees, Mr. Winter reported that the Society had allocated nearly half a million dollars for international relief, including grants for Korean refugees.

Medical and nursing care in Canada, mainly concentrated in the Red Cross Outpost Hospitals and Nursing Stations, will require $3,629,045 of this total budget. Services to veterans, both in and out of hospitals, will cost $410,960.

A total of $1,861,255 has been budgeted for the Blood Transfusion Service, now operating in whole or in part of eight provinces, and planned to open in Saskatchewan this year. Almost 100,000 donors received free transfusions in 1950.

Civilian welfare services, including aid for disasters, public research and instructional services, will total $237,044; for Junior Red Cross, $213,000; for international relief, women's work and special grants, $276,764.

Kinettes Prepare For Fashion Show At Collegiate

Call them modelettes, if you will, but these little "Joans of Janes" who will parade in the Kinette Club's Children's Fashion Show in the Collegiate auditorium on Feb. 21st, will take a back seat from no glamor gals of more mature age.

They'll be dressed in what Dame Fashion decrees is the smartest style in all phases of children's clothing for 1951. And they will "model" the new styles in a manner that will make unpretenced oldsters.

The youthful models are Belleville's own children, who have been cleverly rehearsed for what the Kinettes believe will be the best children's fashion show ever seen here.

Clothes are being supplied by the Children's Shop. The Kinsmens Boys' Band will lend its presidance and Grant Whalen will be at the console of the organ. Tickets are selling rapidly and may be secured from any Kinette or at the Children's Shop, Front Street. The proceeds go to the child welfare work being done by the sponsor club.

In addition to the fine show there will be a draw for a handsome dressed dolly, and a wardrobe contained in a small cedar chest. These handsome gifts are now on display in the window of the J. McNabb Store, Front St.

C.N.R. May Make Temporary Improvements at North Station

The operating department of the Canadian National Railways will give consideration to the possibility of making temporary improvements in the present railway station here, according to Donald Gordon, Chairman and President of the CNR.

Mr. Gordon wrote the Belleville Chamber of Commerce to this effect, following the efforts of the chamber in pointing out the present inadequacy of the station to meet present day requirements if the measures of efficiency, comfort and appearance are to be applied.

The C.N.R. president's letter was read to the chamber directorate at its regular luncheon yesterday.

Mr. Gordon stated the railway appreciated the fact that many of its stations on the main line west of Montreal are quite old and in some cases the communities have grown over a term of years, but under present conditions we find ourselves unable to actively pursue such a policy. We are confronted at the present time, with the necessity of spending large sums of money on capital account for the purchase of additional motive power and cars to meet pressing traffic demands and to obtain a return in the event of war, to handle even a greater volume of traffic than was transported during the peak periods of the last war."

Mr. Gordon went on to say that in the face of these heavy commitments and the difficulty of securing key materials such as steel, it seems imperative that the replacement of important main line stations will have to be deferred for further consideration in the future.

"I am, nevertheless," Mr. Gordon wrote, "directing your letter to the attention of the Operating Department so that they may give consideration to the possibility of making temporary improvements which would alleviate some of the unsatisfactory conditions of which you have made mention."

Following the recommendation of the Chamber of Commerce that a new CNR station be erected here, the city council endorsed the chamber action with an official communication to the railway executive. Support of the recommendation was voiced also by Mr. Frank Follwell, M.P. Hastings South, who brought the matter to the attention of Mr. Gordon. The Hon. Lionel Chevrier, Federal Minister of Transport also wrote the Chamber expressing his pleasure in having a copy of the recommendation "when it comes up for discussion."

One Delivery By Carriers Starts Monday

In order to comply with the Government's economy program in this Air Force department it is required to reduce the number of active letter carriers, and curtail delivery to residential areas of the city to one each day beginning February 19th, 1951. The downtown business section will of course continue to receive two deliveries as in the past.

The city is presently composed of 16 letter carrier walks, each receiving two deliveries daily but under the new program, service will be given with the reduced staff to as many walks as is possible in the morning and the remainder will be completed in the afternoon. A reserve is now being undertaken to revise the present 16 walks so that when completed, definite morning and afternoon delivery areas will be established for each, with the usual two deliveries, to the business section.

As a result of these restricted services, letter carriers will be covering larger areas and consequently handling a greater volume of mail which in turn will require more time in the office to prepare deliveries will in all probability be made considerably later each morning than at present. The district co-operation from the public will be appreciated during the change when the letter carriers are becoming familiar with the new areas assigned to them.

WORK CREW HALTED

Staffa, Ont., Feb. 16 (CP)—An Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission crew of 14 men, stringing the last seven miles of service to the Corbyville Distillery line, was halted Thursday by 50 Hibbert township farmers who swarmed around the crew's bulldozer and shut down two miles south of Staffa.

The incident was the latest in a passive resistance campaign by Strafford district farmers who claimed they weren't getting enough for the right-of-way for the line.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 16 (CP)—Golds moved strongly ahead as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

The group continued yesterday's strong gains which were connected with rumors of gold being sold on the free market. For several weeks before yesterday the list had trailed quietly with little change. Today they climbed to new high ground for the year.

McIntyre led senior golds with a $1 jump and Kerr Addison, Lake Shore, Dome and Giant Yellowknife were up fractions. Junior issues advanced generalies with Macassa, Newlund, San Antonio, Coniaur Willans and East Malartic ahead.

Industrials were mixed in dull trading. Canada Iron a lone standout as it jumped $4.75 to a new high at $68.25. Other price changes were mostly fractional.

A few of the lower priced issues were ahead, especially mines dealing in cobalt and silver which would profit by yesterday's announcement of an increased price for cobalt. Ryan Lake and Cobalt Lode added pennies in extremely active trading.

Western oils declined with moderate losses.

Stock Buyers Must Put Up 50 P. C. of Price

Toronto, Feb. 16 (CP) —Toronto and Montreal Stock Exchanges today acted to take some of the steam out of speculative trading.

Both announced that effective immediately buyers of stocks, if buying on margin, must put up 50 percent of the price, instead of the 33 1-3 percent rate which had been in effect.

The rate on stock already bought on margin remains at 33 1-3 percent until May 1, when the 50 percent rate becomes effective on all accounts.

The action of the Canadian exchanges follows similar recent action in New York, where margins were raised to 75 percent from the previous 50.

Actually, the action in Toronto and Montreal is not expected to have any major effect on trading, because margin buying is not pronounced in current operations.

Most people nowadays buy their stock outright and avoid risk of losing it if the price shall fall and their margin payments prove insufficient to hold it. This is in contrast to the hectic markets of the '20s when stocks could be bought on as little as 10 percent margin.

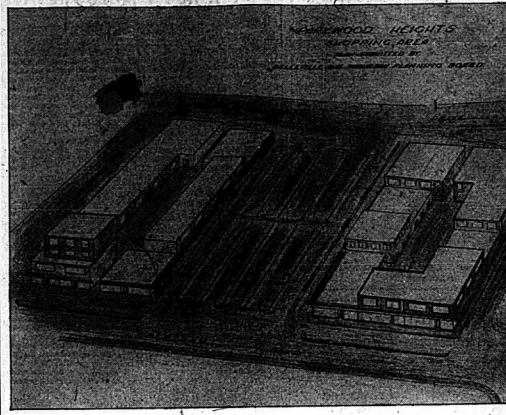
Proposed Shopping Area For Parkwood Heights



A modern shopping area complete with parking area and service roads is proposed for the Parkwood Heights district and is now under consideration by a committee of city council. The commercial area for the new housing district is now a certainty by decision of the Ontario Municipal Board the big question now being the development of the area. Shown above is a sketch of the proposed shopping area the plan of which has been approved by the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board and by residents of the Parkwood Heights area.

Proposed Modern Commercial Area in Parkwood Heights Has Approval of Owners

Development of the proposed shopping area for the Parkwood Heights district for the past several months has been one of the big problems on the agenda of the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board which has now come up with a modern commercial area which has the approval of the home owners in the area.

The plan has been submitted to city council and is now under consideration by a special committee from that body. If approved by council and a decision is made to proceed the plan will be forwarded to the Ontario Municipal Board for final approval.

During the past year the local planning board with Mr. J. J. Trudeau as chairman, has submitted several plans for the development of a shopping area in the Parkwood Heights district, but the most recent, providing for adequate parking area and service roads as well as restrictive construction appears to be the most satisfactory to all parties concerned.

Streets Widened

Under the plan the streets encompassed the commercial area are widened out by an additional 100 feet to allow for traffic and service road lanes separated and apart from the present through roads.

Also submitted by the planning board is a comprehensive schedule of covenants comprising building restrictions and land use so as to control the development along suitable lines.

All store fronts and buildings generally would conform to standards laid down by the board and building such as a theatre or three-storey structure would be set back from the street a distance corresponding to the height of the building. Under the suggested plan the ground floor of any store or building could be built to the street line but the storeys above would be set back.

Constructed by Owners

Mr. Trudeau pointed out that the proposed plan is different from other shopping areas in that the buildings comprising the blocks would be constructed by individual owners restricted to a certain design, rather than by any one large company or land owner.

If a plan such as is suggested is developed through co-operation of all parties concerned, the entire city would agreeable to all parties concerned,

COMBAT FORCES

Acheson said the United States must use the time it has — by virtue of its lead over Russia in air power and atomic weapons— to build up with its Allies "balanced collective forces" needed to deter aggression.

Land, Sea, Air Expansion

He added that "the value of our lead" in atomic weapons will decline but he said balanced land, sea and air forces in Western Europe will help offset the loss of that advantage.

Acheson said U.S. Allies "are now taking steps which bring us measurably closer to realization of our ultimate goal" of an adequate defence force.

"Roughly speaking," he went on, "the combat forces of our European Allies may be expected to double in the next year."

Defence Secretary George Marshall told the committees yesterday of the plan to send to Europe four more American divisions plus supporting troops to reinforce the two already in Germany.

Marshall's disclosure of the definite figures took much of the steam out of the opposition in the troops-to-Europe controversy. The size of the forces contemplated was smaller than had been anticipated.

Acheson attacked proposals for limiting American help as well as suggestions for concentrating North American defences in the North American hemisphere and for insisting that Europe prepare its defences first and get American aid second.

Need for Advance Action

He said Congress itself recognized a need for advance action to defeat aggression. It did so, he contended, by putting a requirement into the 1949 Mutual Defence Assistance Act that "maximum condition military aid to Western Europe upon the creation of an integrated defence of the North Atlantic area.

Repeatedly, Acheson put the blame for the need of building up Western defences on the threats raised by Russia and its satellites.

He mentioned the situation in Eastern Europe, including East Germany, as an example of one that might "explode into" great trouble for Europe.

In brief, Acheson said the job of protecting the United States breaks down into three parts— (1) to prevent war, (2) to prevent Russia from "accomplishing its aggressive purposes" by means other than war and (3) to assure the victory of the free nations if war is unavoidable.

DESTROYED BY FIRE

Imlay City, Mich., Feb. 16 (AP) — The 60-year-old St. Paul's Lutheran Church here was destroyed by fire yesterday. Loss was estimated at $50,000 but there were no injuries. Volunteer firemen said the blaze apparently was started in a basement furnace.

Frozen hydrants hampered the work of firemen.

THE HIDDEN DRUMMER

(News item in the Belleville Intelligencer notes the appearance of pussy willows in a swamp in the fifth concession of Tyendinaga, in January 1951).

Why bud the willows by the stream
In January of the year?
Is it a sign of an ancient dream
Envisioning the living green
Of a truth unfolding—crystal clear?

O soft, gray catkins, come soon,
O pussy willows of the spring
Why venture forth in winter's noon
Perchance to lose your fair shoon
In mystic presence lingering?

Vestigial sound of a newcomer,
Gently and surely, music's own,
Like the waft of the spring breeze
Indian summer,
Ineffably faint from a hidden drummer,
So sweet, to soften a heart made of stone!

Free-Mealers Sent to Jail

They wanted free meals, for the next ten days they'll get them, But the county jail will provide the menu.

William English and Jas. Dawson, transients, ordered expensive meals, $1.60 each to exact, in the Star Restaurant last night, but alas and alack when the minute of reckoning came they "discovered" they had no money.

They told the proprietors and "what are you going to do about it?"

"Call the police."

"Go ahead and call."

The proprietors did just that and this morning the free-meal eaters were given ten days in the county jail.

"FLYING SAUCERS" SECRET REVEALED

All reliable reports of "flying saucers" in the past few years are officially said by the Office of Naval Research to be attributable to the sight of huge plastic balloons used by the United States Navy in studies of cosmic rays in the upper altitudes of the atmosphere.

Reports recalls the persistent reports of speeding saucer-like objects in the sky. Such led to strange imaginings by some observers. The stories began to be reported in the summer of 1947. According to a new survey of the "sightings" at about the time the physics department at Washington began to make use of a new 100-foot plastic balloon to bear aloft electronic instruments for study of cosmic rays and associated phenomena of the upper atmosphere. According to Dr. Liddel of Washington reports of the saucers coincided roughly with the number these balloons sent up by the United States Navy, outside of such reports as were obviously considered the work of psychopaths or hoaxers.

The balloons rose as high as 100,000 feet or nineteen miles, according to Dr. Liddel and at that altitude they are swept along by winds of 200 miles an hour or more.

The balloons launched by the Navy researchers at many points in the country and were free to travel according to unlimited distances. At dusk on summer evenings, according to the New York Times, would be the best time to watch for saucers. Dr. Liddel said, and a study of reports indicates, that many of the flying discs were sighted about that opportune time.

According to the New York Times "the tales that the flying saucers inspired surpass anything we ever heard about the sea serpent, the Loch Ness monster and other peculiar delusions. One magazine writer was certain that the past 175 years the planet Earth has been under attack by a mysterious civilization by living, intelligent beavers from another planet."

Dr. Liddel has stated that he had checked with other government agencies to make certain that no other reports of experimental project had tested anything even vaguely resembling a flying saucer."

LLOYD C. DOUGLAS

Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas of Montreal was formerly the minister of St. James' United Church in Montreal and before one of the famous writers of the day. His recent book will cause a deep sense of loss to those who have read any of his literary works which have had a powerful appeal and an influence in the religious ways of life.

Dr. Douglas was another of those literary men who was born to the work of interpretation of life through the art of the novel. It is recalled that in his earlier days in the James' Church he had a way of making use of modern parables and formulas which are shown in his later literary works.

A critic of the Montreal Gazette states that "it was in a sermon at St. James' Church that Dr. Douglas embodied the theme which became the centre of his powerful novel, "The Magnificent Obsession," that people should serve secrets between themselves and God, besides their sins. There were other notable sermons in the St. James' ministry. Such was that on the "Fall of Jericho," which he likened to the energy of prayer, the power moving round and round the great city, until the people within became so hysterical that they were ready to collapse at any sudden sound.

His career in the literary world began in Montreal and after his return to the United States his fast-selling novels followed one another. One of the best known is "The Robe," which had a very great sale in Canada as well as the United States and abroad.

In the work of literary creation he reached a wide audience and that audience never failed to react to the appeal of the lessons he brought before his readers.

His gifts in the two fields as minister and as an interpreter of life through his gifts of a novelist made him one of the best known men of the age. His wide appeal through the literary form has doubtless had a profound influence on the lives of tens of thousands of people, who might otherwise have heard such lessons so convincingly taught.

Our principles are the springs of our actions; our actions, the springs of our happiness or misery. Too much care therefore cannot be taken in forming our principles.—Shelton.

The value of a principle is the number of things it will explain.—Emerson.

Gravity must be natural and simple; there must be sanity and tenderness in it.—Cecil.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

WAKING TIME

Then I was just a little lad,
Each heavy-lidded eyes
I had
Was quite a task, my father said,
A time to get me out of bed;
A voiced at first a rousing call;
Then which I paid no heed
at all;
I used to waken me once' more
By bang upon my bedroom door;
But if in vain that proved to be,
He'd pull the covers warm from me;
And finally he'd shake my bed
Yet yank me from my cozy bed.

Today I walked the garden round,
Where all is wrapped in slumber sound
And thought, as oft my Dad had done,
Soon now, will do Old Father Sun.
He'll call unto the butterfly:
"'Tis time, my child, you should be up!"
To tulip bed and rose he'll go,
Pull off the coverlet of snow;
And since this rouses lazy willie,
Tickle the feet of daffodils;
Thus, waking every lovely lassie,
He'll have them up in time for spring.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is in emergencies that the biggest and irreparable mistakes are made. As in the housing shortage in Canadian cities and towns, where, because of rising rents fewer public servants have the nerve to point out that we are forcing families, we are leaving to park spaces, no recreation areas.

In some cities, as a matter of fact, housing projects have secured encroachments upon parks and recreational lands. And around the outskirts of cities, the constant land is almost entirely in the hands of sub-dividers with their eye to the dollar.

Those interested in building—and that does not mean merely the building trades and the building industry, but includes banks, trust companies, insurance and mortgage companies which wield immense power—have this to say about the steady shrinkage of park lands and recreational areas in the process of our cities' growth.

"This is a new age, an age of cheap and rapid transportation. Our Canadian cities are surrounded by beautiful recreational territories of easy access. The modern city does not require the great park areas that older cities had to have in the days when escape from the cities was difficult, and for a great part of the population, impossible."

The trouble with that viewpoint is that children have to play every day. Play is essential to them, winter and summer. Yet, the relentless growth of building, and the steadily rising fury of the flow of modern street traffic, are making the play of children more restricted each succeeding year.

A man I know is obliged to live in an area where no play ground is available. He got hold of one of those metal road signs familiar on the open highways: "Men at Work." He repainted it to read "Children at Play," and each day, after school he sets it up in the the middle of the pavement for motor traffic to slacken for in considerable astonishment.

It is worth, considering if play for children is not entirely as important as work for men.

Scottish Gardener Brightens Prairie

Regina—(CP)—The difference between Canada's prairies and the wooded estates of Scotland was obvious to Thomas Leslie when he arrived in Regina in 1913.

But when he retired at the end of January, he could take satisfaction in the tree-lined streets, well-planned parks and beautiful gardens in Saskatchewan's capital.

As a 37-year-old employee of the Regina Parks Department, nearly 13 years as parks superintendent, Mr. Leslie had something to say about the development that occurred.

But while his retirement plans are uncertain, 'gardening won't fit in with anything that develops.

"Gardening is my profession," said Mr. Leslie, "and I have enough of it at work without bothering about it at home." Born in Kirkcaldy, Fife, near Edinburgh in 1886, Mr. Leslie took up the family profession and worked about 10 years on two Scottish estates before coming to Canada.

OUR TOWN

DOC'S ADVICE

The Doc and I were sitting in front of a fire in the Doc's living room and raw stenga, discussing Life and The Times, when Joe Whalley dropped in for a visit.

Joe is a quiet mousey kind of guy, about 50, 5ft. 6in., 150 lbs., in our block and comes by for the occasional beer. I've never really understood what the Doc does. He talks about invoices and loading pool cars and stuff like that I don't understand.

I poured him a beer and Joe looked in his chair looking intently into the fire for a minute or two.

"You'll get round shoulders carrying the world around like that, Joe," the Doc said finally. "What's the problem. Martha pregnant again?"

Joe laughed in his unpretentious way and took a sip of his beer. I suppose it isn't really serious at all, but its getting me down. I'm going to borrow I have to ask my boss for a raise in pay."

"Then the Doc said gravely, "Junior and I were just discussing our chances of survival in an atomic war, but every man has his own problem. And what's the trouble with asking for a raise?"

"Trouble is I'm afraid it," Joe said, as if he were glad to talk about it to someone. "If it weren't that Martha was after me all the time I'd never think of it. I need the raise of course. I'll admit it coming to me. But I'm just no good at that kind of thing. Fact is, I'm scared stiff."

The Doc lit his pipe.

"Another guy who never learned to sell himself," he said thoughtfully. "The world is full of them."

"Oh, oh," I said. "You better back, Joe, I feel some advice coming on from the old goat."

"I'd welcome any advice at all," Joe said.

Straight Talk

The Doc worked awhile getting his pipe going while Joe waited eagerly for him to begin the lesson.

"First of all, you've been trying to work out a little speech in your mind, haven't you?"

"Yes, I have," Joe confessed. "I thought I'd . . ."

"Forget it," the Doc interrupted. "The boss isn't interested in your qualifications as an after-dinner speaker. In my day I had many men working under me. Nothing antagonized me more than the rehearsed type who came to me with a pat little memorized speech. Right away I began to suspect his sincerity."

"You don't know this boss," Joe put in miserably.

"All bosses are hated," the Doc said, "and in most cases they don't deserve it. What you've got to realize is that the boss is buying your services just as he'd buy liquid paste or paper towels for the washroom. He's out to get the most for the least money. If he isn't, he doesn't stay boss very long."

"Maybe so," Joe said.

"So," the Doc went on, "Don't give him any song and dance about why you need the raise. He's not interested in the hungry mouths you have to feed or any True Confession Hour. All he's interested in is what you're getting him for his money. Chances are he knows that already. He probably knows, too, that you're worth more than you get."

"Oh, he knows all right," Joe said with some bitterness.

"You see, to him its just another business problem," the Doc went on. "To you it's a very personal situation. So you have to meet him on his own ground. That's yours. No appealing to his sympathy or anything like that. It's got something to do with He needs it. Now you want a higher price for it. That's the line he should understand. Its the only line he understands. It's the only kind he understands.

"It sounds pretty mean when you put it that way," Joe conceded.

Asking Price

"Now, about the money," the Doc went on. "Before going to ask him for a raise and let him decide on how much weren't you?"

"Yes, I was."

"Don't, the Doc said sharply. "It's a fatal mistake. You have to put a value on yourself, just as if you were a bank of merchandise. You know what it's worth. You're worth to the firm, don't you?"

"Yes".

"Then it's per cent to the total. That's what you ask for."

"But . . ."

"It's very simple," the Doc said, "if you ask for peanuts then you're judged as peanuts. Nothing that is gilded and cheap was ever valued. My father used to say, 'Ask for the moon and compromise for a star'."

Joe had listened to all this intently. Now he lifted his glass of beer on the floor and stood up. "Let's see how this will work out," he said eagerly.

Joe pretended to open a door and walk into an office. He faced the Doc and made a short little speech. It had a quiet, man-to-man dignity and was altogether persuasive. He grinned when it was over. The Doc grinned, too.

"Sure fire," the Doc said.

Joe slumped back in his chair. "I'd be so much simpler if Martha could do it," he said.

Mackenzie's Column: Yugoslavia Most Dangerous Area In Europe Theatre

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
(Associated Press War Analyst)

Yugoslavia is definitely spotlighted as the most dangerous area in Europe from the standpoint of being the potential focal zone of another war.

Marshal Tito's repeated warnings that Russia is preparing to invade his country and Russian neighboring satellites has been followed by a declaration from State Secretary Acheson of the United States that any such attack by any red attack on Yugoslavia would dangerously strain the fabric of world peace.

Put in less - euphemistic terms, this means that if Russia should attempt aggression against Yugoslavia, it might produce war.

Glaring Deviation

This warning comes after a long period of Soviet manoeuvring and bitter Cominform attacks which scarcely could proceed much further short of actual war.

The conflict grows out of Tito's revolt against Moscow's domination of his country. The Marshal refused to delegate Yugoslavia's sovereignty to Moscow and vigorously urated a policy of nationalism. This glaring deviation from the Soviet line aroused Communists which makes Moscow the ruling power over all red governments, has come to be known as "Titoism".

And the revolt hasn't stopped with Tito. Powerful pro-Soviet communist parties in some countries have been split by supporters who come impregnated with "Titoism" and it even is penetrating satellite states—Czechoslovakia, for example.

Moscow has watched this development with mingled anger and anxiety. Obviously "Titoism" was a threat to the structure of the big communist bloc which Russia had built, and which it considered to continue building. Accordingly Moscow has started powerful counter measures.

Potential Barrier

And what is the Western Power's attitude toward this? Are they still clings to his own brand of communism? Well, he has the potential of powerful state which lies against the Aegean Sea and so is a potential barrier to Russian aggression. Yugoslavia could be a great barrier against the right wing of Soviet aggression in Europe.

Moreover, Titoism represents a step away from Russian domination. It could be the ferment which would disrupt the Soviet satellite block.

Highly independent and hard - boiled, Tito is not the man to be trifled lightly by a potential aggressor. And by the same token he would make a powerful ally.

RULES FOR LONGEVITY

In one of his works Prof. Elie Metchnikoff discovered of the function of the phagocytes (white blood corpuscles that ingest and destroy invading germs and serve as scavengers), cites with evident approval some precepts formulated by Legedon physician named Weber who had retained the characteristics of youth at the age of 83. Dr. Weber offered the following suggestions for prolonging life:

1. All the organs must be preserved in a condition of vigor. (Frankly, I, Brady, can only guess that this means something like "Well, take care of yourself.")
2. It is necessary to recognize and subdue any morbid tendencies whether these be hereditary or have been acquired during life. (Again, I pass.)
3. It is necessary to be moderate in food and drink, and in all other physical pleasures. (Right here we begin to down to brass tacks.)
4. The air should be pure in the dwelling and in the vicinity. (Any d. f. should know how to keep the air pure in the dwelling, but how to do it in Hill one can police the general atmosphere is beyond my comprehension.)
5. It is necessary to take exercise daily, whatever the weather. (Dr. Weber—no, I mean Metchnikoff—insisted on that again. I'll say it myself again—for I have said it here many times. Two miles of oxygen on the hoof, three times a day, regardless of the weather.)
6. In many cases the respiratory movements must be specially exercised—(by Jiminy, if Metchnikoff's investigations of Life had not been published before this article was written, you'd have to search the firm, don't you?!

"Yes".

"Then it's per cent to the total. That's what you ask for."

"But . . ."

"It's very simple," the Doc said, "if you ask for peanuts then you're judged as peanuts. Nothing that is gilded and cheap was ever valued. My father used to say, 'Ask for the moon and compromise for a star'."

Joe had listened to all this intently. Now he lifted his glass of beer on the floor and stood up. "Let's see how this will work out," he said eagerly.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOOD FRIENDS SOMETIMES HURT US

Plutarch says of Pericles that this matchless Greek leader as he spoke in his people's ear he felt a sting in' their conscience. He could talk them in the mood to say that they became acutely aware of the call of duty on the one hand and equally aware on the other hand of their failure to meet those high requirements. The nobility of Athens never listened to Pericles without feeling the sacrifice in behalf of the city's welfare has been insignificant as compared with the price in the people's citizenship accorded them.

There must have been something about our Lord's preaching which had a similar effect on men's hearts. So many thoroughly bad even became thoroughly good men after months of contact with Him that they could have stabbed their minds and hearts with realization of their own unworthiness and held before them the profound privilege of sonship with God.

A good friend seldom hurts anyone's feelings, but he continually hurts the conscience of his fellows, and without appearing to do so, goads them on to better deeds.

The good effect of love is that it takes no note of our lives better. When people really love us, our faults are continually met under the influence of their fellowship. And it is not only kindness which turns the trick. As often as not it is some word that stings the conscience and starts us along different pathways.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

A VARIETY OF INTERESTS

The most interesting people are those who have the most interests or who are interested in the greatest number of things. The least informed, or indeed the most ignorant person, is sure to be such people fine ones when he meets, and from whom to learn.

If a person is interested in the theatre, in music and art, in books, in sport, in travel, but best of all in people, then he should be cultivated as a friend. Many a friend have I found in this unexpected meeting on a train, on a ship or through another friend. Some mutual interest draws us together. It is this variety of personal interest that makes life from becoming bored with ourselves! We don't get time.

The more we know the less it seems that we do know! The better informed we are the more our interests are spread out. We are forever on our toes to make new discoveries. That keeps us active and active and ever stimulated. It's a wonderful thing to want something that isn't one's own.

reach, and which has to be hunted for and discovered. It's the chase that is so fascinating, and which keeps us alert. Collectors will know what I mean.

I like the look of books of almost every description because they lead me to read them, but mostly because they are written by human beings like myself and like people. Every author of a book puts a great deal of himself into it, no matter what its subject or nature. When I read the man-velous things that Nansen tells about from his vast experiences I not only learn about birds, insects, animals or Greenland, but I am reading a biography of himself.

I have for years had many interests. The more we have the longer life seem, in fact people are heard to say that they have no time to do the things they want to do. I have a new world if he has made a habit of acquainting interests while engaged in his life work. He lives on to his remaining years a portion of the endless opinion of his youth. He is a boy again!

Schedule of Salaries

Category 1 includes teachers with a pass BA and one year of teacher training.

Category 2 is for honor BA graduates with a year of teacher training.

Holders of extra degrees, heads of departments and vice-principals receive extra remuneration, over and above the maximum salaries in the categories.

The only salary schedule provided minimums and maximums of $1,800 and $4,000 for elementary school teachers, and $4,000 and $4,800 for secondary school teachers.

Most teachers will receive the $700 limited raise imposed by the board.

Major Crime Held to Minimum Last Year Says Police Chief

Trenton—(Special)—Chief Constable John Taylor of the Trenton Police Department presented the fourth annual report to the members of the Police Commission yesterday. The commission, including Judge J. C. Anderson of Belleville, Magistrate F. Wills of Bellleville and Councillor Ross Burtt acting for Mayor Kenneth Cronk, who is at home ill, voiced the approval of the local department over the last year and commended Chief Taylor on his efficient operation of the force.

Presenting his report the Chief said: "I am again pleased to report a very successful year in the work of the Department. Major crime was held at a minimum and there was only one serious breakin, in which a safe was taken from the premises and contents, and valuables in the amount of $3,300 were stolen, seven arrests and cases presented in court. The general work of the Department and the courts was heavier than in 1949."

The number of thefts reported reveals a decrease of 17 from last year.

Cruiser patrols and transportation of prisoners to and from the County jail totalled 39,191 miles.

Major Part of Work

Traffic control has become a major part of the work of the department. The number of cars and cars using the streets have increased and traffic congestion, especially during the rush hours, has been common. The main cause of congestion has been the bridge and the corner of Dundas and Front Streets. The installation of meters in June assisted in the movement of cars and better downtown parking, but has congested areas where there are no meters.

The number of motor vehicle accidents investigated increased from 418 in 1949 to 470 in 1950. More people were injured, more hit and run accidents reported, and more property damage resulted than in any previous year.

"I would like to again request consideration of increasing our office space," Chief Taylor said. "We are constantly working under trying conditions in cramped quarters, hampering the efficiency of the department."

The chief also asked for consideration of noon hour and five o'clock traffic congestion, affecting the operation of town fire trucks, and remarked on the success of the safety campaign held in the fall of 1950. He expressed his thanks to the members of his department for their co-operation, and to commission members.

He continued in the report that violators of the Liquor Control Act during the year numbered 2", compared with 310 convictions in 1949. Five hundred and two convictions were registered under the Highway Traffic Act. Criminal code cases decreased 23 from the 182 high of 1949. Game and fishery violations numbered s ·zn, and 73 were fined under the Radio Act.

Property Damage

Property damage in automobile accidents totalled more than $30,000 with ten vehicles stolen and recovered. Almost $10,000 worth of other property was reported stolen, with a net recovery of about $2,500.

Trenton police cruisers travelled more than 39,000 miles in investigation of cases and transportation of prisoners. Actual expenditures for the year amounted to $4,000 less than their budget appropriation of approximately $36,000, and total cost of the department to the municipality, when fines were collected and the provincial grant received, was slightly more than $22,000.

Salaries for men on the force took $25,840.44, and uniforms and equipment drained $1,281.34 from the treasury. In the last six months of the year, $680 was contributed as revenue, from the parking meters.

Two Fire Calls

Twice yesterday the Trenton Fire Department raced across the river bridge in answer to calls into the station.

Mrs. R. H. Hetherson, 31 Kerr Crescent, had a fire under control by the time the reels got there. There was no damage to report.

The call to Gus Scaletta's house on Hawley Street was the next thing to a false alarm in that firemen had only to use the hand chemical tank to overcome flames from an overheated oil stove.

Downs-Coulter and Union Sign Wage Agreement

Trenton (Special)—Yesterday Mr. A. E. Johnston of the Trenton Valley area of textile joint board C.I.O. and Mr. J. E. Utley manager-director Downs-Coulter Ltd., announced the signing of a new labor agreement between the company and the United Textile Workers Union of America C.I.O.-C.C.L., local No. 1152.

Miss Peggy Westlake the Trenton local representative and Mr. Johnston made up the union negotiating committee. In commenting after signing the new agreement Mr. Utley said, "Negotiations throughout were on a very friendly and constructive basis."

The new agreement entitles the Downs-Coulter textile workers to a 7.7 wage increase plus installation at an early date of a welfare and insurance plan.

Depending on length of service with company workers will pay on a graduated scale toward vacation with pay.

Also the agreement includes a clause protecting the workers against the rise in the cost of living.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Getting Back to God

By ROY L. SMITH

He was a superb speaker, his audience was made up of the most representative men of the community, and the subject was one that was calculated to bring out the most ··· ··· ···ror. (In the midst of the ··· ··· ··· what great one said, "Gentlemen, what our country needs today is to bet back to God." And there was a great pause.

It all sounded so simple. And the crowd cheered something half stirred within them. Many, perhaps, made a firm and resolution to go to church next Sunday, or "talk to the wife about getting the kids into Sunday school." There was little evidence, however, that anyone not even the orator of the day—contemplated anything very serious.

God is Serious, Though

Getting back to God, if it is really tagbe done, is desperately serious business that will not leave a single area of life untouched. It is vastly more than filling a pew in church on Sunday morning, though it will include that of course.. It is even more serious than sending the children to Sunday school, though that is badly needed. It is serious that it means that grown men and women must sit down together, preferably in small groups, and discuss very earnestly this simple question, What is the will of God for this town, including me and my business?

The Sunday School lesson for February 18: "Jesus the Christ," Mark 7:24-9:1.

If God is all we say He is, and if it really is the divine personality we believe He is, then to trifle with His words or to ignore His advice, is like ··· trying to evade or avoid the law of gravity, it can only be done at the price of a terrible risk.

Saving That is Losing

The dangers of spiritual isolationism are by no means few. The dangers of political isolationism. Two wars have taught us that we are living in one world, in which not even a people as far away as the Korean peninsula can escape us. It is even possible that the jungle folk of Sumatra may have a very direct and constructive part to play in the ··· ··· ···

Girdle May Cause Feet to Ache

Oklahoma City, Feb. 15.—(AP)—Girls, take it from an expert, your girdle may cause your feet to ache.

That's what Dr. H. L. Collins, Columbus, O., told the Southern Chiropody Congress meeting here.

Dr. Collins says women would have fewer foot worries if they didn't hook their nylons so tightly to their girdles. The leg curls up their toes, he contends.

The foot expert claims some women get ingrowing toenails and other disorders because of the practice. He advises buying hosiery a half size too big and fastening suspenders closer to the top of the stockings.

Food Lockers CanSaveMoney For Homemaker

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 16. (CP)—Let's take a look at those half-empty food-lockers, and a second glance at the full ones.

At this time of year most of the vegetables and fruit stored last autumn have been consumed. "Waste" space is left.

And we mean that literally. Waste. Because that space costs money. Lockers are paid for by the year—so why leave them half empty?

This is one problem for which home economists of the Consumer Section, Dominion Department of Agriculture, are trying to find a solution.

And they've come up with some encouraging results.

Sandwiches can be kept frozen for months on end. Cakes also can be frozen, coming out as delicious as the day they were put in.

This news should be cheerful to the ear of the housewife who must count lunch-box packing among her daily chores.

It means she can pick enough lunches to last a month, putting them in the freezer until needed.

Best Fillings

Leftover meat, fish and peanut-butter are the best fillings for sandwiches which are to be frozen. Lettuce, tomatoes and hard cooked eggs should be avoided as they do not keep well. Mayonnaise should not be used as a spread as it tends to make the bread soggy under defrosting.

Cooked food to be frozen must be wrapped carefully in moisture and vapor-proof paper.

The experts say bread also stands up well under freezing. In the near future they hope to look into the possibility of freezing such goodies as angel-cakes, cookies, rolls and pies.

So far the results they have obtained are encouraging.

Powdered Milk Tests

Home economists of the Consumer Section have been busy collect on the way—studying properties of the powdered skimmed milk now being sold in most grocery-stores.

So far as food value is concerned this skimmed milk has all the calcium of ordinary milk—in fact it has everything except the butterfat," said one of the home economists. "We are checking the various types of powdered milk to see how they react."

The experts have found several of the companies manufacturing this powdered milk are giving American measures in their reconstitution directions.

They warn that an American quart equals 23 ounces while a Canadian quart equals 26 ounces. So remember that next time you use a recipe from a United States cook-book.

The home economist are trying to find out whether adding more of this powdered skimmed milk to a food will put more calcium into the diet.

They also are anxious to find out whether it must be mixed with water before it can be used to replace milk in baking. Some tried it in custards and found it better than when it was reconstituted," said one of the cooking experts.

In their experiments the home economists have been using the dried milk in everything from puddings to gravies—and so far have found it satisfactory.

A FIRESIDE DREAM

The winter world is wrapped in white,
The frosty air is keen,
The ice-locked lake in slumber lies,
Bare
The fragrant cedars lean
Close to the lonely, ice-bound shore
As if its aid they would implore.

And while the snow piles deep and high
About the lonely home,
The heart-fire glow sheds its warmth and light
And lures my thoughts to roam
And journey through the fair years
In sunny southern lands to stray.

Again I see a city fair
Beside a jewelled bay,
Its sunny skies and balmy air
Beguile the winter day.
On benches promenading the street
A throng of tourists daily meet.

The fisher folk upon the bay,
The bathers on the sand,
The palms and flowers and citrus groves
Recall a picture grand.
And from the million-dollar pier
A scene unfolds the heart to cheer.

When winter rules the northern land,
With stern despotic song,
Then to escape its despot's power
The people haste away
To this the Sunshine City bright
Where summer spreads a glamour bright

This city in the sunny south
Calls me again to roam,
I leave behind the wind-swept plain
Of my Canadian home,
To rest in sunny Florida
Where summer holds perpetual sway.

Women Workers Return To Jobs in War Plants

By ADELAIDE KERR

East Hartford, Conn. —(AP)— Twenty-five hundred women are back in overalls on assembly lines here, producing aircraft engines for defence.

The Pratt and Whitney Aircraft division of the United Aircraft Corporation has more than doubled the number of its women factory workers since fighting started in Korea.

Reports to the U. S. Department of Labor show Winnie the Welder is not back in defence production in any significant numbers, but Pratt and Whitney, whose engines power some of Uncle Sam's most deadly bombers and jet fighters, has built up a production corps of anticipation of future needs. The firm has added about 1,500 women to the .967 who were on its factory force before Korea while taking on about 500 men. Its production force was increased from 13,500 to 14,500.

During the Second World War, Pratt and Whitney employed 12,000 women in its Connecticut plant," says William F. Gwinn, general manager. "We found them to be good employees and good craftswomen."

Women work on lathes, drill presses, welding units, gear grinding machines. They handle parts worked in tolerances as fine as a watch. They are trusted with the operation of extremely costly machines. The bosses say they beat men all hollow on certain repetitive jobs, such as bench work, assembly work and wiring. Equality Basis

The factory now has a woman assistant to the personnel manager and a woman doctor.

Women factory workers at P. and W. get the same treatment as men, including a paycheck of equal size. This marks some changes since the early 40s.

When women first went into the factory, they got special rest time. They got 10 cents an hour less pay.

"But it soon became apparent that women could take it and that they were going to do the same work as men," said one official. "So they got same pay—and no special privileges."

Something else has changed. Eight or nine years ago, there used to be something about the bend of a woman's back in a factory that told you she flinched from your stare and was half sick with fright that her fumbling fingers might ruin a costly machine.

Today, handling her machine with deft competence, she neither sees nor cares about your stare. If you are so old-fashioned as to stare at a woman in pants working in factory. She has her cap on the back of her head, her gloves are grimy and she wears her faded overalls as familiarly as though they were her kitchen aprom.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Sometimes patience solves a problem quicker than a sword.

The hardest thing in the world to do when one is up against a heart-breaking problem is to sit tight and patiently wait to see if the problem may not perhaps eventually solve itself.

When the emotions are deeply involved, never shriek with tension and everything within a person cries out for definite action; for some decisive step to be quickly taken that will put an end to the intolerable strain. Yet there are situations in which sitting tight and waiting patiently would seem to be the wisest course.

I am thinking just now about a young woman, 26, who writes me that after six years of completely happy marriage, without any warning at all the bottom suddenly dropped out of the world in which she had felt so secure and so content.

From a loving, considerate and thoughtful partner, her husband, who is just two years older than herself, all at once seemed to become a totally different personality. Where previously he telephoned her sometimes as often as three times a day, while in his office, now he bought her expensive gifts on every possible occasion; took her out every week for a Saturday night "on the town", and never tired of telling her she was the best wife, mother and homemaker any man ever had, his habits went into bewildering reverse.

Now, she tells me, he never telephones unless it's to say that he won't be home for dinner, brings no gifts when he does come home, and constantly finds fault with her housekeeping.

On their fifth wedding anniversary, he gave her a mink coat. On the fifth, he didn't even come home to dinner at all but never bothered to telephone to say he wouldn't be there.

"I had a lovely dinner all ready," she writes, "and I don't believe I ever felt so bad in all my life as I did that night."

In the case of this particular couple, the birth of a baby, now three years old, was breath-taking joy. The husband and father couldn't get home from the office fast enough to see his child. No pleasure seemed more satisfying than to take the little one out for the small daughter, feeding, bathing and putting her to bed. "Wow", says the mother, "when he comes home and even finds a toy of the baby's left on the floor, he makes a fuss."

If she had ever failed to keep either baby or the home in perfect house neat and attractive, she goes on to say, she would feel she might at least in some degree be responsible for his present obvious reluctance to come home.

"But I always keep the baby and the house immaculate," she declares, "and I always try to look as attractive as I can, and have a good dinner all ready to put on the table when he gets here."

In face of all this, she is wholly at sea in her effort to figure out what could suddenly have gone wrong enough to turn her husband into such a stranger.

"Can you think of any explanation, or anything I could do differently?" she pleads.

I would do anything in the world to get back the kind I have known and loved all these years."

Unfortunately, as I said in the beginning, there are times when the best thing to do seems to be nothing at all but to adopt a policy of waiting. Though only two years older than herself, her husband was still very young when he took on the responsibilities of a wife and a home. Now at last he has, after six years of such undivided concentration on domesticity as she describes, he has become restless and wants more varied interests to his life.

Admittedly, if this is the case, he is certainly going about it the wrong way. Nothing could be more selfish than his present neglect of his wife and child and his utter indifference to their happiness. But reproaches and accusations never accomplish anything in a situation of this kind, while tolerance and patience may quite possibly prove to be the winning combination.

This is to suggest that the waiting will be easy. On the contrary, it will call for the greatest self-control and self-discipline of which she is capable.

But that's no reason why we can't smell sweet, carry a fleeting aroma with us wherever we go. Sachets are available and are wonderful buys. They come in cute forms, too, as you will see when you go cosmetic shopping. Funny little figures filled with fragrance that you can put on coat and dress hangers, pretty flat envelopes to tuck in dresser drawers, place between handkerchiefs, put in glove boxes, and coat pockets.

Pleasing Odors

Time was when sachets soon lost their pleasing odors. Not now. Perfume chemists have made wonderful strides in this direction. Sachets will carry on for months. In only a few weeks your entire wardrobe will be impregnated with their aromatic offerings.

Selecting them may be a confusing job. There is no out-and-dried rule. You must pick out the one that appeals to you.

Among the items you will find all manner of flower scents. Carnation is a favorite. Always has been, because it is spicy and sweet and allies itself like a friend and a brother. Lavender, of course, is an old-timer, more suggestive of linen closets and Grannie's old treasures than an up-and-coming young lady. You will find jasmine which is appealing, and, of course, gardenia which is beloved whether in the form of perfume, toilet water or sachets.

Some of the best and most beloved are blends. They have a tender, mysterious quality and you may prefer them to the usual flower scents. They make you think of old fashioned gardens, moonlight and romance.

Sachets Give Nice Fragrance

Place sachets among your clothes and they will carry a nice fragrance when you put them on. You can put them in a hat box or hang them on a cloth hanger.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WITH a nice, fat balance in the cheque book a woman can skip to the perfume counter, lug home a bottle of fragrant liquid, never worry about the money-flinging. All of us are not so lucky. Some of us must be dollar-watchers, what with the numerous bills that the postman brings on the first of the month.

But that's no reason why we can't smell sweet, carry a fleeting aroma with us wherever we go. Sachets are available and are wonderful buys. They come in cute forms, too, as you will see when you go cosmetic shopping. Funny little figures filled with fragrance that you can put on coat and dress hangers, pretty flat envelopes to tuck in dresser drawers, place between handkerchiefs, put in glove boxes, and coat pockets.

Pleasing Odors

Time was when sachets soon lost their pleasing odors. Not now. Perfume chemists have made wonderful strides in this direction. Sachets will carry on for months. In only a few weeks your entire wardrobe will be impregnated with their aromatic offerings.

Selecting them may be a confusing job. There is no out-and-dried rule. You must pick out the one that appeals to you.

Among the items you will find all manner of flower scents. Carnation is a favorite. Always has been, because it is spicy and sweet and allies itself like a friend and a brother. Lavender, of course, is an old-timer, more suggestive of linen closets and Grannie's old treasures than an up-and-coming young lady. You will find jasmine which is appealing, and, of course, gardenia which is beloved whether in the form of perfume, toilet water or sachets.

Some of the best and most beloved are blends. They have a tender, mysterious quality and you may prefer them to the usual flower scents. They make you think of old fashioned gardens, moonlight and romance.

GOOD MANNERS

BY MRS. BEECKMAN

Manners Menace

If you weren't born tactful, you can train yourself to be tactful. Stop, look, listen, think, before you speak. Learn to be aware of the feelings, reactions, sensibilities of other people. That is a priceless grace, a priceless asset for every contact you have or will ever make in your life.

A manly fiance talks with his fiancee's conservative father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am twenty-five years old, and I have high hopes of marrying a young lady of about the same age. In fact we have already agreed about our marriage, although I haven't given her the engagement ring. However, before I do this I would like to discuss a problem with you. We have decided to ask her father, even though unconventional as this is unnecessary in view of our ages. Please tell me if you think I should "ask for her hand", and if you think this is advisable, please give me a few pointers on how to go about it. I'm certain that I'm on the best of terms with her father, but a little attention cannot rather difficult because he is a very quiet and conservative man. Would you suggest I ask her father first and then give her the ring? And, if you advise asking her father, should I ask him in her presence?

Robert W.

My salutations to you, sir, for your sensible appreciation of the quiet conservatism of this gentleman who is the father of the young lady you want to marry. It's a fine and refreshing experience in these days when so many, many young men are completely thoughtless of the feelings of the mother and father of a girl they wish to marry. And I am sure, that the father, as well as his daughter, will be very proud of your well-bred and considerate attitude. So don't hesitate, the gesture that is natural to your innate courtesy and respect . . . ask the father for an hour convenient to him (just you and he together, and your intentions and have an informal, completely natural, with straightforward talk with him about your wishes to marry his daughter, your and her plans for the wedding day, and other details important to you two gentlemen most concerned with the happiness of your fiancee. This will be a wonderfully strong link in establishing your relationship with her family. (Give her the ring after you have had this talk with her father.)

Powder-blue crepe dress appropriate to wear in winter months

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would it be proper for me to wear a powder-blue crepe dress in the winter-time? I have always been under the impression that powder-blue is more for summer wear. Yet this season I have seen many women wearing such light colors as pink and yellow.

G. S.

This season, and in the past few seasons also, all light shades — pastels, powder-blue, yellow, rose, and even the now-named "winter white" . . . have been given a more enthusiastic stamp of approval by fashion for wear during the winter season than ever before. They are often advertised, as you know, as "gay to wear under your fur coat". However, the well-dressed woman shows sure taste about when it is appropriate to wear such light shades during the winter months. For example, it would be appropriate for you to wear your powder-blue crepe dress when you are giving a luncheon or informal dinner or tea or bridge party or similar party in your own home.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Naturally Curly Hair

Some naturally curly hair is troublesome.

Curly-locks doesn't know how lucky she is—or does she? No long sessions at the beauty shop getting a permanent wave. She is the envy of every girl whose hair is straight and stringy, the girls who go to bed every night with their heads covered with hard-ware, or spend at least forty minutes putting their short-cut tresses up in pin curls. Keeping the hair lovely is a part-time occupation with the majority of the sisters.

Naturally curly hair varies in pattern and in degree of curliness. Sometimes there is nothing more than mere shadows of lines, which even the finger wave will help to develop a more distinct design. An end curl at the beautyrorium will be necessary, but that's a speedy job these days.

The most troublesome kind of natural curl is the one in which nature seems to have overdone the mark, producing a frizz that is undisciplined. The only way to control it is to use brilliantine as soon as the silky threads come out of the shampoo bowl. The combination of oil and water will seduce tresses that seem to want to look like mattress stuffing. The short cut is a help; often it is desirable to thin and taper the shafts.

The natural wave, be it ever so perfect, can be ruined by careless shampooing. The slightest film of soap scum will cause the oil quality to disappear. Women who find that their permanents are going weak and limp should remember that, too. The use of some hair dyes will cause the natural wave to evaporate. For the reason one should have such treatments given by an experienced specialist who will know what agents should be used.

When shampooing, start with a vigorous brushing to remove surface dust. Have a clean brush at hand to use after the ducking. Start with a rinsing with a hand spray and a strong current of water. If soap is used, it should be in liquid form. The first application isn't likely to foam well and should be rinsed away. The second one should fluff up like beaten egg white.

Cold water should never be used. It is stimulating to the scalp, to be sure, but curls and ringlets are produced by a shrinking of the shafts and cold water makes them curl. After the shampoo, turn on the hot water and steam the hair.

To produce the natural wave pattern, comb the hair out straight while it is wet, then push it forward at the front and sides.

Brockville, Feb. 16. (CP)— Price of haircuts here was increased Thursday by ten cents to 75 cents. Shaves will cost 50 cents and children's haircuts 60 cents.

The Brockville Barbers' Association said the increased costs of living, barbering equipment and supplies was the reason for the boost.

FEDERAL CABINET

Those reasons include contentions that there aren't enough facilities to train the men, that it would be an inefficient use of manpower, that it would be an unfair system.

Prime Minister St. Laurent listened to the debate through much of the day. He already has said that the government will introduce conscription if and when it is deemed the most effective way to defend the country.

The motion has plunged the house into its first major debate on this topic, and this fact brought from Howard Green (PC-Vancouver-Quadra) the comment that it is far better to discuss it dispassionately now than with rancor and bitterness after war starts. Two to support.

Mr. Green, lean front-bencher and a major in the First War, was one of two members of the 43-member official opposition to speak out against the Progressive Conservative stand, expressed the previous day by the party's official military spokesman, Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Pearkes (PC—Nanaimo).

Mr. Green and Douglas Harkness (PC — Calgary East), a George Cross winner in the Second World War and an artillery lieutenant-colonel, both announced they are going to support the motion.

Liberal speakers left no doubt where their party stood on the motion. George Cruickshank (Fraser Valley), combat veteran of the First World War, reiterated his stand for compulsory training in the reserve forces but said he couldn't support the Socialist motion because their motion would once again lead to a "zombie" home army.

For a third party, Clarie Gillis (CCF — Cape Breton South) and T. L. Church (CCF—Yale) both came out against the motion on the ground that Canada hasn't the facilities to fulfill it and that it would be a wasteful use of men.

The Social Credit party and Victor Quelch (SC-Acadia), C. E. Johnston (SC—Bow River) and H. H. W. Beyerstein (SC—Wetaskiwin) rose forward to champion their policy, and all contended it is the logical step to be taken at a time of vital importance for the defence of the country.

Stand Supported

Gen. Pearkes said compulsory training in the reserves — originally advocated by the Canadian Legion — would drain off enough power needed elsewhere and could be corrected because of the lack of facilities. His stand was supported yesterday by J. A. Ross (PC—Souris), a veteran of the Lieutenant-Colonel.

Gen. Pearkes said the reserve army establishment announced by cabinet in 1945 calls for 150,000 men or 100,000 more than now. That many men should be obtained by a system of lots as part of a system of selective service that would guarantee enough men for defence industry too.

He said the volunteer system of enlistment has been discredited and that there is no time to be lost in implementation of selective service, preceded by national registration.

Col. Harkness, a veteran of the Second World War, said that any objections to compulsory training could be overcome if there was a will to do so. As early as three years ago he had called for compulsory training in the reserve forces and the need for such training had only increased since then.

Without referring to Gen. Pearkes by name he mentioned some of the arguments advanced by his party colleague against compulsory training. General Pearkes had said that a compulsory scheme would fail the people into a false sense of security and would necessitate the drawing of large numbers of instructors from the active army.

Col. Harkness said the people now have a feeling of security now because there is nothing to provide for it. The reserves would provide the framework on which to mobilize in the event of war. The reserves had enough officers of their own and would not need to draw any instructors from the active force.

Could Not be Spared

Mr. Gillis asked members to consider what the position would be if the government was forced to adopt conscription at this time. In the first call-up of 19- and 19-year-olds possibly 100,000 men would be raised. But they would have to come from the farms and from industries where they could not be spared because this country "has not that kind of manpower."

The main danger of war, he said, is in Europe. They had manpower there but had no equipment. He believed Canada's primary responsibility at this time would be the arming of allies who could not arm themselves.

J. W. G. Hunter (L—Toronto Parkdale), a lieutenant-colonel who has seen much service, said complex business that only full-time training is worth while. As one of the members who was overseas for two years after the war, he said the reserve army was never designed for compulsory service.

Mr. Hunter said: "Because we served we were fledged for compulsory training. He wondered how any one could train a soldier by training one or two nights a week. It took at least 12 months to train a man to fight.

Under existing conditions it would not be possible to provide training on an equal basis for city and rural areas. The facilities did not exist to provide training in outlying areas.

The purpose of the reserve force training was to put men in a position where they could more become fully trained soldiers in an emergency, he urged. Compulsory training was unsound from the standpoint of efficient training and efficient use of manpower.

Tom Goode, (L—Burnaby-Richmond) said he would back his old commanding officer, Gen. Pearkes.

CAN AVOID POCKETS

Salisbury, Southern Rhodesia, Feb. 15 — (Reuters) — Those air pockets that toss air travellers' stomachs into their throats can be avoided, thanks to a new radio device developed by the British Overseas Airways Corporation. Corporation chairman Sir Miles Thomas said yesterday his engineers have developed a radio receiver enabling pilots to see the air pockets on the screen and avoid them.

FAIR EMPLOYMENT

No Opposition Expected

Mr. Houck said the province should assume administration of civil defence under a full-time director. He also called for support of the St. Lawrence River waterway and power project and defended the diversion from the proposed Niagara power development.

The government's fair employment practices bill is expected to meet no opposition. Similar bills were introduced by members of each of the three opposition parties.

It provides maximum fines of $50 for an individual and $100 for a corporation, trade union, employers' organization or employment agency.

An individual with a valid grievance under the act may complain to the Ontario Labor Relations Board. The Labor Minister can then appoint a conciliation officer to investigate. If his efforts bring no settlement, name or commissioner with the powers of a conciliation board. If the commissioner fails, the Labor Board can issue orders enforcing his recommendations.

Want No Bad Feelings

Premier Frost said the bill is aimed at keeping grievances out of the courts. "We don't want to cause bad feelings," he said.

The bill does not apply to domestic servants, non-profit religious, charitable, educational, social or fraternal organizations, nor to firms with fewer than five employees.

It also provides that the labor relations board is not bound to give permission to go to the courts if it feels that the discrimination was done in good faith for national emergency or any war, invasion or insurrection, real or apprehended."

It would also prohibit employers to advertise or state that a certain race, creed color or nationality would be preferred in an employee.

The premier said Ontario had pioneered in anti-discrimination legislation in Canada and hopes that with the new law "we may make it easier for others to do the same thing."

Mr. Phillips said the government has decided on "a very definite policy of research, a program of mental health prevention and rehabilitation."

A separate research department, divorced from hospital administration, was a definite need. Some 19,000 patients in mental hospitals were now being cared for by a staff of 4,000. The research program would be enlarged with "highly-trained professional personnel."

Preventitive work in mental health now was handled chiefly by four travelling clinics operating from hospitals at London, Hamilton, Kingston and Brockville. Mental health clinics had served 70,000 since 1930.

Full-Time Psychiatrist

New developments included a full-time psychiatrist in the Niagara district, who will soon operate from a 21-bed psychiatric ward in the St. Catharines General Hospital. In Kingston, the General hospital, mental hospital and Queen's University were cooperating under a university professor. Similar co-operation existed in London with the University of Western Ontario, where Victoria General hospital has a full-time psychiatrist.

The Toronto Psychiatric hospital admitted 400 patients a year and its out-patient department handled people from across Ontario. The hospital has the most modern treatment methods.

Rehabilitation was one of the biggest problems in mental health, Dr. Phillips said, with one-third of the 3,000 yearly admissions to mental hospitals being former patients. Psychotherapy and occupational therapy were being used to educate the patient about his problems and rekindle his interest in the outside world.

The minister said that a pilot project in rehabilitation at the Ontario hospital in London had been operating for a year and a half. "It would report within a year on the effectiveness of its efforts at education and care after patients are released."

Gen. Eisenhower On Way to Take Up New Position

New York, Feb. 16 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, leaving for Europe to take over as commander of Atlantic pact forces, today said "the only reason for the United States being in [this] great effort is because of our own enlightened, self-interest."

Eisenhower made the statement on the run as he boarded the liner Queen Elizabeth shortly after midnight for the trip to his headquarters in France.

The general told reporters he would not be interviewed, commenting "I had my say in Washington," but added:

"Now we go back to Europe again. It's four firm hope that our job over there will be done soon and we can get back to our country.

"We really believe that if we all do our jobs...the job will be done promptly."

"The free nations must stick together and establish the fact that we can live together in peace and confidence.

"We are trying to preserve the peace. Everybody knows we have no aggressive purpose."

Bulk of Estate Leaving Family

New York, Feb. 16—(AP)—The bulk of the late Hetty Green's fabulous multi-million dollar fortune is leaving her immediate family through the will of her daughter, Mrs. H. Sylvia Ann Howland Green Wilks.

Mrs. Wilks, last child of the eccentric Mrs. Green, died Feb. 5. Her will was dated July 27, 1948.

The will, filed for probate yesterday, named 83 churches, institutions and charities as beneficiaries and left $1,388,000 in personal bequests. Several Canadians received bequests of $25,000 each.

Mrs. Wilks at one time was estimated to be worth about $120,000,000—most of it inherited from her mother and the late Col. Edward H. R. Green, a brother.

Mrs. Wilks' will gave no indication of the size of her estate. Mrs. Green died in 1916 after building up the family fortune by shrewd investments in real estate and securities.

CAMPBELLFORD

Ten Deputy Game Wardens Sworn In by Clerk

Campbellford — John F. McGregor, clerk of the town of Campbellford, officiated at the swearing-in of ten deputy game wardens, who will assist in seeing that the game and fish laws are adhered to in the future.

Reg. McCulloch, local conservation officer, was in attendance, and addressed the group of new deputies. He told them that they would be asked, and explained some of the finer points of the law as well as describing some of the situations they would probably find themselves in. "You have to learn to use tact, and a lot of common sense in enforcing these laws," said Mr. McCulloch.

The new deputies will operate in the eastern half of Northumberland county, but their authority is valid anywhere in the province of Ontario.

Mr. McCulloch answered many questions for the group, and said he was glad to have these deputies operating with him. (The men all will operate under the local conservation officer).

Mr. George Braham, secretary of the local Fish and Game Association acted as chairman for the meeting. President of the local association Mr. Joe H. Smith, spoke to the group, and said he was glad to see the men were interested in preserving the game laws in this district, and thanked them for volunteering their services. All are members of the local Campbellford and District Fish and Game Protective Association.

The new wardens are: V. Spencer, E. Hendricks, Mac Little, E. Munden, Robt. McGregor, Clarence Duncall, E. Abernethy, Harold Abernethy, Gerald Blair, and Thomas Saunders.

Allied Bayonets Stop Attempts To Outflank Front

Tokyo, Feb. 16 (AP) —Allied bayonets slashed back communist attempts to outflank both ends of the central Korean war front today.

On the left flank, southeast of Seoul, United States infantrymen —almost out of ammunition— bared bayonets and charged. They chased the fleeing Chinese survivors half a mile.

The infantrymen killed some 56 reds. Artillery already had killed about 100 of a dug-in force of 300.

On the right flank of the relatively quiet central front, South Korean infantrymen used bayonets and grenades to throw back Chinese troops north of Chechon. But communist pressure in that mountainous sector continued.

On the western front south of Seoul, an American tank-infantry patrol ran into more than 500 Chinese just south of the Han River. The reds were dug in but lost at least 100 men.

Action all along the curving battlefront was relatively small in comparison with fighting during the last five days, in which communist drive on the central front was checked.

The Eighth Army counted red casualties at 4,835 for Thursday, of which 2,275 were on the central front between Chipyong and Wonju. This brought to more than 100,000 red losses since the allied limited offensive jumped off Jan. 25.

Friday's action on the right flank of the central front indicated the Chinese may have shifted much of their strength to the area north and northwest of Chechon.

They struggled over some of the highest ridges on the backbone of the peninsula to apply relentless pressure to Chechon, 14 miles southeast of the major road hub of Wonju.

A South Korean regiment was ready for them at one point. There the Chinese met stern resistance 10 miles north of Chechon. First reports indicated more than 2,000 Chinese were being held off.

An Eighth Army communique reported some of the reds infiltrated three miles through South Korean positions but fled after a 55 minute hand-to-hand encounter.

The communique said another force of some 1,000 Chinese was moving toward Chechon on a westerly mountain trail eight miles northwest of the town.

Tod Sloan Still Getting Goals but Howe, Richard Still Getting the Headlines

Aloysius Martin Sloan, better known to hockey fans as Tod, has the misfortune of playing right wing in the same league as Detroit's Gordie Howe and Montreal's Maurice (Rocket) Richard.

Otherwise, the 23-year-old Toronto Maple Leaf star would be sure to find himself more often in the spotlight. While national hockey league writers continually discuss the merits of Howe and Richard, Sloan is running up a record that rates more than casual mention.

The little guy from Vinton, Que. who has been commuting between the majors and minors for 6 years, demonstrated his dependability once again last night by scoring a goal as Toronto played to a 2-2 tie with Montreal Canadiens.

It was Sloan's 27th tally of the season, only two less than Howe and five below Richard, who now hold scorelegs in last night's meeting. In addition it moved Sloan into a tie with Richard for fourth place in the N.H.L. scoring standing.

It's only recently that Sloan has moved from centre to right wing, and since it tallies with his increasing scoring punch it would be an indication that Sloan will be a serious threat in coming years to the position of the spot by Howe and Richard.

Raleigh Scores Four

Another player who doesn't often make headlines came up with a sparkling performance last night.

He was Don (Bones) Raleigh, 26-year-old native of Kenora, Ont., who figured in six goals as New York Rangers defeated the last-place Chicago Black Hawks 7-3.

The smallest Chicago crowd in years—4,466—saw Raleigh score two goals and assist on four others. Ed Slowinski and Nick Mickoski got a pair each, while Buddy O'Connor got the other.

The victory moved the Rangers into sole possession of third place, one single point ahead of Montreal and two points ahead of Boston Bruins.

It was another in the long string of losses for Chicago, which has been able to eke out only one win in 23 starts.

The Hawks were never really in the picture. Roy Conacher got their first goal toward the end of the first period, in which Rangers fired a 1-1 lead. New York added a 3-1 in the second, and got two more goals before Bill Mosienko and Jerry Gudelskin scored Chicago's other tallies.

Come From Behind

At Montreal, a disappointed crowd of 14,301 saw the Leafs come from behind to tie the score after Canadiens had taken a 2-0 first-period lead.

Toronto maintained its wide edge over Montreal in their personal series this season. The Leafs have won nine, lost only one and tied two in games with Canadiens.

Ken Mosdell and Bert Olmstead scored for Montreal in the first period, Teeder Kennedy and Max Bentley helped Sloan on his second-period goal, and Bill Barilko tied it up early in the third.

Horsemen Say Santa Anita Track Is Too Hard

Arcadia, Calif. Feb. 16 — (AP) —Santa Anita horse track officials insisting that there is nothing wrong with their racing course in the face of contentions that it has been too hard.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt, one of the blue bloods of thoroughbred racing, thought the strip "was too hard," but added that perhaps it had been softened up somewhat during the last week.

Director of racing Carleton Burke declared the track is one of the best in the country, and general manager Gwynn Wilson said records show there have been only half as many horses broken down this season than in previous meetings at Santa Anita.

Admitted, one of the best-known horses are on the sidelines, including Hill Prince, Your Host, Bolero and Bed O'Roses.

The condition of the track had nothing to do with the injuries suffered by Hill Prince, said trainer Casey Hayes, but certainly it had nothing to do with Your Host's broken leg, added trainer, Harry Trotsek asserted.

Bed O'Roses, however, presents something for them again, said Vanderbilt, owner of the nationally-regarded filly.

"If she runs before the Bed O'Roses race that it was too hard, and you can see what happens," he said.

Bed O'Roses, racing in the $205,700 Santa Anita maturity Feb. 3, appeared headed for the winner's circle for the biggest purse in thoroughbred history when she broke down in the stretch.

Vanderbilt said he raced 14 horses annually through the Hollywood Park meeting but now has "half that many running here."

"Something has to give, and if it isn't the track it has to be the horses."

Paul Richards, manager at Lexington of the famed Calumet Farm, brought the issue to the surface, in an interview published in the Thoroughbred Record, he was quoted as calling the strip here "the most dangerous I have even seen . . . hard as concrete."

Burke retorted to the effect that while he understood Eberhardt was a fine trainer, he was unaware of his qualifications as a track-condition expert.

Veteran trainer Hirsch Jacobs, who said he takes almost daily measurements of the strip to see how deep the cushion is and how soft the base is, gave his approval of the course. The same sentiments came from jockey Johnny Longden and others.

Marble Grattan Earns Double Win at Dufferin

Toronto, Feb. 16—(CP) Marble Grattan, owned by R. Dussault of Southbridge, Mass., and driven by Bill Hablitzel, scored a double victory when he scored wins in both heats of the $2,000 feature trot at Dufferin Park Thursday night.

In the first heat Marble Grattan was held in reserve back of the pace in the early stages, was sent to the outside in the back stretch and gradually moved closer to the leaders. In the stretch drive, he wrested command from the pace setter, Western Liner, and won going away.

Marble Grattan was a sharp factor from the outset of the second heat. He was rated nicely by Hablitzel back of Nancy Patch and Western Liner in the early part. Entering the stretch he was sent to the outside of the pace setter and in a drive outfinished Nancy Patch.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

PANTHERS ON THE PROWL TONIGHT!

Their hockey claws razor-sharp and victory appetites still unsatisfied, the Fort Hope Panthers roll into town tonight to do battle with our Rockets in the final game of the junior "B" group schedule. The youngsters from the lakeshore town struck a new high in performance in their last three times out, defeating Peterborough and Oshawa and holding the leading Llanelly Kinsmen to a tie. All they need to satisfy their eye as a victory or tie with the Rockets. And that, kiddies, is what they will endeavor to do this evening. They're hotter than the proverbial cat of a cobwerette and tonight's tussle should be one of the better junior tilts of the season.

The Rockets however, may have something to say about the matter and if they produce the brand of hockey they are capable of, they should top the Panthers. If they do, and Lindsay sinks the Peterborough Links in Peterborough tonight, the Rocks will retain a second place berth with the Motor City crew as their foemen in the semi-final playoffs. Smiley Meronek's youngsters are fit and ready to go in a do-or-die battle for second place and fandom should not pass up this ice-lane tidbit.

* * *

BEST OF LUCK!

Rich Ferguson, Canadian Interscholastic one mile record holder will lead five Toronto schoolboys to the U. S. Indoor Interscholastic Track and Field Championships in New York; tomorrow.

Hailed as hopes for Canada's Olympic team, the quintet will meet a stiff and talented field in the competition the United States has to offer.

"We're going down to prove a point," Lloyd Percival, coach of the team, said today. "We want to let everybody know that given proper training and opportunities, Canadian athletes can be just as good if not better than any in the world. Our schoolboys have proven this before by gaining victories and setting records at this meet, and we're going to do it again."

* * *

Ferguson, who gained a berth on Canada's British Empire Games team while only 17 years old, will compete in the mile run against some of the top schoolboys on the continent. Although not in top form because of a leg injury which kept him out of training for 10 days just a week before the meet, the sandy haired 19 year old is rated by many experts as the man to beat, and as a possible record breaker.

* * *

Ferguson has twice gone under 4.26 in the mile, recording 4:16.8 during a tour of England last spring. The U. S. Interscholastic record is 4:21.7, held by Leslie MacMitchell. Ferguson's Canadian record is 4:23.

Others on the team are Pete Sutton, 18 year old 440 star, Jack McMeekin, 16, and Don Aitken, 16, in the 1,000 yards, and Norm Williams, 16, in the 60 yards high hurdles.

Accompanying the team will be Gary Schreiber, well - known schoolboy athlete, formerly of this city. Gary was discharged from St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, a few days ago following an emergency appendectomy and returns to his studies at St. Michael's College next week.

Lloyd Percival of Sports College, who knows a runner when he sees one took Schreiber under his personal training supervision, and predicted great things for him. He was supposed to run in the International Scholastic Meet in New York tomorrow, but his recent operation will force him to sit on the sidelines and cheer for his fellow Canadians.

However, his physician has given him permission to start training after a week period and the fleet-footed St. Michael's Academy track, football and hockey star will take part in the Canadian Indoor Championships meets being held in Hamilton and Montreal in April. He will take part in the 50- and 60-yard dashes. Under Percival's scientific methods and training, Gary should go places in the track world, even as he has made a fine name for himself in metropolitan football circles.

* * *

In a letter to this desk Gary informed us he lost 18 pounds during that battle with appendicitis. His splendid physical condition was in the boy's corner and together they knocked Old Man Peritonitis for a loop.

* * *

Lloyd Percival whose scientific methods with the Detroit Red Wings is not only paying off handsomely, but has started a feud between himself and Dick Irvin, Canadiens coach and Montreal sports writers, tried to sell the idea first to Conny Smythe of the Leafs. The Leafs manager turned the idea down flat and Percival took it to Detroit. He will apply this same method of training and play to the Detroit Tigers baseball club this summer.

SOFTBALL CONCLAVE

Many important items are scheduled for the annual meeting of the Commercial Softball League scheduled for Memorial Arena on Sunday afternoon starting at two o'clock. The meeting will be an open one and all softball enthusiasts are invited to attend, says President Don Lee. Of particular significance will be a discussion as to what classification softball in the city will adopt in 1951 and already suggestions have been aired.

* * *

Recommendations will likely be formulated for presentation to the Parks Board regarding the Alemite Field. Election of officers, discussion of league formations; possibility of affiliation with the OASA are but a few of the points to come under the chairman's gavel and it's strongly likely that softball in Belleville and district in 1950 will hinge upon the decisions made at this meeting, so it behooves all interested to put in an appearance.

Boys Bonspiel Shows Upsets In First Day

Guelph, Feb. 16 — (CP)—Sault Ste. Marie's monopoly on the Ontario school boys' curling ended here Thursday with the defeat of the lone Sault entry in their second game of the Empire Trophy competition.

A rink skipped by Bev Kay of Guelph came from behind to oust Oliver Carruthers' Soo rink 8-5, Sault Ste. Marie rinks, skipped by Glen "Red" Sagle have won the school boys competition for the last two years.

That was the chief upset in the first day of curling here and in Galt. Other double winners in the main event were T. Moseley's Lindsay rink and a Kirkland Lake rink skipped by B. Olzowy.

Only three games were played in the Exso Trophy second event competition. R. Cassels, Kingston, D. Retford, Orillia and S. Mclean, Preston, all won their first games.

This first day saw elimination of Bob Walker's strong Oshawa rink by E. Herringer of St. Jerome's by a 6-5 count.

Another strong rink that failed to win its first game was the Pete Hudson rink of Midland, knocked into the second event by Vic Thompson's Chatham rink.

Pontiacs Defeat Trenton Flyers 6-4

Bancroft—Eight and forty-seven paid admissions, the largest crowd of the season, saw Bancroft Pontiacs defeat Trenton Flyers by a score of 6 to 4 in Forth Hastings Arena on Tuesday night.

A grandstand finish by the Pontiacs in the dying minutes of the game gave them two extra goals to win the game and prove to their supporters that the calibre of hockey in the Hastings-Addington League was equal to that of the Trent Valley League.

The game was the fastest and cleanest of the season. It was one of the few times this season that the Pontiacs had opponents who kept them hustling from start to finish. Too many local games have been one-sided high-scoring affairs. Each team received the same number of penalties as goals.

Ezzard Charles Sixth Best Man He Ever Fought Says Louis

San Francisco, Feb. 16 (AP)—Old Joe Louis, who ruled the heavyweight ranks longest of 'em all, rates Ezzard Charles, current champion, who head him in his comeback attempt, as only the sixth best man he ever fought.

The Brown Bomber wasn't pulling verbal punches as he looked over a distinguished boxing career and decided that titleholder Charles was only No. 6 in a lengthy list of opponents.

"Old Joe who still is 37 years old and is fighting his way into another championship match Charles, picked Billy Conn at the best of all those who have faced him.

"No doubt about it, that Billy was the best. He was winning that title right away from me when I managed to get to him. He sure could box and he had a good punch."

The ex-champ was referring to their 1941 meeting, when challenger Conn was well ahead on points but made the mistake of trying to slug with Joe in the 13th round. Louis injured Conn again in 1946, this time in eight sessions.

Louis, who wore the crown from June 1937, until he retired in March 1949, rated the best men bested down the line as follows:

No. 1—Max Baer.
No. 2—James J. Braddock
No. 3—Max Schmeling
No. 4—Tommy Farr
No. 5—Ezzard Charles
No. 6—Jersey Joe Walcott
No. 7—Primo Carnera
No. 8—Rob-Parlor
No. 10—Arturo Godoy

Louis turned philosophical now isn't concerned whether Charles develops a slow burn in tomorrow night's somewhat-lowly rating. He thinks he stands a good chance to beat Ezzard the next time, if and when they meet fairly by scale, "because I can catch up with him early," Charles won handily from Joe in the latter's comeback last year.

Louis, in training here for his 10-round bout with Jersey Joe Walcott next Friday night at the Cow Palace, is down to 210 pounds, which the promoters say is good fighting weight for him. Walker, who cannot be classed as a first-rater, holds the California state heavyweight title. He will be a decided short-ender against Louis, however.

Indians Take Third Place By 7-0 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

Springfield Indians in the eastern division of the American Hockey League, Thursday night turned off the league - leading Buffalo Bisons and handed them a 7-0 walloping.

In the only other game played, Indianapolis humbled Hershey 8-1.

At Springfield, Kelly Burnett scored three goals and set up two more to pace Springfield in a riotous game before 3,500 fans.

Springfield took over undisputed possession of third place in the eastern division, two points ahead of Providence Reds, idle last night.

Ken Hayden, Bill Gooden, Armand Lemieux and Harry Pidhirny were the other Springfield scorers.

The game burst wide open in the third with three misconduct-penalties handed out to Harry Dick and Russ Lowe of Buffalo and Rint Gagnon of the Indians for fighting.

At Indianapolis Larry Wilson sent the Caps in front in the first period, and Freddy Glover and Leo Gravelle made it 3-0 in the second.

Joe Schertzi put Hershey on the scoreboard at 12:16 of the third period, but Max McNab and Gravelle nailed down the victory for Indianapolis.

KINGSTON WINS FOUR

Toronto, Feb. 16 — (CP) — A Kingston team skipped by Bowling Thursday defeated Fred G. Rubbra of Montreal 11-10 in the fourth round of the Setherling Trophy at the annual Ontario Bonspiel.

Two Brockville rinks also were successful. In the Setherling fourth round, R. E. Dalby's quartet eliminated Wes Gohn's Unionville rink 11-10. In Parker Trophy first round in Barrie, Dalbert blanked a Hamilton four skipped by Stan Jones 10-0.

Game Will Mean Eight Points To Winner

(By The Canadian Press)

A hockey jackpot of unusual proportions goes Feb. 22 at Toronto St. Michael's and Toronto Marlboros, standing one-two in the Ontario Hockey Association major series, meet in a game worth eight points to the winner.

Normally hockey games are rated at two points each in league standings. However, this season games between the two Toronto teams have been four-pointers, a device to fill in with lack of available points at the end of the season.

Now, because of such things as a skating carnival and general apathy at the box office, the O.H.A. is going to cut four games off its schedule, producing two six-point games and one eight-pointer.

"We'll start our semi-finals involving two Toronto teams and Hamilton Tigers March 3," said George Parsley, O.H.A. secretary.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler arrived in Miami Thursday to participate in the annual baseball players' golf tournament. Outwardly he was more concerned about his golf game than his job.

He brushed aside questions pertaining to the Canadian loop's major league baseball car.

"I'd rather not speculate about that now," he told reporters.

Directors of the 16 major league clubs meet here March 12 to pick their commissioner.

Acquisition of Bob Blake, veteran Buffalo defenceman, was announced Thursday by the Cincinnati American Hockey League club. Buffalo has loaned the 34-year-old Blake to the Mohawks for the season.

Harness-racing dates for Woodbine Raceway in Toronto have been advanced two weeks to Oct. 8-13, it was officially the meeting was set for Oct. 22-27.

Skiing conditions throughout Ontario are generally good, the Provincial Travel Department said Thursday.

Excellent conditions are reported at Port Arthur, Port Arthur, Haileybury, Haliburton, Midland and Sundridge.

Conditions are good at Barrie, Collingwood, Havelock, Peterborough, Cheorge, Rockwood and Markdale.

Conditions at Dagmar are only fair; poor surfaces are reported at Orangeville and Toronto summit.

Five more signed contracts arrived at the office of the Philadelphia Phillies Thursday, shortly before the first contingent of the National League champions left for spring training at Clearwater, Fla.

Phillies have 22 players under contract. Among the non-signers are only outfielders Dick Sisler and Richie Ashburn are said to be making serious demands for higher salaries.

Gene (Silent) Hairston, 21-year-old Negro outfielder who has made a sensational surge up the middleweight ladder in the last year, shoots for his 13th straight victory tonight against solid-socking Paddy Young at Madison Square Garden.

A victory over the blond New Yorker may earn Hairston a non-title shot with the newly-crowned middleweight champion, Ray Robinson, in the Garden.

Brooklyn Dodgers had all but one of their players in the fold Thursday as they announced signing pitcher Preacher Roe and utility infielder Eddie Miksis. Third-baseman Billy Cox is the only Dodger not yet announced as signed.

St. Peters Drop 11-2 TVL Game To Campbellford

Campbellford — Campbellford added another two points to their total, and Robinson and Mason of the locals added a few more points apiece, to keep ahead in the scoring race on Wednesday night, when the Peterborough St. Peters were defeated by a decisive 11 to 2 score before a very small crowd in the local arena.

Fourth place Peterborough nets played an excellent game despite the 11 pieces of rubber the locals put past him. For every one that went in, there were a large number that he kept out. The Peterborough lads played a little of the brand of hockey that they have displayed in recent games, but their passing plays just didn't click.

"Ozzie" Nelson was the Campbellford net minder for Wednesday's game, giving Red LaVerne a well earned rest.

The Teams:

Peterborough St. Peters—Goal, Foster; defence, O'Connell, Short; centre, Russell; Wings, Fawcett, Williams; alternates, D. O'Connell, Donald, Bacciano, Boyle, McGrath, goal.

Campbellford — goal, Nelson; defence, Tanner, Trumble; centre, Robinson; wings, Mason, Dooher; alternates, Blake, Herrington, Pace, Smith, Peake, MacMillan, Jeffs, Dunk. Laverne spare goal.

Final score—Campbellford 11, St. Peters 2.

Little Benny's Note Book

I started to go out and ma said, Wait a minute, give me the button that came off your jacket and I'll sew it back for you before you go, cause you look like a real ragged orfan. I hope you still have it, she said.

Meeting the button, and I said, Sure, ma I put it in one of my pockits, but the trubble is, now it's gone. It's a mistery, I said.

You probably looked for it the same way you look for everything else, like a distracted butterfly you said, and I said, No mam, I looked through every one of my Pockits twice, and if you dont believe it I bet I can tell you every single thing I've got in all of them.

I'd like to have that button, ma said, and I said, I'll tell you all the things I've got in my pockits, and the button's not among them, I'll tell you from memory. For instance I've got a lump of putty and 4 pencil stumps and a small hunk of sausage rine and some loose pink sand, I said.

Oh my goodness, ma said, and I said, and a small rubber cork and 3 big cork corks and a brush out of a paste par and a cracked colulold cup and a fountain pen without the pen.

Oh, dear, I hope it's without the ink, too, ma said, and I said, Sure, I dont think it ever had any ink. And I've got a fatls mustash and 6 rubber bands including a rather old one and an envelick left, and a gold sting off a candy box and a empty key ring, and that's about half, I said.

It's about enough, ma said. Come over here, she said.

Which I did, and she stuck 2 fingers in the little top pockit of my coat, and the first thing that came out was the button.

Pretty, ma and mothers are natural detectives.

HALLOWAY

United Church Shows Marked Progress During Year 1950

Halloway—Although the mercury was plunging downward toward the 30 degree below zero mark, about 30 persons represented the congregation of Halloway United Church at the recent annual meeting.

A supper was provided by the ladies and the fact this tables were set in the church which is in the midst of the redecorating process, in no way detracted from everyone's enjoyment of the meal.

Following supper; Rev. W. J. Flatt opened the meeting with a brief worship service. Mrs. Don Ross was appointed secretary for the meeting and Mrs. Ed. Emerson, press secretary. Mr. Flatt mentioned there were 25 members with pastoral oversight of 75, there were burials, one baptism, no marriages, during 1950.

Good Reports

Reports were heard from the various branches of the church's work and all were able to report a balance on hand.

ALLAN'S MILLS

Springbrook W. I. Celebrates Its Fiftieth Anniversary

Allan's Mills—The Springbrook Women's Institute recently celebrated their 50th anniversary in the Orange Hall, with the president, Mrs. Allan McKeown, presiding, accompanied by Mrs. Holmes, of Belleville.

A lovely blue and gold banner, colors of the W.I., having the inscription, "Home and Country," in golden lettering, was placed back of the stage, while a lace-covered table, adorned with a bouquet of yellow daffodils, graced the centre of the platform, and in front, the tea table with its white, linen cloth, its golden daffodils, its, yellow candles and silver tea services, centred by the 50th year anniversary cake. At one side, a table of antiques was on display, Mrs. John McKeown gave the address of welcome.

Mrs. L. Anderson gave a splendid reading on "Whistling" and Mrs. W. J. Bateman read greetings from Marmora, and Madoc. Mrs. Bunt, Miss A. Lewis, of Toronto, and the former Miss I. Brown, of St. Catharines; all of whom were unable to be present.

Home Building

Mrs. Clancy of Wellman's Corners W.I., gave an address on "Home Builders." Mrs. George Williams, current events of 50 years ago which proved interesting and an address, entitled "Looking Backward". Mrs. Rundle of Marmora, rendered two fine vocal solos, following which, Mrs. Holmes, of Belleville, gave a splendid address on "Our Anniversary", giving the acrostic of the word "Unity". Mrs. stood for the gate of opportunity, that had opened up to the W.I., members 50 years ago; 'O'—for its objective; 'U'—for loyalty; 'T'—for the destination to be reached; 'Y'—for enthusiastic endeavor; and 'N'—for the need for continued neighborliness.

Mrs. Holmes dwelt for some time on each letter and spoke of the possibilities that lie ahead for the Women's Institutes of Ontario.

This was followed by a recitation by Mrs. Kenneth Wellman, Corners, also one by Mrs. L. Hogeyn, of Stirling.

Fashions of 50 Years Ago

A fashion parade of eight ladies, wearing the costumes of over 50 years ago, paraded on the platform, each telling how old her costume was and when she wore it, all of which was greatly enjoyed.

A monologue "Making a Hat" was put on by Mrs. B. Morton, of Wellman's Corners.

Mrs. T. C. McConnell, of Stirling, formerly of Springbrook, who was present at the first meeting of the W.I. 50 years ago, gave a Church Re-decorated

Since Mr. and Mrs. Roth are comparative newcomers to Halloway, the members of the congregation are grateful and were glad to be able to give some expression of their gratitude.

Judging by the work which has already been completed it will be a church of which all can be proud. The date of re-opening has been tentatively set for March 4, unless some unforseen circumstance should delay it. It is hoped at that time to be able to welcome those who have contributed so generously to the cost of repairing the church.

Young Couple Feted By Forty Friends

Ivanhoe—On Friday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Reid were "at home" to an informal gathering of 40 relatives and neighbors in honor of their son, William John, and his bride, the former Miss Helen Audrey Keeble.

Master Wayne Keeble and his mother, Mrs. Charles Keeble, delighted the guests with a number of musical selections.

Cards and various games were played and delicious refreshments were served. The hostess was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Carl Rowson, of Port Hope, and Miss Myrtle Reid, of Ottawa.

CAMPBELLFORD

Campbellford — A member of Campbellford High School students were late for school on Tuesday morning after the school bus came to grief on an icy township road, one mile east of Cedar Creek Cheese Factory, off No. 30 highway between Codrington and Brighton.

Mr. Ken Ames, who owns and operates the bus line in Campbellford, had just stopped to pick up two students on the narrow road. The surface of the road was glare ice and as Mr. Ames opened the door of the bus, he felt the rear start to slide toward the ditch, off the high crown of the roadway. "There was nothing I could do, but to let it keep sliding," said Mr. Ames. The bus slid into the deep ditch and turned partly on its side. The only passenger on the bus was Marie Towns. Neither the girl nor the driver was injured. "It's fortunate that this happened just when it did, as I usually have 34 students on this run," said Mr. Ames.

It took the combined efforts of a wrecking truck from Brighton, and a large township truck to get the bus back up on the road. The vehicle suffered little damage.
